THE "SCOUTGRAM."

During the National Sanatorium Campaign, the Boy Scouts of the city, left a "Scoutgram" envelope at all the houses with the understanding that they were to call back within the next few days for any donations that may have been placed in the envelopes. A number of the envelopes have not been returned owing to the fact that those in the homes may have been out when the Scout called for them. It is now suggested that the envelopes be mailed to Mr. W. H. Dunsford, the treasurer of the fund, with the donations it was intended would be made in this manner.

IRISH PARLEYS NEARING BREAK; WAR IS LIKELY

GOVERNMENT CIRCLES EXPECT SINN FEIN TO REFUSE AGAIN TO OWN ALLEGIANCE TO CROWN

OFFICIALS SEE NO HOPE

LONDON, November 30 (Canadian Press). — Government circles to-day expressed the belief that the Irish negotiations would break down almost immediately, and that the resumption of hostilities could not be postponed.

The alternative settlement plan submitted oy the Govenment to the Sinn Fein demands a definite undertaking to take the oath of allegiance to the Crown, but the Sinn Fein will refuse, it is stated.

Hope of prolonging the truce has receded, and a break is imminent.

GROCERY STORES OPEN THURSDAY AFTERNOON

WEEKLY HALF HOLIDAY DISCONTINUED FOR THIS YEAR

Beginning to-morrow, during the month of December, all local grocery stores will keep open on Thursday afternoons each week to accommodate the Christmas and New Year's trade.

There is an agreement among the grocers, who organised as a section of the Retail Merchants' Association, to close on Thursday afternoons all the year round, excepting during the month of December, and all but a very few of the smaller stores have strictly conformed to that rule.

The buying public should, therefore, notice that for this year the Thursday afternoon holiday for grocers is now terminated, and stores will be open on Thursday afternoons until the New Year.

HOLD ALLEGED CHECK ARTIST

KENNETH MORTON REMANDED ON CHARGE OF PASSING WORTHLESS CHEQUES HERE.

Kenneth Morton was remanded for a week in police court here this morning on a charge of passing worthless cheques. He is alleged to have passed three cheques in this city, buying small articles and then presenting cheques for amounts ranging from $20 up. The contents of his pockets reveal that he has been in Toronto and Oshawa and he had in his possesion when taken into custody a Bank of Toronto cheque book nearly used up. He also had a clipping of a newspaper headline "Morton Freed." Police believe that he is wanted on a similar charge elsewhere.

He was arrested on Charlotte street by Chief of Police Newhall. On seeing the Chief, he donned a pair of shell-rimmed spectacles, evidently with the intention of effecting a disguise, and when the Chief approached hm he made a motion to his pocket as though to draw a revolver.

RANGERS HELD WEEKLY PARADE

FIFTEEN NEW MEN TAKEN ON THE STRENGTH OF THE REGIMENT.

Fifteen new men, bringing the strength up to 280, were signed up by the Peterborough Rangers last night.

The weekly parade was held last night, with Lt.-Col. A. W. McPherson, O.C., in command.

Sergeant-Instructor Thomas put the unit through a sharp drill, preparing them for inspection by Sir Henry Burstall, Inspector-General for the Dominion, on 15th December.

It is expected Brigadier-General W. B. M. King, G.O.C., M.D. No. 3, will also inspect the Rangers.

The percentage of returned men enlisting continues to be about fifty per cent. Walter Moore, M.M., of Smith Township, five years' service with the 21st Battalion, was one of the ex-service men taken on last night. The ex-service men are uniformly a splendid type, and the officers are highly gratified at the large number of returned men joining the regiment.

Every officer, N.C.O., and "buck" private is working hard to have the Rangers in a creditable shape for General Burstall's inspection, and are confident the Inspector-General will have no fault to find with the progress of the Peterborough unit.

PRAYER SERVICE IN TRINITY CHURCH

An afternoon of prayer was conducted yesterday from two to five o'clock, in Trinity church, by the members of the four auxiliaries to the Methodist church in this city. About 200 ladies attended for a very inspiring service. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. J. K. Moore, district organizer, and each auxiliary was responsible for a 45 minute period of prayer and song.

Mrs. A. F. Bookhout led the session for Trinity church; Mrs. S. R. Armstrong for George street Methodist; Mrs. J. F. Chapman for St. James' and Mrs. Thomas Smiley for Mark street church.

An interesting paper on the experiences of Miss Coones, Methodist missionary to China, was read by Mrs. John Speer, and a vocal solo was rendered by Mrs. C. E. Smalley. Mrs. W. C. Switzer presided at the organ for the entire session.

A quiet half hour of consecretion, led by Rev. F. E. Malott, closed the afternoon of prayer and hymns.

U. S. TREASURY OFFICIAL GOES TO BIRMINGHAM

GUY F. ALLEN, ASSISTANT TREASURER OF THE UNITED STATES, BECOMES FINANCIAL HEAD OF BIRMINGHAM MOTORS.

A VALUABLE ACQUISITION

Birmingham Motors have secured the services of Guy F. Allen, Assistant Treasurer of the United States, as treasurer of the concern. Birmingham Motors regards the acquisition of Mr. Allen as one of the greatest steps the company has taken, Byron Lederer, the Canadian repersentative of Birmingham, said today.

Commenting on the resignation of Mr. Allen from his position with the United States Government, The Washington Herald says that Mr. Allen earned through twenty years of conscientious, painstaking service, his high position under the government.

His experience in the Treasury Department, has been along organization and administrative lines, and many of the improved systems in use in the department are the result of his organizing ability. He entered the Treasury department as a bookkeeper and rose rapidly through the various grades. Following the resignation of John Burke, as treasurer of the United States, President Wilson in 1920 nominated Allen to fill the position, but the nomination failed of confirmation by the Republican Senate. Allen was then appointed acting-Treasurer for the remainder of the term, resuming the office of Assistant-Treasurer under Frank White.

He takes up his duties with Birmingham Motors with a thorough knowledge of financing, and an organizing ability equalled by few men. He believes in the Birmingham No-Axle Car, and his acceptance of the treasurership, says the Herald, is evidence that he believes in the future success of the company.

MR. HECTOR NEIL HOME ON VISIT FROM ALASKA

Mr. Hector J. Neil has returned from the Alaskan mining fields and for the next few weeks will be the guest of his aunt, Miss A. J. Armstrong, 697 George street. It is several years since Mr. Neil left Peterborough for the frozen north and in that time his life has been crammed full of interest and adventure in the Arctic circle. On one occasion, Mr. Neil was reported lost when an Alaskan passenger steamer was lost, together with a large number of her passengers and crew. Fortunately Mr. Neil was not on board.

So little is known of Alaska and its many interests that Mr. Neil has kindly volunteered to contribute a number of articles dealing with the situation as he sees it and present them to the readers of the Examiner.

NO RENEWAL OF IRISH HOSTILITIES EXPECTED

LONDON, Nov. 29.— (Canadian Press).—Robert C. Barton, of the Irish peace delegation, returned from Dublin yesterday, but Michael Collins, Desmond Fitzgerald and others of the delegates will remain in Ireland until after Sir James Craig, the Ulster leader, presents the case of Northern Ireland to the Ulster Parliament Tuesday and the Cabinet has issued its promised statement in London.

Whether the Sinn Fein will issue a statement simultaneously or wait to reply to Ulster has not yet been decided. It is anticipated that they may wait even until Thursday, the earliest day it is believed possible for a renewal of conversations between them and Premier Lloyd George on the question of allegiance.

The impression of those in touch with Dublin is that no immediate renewal of hostilities is apprehended. At Sinn Fein headquarters in London the expectations is that the mission will still be here at the end of the week.

THE OPTIMIST.

OPTIMISM AT ARMS PARLEY

DETAILS OF HUGHES PLAN TAKEN UP TODAY BY SUB-COMMITTEE OF NAVAL EXPERTS.

WASHINGTON, November 30 (Canadian Press). — With the atmosphere in the armament division cleared by the announcement that Admiral Kato, when talking of the 70 per cent. ratio, was merely expressing his personal opinion and not the attitude of the Japanese delegation, and with steady progress on Far Eastern and Pacific questions renewed, a spirit of optimism prevailed as the conference resumed its deliberations to-day.

Details of the Hughes plan for the limitation of naval armaments were discussed at a brief session of the sub-committee of naval experts of Great Britain, the United States, and Japan.

After the adjournment, optimism was appaent among the members of the British delegation, one spokesman stating that he believed an announcement along the lines of naval armament might be expected next week.

GAVE ADDRESS AT THE Y.W.C.A.

Mr. R. J. Soden delivered an interesting address last evening at the Y.W.C.A. Rooms, on the life and works of Dr. Drummond, the "habitant" poet of Montreal, whose poems of French-Canadian life have received widespread recognition, not only among Canadians, but among the literary element of other countries as well.

Mr. Soden's address, informal and interesting, dealt with a brief sketch of the life of Dr. Drummond, who was a native of Ireland, but lived most of his life in Lower Canada. His early career, when reverses in the family fortunes compelled him to sell newspapers on the streets and afterwards to take up the work of telegraphy, his subsequent breakdown in health, the help received from his brothers which enabled him to take up the study of medicine, his athletic prowess, and the warmth of friendliness which endeared him to patients and all with whom he came in contact, were described by the speaker.

Mr. Soden gave several fine selections from the works of Dr. Drummond, including "Le Vieux Temps," which he considered the finest example of the writer's work.

Mrs. T. Cruikshank presided at the meeting, and introduced the speaker with a happy little allusion to the worth of Canadian literature, voicing the appreciation of the audience at the conclusion of the address.

A pretty vocal solo was rendered by Miss Ina Allen.

PUBLIC SCHOOL INSPECTOR AND M.O.H. IN TILT

LATTER'S DUTIES DISCUSSED AT SPECIAL MEETING OF BOARD OF HEALTH THIS MORNING.

TO ASK FOR RULING

A dispute between Dr. T. W. H. Yong, Medical Officer of Health, and Inspector A. Mowat of the School Board, over the former's duties in attending school children was discussed at a special meeting of the Board of Health to-day. Dr. Young and Mr. Mowat sat opposite each other and crossed swords briskly. Mr. Mowat maintained Dr. Young should undertake full supervision over all school children with contagious diseases whether in care of a private physician or not. Dr. Young maintained he should not interfere with private practices.

Inspector Mowat had a somewhat non-commital reply to the question by Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, chief officer for the province. This ruling was not considered definite enough by the Board and the chief medical officer was appealed to to settle the dispute.

Will Ask For Ruling.

Dr. McCullough will be asked if it is the duty of the M.O.H. to give medical attendance in all cases of contagious diseases in the city, including carriers, and in case of school children to give them a certificate to show they can return to school, and also whether the M.O.H. is legally bound to attend children in quarantine who have no family physician; further, whether sub-section 3 of Section 13, of the School Regulations respecting the duties of school nurse staffs applies to contagious diseases:

(3) On completing the inspection provided for in (1) (a) and (b) and (2) above, the school nurse shall, when she deems it necessary, notify the parent or guardian through the Principal, of the physical condition of his child or ward, and it shall be the duty of such parent or guardian to have the case attended to.

For an hour and a quarter the M. O.H.'s duties were discussed. Inspector Mowat made it clear his only interest in the matter was because of the large number of school children absent from school through sickness and fear, largely from fear. He cited a case yesterday of only 30 pupils in one room out of a roll of 44. He pointed out there are 300 out now and every year a child loses at school costs the city $50.00.

A copy of Mr. Mowat's letter to Dr. McCullough and the reply was read. Mr. Mowat's question as to who was legally responsible for examination of pupils in the house so they can return to school was answered with the indefinite reply that the M.O.H. must give a certificate before they could. Dr. Young maintained he did not have to give a certificate and in defending the issue regulations were liberally quoted on both sides.

Dr. Young said he considered each case solely on its merits and did not allow the children to return until two negative reports had been received from Toronto.

Dr. Young denied a duty Inspector Mowat said had always been carried out by his predecessors of treating certain cases free of charge. The school inspector declared he was not inclined to betting, but was ready to wager the doctor was legally responsible for the care of every contagious case.

"I can't butt into every doctor's private practice," pleaded the doctor.

"I believe that's the way to stop it," maintained Mr. Mowat.

"You are legally responsible for every child in this city that has a contagious disease," Mr. Mowat declared.

For attending them?

Yes, for attending them. I will take that point up on my own responsibility. I'm not going to send the children to any other doctor. I've done that for 30 years and I'm not going to change now. You are responsible for the certificate the teachers accept.

Dr. Young stressed certain sections of the Act, Mr. Mowat declaring they had nothing more to do with contagious disease than a political speech.

"If the children are paupers," said Dr. Young, "I have to look after them through the Charity Board. If they are not—why not get their own physician?"

Dr. Young said the contagions were abating. During October there were 64 cases of diphtheria in the hospital, of which 30 were carriers. During November only 30 cases have been admitted, 17 of which are carriers. Scarlet fever cases have numbered 41 each month and in the two months there has been only on case of typhoid, one of measles and one of chickenpox.

BLAME PLACED ON GOVERNMENT

MAYOR REPLIES TO J. H. BURNHAM, SAYING CITY HAS APPLIED FOR RELIEF FUNDS AND GOT NONE.

Replying to the letter of J. H. Burnham, ex-M.P., regarding unemployment relief, Mayor A. A. McIntyre, in a communication to Mr. Burnham to-day, states that the city's relief committee was reorganised this year, and application made to the Government for relief funds, but no reply has been received from Ottawa. He points out that Ald. G. N. Gordon, ex-M.P., and the members of the committee, have been very active in regard to this scheme. The letter is as follows:

Peterborough, Ont., Canada,
November 30, 1921.

J. H. Burnham(Esq.,
188 Smith Street East,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,

In a letter addressed to the Corporation of the City of Peterborough you have inquired what was being done by the City Council to take advantage of the Dominion Government legislation providing for unemployment relief. I might say, that last March Alderman Phelan, the chairman of this committee of the City Council, Alderman Whitehouse, and myself, were introduced by Mr. G. N. Gordon to the Minister of Labour, and we arranged for the Government share to be paid to the city treasurer. About 5,200.00 was spent in this class of relief.

At the September meeting, 1921, Mr. G. N. Gordon moved that this committee be re-established with the same membership as before, which is as follows: Alderman Phelan, chairman; Alderman Hamilton, Alderman Turner, Alderman Crowe, and myself, and in addition to that, two consulting members of the committee were added, namely, Mr. Sidney Whatley, secretary G.W.V.A., and Mr. Harry Rush.

This resolution was passed by the City Council. The committee was re-established in September, and Alderman Phelan has been active in communicating with the Dominion Government, to ascertain if the money was available for relief. So far, neither Government has communicated a decision on this question to the Mayor, Alderman Phelan, or the Council.

Ald. Phelan has been active in trying to get the Governments to give us the relief needed, in order to get the moneys required from them.

I might say that Alderman G. N. Gordon and the members have been particularly active in trying to get this unemployment relief scheme in good working order, which I know you will be pleased to learn.

Yours truly,
A. A. McINTYRE, Mayor.

RAIL PIONEER WHO OPENED UP THE WEST DIES

LORD MOUNT STEPHEN SPANNED CONTINENT WITH LINES OF STEEL BY PROMOTING CANADIAN PACIFIC.

A CAREER OF ROMANCE

LONDON, Nov. 30.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—Lord Mount Stephen died at Brocket Hall, Herdfordshire, last night.

George Stephen, first baron Mount Stephen, was born in 1829 at Forres in Banffshire, Scotland, the son of William Stephen, a carpenter. His life story is a romance of early struggles against poverty, of a rapid rise after he came to Canada in 1850 to a commanding position in the business world, of pioneer work in railroad construction which culminated in the connecting of the Atlantic and the Pacific by the Canadian Pacific Railway, of the acquisition of a great fortune, much of which he gave away to relatives, and finally of an old age spent as a peer in a historic home known at Brocket Hall, Hertfordshire, in the Old Country, which had at times been occupied by two prime ministers of England, Lord Melbourne and Lord Palmerston.

As a boy Stephen played barefooted in the streets of his native village, and at an early age was first a shepherd on the bleak moors nearby, and then a clerk in a draper's store. Coming to Canada he entered the store of an uncle in Montreal, a cloth merchant. He soon distinguished hifself for astuteness and business ability and ultimately bought out his uncle.

Steadily enlarging the business and his own status in the community, Stephen invested his savings in Bank of Montreal stock, becoming eventually one of its largest shareholders. He became president of the bank and about this time Stephen came into business relations with Donald Smith, a cousin, afterwards to become Lord Strathcona. Smith interested him in the construction of a railway to the Canadian west, which he knew threw his association with it as a resident governor of the Hudson's Bay Company. Smith and Stephen joined forces with the late J. J. Hill, the Canadian railway magnate who afterwards built a number of railroads in the United States, and the trio acquired the St. Paul and Pacific Railroad, which had failed and had fallen into the hands of its Dutch bondholders. The line was built through from St. Paul to Winnipeg.

The importance of this early venture on the subsequent development of the Canadian west lay in the fact that it made the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway possible, as supplies for the construction gangs operating in the otherwise inaccessible prairie section passed over it. Acknowledgment of his part in the origination and consummation of the C.P.R. scheme came from the shareholders, who elected Stephen the first vice-president of the company, and from the king, who, on recommendation of the government of Canada, conferred a baronetcy on him in 1886 and a peerage in 1891. He retired from the presidency in 1888 and soon afterwards went to live in England.

Before leaving Canada, Lord Mount Stephen divided up his immense fortune, estimated at $6,000,000, among his relatives in Montreal, retaining enough to support him for the rest of his life.

The deceased married in 1853 Annie Charlotte, daughter of Benjamin Kane, of Montreal. This lady died in 1896. In 1897 Lord Mount Stephen married Gian, daughter of Captain R. G. Tufnell, R.N., of London. The title becomes extinct with the death of Lord Mount Stephen.

One of the monuments that remain to the munificence of Lord Mount Stephen is the Royal Victoria Hospital, of Montreal, to the founding of which he contributed $1,000,000.

MARITIME POLITICS

MEMBERS OF THE SAME ADMINISTRATION OPPOSED

FREDERICTON, N.B., Nov. 30.—The former incumbents of the portfolio of Public Works in the Provincial Government in the same administration are candidates for election to the House of Commons in the present general election, and a further interesting feature is that they are now candidates of opposing parties. The two men are Hon. John Morrissy, the Liberal candidate in Northumberland county, and Hon. B. Frank Smith, the National Liberal and Conservative party candidate in Carleton-Victoria. When Sir Douglas Hazen, now Chief Justice of New Brunswick, was returned as premier of the province in 1908, he selected Hon. John Morrissy as Minister of Public Works; later, before that party lost the reins of power in the provincial arena, Hon. B. Frank Smith was the Minister of Public Works, and remained in that position until the Government went out.

Neither Mr. Morrissy nor Mr. Smith has changed his Federal politics; the reason for the odd situation being that in former years party lines were not drawn very rigidly in provincial politics in New Brunswick. The Hazen government was a coalition, Liberals and Conservatives, and Hon. John Morrissy was the Liberal in the cabinet.

SIX OF ELEVEN M.P.'S STAND IN NEW BRUNSWICK

FREDERICTON, N.B., Nov. 30.—Only six of New Brunswick's eleven members of the 13th Parliament of Canada are offering for re-election in the ten constituencies in New Brunswick. The six are: O. Turgeon (Gloucester); Pius Michaud (Restigouche-Madawaska); A. T. Leger (Kent); A. B. Copp (Westmoreland); Thomas W. Caldwell (Carleton-Victoria) and R. B. Hanson (York-Sunbury). Of the six Mr. Hanson is the only one offering for re-election who is a supporter of the Government, and he never actually took his seat in Parliament, he having been elected at a by-election on May 28 last, and parliament prorogued before the return of his election had been officially made.

New Brunswick sent seven supporters of Union Government to Ottawa after the general election of 1917, and all seven Unionists are missing from the list on this occasion, but all four Liberals who were returned in opposition to the Union Government are offering for re-election. New Brunswick's only agrarian in the last parliament, Mr. Caldwell, (Carleton-Victoria) was not elected until a by-election in Nov. 1919, following the appointment of the Hon. Frank B. Carvell to the Railway Commission.

Of the seven Unionists elected at New Brunswick in 1917, one, Colonel Harry F. McLeod (York-Sunbury), has since died, and the others have all retired for the time being, at last from active politics.

ONLY TWO M.L.A.'S ENTER FEDERAL ARENA

FREDERICTON, N.B., Nov. 30.—While it was at one time indicated that a coinsiderable number of sitting members of the New Brunswick Legislature would resign their seats, and offer for election for the House of Commons in the Federal election, only two have actually done so. These are Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, who accepted the Federal portfolio of Customs and George B. Jones, who is offering as the National Liberal and Conservative party's candidate in Royal.

Hon. Mr. Baxter was leader of the Conservative opposition, and Mr. Jones was one of his supporters in the Legislature and their retirement opens the way for the administration of Hon. W. E. Foster, who has been premier of New Brunswick since 1917, to get a clear majority of supporters exclusive of Independents in the House. There are forty-eight seats in the Legislature, and the standing of the parties has been: Government 24, Opposition 13, United Farmers 7, Independents 4.

The Government was fairly safely entrenched even with one of their supporters in the Speaker's chair during the past session, because of the support of the four members for Northumberland who had been elected as Independents. The opening up of the two seats vacated in St. Johns County and Kings, by the present resignation gives the Government an opportunity to appeal in two counties, where neither side was able to carry a full ticket at the last election.

Restigouche and Madawaska.

CAMPBELLTON, N.B., November 30. — This constituency was established under the Redistribution Act of 1914 by adding Madawaska, previously united with Victoria, to the former Federal constituency of Restigouche. Although the threat of a fire-eating Governor of Maine and his equally irascible legislature, to detach Madawaska from the British Empire, once nearly precipitated a war, the county which has long had a distinct Provincial existence has for Federal election purposes become a mere appendage. In 1839 the Governor of Maine claimed jurisdiction over Madawaska and sent over officials to count the noses of the inhabitants, and wood cutters to get out timber. Washington told the Governor to keep quiet, and the people of Madawaska escorted his nose counters and wood choppers back across the border. Whereupon the Governor shook one fist at Uncle Sam, and the other at the British Empire, and called out 8,000 Militiamen. New Brunswick called out 800.

At that time the Governor of New Brunswick was Sir John Harvey, a cool soldier, and one of the few popular Governors the Province had during the regime of the Family Compact. His calmness and tact prevented any warlike demonstration on the part of the people of the Province, and the casualties of Madawaska were confined to a few broken heads and duckings.

Presently, Washington woke up to the fact that the Governor of Maine was liable to start something, and sent General Winfield Scott to call off the scrap. Scott sent the Militia home, and the boundary question was finally settled by the commission which negotiated the Ashburton treaty, and drove a wedge between the Canadian Provinces.

While Madawaska was attached to Victoria, its representative at Ottawa was John Costigan, who sat in the House of Commons continuously from 1867 to 1906, and held a portfolio in the MacDonald Government for a time. In 1906 Pius Michaud, of Edmundston, was elected for Victoria-Madawaska, holding the seat till Madawaska was joined to Restigouche, and then representing the new combination till the dissolution of the last Parliament.

In the present contest Mr. Michaud is again a candidate, and the Government standard-bearer is W. S. Montgomery, a business man of Dalhousie, Restigouche.

JOINT LIBERAL MEETING AT HASTINGS PACKED THE HOUSE

CAPT. DEWART AND C. W. KERR ADDRESS CROWD OF ABOUT 500 AND WERE GIVEN ROUSING RECEPTION--EMPHASIZED NEED OF LIBERAL POLICIES.

HASTINGS, November 30.— A crowd that was estimated at 500 composed of electors of East Peterborough and Northumberland, and including many women, packed the town hall to standing room last night at the joint meeting of the Liberal candidates of the two constituencies Captain John Dewart, M.C., and Charles W. Kerr. It was a rousing meeting and one of the best of the campaign in this town.

Mr. J. Collins presided as chairman and introduced the candidates and Mr. F. D. Kerr, of Peterborough, who assisted them.

The rapt interest of the audience indicated that the cause of Liberalism is strong in this section and along the contiguous borders of the two ridings.

After explaining his position in this campaign and going into the details of his residence in Cobourg, Mr. Kerr plainly set forth the principles of Liberalism. He quoted the Masterman article and challenged any U.F.O. symapthizer in the hall to state whether he approved of those principles. If he did, Mr. Kerr argued, then he couldn't consistently support the U.F.O. because it was primarily and essentially a class movement, and as such, opposed to Liberalism.

The Industrial Record.

Mr. Kerr claimed that the great majority of the manufacturing industries in Canada which were branches of American industries, had come to Canada since 1896, and under the fostering tariff of the Hon. Wm. Fielding of the Laurier administration. This was true not only of the Liberal regime from 1896 to 1911, but also from 1911 to the present day because, Mr. Kerr stated, the Conservative Government had continued the Liberal tariff virtually in its entirety.

Under McKenzie King the tariff would be revised to meet the changed conditions, and the industrial life of Canada would be given a new and a fresh impetus. Under a Liberal Government every legitimate industry would be fairly considered in the revision of the tariff.

Captain Dewart explained the Government's policy of secrecy in the management of the national railways, and pointed out that the Hon. T. A. Crerar, the leader of the Progressive Party, had assented to the Meighen government's policy of refusing to give the people any information regarding the expenditures of the money which the Government had appropriated to these railways and which the people had to pay.

JUDGMENT RESERVED IN QUEBEC ELECTIONS CASE

MONTREAL, Nov. 30.— (Canadian Press.)—Judgment was reserved in the Superior Court here yesterday afternoon on proceedings which have been taken by Paul Bouchard, elector of St. Hyacinthe, in contestation of the election of Armand Boisseau to the Quebec Legislature as member for the division of St. Hyacinthe.

Napoleon Garceau, counsel for petitioner, alleged that some $3,000 had been spent among the electors to corrupt them and make them vote for the respondent.

For respondent it was maintained that not a shadow of proof which could justify the maintenance of the demand for disqualification had been adduced.

M. Boisseau was elected by a majority of 520 votes over the opposing candidate, T. D. Bouchard, in 1919.

NORTH COUNTRY ELECTORS TAKE POLITICS SERIOUSLY

THREE EAST PETERBORO' CANDIDATES HOLD MEETINGS IN APSLEY—NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

SHEEP KILLED

APSLEY, Nov. 30.—Apsley people are taking a keen interest in the election, judging from the big audience that gathered in the Town Hall on Thursday, Friday and Monday evenings to listen to the addresses of the Liberal, Conservative and Progressive candidates respectively, and their campaign lieutenants, the women especially being in evidence. It requires some courage to attend any function in the building dignified by the name of the Town Hall the visit at night involving positive risk of injury to life and limb. The steep flight of steps leading into the hall is in such a dilapidated condition, with some steps broken and missing, that it was found necessary to hang a lantern on the banister as a safeguard, while the interior with its crude improvised benches and dim oil lamps does not conduce to one's comfort. The environment has a depressing influence, which is evidenced by the extreme apathy of the audiences.

Some little excitement and interest was displayed at Captain Dewart's meeting on Thursday night, which was presided over by Reeve Duncan Brown, the Rev. W. Hall and Mr. Will Tucker questioning some of the statements regarding the railway tangle. Your representative was not present, so cannot give any report at first hand, but when seen afterwards, Captain Dewart express-

ULSTER READY TO TALK OVER NEW PROPOSAL

NEW PROPOSALS TO BE PRESENTED TO SINN FEIN FOR THEIR APPROVAL AND THEN TO ULSTER

DOOR IS STILL OPEN

LONDON, Nov. 30.— (Canadian Press.)—An anxious day in the negotiations designed for the pacification of Ireland ended last night with the hope that a complete collapse of the parleys might still be averted.

Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster, as was expected, declared before the Northern Parliament in Belfast, that Ulster had absolutely refused to accept an All-Ireland Parliament, demanded as a solution by the Sinn Fein delegation. But he announced Ulster's willingness to discuss other proposals for an Irish settlement if they were submitted by next Tuesday.

David Lloyd George, the Prime Minister, immediately summoned the Sinn Fein delegates to consult with him and his colleagues and submitted to them new proposals, which, if they meet with the approval of the Sinn Fein, will be presented to the Ulster officals before divulged pending their consideration by the Sinn Feiners.

The situation still is very critical owing to the double deadlock—Ulster refusing to enter an All-Ireland Parliament, and the Sinn Fein steadiy refusing to yield on the question of allegiance to the Crown. The negotiations, however, have not been broken off and may be continued on a new basis.

STRESS ABSENCE OF DEATH PROOFS IN LANDRU CASE

VERSAILLES, November 30. Canadian Press. — The backbone of the defence in the case of Henri Landru will be the absolute absence of proof that any of the eleven persons the defendant is alleged to have murdered, are dead, and also the failure of the police "to find anything resembling the remains of a human body, when they first searched the villa at Gambais," occupied by Landru, on October 13, 1917, and that the exhibit of bones and teeth produced by the prosecution were not discovered until the second search of the premises on April 29th.

This statement was made by M. Moro-Giafferi, chief counsel for the defendant, as he arose to addressthe jurors after M. Godefroy had finished his argument for the prosecution. Godefroy had ended his address with an assurance to the jury that they did not fear a judicial error

"We must set up the guillotine, when it is necessary ,and is death that I ask for the assassin of Gambais," the Prosecutor dramatically concluded.

NEW AGREEMENT MAY SUPERSEDE JAPANESE PACT

MOOT TRI-PARTITE ARBITRATION AGREEMENTS BETWEEN BRITAIN, JAPAN AND THE UNITED STATES.

WOULD SATISFY CANADA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(By Ben Deacon, Staff Correspondent of the Canadian Press) — The statement carried by the Canadian Press that a proposal was under consideration for the solution of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance problem through a triangular arrangement of arbitration agreements between the three nations interested received verification from an official source yesterday afternoon.

A spokesman for the British delegation intimated that a plan of this nature is under discussion. It is understood the question has not yet come before the conference formally but that further preliminary discussins are now in progress between members of the three delegations directly interested.

Incidentally this spokesman declared it was the Britsh view that some settlement of the alliance question must be reached at the present conference.

The proposal which he said might ultimately prove the solution of the question is in effect a tripartite agreement but it would not include any of the features of an "alliance" to which United States public opinion is antagonistic. It would be based on separate arbitration agreements between the United States and Japan, the United States and Great Britain and Great Britain and Japan.

In the case of the side of this triangle represented by Great Britain and the United States, such an agreement is already in existence.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 30TH, 1921.

A SOLEMN DUTY.

There seems to be an impression that the vote in West Peterborough next Tuesday will not be as large as was registered in the by-election last February. As the total reached on that occasion fell far short of the number on the list, it would not speak very highly of the public spirit and interest in national affairs of the people of this constituency were the by-election total not reached. It is to be hoped that the pessimistic forecasts that are being made will prove to be mistaken. In a general election after a campaign that has lasted considerably longer than usual and with important issues to be decided, there seems no reason why any elector should absent himself from the polls and refrain from expressing his opinion as to the composition of Parliament and as to the policies which should govern the administration of Canada's affairs. Voting should be regarded not only as a privilege, but as a duty, the responsibility for the discharge of which is not to be lightly shaken off. The evidence is nearly all presented, and on Tuesday the case will go to the jury of electors. There should be no jurors absent.

THE MAYORALTY CAMPAIGN.

So far Ald. Turner is the only citizen to announce himself as a candidate for the Mayoralty for next year. If there are other aspirants for the office it would not be a bad plan, although somewhat unusual perhaps, to have them declare themselves now so that for once Peterborough can have a real campaign for the chief magistrate's chair instead of a week's contest, affording little time for the candidates to discuss the issues or place their platforms before the people. Too little attention has been paid to this feature of the campaign, the personality of the candidates being usually the chief test applied by the electors in making their choice. Why not a different method this year? Why not a contest in which the aspirants for office, having considered some of the chief problems with which Peterborough is concerned, could place before the electors a definite programme to the carrying out of which they promise to devote their efforts if elected? Usually municipal candidates are satisfied to make vague promises—something along the line of the aspirant for political honours in a Western Ontario constituency, who declared that he would, if honoured with election, support the tariff that was in the best interests of the farmer, the propducer, the consumer, the workingman and the manufacturer. He did not attempt to define what policy he meant, and a blanket promise of that kind is about as valuable as the pledge of a municipal candidate—to work in the interests of the whole community.

PETERBOROUGH'S NEEDS.

The suggestions brought forward by Rev. Mr. Malott before the Kiwanis Club yesterday as to the need in Peterborough, not only of a juvenile court, but of a trained social service worker, an efficiency expert in social welfare, as it were, should be the subject of thoughtful and earnest consideration by citizens generally. With the work of a juvenile court the people are more or less familiar. They understand that it exists not to punish crime, but to prevent crime, that its mission is to take hold of the youthful delinquents at the point of their lives when a mistaken policy might make criminals of them and when, on the other hand, a few words of wise counsel from a magistrate who would be more fatherly than judicial in his attitude might direct their footsteps into the path of good citizenship. The experience of other cities has shown that the juvenile court is a success. It is past the experimental stage, and we know that when such a court is functioning good results are certain. Rev. Mr. Malott, from his observance of local conditions, declares that the time has come for Peterborough to establish a juvenile court and the facts all support his contention.

As to the necessity for an experienced social welfare worker, it must be apparent that the many agencies in Peterborough which are devoting themselves wholly or in part to this work are more or less working blindly with no attempt to co-ordinate their efforts and no safeguard to prevent over-lapping and inequitable distribution of endeavour. Social workers are being trained to take hold of such a situation, to survey the field, link up the various agencies and lay down a working basis for the organizations that will ensure a maximum of efficient service. An expert of this kind is needed here and the expenses involved could be taken care of quite easily by the social welfare organizations, assisted by a grant from the City Council.

The two proposals are worthy of earnest thought on the part of our people.

HOW HONEST ARE WE?

In a recent article Mr. W. J. Burns, the well-known United States detective, says that personally he has never known a time when the crook and the thief were so much in evidence as today. Of course, this was expected to follow the war, but it is none the less serious. Mr. Burns admits that increasing the legal penalties will have some effect in discouraging this tendency to dishonesty, but he declares that the ultimate remedy must lie in the home and the "more careful supervision of children's education along moral lines." He would have us teach them not only that honesty is the best policy, but also that in the long run it is the most successful and remunerative. We wonder how many really believe this latter statement to be true! As we move amongst men we find only too prevalent an outspoken belief that dishonesty, so long as it be legal, pays better than honesty. And yet the detective is right. Crookedness and dishonesty do not pay.

In past years the temptations to dishonorable dealing on a large scale were in most instances restricted to comparatively few men, but today, especially in connection with the illicit liquor traffic, they come to men who never before were so approached. Only a few days ago we were told of a man who was offered a bribe of $25,000 to lend his name and authority to the smuggling of a carload of liquor. He refused, but someone else accepted. And we have been informed that not a few men have made $100,000 in a few months in this disreputable and dangerous traffic. The men who engineer this traffic seem to act upon the belief that every man has his price, and they are willing to pay that price providing it be not too high.

But the man who has a price is not an honest man. It makes little difference what his price is, if he can be bought at all, he is not an honest man. There are men who will lie or steal for $5.00, and there are those who will not do it for less than $100,000; but the point is that neither the low-priced nor the high-priced man is honest. Honesty that is for sale is not honesty. Honor that is on the market is not honor.

It is true that the men who get away with millions are sometimes at least clever enough to evade the law or rich enough to purchase their freedom, but neither their cleverness nor their wealth can restore to them their forfeited honor. A rogue may be a rich rogue, but he is still a rogue. His wealth may purchase immunity from prison, but it cannot remove the brand from his soul. He has sold himself for what is after all but a mess of pottage. Dishonorable wealth can build no mansion elaborate enough to cover its dishonor; it can purchase no jewels brilliant enough to dissipate the gloom of its guilt; and it can erect no barriers strong enough and high enough to shut out the avenging fates which always follow dishonor.

Dishonesty is of many kinds and some of its phases are not specified in the law, but the higher law is not concerned with what may be written upon the nation's statute book save as that writing corresponds with what is written in heaven's own lawbook and in the heart of humanity. One of the laws of God which is found in varied phrases more or less perfectly in every statute book of man since the beginning of recorded time, is the simple and clear command "Do Justly." And it is this standard by which we must judge men rather than by an imperfect earthly law. And in our Churches, which after all are moulding our national conscience, we must seek to interpret this law as it relates to home life, business life, and the political life of today. Justice and honesty carry with them their own reward, and in the long run they pay, even in dollars and cents, infinitely better than injustice and fraud. The very universe frowns on the dishonest man.—Christian Guardian.

LITERARY GEMS

OLD TIMES ARE CHANGED.

The days are gone when a shoemaker might vary the monotonous routine of cobbling by writing poetry in his off hours. We no longer hear as we once did of a tailor leaving his needle and thread and shears to become a great general. In olden days Cincinnatus, a tiller of the soil, left his plowing to lead a Roman army to victory. To-day is is more likely to attract attention when an individual leaves a field like that of preaching, if only for a time, to take up work totally different.—Springfield Republican.

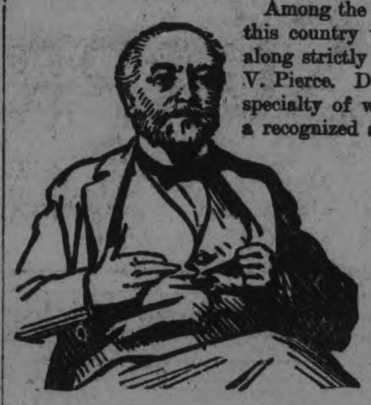
A Successful Man



Among the notable professional men of this country who achieved great success along strictly legitimate lines was Dr. R. V. Pierce. Devoting his attention to the specialty of women's diseases, he became a recognized authority in that line. His work, "The Common Sense Medical Adviser," is now in three million homes in this country and Europe. At one time Dr. Pierce represented his home district in Congress.

Fifty years ago last winter, this noted physician gave to the world a Prescription which has never been equalled for the weaknesses of women. Many women in every hamlet, town or city will gladly testify that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription did them a world of good.

Another of this great physician's successful remedies is known as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and, like the "Prescription," is now sold by druggists everywhere, in both liquid and tablets. The list of men and women all over the universe who have successfully used it for indigestion and as a blood tonic and system builder, makes an amazing total of thousands.

If you desire a cloth-bound copy of a new edition of the "Medical Adviser" by Dr. Pierce, send one dollar to the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. It is a book of 1000 pages of ready reference. For those not within easy reach of professional aid at critical times, and in cases of emergency or dangerous accidents, it is invaluable.

NEW AGREEMENT

On the United States-Japan side a similar agreement would be effected, while on the third side an agreement providing for arbitration and expressing mutual friendliness would take the place of the present treaty between Great Britain and Japan.

Th's indication of the trend of the Conference sentiment in regard to the Anglo-Japanese Alliance problem was one of the outstanding developments of the day. Of actual work the conference accomplished not a little, good progress being made in regard to several matters affecting China.

The Far Eastern Committee adopted resolutions which had been prepared by a sub-committee providing for the establishment of an inter-national commission to investigate the administration of justice in China. The resolution pledged the nations to relinquish extra territorial rights when satisfied by the report of this commission that the time has arrived for this step to be taken. Thus, China won another of her demands, provisionally. The foreign courts now dispensing justice within her borders will be abolished, "as soon as circumstances will permit."

COLLAPSE OF A THEATRE KILLS 7, HURTS SCORE

SEARCH OF RUINS MAY REVEAL BODIES OF MORE DEAD, BRINGING DEATH LIST UP TO 15 OR 20

HAD BEEN INSPECTED

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press.)—Collapse yesterday of the steel girded roof and one brick wall of a theatre under construction in Brooklyn killed at least seven workmen and injured more than a score.

Firemen and police working among the ruin with axes, crow-bars and gas torches may find more bodies that will bring the death list to 15 or 20, according to one of the owners.

Inside the building when the crash came were between 50 and 60 mechanics and laborers, putting the interior finishing work in place. Working on scaffolds swung from the roof girders and braced against the side walls of what was to be the auditorium, they had no chance to escape, eye-witnesses who escaped, said.

The owners, Samuel Moskowitz and Sylvester Rosenthal, said the building was being constructed by them through sub-contractors. The owners as well as the sub-contractors—six in number—were summoned before District Attorney Lewis of Brooklyn for questioning. The owners declared the work had frequently been approved by building inspectors.

Search of the ruins was possible only by gradual removal of the tons of twisted setel and terra cotta finishing. Gradually, as the debris was sifted over, seven bodies were brought to sight, many of them crushed beyond recognition.

The north wall of the building, falling away from the theatre, crashed down over a one-storey building where two men and a woman were at lunch. All three were injured and had to be extricated by firemen, who cut away the beams which pinned them down.

NORTH COUNTRY ELECTORS

ed great satisfaction at the result of the meeting, the questions asked enabling him to strengthen his points. He was accompanied by Reeve Curtis of Havelock.

Sexsmith Meeting.

On Friday night the hall was packed to hear Mr. Sexsmith. The Rev. W. Hall occupied the chair, and in his introductory remarks, said that the nation's interests were calling for the best intellects, and it was up to the community to give its support to the man who it was thought would do most good to the nation. Major Johnston followed, and dealt with the three problems facing the country: fiscal, railway and exchange, and also gave a detailed account of what the Government had done for the returned soldier.

In the course of his speech he said that Crerar complained that Canada was not properly represented at the Washington Conference. He maintained that Canada was. The conference was called to discuss, amongst other things, naval disarmament. Canada has a navy—one ship of it is on the rocks and the other still floating (in the harbor). If our navy was scrapped it would not make much difference, so Canada was properly represented, at any rate on naval disarmament.

Reeve Strickland, in a short speech, claimed that the protection tariff had built up Canada, that 85 per cent. of its products were consumed in Canada. The result of lowering the tariff would be that the United States would look to Canada for a market for her to sell her surplus, and the revenue to run the country would have to be obtained by direct taxation.

Mr. Sexsmith, in an exhaustive speech, dealing with the main issues of the day, declared that the Conservative platform was the same platform that Sir John MacDonald advocated in 1879, and that his policy was the only sane policy for Canada to continue. Dealing with protection, he said that the United States can't sell in European markets because the latter's money was no good. The United States had become the centre of the world's finance. They had raised the tariff walls as high as heaven to conserve the market for themselves, and to prevent the Germans using their markets as a dumping ground for their goods. In spite of the fact that 55 countries had raised their tariff, yet Mr. Crerar says, "Throw down the bars in Canada," which would mean that Canada would throw away 168 millions, and the U. S. would dump all her surplus goods on Canadian markets. He attacked the grain buyers' manipulations, defended the railway policy followed by the Government, and concluded by declaring that this was one of the most serious elections that Canada ever had to face.

Mr. Hall created some applause at the close of the meeting when he said that if some of the rails used to build the big railway lines up north had been laid between Peterborough and Apsley and Coe Hill, it would have been more to the purpose.

Brethen Meeting.

The Town Hall was again packed on Monday evening, when Mr. Brethen, the Progressive candidate, pleaded his party's case before the electors. The Rev. W. Hall was chairman. Mr. Anderson, of Warsaw, who supported Mr. Brethen, in his opening remarks said that the farmers were the only class that had never organized until a short time ago. Their slogan was "Equal rights to all and privileges to none." They had not had equal rights in the past as far as legislation was concerned. The only question brought up at Mr. Sexsmith's meeting in Warsaw was the tariff, but there were other issues before the people than this. The Liberal Government had lowered the tariff in 1896, but if they had lowered it in the proper way it would have been all right. But what did they do? They lowered it from 20 per cent. to 17½ per cent. A binder costing $100 would be $120 under the previous tariff, but when they lowered the tariff to 17½ they raised the price of the binder to $125, so that the farmer was not so well off as under the Conservative of 20 per cent. There was a passage in the Scriptures which read: "As a sheep before his shearers is dumb so he openeth not his mouth." The manufacturers and big interests had been fleecing the farmer all along and he had said nothing, but now they (the farmers) were looking out for themselves. See what a pow-wow was raised. When the returned men asked for a gratuity of $2,000 they were refused by the same men who voted to put $1,500 on their own salary, and now the returned men had got to help to pay the war debt.

Mr. Brethen stated that the Progressive party had started with the farmers, but had grown and spread into the cities. There were two Progressive candidates in Ottawa, and leading citizens in Peterborough had declared they wished they had a Progressive candidate, as they were not satisfied with either candidate. This movement was a protest against the domination of both old parties, and because of the unfair discrimination shown by them. Referring to the Riordon deal, he said that if the farmer did not pay his taxes he was fined, if he did not send in his income assessment returned he was fined, but the Riordon Company gave a note to the Government for their taxes, yet paid their shareholders' dividends in cash. It was not hard to become a millionaire if you were in right with the Government. The big interests got the Government to take off the excess profits tax, but to make up the deficit had the sales tax put on, which mean that every man, woman and child had to pay $20 per head.

The Progressive party was not for indiscriminate free trade but for a moderate tariff. They had no intention of sweeping away the tariff bars and letting the U.S. come in. With 300 million bushels of wheat produced by Canada, of which only 85 million were consumed at home, what was the Government doing to get the surplus out? They say they are standing where they had stood forty years, but it was time for the people with farm produce selling below cost to be making progress, and that was why the party had come into being. Mr. Brethen eulogized the operations of the United Grain Growers' Association as a good business concern, and concluded by saying there was going to be a change as the Conservative party would have to have a majority over the Progressive and Liberal parties to come back into power.

The A.Y.P.A.

The A.Y.P.A. went off to a good start on Saturday evening, when fourteen member signed the active members' roll. Mrs. Spence, Mrs. S. Windsor and Mr. E. L. Blackwell were elected a programme committee. After the business meeting Rev. C. Spence gave an interesting talk on the antiquity of the Bible. Next Saturday there will be a debate, subject, "Is Protection or Free Trade the More Advantageous to the Dominion of Canada?"

Sign Erected.

Messrs. J. J. Turner and Sons have very kindly presented to St. George's Church a large sign for the Parish Room, which reads, "St. George's Institute and Parish Room." This was placed in position on Friday last, and greatly improves the appearance of the front of the hall. The firm's generosity is much appreciated by the parishioners.

Serious Accident.

The many friends of Mrs. Dan. Carl, of Methuen, regret to hear of the serious accident of which she was the victim last week. It is reported that while driving, the team ran away, Mrs. Carl being thrown out and sustaining two broken arms, a broken nose and other injuries. Further particulars have not been received.

Sneak Thieves.

Sneak thieves are reported to be busy around Glenalda district, granaries and fowl houses being robbed, and in some cases cellars being entered, and preserves and meat stolen.

Nine Sheep Killed.

Mr. Willis Johnston had the misfortune to have nine sheep out of a flock of eighteen killed and wounded in broad daylight a week ago. It is not known whether it was the work of dogs or wolves, but at this rate it will not be long before this district will entirely be denuded of sheep.

Short of Feed.

The problem of feeding one's stock assumed serious proportions when it was discovered on Saturday that not a feed of grain could be procured at either of the stores here or at Purdy's, the next nearest, 18 mile way. This situation was due to the bad roads probably, local orders not being delivered as expected.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

MILLBROOK, November 30. — The late Mrs. Alexander Campbell, whose funeral took place on Saturday, November 26th to the Fraserville cemetery, was born in South Monaghan, 63 years ago. Her maiden name was Margaret Ann Goodfellow, and she was the only daughter of the late Mr. George Goodfellow. Her mother died when she was a girl in her teens, and the responsibility of taking care of the home, her father, and six brothers, rested upon her shoulders thus early in life.

After her marriage to Mr. Alexander Campbell about 40 years ago, her home was for several years in Cavan township, but about 19 years ago they moved to lot 3, con. 7, in North Monaghan, where she died on Thursday, November 24th.

Mrs. Campbell had only one daughter, Violet, now Mrs. Bert Cunningham, who lives on the home farm, her parents residing in a smaller house on the same property. Three brothers predeceased their sister George, King and Thomas; and there are now living, besides her husband and daughter to mourn her loss, Joseph, of Philadelphia, who with his wife was home for the funeral, Andrew of Peterboro, and James of Waubaushene. The deceased was a life long Presbyterian, a good neighbor, and a friend greatly beloved and respected by all who knew her.

Rev. Mr. Craw of Springville, conducted the funeral services, assisted by Rev. Mr. Patterson of Fraserville. Pallbearers were three brothers Messs. Joseph, James and Andrew Goodfellow; Mr. Robert Campbell, a brother-in-law, Mr. Bert Cunningham, a son-in-law, and Mr. Joseph Madill.

Progressive Euchre.

The "Golden Sheaf" Rebekah Lodge, held a very successful progressive euchre party on Monday evening, November 28th. There were 27 card tables in use, and many other guests were present who preferred a social time together, apparently, rather than joining with the others in the game. The first prizes were won by Miss Wilson of Campbellcroft, and Mr. J. J. Clarke of Millbrook, while the consolation prizes fell to the lot of Miss Alice Needler and Mr. Archie Johnston. Refreshments afterwards were served and dancing was indulged in by some of the guests before the gathering finally dispersed. The evening proved to be a thoroughly enjoyable one, this being the rule for any social event which the Rebekahs undertake.

Messrs. J. J. Clarke, J. A. Vance, Thomas Bradley and E. Morden attended the meeting of the Oriental Lodge in Peterboro Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sayles and family motored to Peterboro on Friday and spent an enjoyable evening attending one of the theatres of that city.

DIED: In Millbrook on Monday, November 28th, after a lingering illness, Amy, eldest daughter of Mr. Harry White, in her 20th year.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday, November 30th, from the family residence, Anne street, the service at the house being at 2.30 p.m. The interment will take place at the Presbyterian cemetery.

The president of the U.F.O. political association for Durham county is Mr. Alan Campbell of Bowmanville; the secretary treasurer is Mr. H. G. Macklin, also of Bowmanville; the directors for Cavan are Mr. H. Hubbard, Mr. Wm. Belch and Mrs. Richard Matchett.

Make this an IDEAL Christmas

"Back in September, I made up my mind that Waterman's IDEAL Fountain Pen would be my principal gift this year.

First of all, take the men—women never know what to give men—but I do—men want practical, useful things; and look at a Waterman's, useful every minute of the business day.

Then, there's the Business Girl—she knows the efficiency of Waterman's IDEAL Fountain Pen. Because she likes dainty things—her gift shall have bands or art designs in gold or silver.

There is Mother and Grandmother, who would write more if writing were made easier—their gifts shall be Waterman's Ideal.

And the Boy and Girl at school—they shall have the pen to write smoothly, easily, cleanly.

So you see, what a sensible practical Christmas this is going to be—and how many men and women, boys and girls, are going to have the right to write right."

Now for Christmas Gift Things

As one's thoughts turn to Christmas 1921, two big points seem to stand out with special clearness.

First, of course, is "true thoughtfulness," in every gift you give.

And second, "true economy" wherever it can be practiced, for all of us have learned the value of spending wisely.

That was our thought in planning our great Christmas stocks. To have gift things that would truthfully express the sincerity of the giver, and to have these things at prices which will make your Christmas money go far.

We feel that we have succeeded most splendidly. And we are sure you will agree when you join the Early Shoppers who, now, are coming here, to make unhurried selections from bountiful assortments of beautiful gift things for Christmas.

CARELESSNESS.

Never pour water rapidly into the cooling system when a motor is hot. Cold water, when striking the overheated cylinders, is likely to cause them to crack, because of the rapid contraction which takes place.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get 16 ounces—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

87 TEACHERS RESIGN IN NEW WESTMINSTER

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press.)— The resignations of eighty-seven teachers from the high, technical and public schools of the city were accepted last night by the Board of School Trustees. The resignations, which take effect Dec. 31, were handed in last week as a protest by the teachers against alleged unfair treatment in the matter of salaries.

A motion to dismiss six teachers who had not handed in their resignations was dismissed.

ART IS OUR GREATEST ECONOMIC NEED, HE SAYS

MONTREAL, Nov. 30.— (Canadian Press.)—"Art is the most crying need of Canaad to-day," Eric Brown, director of the National Gallery, Ottawa, declared in addressing the Women's Art Society here yesterday.

If we are to develop commercially, the country must have art at the back of it, he said, adding that the bulk of designing came at the present time from outside of Canada, while the country possessed plenty of talent awaiting only the opportunity to be developed.

MARITIME POLITICS

Pictou

NEW GLASGOW, N.S., Nov. 30.—In Pictou county, N.S., politics and theology have been matters of great debate since the first Scotchman landed there and it was after a visit there that "Sam Slick" observed that "Nova Scotians would sooner sit on the fence arguing politics than hoe potatoes." In 1874 after the Pacific episode, the election contest there was exciting and a close vote was followed by a judicial recount and other legal proceedings. James MacDonald, afterwards Minister of Justice in Sir John A's Government and later Chief Justice of Canada was one of the Conservative candidates, and during court proceedings he came to blows with John A. Dawson Liberal candidate, and cousin of Sir William Dawson, well known scientist. Party opinion in Pictou has not yet settled who won the combat, but the court declared Mr. Dawson and his colleague elected by one vote.

Sir Hibbert Tupper represented Pictou in Parliament for some years being for a time Minister of Marine and Fisheries in the MacDonald government. Sir Hibbert once entertained the House with a speech of nine hours duration, and probably holds the marathon as a long distance talker.

Pictou's principal industry up to a few years ago, was the production of educators preachers, orators and ship captains. Hon. Peter Veniet, Minister of Public Works of New Brunswick, a notable orator, owes his extraordinary command of English to the fact that his father an Acadian sea captain sent him to Pictou to be educated. Latterly Pictou county has become the seat of important industrial enterprises.

In the present elections the Pictonian tradition of hard fought contests is being maintained. Col. Thomas Cantley, Government and E. N. MacDonald: Liberal, are both big men, and both wealthy men. Born in New Glasgow, Col. Cantley began his working life as a messenger boy, becoming later a telegraph operator. In 1885 he became General Sales Agent of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company, then secretary, and then in 1901 general manager and vice president. In 1915 he was appointed President and General Manager. Col. Cantley made an extensive study of steel production problems in Europe, and was the first man in Canada to commence the manufacture of steel shells for the Imperial Government during the war.

E. N. MacDonald represented the county at Ottawa for several terms, but was defeated in 1917. Mr. McDonald is regarded as an able debater, and during the Laurier administration was on several occasions mentioned as a cabinet possibility.

A third candidate is in the field—R. M. Reid, farmer-labor.

Westmorland County

MONCTON, N.B. Nov. 30.—This constituency, which includes the city of Moncton, long the headquarters of the Intercolonial Railway, the first link of Confederation and a good deal of an issue in the present elections so far as the Maritimes are concerned, supplied Canada with two cabinet ministers, both of them had previously been Premiers of their native province of New Brunswick. The first was Albert J. Smith who during the Confederation movement opposed S. L. Tilley, afterwards Sir Leonard, on much the same grounds that Joseph Howe opposed Tupper in Nova Scotia.

Tilley as leader of the New Brunswick Government attended the Quebec conference, and accepted the proposals made by Sir John A. MacDonald and the delegates of the two provinces of Canada, but when he when he went to the country shortly after he lost his seat and only six confederates out of a house of forty-one members were returned. Smith, the leader of the Opposition to the Quebec scheme, who accused Tilley of selling his fellow-countrymen for eighty cents a head—the price of sheep, formed a government; but in a few months had to face revolts in his cabinet and a reaction in the country, which was being set in motion by the speeches of Tilley who was touring the Province. Smith was not opposed to the principle of Confederation any more than Howe. When the Legislature assembled under his leadership, Governor Arthur Hamilton Gordon, a son of the Earl of Aberdeen, who was Prime Minister of England at the outbreak of the Crimean war, was permitted to say in the Speech from the Throne, that her Majesty's government thought that a union of the British North American colonies was an object much to be desired. Smith's government resigned after being in office about two months, and Peter Mitchell, afterwards Minister of Marine in the first Confederation government, formed a cabinet and made ready for a general election. Just previously 400 or 500 Fenians had appeared at Eastport, Maine, their avowed object being to overthrow British authority in North America, and a thousand New Bruns wickers hastily enrolled, were patrolling the border

In this situation, the idea that union is strength made a strong appeal, and in the elections shortly held, the people reversed their previous vote, Smith of Westmorland being one of the six opponents of the Quebec scheme to save his seat.

At the next session of the Legislature Smith introduced a resolution demanding that the Provincial government take measures to secure among ather things more explicit guarantees regarding the consturuction of the Intercolonial, and assurance that New Brunswick would not be required to contribute to the costs of canals in Ontario or Quebec. After much debate the legislature adopted an amendment advising the Government to seek better terms, and Tilley undertook to press the matter before Confederation was finally ratified by the Imperial parliament. Smith presently resigned from the legislature and in the first Federal election of 1876, was returned for Westmorland, and represented the constituency in successive parliaments till 1882, holding the portfolio in the MacKenzie administration from 1874 to 1878. In 1882 Josiah Wood, later Lieut.-Governor of the province, carried the constituency for the Conservatives and continued its representative at Ottawa until 1895 when he resigned. In the by-election following, H. A. Powell, now member of the International Waterways Commission was elected and in the general election of 1896 he was again returned. In 1900 H. R. Emerson, who had previously been Premier of New Brunswick, defeated Mr. Powell, and in 1904 when Hon. A. G. Blair, Minister of Railways in the Laurier Administration, who favored the extension of the old Intercolonial to the West, broke with his leader on the National Transcontinental and Grand Trunk Pacific question, Mr. Emerson became New Brunswick representative in the Federal Cabinet. Mr. Emerson continued to represent the county until 1915 when Arthur Bliss Copp, Liberal, was elected. In the general election of 1917 Copp again returned by a majority of 1,003.

In the present election Mr. Copp is again a candidate in the Liberal interests, his opponents being O. B. Price, dentist, a former member of the Provincial Legislature, who is running as a government supporter, and A. E. Trites, who is standing as a United Farmer candidate.

HEARTBURN

A SEVERE CASE

Many people are troubled with heartburn who really do not realize just what it is.

In cases of this trouble there is a gnawing and burning pain in the stomach attended by disturbed appetite. It is generally caused by great acidity of the stomach, and whenever too much food is taken, it is liable to ferment and becomes extremely sour, causing heartburn. In such cases vomiting often occurs, and what is thrown up is sour and sometimes bitter.

The way to get rid of heartburn is to keep your liver active by using and you will have no heartburn or other liver troubles such as constipation, jaundice, water brash, floating specks before the eyes, coated tongue, foul breath, etc.

Miss Agnes Cutting, Shallow Lake, Ont., writes:—"I have had heartburn for a long time. There were gnawing and burning pains in my stomach, and then when I vomited there was a sour and bitter taste. I used two vials of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and they have cleared me of my heartburn. I don't think they can be beaten by any other medicine."

MINISTER OF LABOR AND JNO. A. SEXSMITH SPEAK AT LAKEFIELD

MR. J. C. STRICKLAND ALSO ADDRESSED CONSERVATIVE GATHERING--PROTECTION, RAILWAYS AND MERCHANT MARINE DISCUSSED.

CANADA'S BUSINNSS

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 30.—Mr. John A. Sexsmith, Conservative candidate in East Peterborough, held a meeting here Monday night, when the Memorial Hall was comfortably filled. Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor, was present and Mr. W. J. Charlton made a capable Chairman.

J. C. Strickland.

Mr. J. C. Strickland spoke of the protective policy under Sir John A. Macdonald, which measure he declared brought prosperity to Canada in 1878 after an era of depression and built up the country for both farmer and manufacturer. There are 650 branches of American industries now in Canada, employing 100,000 men, and which, Mr. Strickland asserted, would close down were protection removed, fuel and material being cheaper in the States. In further support of protection, the speaker said that 85 per cent. of the farm produce is consumed in Canada, and if surplus American produce is allowed in free of duty their prices will come down to the farmers' loss. Also, if the tariff is lowered, the revenue, which Canada needs from customs dues will have to be made up by direct taxation. The Massey-Harris Company, which has been the object of attack by the Progressive candidate, has been a genuine friend to the farmer in the West.

The Candidate.

Mr. Sexsmith, after a greeting to the electors and appreciation of the splendid support of Reeve Strickland, outlined some of the reasons why he considered that the Government should be returned to power. What Canada needs today, he urged, is to settle down and go to work, and then we shall have an exceptionally bright national future. None of the late warring countries, he averred, are in as good a shape as Canada today, and in a business way she is in the forefront of all the nations, her trade being 2½ per cent. per capita greater than that of the U. S.

This election is offering a new phase in politics, he said, owing to the new Progressive party, which really spells "class government." The platform of the Progressives and Liberals is practically the same, with very few differences. Both Crerar and King stand for a policy of free trade along certain lines with few differences. Meighen stands on the old platform of the old Conservatory party.

After reviewing the country's progress under a protective tariff, and the origin of the Grain Growers' Association, Mr. Sexsmith went on to say that although Crerar and Wood complain of monopolies, there are none so monopolizing of self-interests as that of the Grain Growers, whose investigation disclosed were making 5.30 per cent. profit. In conclusion, he characterized Canada's National Railways as—thanks to the Liberals—lacking in considerable utility by, in some instances, paralleling each other and running through districts non-productive of business. He urged his hearers to vote for that policy in Canada's best interests, and to not be carried away by partisanship.

Minister of Labor.

Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor, spoke of the condition of Canada's working classes and credited the Conservative Government with having kept faith with Labor. We must consider, he said, what is in the best interests of the working people, and that includes the agriculturalist, for who is harder working than the farmer? In other elections there were but two parties with clearly defined issues; now we have a new party—the Progressive—and that the franchise has been extended to the ladies, whose entrance will, no doubt, make for better and cleaner politics in Canada. The Government of a country has always a more difficult task than the opposition, as they are the object of continued attack. In the present issue the Progressives have no past record; they have repeatedly charged that nothing has been done for labor; but this is not true, for in 1918 the Borden Government granted the request of the Labor party that a representative be on every commission or committee where the interests of Labor were involved. This promise was faithfully kept, and since then a Labor representative from Canada accompanied Borden to the Peace Conference at Versailles and was permitted to voice the cause of Labor in such a way that a clause providing for the protection of Labor was incorporated in the treaty. The status of Labor today is higher in Canada than in any other country, declared the Minister. In 1919 free Government employment bureaus were established in various centres of Canada and 930,000 men and women found employment through their agency. Technical education and vocational training have also done much for the working people, and the Government during the world-wide industrial depression of 1920 had assisted materially in providing for surplus labor.

Mr. Crerar, charged the hon. gentleman, declines to commit himself to any Labor policy, and Hon. Mackenzie King is heartily ashamed of his own policy for Labor.

Merchant Marine.

Talking of Canada's merchant marine, the Minister stated that in 1918, when German subs. were sinking boats faster than they could be built, the British authorities urged Canada to build ships. This policy was supported by both Messrs. King and Crerar, who now condemn the Government for continuing to build ships after the armistice was signed. But no new building contracts were entered into, and every ship built is carrying Canadian products to countries which never before saw the Canadian flag. Canada's merchant marine have paid their way and made a profit; they are also fostering the Canadian National Railways and loosening the strongest hold of the United States, which was holding Canada up in every direction. Then the railways are being placed under economical management and will soon prove a profitable investment.

The Tariff.

Revert[illegible]ng to the tariff issue, the Hon. Gideon Robertson denied the Premier of Ontario's contention that protection had depopulated Canada's rural districts, and cited authorities to show that from 1878 to 1921 the population in the Northwest—mostly in agrarian localities—had increased from 22,000 to 1,500,000 after 43 years of protective tariff administration.

Predicting that were American farm implements and machinery admitted to Canada free, after a brief period of cheap selling their prices would go away up when Canadian factories had been undersold out of business, the Minister contended that Free Trade is an unpractical ideal theory for an ideal world. Disarmament, he also characterized in similar well-turned phrases, asserting that the first country to disarm while its enemies remain armed will be the first to fall; and he opined, in conclusion, that, with German and Oriental cheap labor and their deflated currency, Canadians must stand behind protection to save their country.

She got no nourishment from her food and I don't believe she averaged three hours sleep out of the twenty-four.

A Presentation.

On Monday evening about fifty neighbours and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Watson assembled at their home to bid them farewell, and spent a social evening together before their removal from the neighbourhood. Burnbrae, November 28, 1921.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Watson and Family,

We, your friends and neighbours, have gathered with you tonight to show in a small way our kindly feelings toward you, and our regret that you are leaving our immediate neighbourhood. We are happy to think, however, that you are not going so far away, but that we will have the pleasure of seeing you often.

You have always meant much to us, as kind, unselfish neighbours, always cheerful to help in every good cause, and with these self-forgetful characteristics, you have lived amongst us and endeared yourselves to each one of us.

We are going to ask you to kindly accept this table, only as a slight token of remembrance of the years we have been together, and we pray that He, Who ruleth all things, will be with you and yours to bless you in the years that are to come.

Signed on behalf of the community,

Rev. J. J. Black.

A dainty lunch was then served by the ladies, and the rest of the evening was spent in social intercourse, music, etc.

Social Evening.

On Monday evening a most enjoyable evening was spent at the Parish Hall, when the Willing Workers of Christ Church very kindly entertained the Young People's Guild of St. Andrew's Church, and also the Men's Club of Christ Church. A reading by Miss Lillian Hay was an interesting feature of the programme. A duet by Miss Hilda Bonnycastle and Mr. Alfred Mann was well received; after which contests were carried out. Mr. John Storrie's solo, as well as the instrumental duet by Miss Bessie Locke and Mss. John Storrie, and a solo by Miss Bonnycastle, were heartily applauded. The readings by Mrs. D. A. Montgomery and Mr. Gledhill richly merited the hearty encores they received.

After the programme, dainty refreshments were served, to which all did ample justice, after which more games, such as "Dusty Miller," etc., were indulged in.

Short addresses were given by McIntosh, expressing the wish that Rev. C. E. Clark and Rev. C. F. social gatherings of this kind be held more frequently.

MINISTER OF LABOR AND JNO. A. SEXSMITH SPEAK AT LAKEFIELD

MR. J. C. STRICKLAND ALSO ADDRESSED CONSERVATIVE GATHERING--PROTECTION, RAILWAYS AND MERCHANT MARINE DISCUSSED.

CANADA'S BUSINNSS

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 30.—Mr. John A. Sexsmith, Conservative candidate in East Peterborough, held a meeting here Monday night, when the Memorial Hall was comfortably filled. Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor, was present and Mr. W. J. Charlton made a capable Chairman.

J. C. Strickland.

Mr. J. C. Strickland spoke of the protective policy under Sir John A. Macdonald, which measure he declared brought prosperity to Canada in 1878 after an era of depression and built up the country for both farmer and manufacturer. There are 650 branches of American industries now in Canada, employing 100,000 men, and which, Mr. Strickland asserted, would close down were protection removed, fuel and material being cheaper in the States. In further support of protection, the speaker said that 85 per cent. of the farm produce is consumed in Canada, and if surplus American produce is allowed in free of duty their prices will come down to the farmers' loss. Also, if the tariff is lowered, the revenue, which Canada needs from customs dues will have to be made up by direct taxation. The Massey-Harris Company, which has been the object of attack by the Progressive candidate, has been a genuine friend to the farmer in the West.

The Candidate.

Mr. Sexsmith, after a greeting to the electors and appreciation of the splendid support of Reeve Strickland, outlined some of the reasons why he considered that the Government should be returned to power. What Canada needs today, he urged, is to settle down and go to work, and then we shall have an exceptionally bright national future. None of the late warring countries, he averred, are in as good a shape as Canada today, and in a business way she is in the forefront of all the nations, her trade being 2½ per cent. per capita greater than that of the U. S.

This election is offering a new phase in politics, he said, owing to the new Progressive party, which really spells "class government." The platform of the Progressives and Liberals is practically the same, with very few differences. Both Crerar and King stand for a policy of free trade along certain lines with few differences. Meighen stands on the old platform of the old Conservatory party.

After reviewing the country's progress under a protective tariff, and the origin of the Grain Growers' Association, Mr. Sexsmith went on to say that although Crerar and Wood complain of monopolies, there are none so monopolizing of self-interests as that of the Grain Growers, whose investigation disclosed were making 5.30 per cent. profit. In conclusion, he characterized Canada's National Railways as—thanks to the Liberals—lacking in considerable utility by, in some instances, paralleling each other and running through districts non-productive of business. He urged his hearers to vote for that policy in Canada's best interests, and to not be carried away by partisanship.

Minister of Labor.

Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor, spoke of the condition of Canada's working classes and credited the Conservative Government with having kept faith with Labor. We must consider, he said, what is in the best interests of the working people, and that includes the agriculturalist, for who is harder working than the farmer? In other elections there were but two parties with clearly defined issues; now we have a new party—the Progressive—and that the franchise has been extended to the ladies, whose entrance will, no doubt, make for better and cleaner politics in Canada. The Government of a country has always a more difficult task than the opposition, as they are the object of continued attack. In the present issue the Progressives have no past record; they have repeatedly charged that nothing has been done for labor; but this is not true, for in 1918 the Borden Government granted the request of the Labor party that a representative be on every commission or committee where the interests of Labor were involved. This promise was faithfully kept, and since then a Labor representative from Canada accompanied Borden to the Peace Conference at Versailles and was permitted to voice the cause of Labor in such a way that a clause providing for the protection of Labor was incorporated in the treaty. The status of Labor today is higher in Canada than in any other country, declared the Minister. In 1919 free Government employment bureaus were established in various centres of Canada and 930,000 men and women found employment through their agency. Technical education and vocational training have also done much for the working people, and the Government during the world-wide industrial depression of 1920 had assisted materially in providing for surplus labor.

Mr. Crerar, charged the hon. gentleman, declines to commit himself to any Labor policy, and Hon. Mackenzie King is heartily ashamed of his own policy for Labor.

Merchant Marine.

Talking of Canada's merchant marine, the Minister stated that in 1918, when German subs. were sinking boats faster than they could be built, the British authorities urged Canada to build ships. This policy was supported by both Messrs. King and Crerar, who now condemn the Government for continuing to build ships after the armistice was signed. But no new building contracts were entered into, and every ship built is carrying Canadian products to countries which never before saw the Canadian flag. Canada's merchant-marine have paid their way and made a profit; they are also fostering the Canadian National Railways and loosening the strongest hold of the United States, which was holding Canada up in every direction. Then the railways are being placed under economical management and will soon prove a profitable investment.

The Tariff.

Reverting to the tariff issue, the Hon. Gideon Robertson denied the Premier of Ontario's contention that protection had depopulated Canada's rural districts, and cited authorities to show that from 1878 to 1921 the population in the Northwest—mostly in agrarian localities—had increased from 22,000 to 1,500,000 after 43 years of protective tariff administration.

Predicting that were American farm implements and machinery admitted to Canada free, after a brief period of cheap selling their prices would go away up when Canadian factories had been undersold out of business, the Minister contended that Free Trade is an unpractical ideal theory for an ideal world. Disarmament, he also characterized in similar well-turned phrases, asserting that the first country to disarm while its enemies remain armed will be the first to fall; and he opined, in conclusion, that, with German and Oriental cheap labor and their deflated currency, Canadians must stand behind protection to save their country.

OPEN MEETING OF BABIES' CLINIC

PETERBORO' MOTHERS ALIVE TO BENEFITS OF THE CLINIC

The open meeting of the Well Babies' Clinic, held yesterday afternoon in the rooms at the G.W.V.A. hall was attended by so many interested women as to crowd the room to its capacity. If the interest manifested in these meetings coninues to grow, larger quarters will soon have to be secured. The attention of Peterboro mothers is gradually directed to the benefits to be derived from attendance at all Clinic meetings.

Mrs. Robt. Harstone presided at yesterday afternoon's meeting, and tea was served by the King's Daughters. The lecture delivered by Dr. A. W. McPherson on "The Spread of Germs" was most interesting, and received the strict attention of the audience. The speaker gave a concise and illuminating address on the precautions to be taken to prevent the widespread attack of disease germs, dwelling particularly on the importance of proper attention to milk, which was described as the most perfect of foods, and the greatest germ-producing element. The importance of pasteurization and of proper temperature was emphasized

Dr. McPherson discoursed on the deadly attentions of the houses fly, as a carrier of all sorts of disease germs and filth, and spoke of the care which should be exercised in its exclusion from house and kitchen. The effective entries of germs through the mouth, nose and ears, if left unguarded and their fondness for broken and unhealthy membrane was dilated upon at some length.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 30.—That the Newfoundland veterans of the Great War would have their pensions increased on January 1, 1922, to the Canadian scale of pensions, was the guarantee given by the Prime Minister, Hon. The Prime Minister further stated that he had under consideration a plan for the employment of the entire Dominion.

CARE IN ADDRESSING LETTERS OR PARCELS

The Postal Department at Ottawa, in a recent bulletin, pointed out that frequently the delay or misdirection of mail is due to public's carelessness in failing to properly address the matter in question. In support of this claim attention is drawn to the fact that during three days this month, 128,000 pieces of incorrectly and insufficiently addressed mail matter were handled at 55 of the larger post offces. This is a daily average of 42,800 for the 95 offices, or at the rate of 16,000,000 for a year of 365 days.

Much trouble is also due to careless writing and using a pencil when addressing mail matter.

With the Christmas season at hand the public are asked to observe the following points to assure the correct and prompt delivery of mail matter:

Prepay postage fully. Address plainly and fully. Place name and address of sender on all mail matter. Carefully wrap and pack all articles sent by parcel post, but do not seal the parcels as sealed parcels are subject to letter rate of postage. Mail Christmas parcels early. Insure valuable parcels.

NEWFOUNDLAND STORMS RECALL PREVIOUS ONES

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 30.—The violent storms which have recently swept the coasts of Newfoundland, trailing death and destruction in their wake, recall the fact that perhaps the greatest visitation ever recorded in the history of the Ancient Colony, occurred on September 11, 1775. According to the records, the sea rose suddenly to a height of thirty feet on the eastern coast; 700 small boats were driven ashore, eleven vessels also foundered and most of their crews were drowned. In the sections from Harbor Grace to Grate's Cove, three hundred boats were lost. Scores of people on the north shore were drowned while trying to save their property. Stages, fish stores and thousands of quintals of fish were swept away. Prowse's History records that "300 people along the coast lost their lives." For weeks afterwards dead bodies strewed the shores, while in the fall fishermen frequently swept them from the sea bottom in their herring nets.

"MAJOR JOHNSON" HAS 24 MEDALS.

International Military Police Head in Vladivostok Honored.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Former members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force (Siberia) will be interested to learn that "Major Johnson" has added two more decorations to the string he already possessed, the grand total now being twenty-four. Those who spent the winter of 1918-19 in Vladivostok will need no further identification of this officer, but for such as were more pleasantly located at that period, it may be well to explain that Major Johnson, U.S.A. and "town major" of Vladivostok, and in charge of the international police force that maintained order in that somewhat disorderly town.

Vladivostok was filled at the time with assorted allies, running the gamut from Canadians to French colonial troops from Indo-China, but everybody knew Major Johnson. His police force included Canadians, Americans, Czechs and men of many other nationalities, assigned to their respective units. The Major dominated them all and was recognized as the "master mind" of the force. More racial ructions were settled by Major Johnson with less bloodshed than most people realized, for they were settled quietly and without fuss. The concert of the nations in Vladivostok had enough discordant notes as it was, but without Johnson's activities the discords would have been mighty plentiful.

Despatches from Manila just received here are to the effect that the valiant Major has been presented in that city with the Distinguished Service Cross by the United States Government and the fourth class of the Imperial Order of the Meiji by Japan, both decorations for distinguished services at Vladivostok during the allied occupation in 1919 and 1920, while he was at the head of the international police force there.

The events for which Major Johnson was thus honored occurred months after the Canadian troops were withdrawn from Siberia, and, in fact, after the Kolchak armies had been shattered in the interior. In November, 1919 rebellion broke out in Vladivostok, and there was fierce fighting between rival factions, one Red, the other not so Red. Here is what the citation with the Distinguished Service Cross says of Major Johnson's action:

"For extraordinary heroism in action at Vladivostok, Siberia, on the night of November 17-18, 1919. On three successive occasions he went through a zone swept by the intense fire of contending factions to the railroad stations and brought out non-combatants through the continuous fire from rifles and machine guns."

Major Johnson is a Russian by birth, and a soldier of fortune by inclination. He has fought under many flags and has received decorations from nearly every civilized country in the world. He was a brigadier-general in the national guard of Hawaii when the United States entered the war and he at once resigned his commission to enlist in the U. S. forces as a private.

Later he was commissioned as a major, and assigned to the 27th U. S. infantry, one of the two U. S. regiments that were sent to Siberia. The other was the 31st.

About a year ago the Major resigned from the army, and he is now manager of a lumber company at Cadiz, Occidental Negros, in the Visayan group of the Phillippine Islands.

Mrs. Johnson, whom the Major had not seen for five years, arrived from the United States one hour before the ceremony at which the two decorations were presented to her husband.

DEVELOP BLACK CHICKEN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press).—A chicken, black-skinned from drumsticks to neck, has been developed at the Carnegie Institution's Experimental Evolution Station at Cold Spring Harbor, L.I.

The bird popped into the world while scientists were playing out and take with chromosomes, germ plasms whose change in number and shape is held responsible by biologists for racial coloring.

The dusky chick is not easily distinguishable from an ordinary white-skinned sister, for it is fully clothed in regulation feathers. By lifting these feathers, however, the skin is revealed jet black, warranted not to run.

It doesn't pay to be in a hurry in the crowded section of a city.

I'm So Tired

Fatigue is the result of poisons in the blood. So when the kidneys fail to purify the blood one of the first indications is unusual and persistent tired feelings and pains in the back.

Neglected kidney troubles lead to years of suffering from rheumatism or develop into such fatal ailments as Bright's disease.

The kidney action is promptly corrected by use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills — the best known regulator of kidneys, liver and bowels.

Mrs. John Ireland, R.R. No. 2, King, Ont., writes:

"I was a great sufferer from severe headaches and bilious spells. I tried a number of remedies without obtaining any benefit until I was advised to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. These completely relieved me and made me feel like a new person. I am very grateful to Dr. Chase's medicines for what they have done for me, and you may use my letter for the benefit of others."

POSSESS TWO FINE MODERN CARILLONS

BELFAST, Nov. 30.—(By Canadian Press)—Ireland now possesses two of the finest modern carillons in the world. Two years ago a fine set of forty-two bells was placed in Queenstown Cathedral, and on Sunday, November 6, 1921, another set of bells was inaugurated in St. Patrick's (Roman Catholic) Cathedral at Armagh. The latter consists of thirty-nine bells with clavier-three octaves chromatic E. to E., with two extra lower tones ditonic D. and C. The total weight of the bells is eleven tons. The smallest bell weighs only twenty pounds.

The carillon in the Cathedral at Armagh is placed in the north-west tower, which with its spire rises to a height of 210 feet. Thus the bells are placed in a satisfactory position accoustically.

Another fine carillon of bells is to be set up at Loughborough, where a war memorial Campanile is being built at a cost of 10,000 pounds. It will contain a set of forty-five bells with clavier, with a great bell weighing four tons.

"BULL-DOG DRUMMOND"

BY "SAPPER" (CYRIL McNEILE)

James rose obediently, and Drummond heard him cross over the passage to the other suite of rooms that lay on the same floor. Then he heard the murmur of voices, and shortly afterwards his servant returned.

"He is in his bath, sir, but he'll come over as soon as he's finished." He delivered the message and stood waiting "Anything more, sir?"

"Yes, James. I feel certain that there's a lot. But just to carry on with, I'll have another glass of beer."

As the door closed, Drummond rose and started to pace up and down the room. The plan he had in his mind was simple, but he was a man who believed in simplicity.

"Peterson will not come himself—nor will our one and only Henry. Potts has not been long in the country, which is all to the good. And if it fails—we shan't be any worse off than we are now. Luck—that's all; and the more you tempt her, the kinder she is." He was still talking gently to himself when Peter Darrell strolled into the room.

"Can this thing be true, old boy," remarked the newcomer. "I hear you're in the throes of a brainstorm."

"I am, Peter—and not even that repulsive dressing-gown of yours can stop it. I want you to help me."

"All that I have, dear old flick, is yours for the asking. What can I do?"

"Well, first of all, I want you to come along and see the household pet." He piloted Darrell along the passage to the American's room, and opened the door. The millionaire looked at them dazedly from the pillows, and Darrell stared back in startled surprise.

"My God! What's the matter with him?" he cried.

"I would give a good deal to know," said Hugh grimly. Then he smiled reassuringly at the motionless man, and led the way back to the sitting-room.

"Sit down Peter," he said. "Get outside that beer and listen to me carefully."

For ten minutes he spoke, while his companion listened in silence. Gone completely was the rather vacuous-faced youth clad in a gorgeous dressing-gown; in his place there sat a keen-faced man nodding from time to time as a fresh point was made clear. Even so had both listened in the years that were past to their battalion commander's orders before an attack.

At length Hugh finished. "Will you do it, old man?" he asked.

"Of course," returned the other. "But wouldn't it be better, Hugh," he said pleadingly, "to whip up two or three of the boys and have a real scrap? I don't seem to have anything to do."

Drummond shook his head decidedly. "No, Peter, my boy—not this show. We're up against a big thing; and if you like to come in with me, I think you'll have all you want in the scrapping line before you've finished. But this time, low cunning is the order."

Darrell rose. "Right you are, dearie. Your instructions shall be carried out to the letter. Come and feed your face with me. Got a couple of birds from the Gaiety lunching at the Cri."

"Not to-day," said Hugh. "I've got quite a bit to get through this afternoon."

As soon as Darrell had gone, Drummond again rang the bell for his servant.

"This afternoon, James, you and Mrs. Denny will leave here and go to Paddington. Go out by the front door, and should you find yourselves being followed—as you probably will be—consume a jujube and keep your heads. Having arrived at the booking-office—take a ticket to Cheltenham, say good-bye to Mrs. Denny in an impassioned tone, and exhort her not to miss the next train to that delectable inland resort. You might even speak slightingly about her sick aunt at Westbourne Grove, who alone prevents your admirable wife from accompanying you. Then, James, you will board the train for Cheltenham and go there. You will remain there for two days, during which period you must remember that you're a married man—even if you do go to the movies. You will then return here, and await further orders. Do you get me?"

"Yes, sir." James stood to attention with a smart heel-click.

"Your wife—she has a sister or something, hasn't she, knocking about somewhere?"

"She 'as a palsied cousin in Camberwell, sir," remarked James with justifiable pride.

"Magnificent," murmured Hugh. "She will dally until eventide with her palsied cousin—if she can bear it—and then she must go by Underground to Ealing, where she will take a ticket to Goring. I don't think there will be any chance of her being followed—you'll have drawn them off. When she gets to Goring I want the cottage got ready at once, for two visitors." He paused and lit a cigarette. "Above all, James—mum's the word. As I told you a little while ago, the game has begun. Now just repeat what I've told you."

He listened while his servant ran through his instructions, and nodded approvingly. "To think there are still people who think military service a waste of time!" he murmured. "Four years ago you couldn't have got one word of it right."

He dismissed Denny, and sat down at his desk. First he took the half-torn sheet out of his pocket, and putting it in an envelope, sealed it carefully. Then he placed it in another envelope, with a covering letter to his bank, requesting them to keep the enclosure intact.

Then he took a sheet of notepaper, and with much deliberation proceeded to pen a document which afforded him considerable amusement, judging by the grin which appeared from time to time on his face. This effusion he also enclosed in a sealed envelope, which he again addressed to his bank. Finally, he stamped the first, but not the second—and placed them both in his pocket.

25,000,000 IN GOLD BULLION IS SALVAGED

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(By Canadian Press)—Gold bullion to the value of between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 pounds has been recovered from the sunken steamship Laurentic, off the Irish coast, and there is still much more of the precious metal to be salvaged. The work of recovering the bullion has ceased for this year, but operations will be resumed next spring, when it is expected that 2,000,000 or 3,000,000 pounds worth of the ore which is still in the ship will be brought to the surface.

The ill-fated White Star Liner Laurentic, a ship of 14,900 tons, was well-known to Canadians. For some years she was in the merchant marine service between Liverpool and Montreal. She was commandeered by the British Admiralty while the war was on and was in the service of the Government as an armed cruiser. She was sunk by the Germans in January 1917 off one of the wildest parts of the coast of Ireland and has been at the bottom of the sea ever since. The Laurentic could not be lifted, but the gold she was carrying at the time of the disaster was too valuable to be left in "Davy Jones' locker," so expert divers set to work to lift the gold.

The admiralty salvage vessel Racer and her tender, the Canadian drifter No. 1, left Portsmouth last spring for the scene of the wreck and returned recently to Portsmouth, where they will lie up for the winter and prepare for the resumption of the work of salvage next spring.

Unfortunately more than gold treasure was sunk when the Laurentic went down—many lives being lost at the time. Of the crew of 475 officers and men only 121 were saved, among the survivors being her commander, Captain R. A. Norton, R. N. She was sunk in over twenty fathams of water.

More than three years' pounding by the Atlantic swells has transformed the great liner into a heap of twisted debris; and her decks, which settled down on the sea bottom, cover an area of several hundred feet. The wreck was practically covered with gravel and silt when the divers located it as it is in a position in which it receives full force of the Atlantic gales. This obstruction had to be pumped away as far as possible by powerful pumps placed in position by the divers, as the gold was at the bottom of the huge mass of wreckage. The plate girders had to be blasted and cut away by explosives, and the task of the divers was both difficult and dangerous. In consequence of this the Racer carried a recompression chamber for the purpose of treating illness which the divers might contract in the course of their hazardous task.

The vessel engaged in salvaging the gold in the Laurentic is about all that remains of the splendid Admiralty Salvage Section which was brought into being during the war. With this exception the section came to an end with the completion of the wreck-raising operations on the Belgian coast. In the case of the Laurentic the rate paid is half-a-crown for every 100 pounds worth of gold recovered, and this divided among all employed in the work is equal to about one half-penny percent per head.

PRINCE OF WALES TO REACH RECORD MADE BY FATHER?

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(By Canadian Press)—So much of the world has the Prince of Wales seen already and is seeing on his present tour ofIndia and Japan that it is possible, despite the set-back to his travels owing to the four and a half years of war, that he may reach the great record of his father, who is easily the most travelled of Sovereigns in this or any other age. A year after the armistice the Prince of Wales came to Canada and also visited the United States. Last year he toured Australia, New Zealand and Tasmania, and on the way out to the Antipodes and home again he went through the Panama Canal, and made short stays at Hawaii, Fiji and in the West Indies. His journeys last year were to have included India, but the strain of travelling was too great, and so the visit to the East had to be postponed until this year.

After four months in India, embracing a splendid series of entertainments at the hands of most of the Maharajahs, the Prince will sail on March 17th, next from Karachi for Japan where preparations on a lavish scale have been planed for his reception. He will return to London next June.

King George V. was only fourteen years of age when he set out upon his travels and went around the world with his elder brother in His Majesty's Ship Bacchante. The two cruises of that vessel took the two Princes to the Mediterranean, the West Indies, South America, South Africa, Australia, Fiji, Yokohama, Hong Kong and Singapore. By the time he came to the Throne His Majesty had been six times to Canada, three to India and Ceylon, and twice to South Africa and Australia while the only considerable parts of the British Empire that he had not seen were Uganda, British East Africa and Nigeria. Since his accession the King has been again to Africa and held the Cornation Durbar. His Majesty's last journey abroad was in the year before the war, when he attended the wedding of the Kaiser's only daughter at Berlin.

King Edward VII. in addition to his frequent visits to the Continent made two notable journeys of wider radius—the first in 1860, when he visited the principal cities of Canada and the United States, and the second in 1875-1876, when he made his memorable progress through India.

Queen Victoria, in the course of her long life never went beyond the boundaries of Europe.

FASHIONS

Illustrating the variations in new chapeaux are three direct from Parisian shops. One, which was made in the French capital, was inspired by our own American Indians. Not only do the quills stand up as the few eagle feathers of a young buck's headdress, but the crown is thickly embroidered with tiny pears in an Indian pattern.

The second shows the Parisian idea of how the Spanish mantilla should be worn. The draped turban is all of lace, but the tiny toque foundation is of buckram. The long streamers at either side complete the Spanish illusion.

An extreme type of tricorne has the brim of black Panne velvet rolled back almost flat.

NEWSPRINT PRODUCTION SHOWS AN INCREASE.

NEW YORK, November 30 (Canadian Press). — Forty-four newsprint companies in the United States and Canada, comprising more than 90 per cent. of total, reporting to the Newsprint Service Bureau, for October had an output of 156,844 tons of paper. Shipments amounted to 165,365 tons. Production includes 1,713 tons of hanging paper usually classed with newsprint.

October production was 13,372 tons (9 per cent.) increase over the September output. Shipments increased 22,972 tons, or 16 per cent. There was one more working day in October than in September.

Production by United States mills, according to the Bureau, during the first ten months of 1921 was 252,161 tons, or 2a per cent. less than the corresponding period of 1920. A strike which tied up some mills for more than two months early this year restricted output.

Production of Canadian mills ten months of 1921 decreased 79,447 tons compared with 1920, a decline of 11 per cent. Combined decline in production, both countries, was 331,598, or 18 1-2 per cent. compared with 1920.

Total stocks at mills 31st October, 1921, were 31,990 tons, equivalent to about four days' production. The stocks at the end of October were 8,630 tons less than 30th September.

FINLAND TO PROTECT THE ALAND ISLANDS

LONDON, Nov. 30—(Canadian Press).—The text of the convention for the neutralization of the Aland islands, received here, shows that the signatory countries of it are Denmark, Esthonia, Poland, Finland France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Lithuania and Sweden.

Besides prohibiting the establishment in the islands of any military, naval or air bases, it also forbids, with certain exceptions, the entrance of war vessels of any power into the waters of the archipelago, except for peaceful passage through them. Finland, is, however permitted to send as a temporary measure any forces required for the maintenance of order.

In time of war, the archipelago is strictly neutralized but in the event of warfare affecting the Baltic, Finland is permitted to lay mines in the waters of the group, provided she immediately informs the Council of the League of Nations.

For the purpose of giving effect to the convention or meeting any violations of it, the contracting powers agree to have resort to the Council of the League of Nations which shall, in case of need, summon a conference of the contracting powers, whether members of the League or not.

Failing unanimity, each and any of the contracting powers are authorized to take such measures as may be recommended by the Council by a two-thirds majority, the vote of any power accused of the violation of the convention not being reckoned.

In the event of the neutrality of the Islands being threatened by a sudden coup de main, Finland is authorized to take the necessary measures in the neutral zone for repelling the aggressor until such time as the contracting powers are ready to intervene for the purpose of securing respect for the neutrality of the islands.

The disposition of the Aland Islands, described as "the Gibraltar of the North" has been the subject of contention since the world war. For centuries they belonged to Sweden through its control of Finland but they fell into the hands of Russia when Russia absorbed Finland Sweden then became fearful of Russia's militarism as control of the Aland Island by Aussia rendered Stockholm liable to bombardment.

After the world war Sweden appealed to the Peace Conference at Versailles to have possession of the islands decided on the principle of self-determination and consented to their neutralization.

The question was referred to the League of Nations which appointed a judicial commision to investigate the subject. The commission recommended that the islands be placed under the control of Finland but their neutrality should be guaranteed by the powers.

NEW ENGLAND STILL PARALYZED BY STORM.

BOSTON, November 30. — Word from the Weather Bureau that the storm which has held central New England in an icy grip for four days was about over brought hope last night to many cities and towns that they would soon be able to have light, power and normal telephone and telegraph services, which have been interrupted for two days.

All of the places affected (forty of them in the vicinity of this city) were again in darkness last night, however, and with street car schedules reduced or suspended.

RUM-RUNNING IN EUROPE ALSO BIG

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press). — Rum-running into Sweden from Germany has developed into something like a public scandal, says Swedish newspapers. The broken nature of the coast line and the thousand of small islands dotting the sea approaches are all in favor of smuggling enterprise.

The craft engaged in this trade are generally small, fast-sailing schooners, captained as a rule by ex-officers of the Imperial German navy. Many of the skippers bear names well known in the records of submarine activitiy. Their daring and experience makes it very difficult for Swedish coastguards to stop them.

From Reval, Rostock, Stettin, Lubeck and other German ports these vessels put to sea, their cargo always consigned, according to the ship's papers, to some Finnish port. Once among the rocky archipelago of Eastern Sweden, the cargo is landed piecemeal after nightfall on the rocks, from which it is later removed by accomplices ashore who have a widely ramfied organization for the island distribution of the goods.

This illicit traffic is said by Swedish paper to be enormous. The papers are full of stirring stories about smugglers and their doings. They remain outside the territorial waters, cruising about until their friends seize their chance to rush out in fast motor boats, often in a heavy gale, tranship the liquor and disappear in the dangerous labyrinth of the archipelago.

Lately the police has started a scheme to beat the rum-runner at their own game. The other day a police boat, camouflaged as a smuggling craft, boarded a German schooner and loaded up to the gunwale from the schooners hold, unconscious of the fact that the schooner was just outside the territorial limit. When the policemen tried to leave the schooner without paying, the smugglers threatened to throw them overboard and there was nothing for them but to pay for the liquor.

In another case the correspondent was told, a gale blew up soon after the coast guards had boarded a ship which happened to be within the three mile limit and, owing to the dangerous coast, the ship had to put out to sea, taking the Swedish guards away to Germany.

In Sweden and in Finland many of the coast population get their living by smuggling and refuse to go fishing and carry on their legitimate trades. In Finland, where total prohibition prevails, conditions are even worse than in Sweden. Fishing there has entirely ceased, it is said, because rum-running is far more profitable business.

GIRL LOSES LIFE IN BURNING OF HER HOME

SYDNEY, N.S., Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press.)—Mary Lewis, 24 years old, met death when fire destroyed the family residence at Coxheath, three miles above Sydney, at an early hour yesterday. The incessant barking of a watch dog wakened Roger Lewis, the eldest brother of the deceased, who found the house in flames. He aroused the six other members of the family who escaped in their night-clothes. Mary Lewis was suffocated before she could be brought out. The cause of the fire is unknown.

TORONTO REPUTATION NOT WORRYING LOCAL STUDENTS

The University of Toronto Schools team who meet the Peterborough Collegiate at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon in the semi-finals of the Inter-scholastic series, have a number of crack young stars, including "Scotty" Cawkell, their captain, Plaxton, a good punting and running half-back, and Munro, brother of Duna Munro, of the Parkdale team, a clever quarter-back. While these three are the bright lights, the rest of the outfit is said to be not far behind them in ability.

However, the Collegiate squad, while not under-estimating the Toronto gang, declares that "the bigger they are the harder they fall," and they are working hard all this week to put the finishing touches on their training. They should be fit and ready for the game of their lives on Saturday and they are going into the battle determined to show U.T. S. that all the rugby skill is not confined to Toronto.

Tickets are going fast for the game. If you have not already got yours, buy one and ensure the team against financial loss. As Saturday's fixture is a sudden death game, the Collegiate team have to guarantee all the expenses, so that generous support will be necessary from the sporting public.

CURLING RINK RENT IS INCREASED $200

AND MEMBERSHIP FEE IS UP ONE DOLLAR TO MEET THE HIGHER OVERHEAD EXPENSE.

The Curling Club last night, with a large attendance of members, accepted the Curling Rink Company's increased terms of rental for this season and instructed the executive committee to bring in a report in February for future policy. The rent of the rink from the first of December until the end of March has been increased from $450 to $650. This is the only period of the year when it is of use to the curling club.

The Curling Rink Company stated that they have been operating on such a narrow margin with the former rental of $450 that they were unable to set aside any money for depreciation. The Curling Club, on the other hand, have always desired to provide the best facilities for the game at the lowest possible fee. Not so long ago the fee used to be $10 a season. Last year it was $12, and to meet the increased rent it has been shoved up another notch to $13.

The membership has been limited to 165 and at the present time the club's roster is filling up fast. Everything is shaping up for a big season; last night's big turnout was an evidence of the enthusiasm that pervades the club.

AMENDMENT TO CONSTITUTION

CITY LEAGUE ENCOURAGES PLAYERS TO SIGN CERTIFICATES FOR O. H. A. SERIES.

Amendment to—Sport page ....

The City Hockey League had a splendid meeting last night at the Chambers of Commerce rooms, all four clubs of the 1920-1 season being represented. The De Laval A. A. reported that their Association would not be represented in the league this coming season, and when an application for membership was received from a club about to be organized, the league decided to postpone a decision until the next meeting. Every opportunity will be given industrial and commercial concerns to be represented in the League. If no further applications for membership are received, the League will accept the application received last night. The men behind this proposal are enthusiastic supporters of the City League and they wish only to be of assistance to the organization in completing a four-club league.

Officers Re-elected.

Mr. A. A. Fowler was re-elected honorary president; Mr. J. A. McKone was elected honorary first vice-president, and in recognition of his services to the League, Mr. Ben Stacey was elected honorary second vice-president. All other officers of the 1920 season were re-elected. They are: President, C. E. Curtis; Vice-President, Fred Reed; Secretary, G. W. Fitzgerald; Treasurer, Ald. Nagel Phelan.

The constitution was amended to provide that an Intermediate O.H.A. player shall mean a player who participates in one game in the Intermediate O.H.A. series of the current season.

A club will be permitted to play two Intermediate O.H.A. players. There is no restriction as to Junior O.H.A. players.

The League is prepared to co-operate in the work of developing young players and will be prepared to take action when it is known.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

The Capitol offers a Monster Show for this Thursday, Friday and Saturday — Earle Williams in "Bring Him In"—Charlie Chaplin in "The Kid" and a Splendid Vaudeville Act, The Palm Beach Tramps.

Commencing tomorrow night and for the balance of this week the Capitol offers a monster show, a double program of pictures and a splendid vaudeville team. Charlie Chaplin in his funniest, biggest and best comedy, "The Kid" in 6 reels of joy with Charlie Chaplin and Jackie Coogan the greatest little kid in pictures. A first-class double vaudeville act, Mack and Bernard, the original Palm Beach Tramps, comedians, singers and dancers, the hard and soft shoe dancing of this team is equal to any in big time vaudeville. This program is the biggest, best and most expensive that the Capitol has ever offered in this city.

For atmosphere in "Bring Him In" the Earle Williams production, which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre on Thursday. Vitagraph obtained permission from the United States authorities to use several full-blooded Indians, which were brought from the reservation for the purpose. One especially, a papoose, created no little interest at the Vitagraph lot. His mother, a stout Indian squaw, dressed in a gayly colored gingham gown and with a red handkerchief tied over her head, carried the little papoose in a basket woven cradle on her back. The little fellow was strapped to the cradle with thongs of rawhide. The cradle itself was an exceptionally fine specimen of Indian basketry. It is made of sweet grass and colored raffia and has a border worked in basket design.

While on location the Indians fashioned a birch canoe, which they presented to Earle Williams. The star used this canoe in the production.

Another Indian, an expert with handling the bowie knife and who has a record as a fighter, is also seen in the picture. He wears the costume used by the Indian guides in British Columbia, a somewhat picturesque dress, and instead of the long braids used by the tribal Indian has his hair bobbed, similar to the young woman on New York streets. Instead of wearing moccasins he wears high boots.

Just the usual prices.

—FAN—FAN

The Musical Delevans have an excellent bill of vaudeville at the Capitol Theatre for the last time tonight. The lady does some clever work with a left handed piano solo, there are a couple of banjo and cornet selections, some bright dialogue, and an old fashioned Southern dance to violin music.

At the Saturday matinee for the feature picture, "The Kid," Manager Abbey is offering a prize of five dollars for the best child impersonator of the "Kid,' the audience to do the judging.

AT THE GRAND.

REX STOCK COMPANY.

To-night will be the last performance of "Just Like a Gypsy." The play has been most popular and patrons find much difficulty in securing their favourite seats. Next week's bill is extremely funny. I can tell you even this far ahead, "Twenty-four Hours of Truth" will cause much conjecture and not a little fun.

"THE FOUR HORSEMEN."

"It is a wise author who knows his own novel when he sees it scenariozed." Rupjert Hughes is credited with the above sage remark when he gazed upon the screen version of "The Unpardonable Sin"; and Gertrude Atherton says that she will not sell the rights to her stories until she knows how many and what kind of changes will be made in them. All of which is a more or less tiresome prelude to what I am going to say about "The Four Horsemen." Without doubt it is the finest screen version of any novel that has ever been made. Vicente Ibanez came upon the literary horizon as a tremendous surprise to Americans—even literary men on this side of the water were unfamiliar with his work, and his first great novel to be translated into English, came at a moment when the world was waiting for a masterpiece in war fiction. Books aplenty with the war for their central theme were published, but critics and general public alike acclaimed "The Four Horsemen" the best novel of the year, a war-time phenomenon. The fact that the translation is well done is another point in its favour and the authors need not fear that the English version lacks finesse or genuine literary value. The same may be said of "In the Shadow of the Cathedral," and "More Nostrum," but some of his other works are not so well translated, and Ibanez apologizes for some of them.

Whether one agrees with the now famous Spaniard or not, whether one holds the same viewpoint as to morals and modes of living, the fact remains that "The Four Horsemen" is a tribute to Latin genius. None other could touch the same subject, could wield a bold and yet truthful brush to paint the pictures of Argentine and Parisian life as does Ibanez, without offending good taste. But there again is the fact that the Spanish conception of life differs from the Anglo-Saxon, and Ibanez has been so widely read in other languages that it causes one to wish that the great works of another age had been translated and read more freely. The romances of mediaeval Spain are told in a delightful fashion by Calderon, Lopa da Vega and Cervantes, while the famous poem "The Cid," is one of the masterpieces of literature. They are only familiar to students and scholars generally, so the world wonders often at the newly-found genius emanating from Spain.

After which digression let us return to the picture. Superlatives are out of luck—there is no use denying it—one hears so much of marvellous and wonderful things that it behooves us to ponder and consider an appropriate term. At Massey Hall, in Toronto, I saw the photo-play, accompanied by a fifteen-piece orchestra, which played delightful incidental music. I cannot imagine the production without the music, so I do not hesitate to say that the picture as shown in Kingston and Peterborough, is the finest screen drama that has ever been seen in these cities. If taste differes—well it cannot be helped. "The Four Horsemen" ran six months in Boston, three in Chicago and Detroit, nine weeks in Toronto and right here in Peterborough we shall have the identical orchestra leader and five musicians, including a prima donna, who were with the picture in Toronto, making 12 pieces in all. In fact, Mr. Smith, the leader, played at the first performance in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Detroit and Toronto. The score works in so perfectly with every picture as it appears on the screen, that it seems to be a part of the photo-play—there is never the slightest discrepancy, and the music changes almost with the varying moods of the playerh.

To speak of the cast would require a succession of those same adjectives I mentioned before, but Rudolph Valentine, the young Italian, plays the reckless, ardent, selfish young Julio, as only a Latin could interpret Hanez's hero. During the Montreal engagement, Morgan Powell paid the highest tributes to both picture and music. He also compared it with great pictures such as "The Birth of a Nation," "Way Down East" and "Broken Blossoms." Peterborough was not keen about the two last named photo-plays, so I wonder what will be the fate of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" here!

AT THE ALLEN.

HOME NEVER LIKE THIS, STAR FINDS

Not two months ago, Katherine MacDonald, screen beauty who will be seen in "Stranger Than Fiction," her latest release at the Allen Theatre, commencing Thursday, needed a guide to escort her safely around her own studio.

The reason was that in "Stranger Than Fiction," the scrip calls for a "set," which in studio language means an arrangement of scenery, to represent the headquarters and secret hiding place of a gang of metropolitan crooks. As a result there were so many secret doors, passages and sliding panels that the American Beauty was continually wondering just where the various passages were leading her.

Arthur Rouda, the technical director who designed the sets, finally provided Miss MacDonald with a blue print. Then it was all clear—as mud.

WESLEY BARRY SUPPORTS KATHERINE MacDONALD

From point of spectacular story interest and strong supporting cast, "Stranger Than Fiction," Katherine MacDonald's latest release in which she will be seen at the Allen Theatre, commencing Thursday, for a three day engagement, is by far the most important of her releases to date.

David Winter, who played opposite Miss MacDonald in her last feature, "Trust Your Wife," also distributed by Associated First National Pictures, Inc., is again seen in the leading male role.

Jean Dumont, who gained much fame as "the dope" in "The Miracle Man," plays the part of "The Shadow," and Wade Boteler, who is very well known for playing "heavy parts," interprets the role of the villain.

Young Wesley Barry was loaned by Marshall Neilan for this one production to play the part of "Freckles," and he acquits himself splendidly. Others in the cast are Tom McGuire, Harry O'Connor and Evelyn Burns.

"Stranger Than Fiction" was written by Charles Richman and A. S. LeVino, and directed by J. A. Barry.

AN ORCHESTRA OF HEROES.

One of the most interesting scenes in "God's Crucible" shows a large hall, supposedly given by one of the leaders of society in Winnipeg, Canada. And one of the most interesting episodes in this ball-room scene shows a Scottish dance, the music for which was furnished by a number of Scotchmen playing upon the Scotch national music instrument—the bagpipe. According to Director Henry Alexander MacRae, who wielded the megaphone for this production, this orchestra,—if so it may be called,—was entirely composed of veterans of the World War, men who had, without exception, distinguished themselves to such an extent that each and every one of them was decorated with a Croix de Guerre or some other hard-earned military decoration.

Watch for these heroes when you see "God's Crucible"; they are just one interesting feature of a highly interesting production.

"God's Crucible" will be shown at the Allen for the last time to-night. It is the screen version of Ralph Connor's famous novel "The Foreigners," released beneath the Hodkinson banner and boasting as strong a cast as has ever been assembled for a single production.

Gaston Plass plays the central role,—that of "Ivan Kalmar," — while the balance of the cast includes Wilton Lackaye, Kate Price, Bradley Barker, Gladys Coburn, Bigelow Cooper and many other players of almost equal prominence.

AT THE REGENT.

This will be the last night of the feature picture at the Regent "Tom Mix in "The Big Round-up". This thrilling western drama has proved a splendid success and been greeted with full houses during the week. The other films, 'Double Adventure' and the "Death Trap" and the laughable comedies make a drawing sensation well worth the small price of admission: 10c and 15c.

RUTH ASKS $60,000 FROM YANKS FOR NEXT YEAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Babe Ruth has asked the owners of New York Yankess to pay him a salary $60,000 next season.

And more than this, it is said that Colonel Til Huston and Jake Ruppert look favorably on the king of swat's demand. Ruth drew $30,000 in the season just passed, but if his new request is granted it will be the biggest salary ever drawn by a man connected with baseball.

At present Commissioner Landis is paid $42,500; Ban Johnston gets $30,000 and Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker are said to draw $20,000.

President Harding, with $75,000 tops Ruth's demand by a close margin, while the vice-president of the United States gets a salary of $12,000.

The Yankees made more money last year than any club since organized baseball was launched, and Ruth is said to have been largely responsible. He also brought in many extra dollars for the Yankee's seven opponents.

It is possible that if Ruth sticks to his demand, the New York Club may ask other American League clubs to chip in a few thousand shares.

Fowler—Age 30, 212 lbs.; first experience in rugby; very fast on feet; powerful man; dug up on account of these assets; coming along great.

Seely—Age 25, 162 lbs.; is a scrappy little outside wing; not quite fast enough on feet to earn regular berth.

WHERE ARE THE SOUTHPAWS

Where are all the good left-handed pitchers gone? They seem for some unaccountable reason, to be a scarce article just now.

Just at present the big idea with at least a half a dozen major league clubs, is the securing of a left-hander who can deliver.

The New York club managed to win the American league pennant without a classy southpaw. It was one of the very few times that a major league club has turned such a trick.

Howevevr, the New York club, despite the fact that it won the pennant realizes that it not only needs a good left-hander, but a right-hander to boot. It is said that a deal is on with the Boston club, whereby the Yankees will acquire either Pennock a southpaw, or Jones or Bust, right-handers.

The Cleveland club is in much the same fix. Walter Mails, who did such big things in 1920, was a dismal failure in 1921. His future as a member of the Cleveland club is filled with doubts. Like the New York club, Cleveland will certainly try to put over a deal this winter.

The St. Louis club that ran third in the American League has Billy Bayne, a youngster who gives much promise, as the only left-hander on its roster.

The pitching among the first three clubs in the National League is more uniform. New York has Nehf, Pittsburg has Cooper and St. Louis has Sherdel. The latter is a pretty fair southpaw, while Nefh and Co-per are the leaders. B. E.

LALONDE WANTS TO STAY WITH CANADIENS

MONTREAL, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press.)—The Star, on its sporting page, carries the following:

The great hockey talk is now about "Newsy" Lalonde. Leo Dandurand, managing director of the Canadiens, says that the Ottawas are after "Newsy" and have offered five thousand dollars to buy him outright. Mr. Dandurand, however, says that they will have to bid a much higher figure than that.

"Newsy" himself says that he is by no means anxious to go to Ottawa, and has not made up his mind yet what he would do if he were ordered to go.

Some people seem to think the whole thing is an Ottawa bluff, but Dr. Dandurand seems to take the matter quite seriously.

"Newsy" has not yet arranged with the Canadiens even as to the coming season. There is a small difference of money between what he is asking and what the Canadiens are offering him, but he thinks that the difference can be overcome. Only he would like to stay in Montreal.

When asked about the Boucher rumor, Mr. Dandurand seemed to look upon that as a minor matter. "That will settle itself," he said; "there are much more important issues at stake just now."

PLACE NOT SPECIFIED FOR McTIQUE-SMITH BOUT

HALIFAX, N.S., Canadian Press.—A letter from Al. Lippe, the manager for Jeff Smith, the middleweight boxer, under date of Saturday last, received in Halifax yesterday, throws new light on the mix up over the McTigue-Smith fixture originally billed for Montreal, and subsequently announced to take place in New York on Thursday next, the claim being advanced that in the articles drawn up between the pair, the place of meeting was not specified.

As an outcome of the decision of the managers of the two boxers to stage the fight in New York, McTigue and Smith have been barred from again taking part in fights in Montreal, because, it is alleged, they have broken contracts with a promoter in that city to appear there on December 13

POLITICAL COMMENT

ENNISMORE MEETING

There was a good attendance at the meeting in the interests of Mr. J. H. Burnham at Ennismore last evening. Mr. Cavanagh occupied the chair.

Mr. R. Denne, who made an excellent address called attention to the fact that contrary to statements made on Mr. Gordon's platform Canadian carpet companies including the Peterborough Company had supplied all they were able to supply to furnish the new Parliament Buildings at Ottawa and he would bet that Mr. Gordon has Yale U.S. locks and other foreign goods in his own house now.

Mr. Burnham said that the claims made that the Meighen Government had abated taxes on request and had shown a readiness to help out the T. V. C. made it quite clear as declared by the Liberal speakers in Peterboro at any rate, that the Meighen government was the best for this country and district. In fact an old gentleman who has read this statement in the reports of Mr. Gordon's meetings had declared to Mr. Burnham that he would support the Meighen government and the candidature of Mr. Burnham as a consequence.

Mr. E. A. Peck, who closed the meeting dealt with the tariff and particularly with the Liberal platform which had free implements for the farmer and free food for the mechanic who had no implements to make and no work or money to pay for the food. It was unfair as Mr. Gordon declared was his policy that the worker in cities should be protected and compelled to furnish cheap food.

The meeting closed with the usual cheers.

MEETING AT SELWYN HALL.

At Selwn Hall last night, the largest political meeting, according to old residents of the township, was held, that has ever been known since the hall has been built. Mr. William McIlmoyle, an old time resident of the township, was chairman.

The hall has crowded to the doors and over 50 people could not find seats and remained standing during the whole meeting.

Mr. E. M. Elliott said that he had been formerly a supporter of the Progressive group, but in view of the fact that there was no Progressive candidate, and Mr. Gordon had announced that he would support any legislation which was for the betterment of general conditions of the great masses of the people, that he intended to support him to the finish. Mr. Elliott dealt particularly with the policy of Mr. Gordon's standardization of repair parts of agricultural machinery, which would save the farmers vast sums, as the parts made by different manufacturers would then be inter-changeable, by reason of government legislation compelling this. In addition to that he dealt with the matter of wider markets for the producer on the farm to get rid of his surplus two hundred and forty million bushels of wheat which the home market was not sufficient to receive, and the only way that this could be done was by a system which would enable our surplus natural products to get into other markets wider than they can get at the present time.

Mr. Burnham's utterances were dealt with by Mr. Elliott, and one of the audience wished to know if Mr. Burnham had declared "that the Progressive party should be thrown into the garbage can." Mr. Elliott stated that the 1920 Debates of the House of Commons would show that Mr. Burnham had stated substantially this. While on the other hand, he said, Mr. Gordon had spoken in terms of great respect for the Progressives. He had intimated that he had known Mr. Crerar, had heard him speak on many occasions, had discussed many problems with him, and that Mr. Gordon had a very high opinion of not only Mr. Crerar's ability, but of his desire to foster good legislation.

Mr. C. R. Widdifield spoke from the standpoint of the returned man. He dealt with the problems that we are required to view at the present time, and particularly with the fact that Mr. Arthur Meighen refused to disclose to the people where 69 million dollars had gone, in the Canadian National Railway deficit. He said that the people were entitled to know where 69 million dollars had gone which had been voted to make up this loss; how the money had been spent, and how accounts and contracts had been made, should be known; and the matter was a very important one, when Mr. Meighen had refused to tell where the money had gone or how it had been expended. He dealt with a letter that Mr. Gordon had received from the Dominion Alliance in answer to Mr. Gordon's statement of where he stood with regard to the Dominion enforcement of present temperance legislation, and he stated that the letter from Mr. Spence thanked Mr. Gordon for his courtesy, and stated the writer's appreciation of Mr. Gordon's frank disclosure of his policy.

Mr. Gordon said that this government had voted 50 million dollars to Greece and Roumania as a credit, and then allowed companies owned or controlled by government supporters to send goods to Greece and Roumania, and had been paid out of the line of credit to which the Meighen government had given. He gave instances of where Mr. Lawlor, head of the Monarch Knitting Company, obtained thousands of dollars of contracts, at very high prices. That Mr. Cockshutt, interested in other companies, had been able to get contracts ,and at a high price, and other members of Parliament, supporting the government, succeeded in getting for their companies, enormous contracts, paid out of this credit allowed to two countries, which were now bankrupt. Neither Greece nor Roumania had paid a cent of interest, nor a cent of principal, and it was very much like the Riordan deal—"Everything going out and nothing coming in."

OTTAWA'S SIGN UP ANOTHER OF CHAMPIONS

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press).—The Ottawa hockey club announced last night the signing of Harry Broadbent, one of the most popular member of the world's championship team, whom they count on as their regular right wing for the coming season. "Punch" opened negotiations with the Ottawa management last week and stipulated so high a figure that officers of the club nearly collapsed. Broadbert returned the first contract tendered to him but the Ottawa club met his figure half way and Broadbert attached his signature to a contract last night. He makes the fourth of the world's champions to sign. These already under contract are Clint Benedict, Harry Broadbent, Cy Denanny and George Boucher. With the practise season only a few days away, the Ottawas expect to be able to put a good squad on the ice for the first workout.

Broadbent is a graduate of the Ottawa Public School League and has been prominent in hockey for many years. Last year Broadbent did not have an opportunity to show his mettle. He was awarded to Hamilton, where he refused to report and it was not until the second half of the race that the Ottawas got him back. "Punch" played very good hockey at the Pacific Coast and scored two goals for Ottawa at critical stages of last season's world series against Vancouver. Harry has been playing tennis all season and has also gone in for bicycle riding, so he is as hard as nails. He ought to have his best season. Broadbent's return will be welcomed by thousands of Ottawa fans and his comrades in the great war are planning to give the soldier athlete a big reception. With Jack Darragh out of the game, Broadbent will have to do practically all the work on the starboard side of the rink, so his task will be a big one. Broadbent, however, thrives on hard work and captain Eddie Gerard predicts he will be one of the brightest stars in the National League. Ottawa's regular line will likely consist of Nighbo, Broadbent and Denenny, with Roberts or Bruce and others to fall back on.

NEGOTIATIONS FAIL IN CROWN MINE STRIKE

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press Cable). — Negotiations in which the Minister of Mines for the Union of South Africa participated with a view to settlement of the strike at the Crown Mines have failed and work is at a htandstill.

"DONT'S" FOR AUTOISTS.

Apply Particularly to Ventilation of Garages.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Cold weather "don'ts" of the past have been increased this year, with a new one by the ventilation experts. It is that you make sure your garage is properly ventilated or your relatives may have to call an undertaker. Deadly carbon monoxide, a poisonous gas given off by automobile engines in motion, has taken a big toll of human lives in the past in the case of chauffeurs of car owners who failed to realze that working in a poorly ventilated or closed garage with the engine running was really as foolish as "blowing out the light" in the good old days.

New discoveries of the virulence of carbon monoxide recently have been made by Professor Yandell Harrison and other engineers working to solve the problems of ventilation for the proposed vehicular tunnel under the Hudson river. Among their tests was one to show the effect of the gas when it is confined in closed spaces. A summary of their observations, with particular reference to garages, appears in the Journal of the American Medical association.

It showed that if the quantity of carbon monoxide in air did not exceed three parts in 10,000, no physiological effects were produced. Between there and six parts to the 10,000, the effects were hardly perceptible. Above that, headache and nausea were induced, increasing in severity with the rising of the ratio and when it reached 15 to the 10,000, life was in jeopardy.

Motor car owners and operators are warned that an engine emits a square foot of the deadly gas a minute when in motion and in three minutes the air in a closed garage is subcharged to a sufficient degree greatly to imperil human life. The victim falls unconscious before he realizes he is in peril and death is the outcome unless he is speedily rescued and brought into the open air.

STEPS THROUGH DOOR OF ELEVATOR TO DEATH

MONTREAL, Nov. 30.— (Canadian Press.)—Stepping through the open door of the elevator shaft on the fifth floor of the Y. M. C. A. building, where he was delivering milk this morning, Joseph Vincent, aged thirty, fell to the basement and was instantly killed.

EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling Exchange strong; demand Great Britain 3.99 5-8; Canadian Exchange 8 9-16 per cent. discount.

Endurance, economy, comfort and price are the four most popular features of a passenger automobile.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—European oils were the strongest shares at the outset of to-day's stock market session. Royal Dutch and Shell Transport rose one and 1 1-2 points respectively in contrast to Mexican Petroleum which lost 1 3-4 points and the heaviness of General Asphalt and Pan-American. Rails were firm but steels, equipments, motors and sugars indicated lack of support. Sears-Roebuck was under further pressure with some of the miscellaneous specialties.

The announcement that the United States is to be represented in the proposed meetings of European bankers to stabilize nternational credits strengthened the early Foreign Exchange Market, especially Sterling Francs and Marks.

Rails were the only shares to show any stability during the morning. Mexican and Domestic Oils sustained further losses and numerous specialties, notably International Paper, National Biscuit, Corn Products, United Drugs, Sumatra Tobacco and Associated Dry Goods fell one to three points. Union Pacific Mercantile Marine preferred, General Electric and Sear Roebuck preferred were moderately strong, but prices in general reacted before noon as fresh pressure was directed against oils and equipments. All Liberty Bonds excepting 3 1-2's made new high records, second fours rising 96 cents per hundred dollars. Call money opened at five per cent.

Reports that the Mexican Government proposes to increase the export tax on oils added to the weakness of those issues at midday. Equipments, shippings, sugars, chemicals, leathers and rubbers reacted one to two point and transcontinental rails forfeited part of their recent gains.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, November 30 (Canadian Press).— Trading on the local stock market during the first half-hour this morning was as usual very quiet. Laurentide appeared fractionally weaker at 76 3-4, while Montreal Power was unchanged at 88. Steel of Canada, which has been strong of late, opened at 63 1-2 this morning, after closing at 64 yesterday. This issue has been quietly advancing during the past few days. It was quoted at 61 a week ago.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, November 30 (Canadian Press). — Receipts 1,736; trade slow. Quotations—Choice butcher steers, $6.00 to $6.75; butcher cows, medium, $3.00 to $4.00; calves $10.00 to 11.00; lambs, $9.50 to $10.00; hogs, selects, $6.45 to $9.50.

TORONTO

TORONAO, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press).—This morning's session of the Toronto stock exchange was quiet and without feature. In the listed section Brazilian was the only stock in which dealings exceded 100 shares. Fluctuations were kept within fractional limits. A better demand for Government bonds developed this morning and prices were somewhat higher.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Opening wheat quotations which varied from unchanged figures to 1 1-8 cents off, with December 1.10 5-8 to 1.11 and May 1.14 to 1.15 1-2, were followed by a moderate general setback and then something of a rally.

Mild temperatures and talk of the bad conditions of country roads tended to steady the corn market. After opening 3-8 cents off 1-8 advance, May 53 1-4 to 53 3-4, prices hardened a little all around. Oats paralleled corn, starting unchanged to 5-8 cents lower, May 38 to 38 1-4, and then becoming firmer.

TO-DAY'S FASHIONS

THE MODE AND SLEEVES

The mode for sleeves of different material has been adopted quite cleverly by the coats also. Gray broadtail is used for sleeves and collar on this coat of navy blue duvet de laine. The embroidered circles are done in gray with a touch of silver to match the broadtail. Straight paneled front and flat bloused back are features worthy of note.

Farmers Know Now Who Their Friends Were in 1911

Ultimately the truth must prevail.

It has taken the farmers of Canada almost ten years to discover it, but they know now that the Liberal Government in 1911 sacrificed itself in the service of the farmers, and in the service of the consumers as well.

In the service of the great mass of Canadian people.

And that's the plain and simple reason why the farmers of Canada are going to give Arthur Meighen the gate on 6th December.

No more Borden "gold bricks" about "no truck and trade with the Yankees" or "Under which flag?"

The day of deception is past.

That stuff is known in the country for just what it is—counterfeit political currency—the spurious coin of a Government that is loaded with too many I.O.U.'s.

Once bitten, twice shy.

The Borden "gold brick" recast and restamped with the name Meighen is a "gold brick" still.

And the farmers aren't having any this trip. Not many of them, at any rate. That much is certain.

They know now how egregiously they were deceived in 1911, and when faith's gone, all's gone.

The Liberals Kept Faith

When the Hon. Mr. Fielding and the Hon. Mr. Patterson brought back from Washington the Reciprocity agreement—

> If those ten years were rolled back and the electors knew then what they know now, wouldn't it have been a different story that 21st September.

from one end of Canada to the other the Liberal Government's offer of wider markets for the produce of Canadian farms was hailed with approval in the country, cities, and towns alike.

But—

> First a speck and then a vulture,
> Till the air is full of pinions.

First a whisper, and then a clamour, till the air of Canada was full of that propaganda of deceit, "No truck and trade with the Yankees."

Those Canadians, farmers and townspeople alike, who trusted Sir Robert Borden, almost imagined in 1911 they heard the swish of American eagles' wings beating above them.

Vote For Gordon

Gordon Is The Man

It has taken ten years to reveal the truth, to expose fully the political trickery behind that slogan of betrayal, "No truck and trade with the Yankees."

With that base deception still fresh and rankling in their memories, the farmers of West Peterborough know now that in 1911 their friend was the Liberal Government that offered them wider markets for the produce of their farms.

The Party of Unity

And because the Liberal Party has not changed, because it stands for service to all branches of Canadian industry, for the farmers particularly, but not for the farmers only, because it stands for justice to all and special privileges to none—not I.O.U.'s from the Piordons and Police Court fines for the farmers—the farmers of West Peterborough should vote for the Liberal candidate—G. N. GORDON.

When a former Conservative Government was in power at Ottawa, the farmers found that, in order to gain recognition of their rights, they had to organize the Patrons of Industry.

During the Laurier administration there was no such organization, nor was there need for such an organization.

The Liberal Government recognised the importance of the agricultural industry and its needs by appointing a farmer as Minister of Agriculture.

To-day, after ten years of Bordenism, aggravated by Meighenism, the farmers are organised as the Progressive Party, because they found that under the Borden-Meighen regime they were cold-shouldered and deceived by the Government at Ottawa.

A Liberal Government should bring together again the forces of progress and reform.

G. N. GORDON will intelligently, sympathetically, and aggressively represent the farmers of West Peterborough.

They have not forgotten the slur which J. H. Burnham on the floor of Parliament, as reported in Hansard, flung at their political aspirations.

An Extravagant Government

Under the Liberal Government in 1911, the controllable expenditure of Canada was $79,411,747.

This year the Hon. Arthur Meighen proposes to spend for the same purpose the sum of $367,905,251. This is for ordinary expenditure entirely separate from obligations due to the war.

That vast difference is just another reason why the farmers of West Peterborough should elect G. N. GORDON.

OBITUARY

MRS. JAS. LONGO.

Mrs. James Longo, 334 Aylmer street, 62 years of age, died suddenly last night at 7:15. She was seized with an attack of heart disease and died in a few minutes, her last effort before she collapsed to the floor being to try to reach the door. When found by her daughter, Mrs. Roy Wright, she was just breathing her last. She had been in good health and had never complained of her heart. She had lived in the city 20 years, and her sudden death will cause regret among a wide circle of friends. Her husband predeceased her 16 years ago. One son, Frank, and three daughters, Mrs. Roy Wright, Mrs. Albert Wright and Mrs. Brock Wright of Peterboro, survive.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. to-morrow from her late residence to the Little Lake cemetery. Rev. F. E. Malott, of the Trinity Methodist church, officiating.

IN MEMORIAM.

BALL.— In loving memory of James Ball, who passed away Nov. 30th, 1916:

Cherished memories of one so dear
Often recalled by a silent tear.
'Tis only those who have loved and lost
Who can visualize the bitter cost.

Some day we hope to meet him,
Some day, we know not when,
We will clasp his hand in a better land
And never part again.

—Mother and Father.

IN MEMORIAM.

BALL.—In loving memory of James Ball, who passed away Nov. 30th, 1916:

Oh, how we miss him, words cannot tell,
His bright, happy face we all loved so well;
The sweetest of memories are all that are left
Of our dear brother gone home to rest.

Not dead to us, we love him still;
Not lost, but gone before;
He lives with us in memory still,
And will for ever more.

Society

Rev. C. F. MacIntosh, Mrs. J. Storey and Miss Emma Meiklejohn, of Capmbellford, are in the city today to hear Ralph Gordon at St. Paul's.

Mrs. Leon Webb, at home to her friends for the first time since her marriage, held a very successful reception at her residence, 524 Homewod avenue, yesterday afternoon. Over 100 guests attended, and were received in the drawing-room, prettily decorated with mauve chrysanthemums, by Mrs. Webb, wearing her bridal gown of ivory satin, and carrying pink roses, Mrs. D. Worth and Mrs. J. R. Webb, both in black and with corsage bouquets of roses. Mrs. J. H. Renwick, in navy, and Mrs. A. Pilling, in amethyst charmeuse, assisted, and little Blanche Worth, in pink petalled frock, made a dainty attendant at the door.

The tea-room was charming with columbia roses and mauve 'mums. The table was centred with silver flower basket, with orchid chiffon streamers, flanked by tall silver candelabra, and the exquisite lace cloth was festooned with smilax. Mrs. J. Worth, in apricot satin, and Mrs. Edgar Worth, in Pekin blue poured tea, assisted by Mrs. Asquith in brown, Mrs. C. W. Lapp in black, Miss Edith Worth in orchid satin, Miss Evelyn Bentley in sunset brocade, and Miss Doris Pilling in jade green.

Miss Anna J. McDonnell, R.N., of Toronto, is in the city, owing to the serious illness of her sister-in-law, Mrs. John McDonnell, Park street.

Miss Vera Brown of Port Hope, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. T. Cronin, 577 Walnut street.

Miss Dagmar Koerling, who has been visiting Mrs. John Bentley and Mrs. Homer Meyers, has gone to Buffalo to visit Mrs. Engblom, en route to her home in Milwaukee.

The Ladies of St. Andrew's Church, assisted by the Willing Workers' Mission Band, held a very successful tea and sale of Christmas gifts in their Sunday school hall yesterday afternoon. Fancy and use ful articles of all sorts were on view to suit every variety of taste, and the ladies had a splendid attendance in the afternoon and evening. Mrs. W. J. Henry and Mrs. J. John were in charge of the fancy work table; Mrs. Packenham and Mrs. Atkinson of the toys and small wares; Mrs. H. Barker and Miss Bessie Mather of the candy booth, and Mrs. C. R. Banks and Mrs. George Kerr were in the tea room.

The Home and School Association of King George School Ashburnham held a very successful tea yesterday afternoon and evening at the home of Mrs. Victor Hamilton, 90 Robinson street. The proceeds from the tea and the sale of candy were very gratifying and will be devoted to the work of the Association.

Mrs. Hamilton received her guests assisted by the members of the Society, and a very enjoyable musical programme was rendered during the afternoon and evening by the following artists: Vocal solos, Mrs. A. A. Perrin, Miss Grace Morgan, and Miss Zoe Doyle, accompanists, the Misses L. Scott, Ada Galvin and Lena Johnston; reading, Mr. J. John. The ladies are very pleased with the result of this, their first tea, and grateful to all who contributed toward its success.

The Prince of Wales Home and School Association held a very interesting open meeting last evening, with Mrs. P. H. Neville in the chair.

A short business session was held, followed by an entertaining programme in which vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. Brooks and Mrs. Eleanor Brown, with a reading by Miss G. Hunter. Mr. K. S. Wightman, principal of the school, gave a little talk to the pupils of the fourth form, who had been invited to attend, and Rev. F. E. Malott followed with a brief discourse on community welfare.

Brace Up! Are You Sick? Are You Discouraged?

If so, you should awake to the fact that there is a science which corrects the cause of disease. CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTMENTS will correct the cause of your ailments, and the chances are greatly in your favor that you will be restored to health. It is a fact that wonderful results are being obtained by those who take Chiropractic Adjustments for both acute and chronic diseases. The CHIROPRACTOR, by adjusting the misaligned vertebrae of the spine, relieves pressure upon nerves, thus permitting the life energy to flow uninterruptedly from the brain to the tissues so that those tissues will be normal and will do their work properly. When all the organs and tissues of the body are working normally health is the result. Therefore, to be healthy it is necessary for every part of the body to receive its 100% of life energy, and this can be accomplished only when the nerves are free of pressure.

IF YOU WISH TO BE HEALTHY, TAKE CHIROPRACTIC SPINAL ADJUSTMENTS.

BRITAIN BENDS ALL EFFORT ON IRISH PROBLEM

SEEK SOME AVENUE OF NEGOTIATION BUT BELIEVE POSSIBILITIES OF SETTLEMENT EXHAUSTED.

FEAR BREACH OF TRUCE

LONDON, Dec. 1. — (Canadian Press.) — Government heads this morning are bending their entire efforts to seeking some avenue of unexplored negotiations in the Irish crisis. It is believed all possibilities of a settlement have been exhausted during the lengthy parleys which seem now to have ended. As to how long the truce will last there is no indication, but with the peace movement apparently deadlocked any spark of combat set off in Ireland might start the conflagration anew.

Preservation of the truce in Ireland, whatever may happen to the negotiations, is being urged to-day by a large section of the London press. The Sinn Fein reiterated today that it expected further meetings between the Government and Sinn Fein, and it is believed arrangements regarding the truce will be considered at the next meeting.

TIRUR, India, Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—The policeman in charge of the wagon in which sixty Moplah prisoners were suffocated on their way to Bellary from Shoranur, told the Inquiry Commission here that he had refused to heed the cries of the prisoners for water because it was not customary to furnish water on these journeys before reaching Podanur.

EXCHANGE RATE FIXED UNTIL DECEMBER 14TH

OTTAWA, Dec. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—In accordance with the Railway Commissioners' order, dated January 14, 1921, the rate of exchange in connection with freight shipments between the United States and Canada from December 1 to 14 inclusive, will be 9 3-8 per cent. and the surcharge on traffic will be six per cent. The rate of surcharge on International passenger business will be based on the nine per cent. exchange.

THE WEATHER

To-day, although the first day of December, and the beginnng of winter, has little evidence of the conditions usually associated with a Canadian winter. Many enquiries have been made as to whether we were likely to have a severe or an open winter. No man knows. Neither has any creature, whether feathered or furred, the slightest knowledge. It is one of Nature's mysteries which will be revealed in due time. Nevertheless the lessons of the past are a guide to some extent of the future. If we do not have genuine winter conditions, with below zero temperatures, before Christmas we will have but little afterwards. It is believed also that our winters are gradually becoming less severe, and that the seasons are slowly changing.—W.P.

KILLED BY TRAIN KEAR CAVANVILLE

JOHN HUTCHINSON STRUCK WHILE DRIVING ACROSS C.P.R.

John Hutchinson, of Cavan Township, was instantly killed half a mile west of Cavanville about 11.30 this morning when the team and wagon he was driving were struck by the Toronto-Montreal Canadian Pacific train. One of the horses was killed also.

Hutchinson, an aged man, was driving from his home near Millbrook, to Cavanville Station when the accident occurred. Whether he saw the approaching train is not known. He was carried some distance on the pilot of the locomotive, which was backed to the scene of the accident to ascertain what damage had been done. Dr. H. A. Turner, of Millbrook, coroner, was called.

Arrangements are being made to hold an inquest.

Hutchinson is survived by one daughter, Effie, who lives at home. His wife died last summer.

B. CHESLER GETS THE KLINE STOCK

SOLD BY AUCTION IN TORONTO YESTERDAY AT 36 1-2 CTS. ON THE DOLLAR.

At the assignee's sale of the Kline stock of ladies' ready-to-wear, etc., which took place yesterday at the auction rooms of Messrs. Butler & Co., Toronto, the offer of Mr. B. Chesler, of this city, of thirty-six and one-half cents on the dollar was accepted.

The stock is estismated at $9640.21, and is represented as being a clean, well-selected assortment of ladies' general ready-to-wear garments and allied goods.

It is Mr. Chesler's intention to clear this stock entirely by Christmas. With that object in view, he is now proceeding to readjust the stock and mark down every article for a speedy clearance at 430 George Street.

The announcement when the public selling is to begin will be made in a few days. Mr. H. Kline has been placed in charge of all the arrangement for this sale, as Mr. Chesler does not wish it understood as being in any way connected with his regular business here.

In the meantime, ladies will no doubt wait eagerly for the opening date of this sale, as the very low price paid for the stock indicates that remarkable values await them. Mr. Kline has openings for several expert salesladies for this sale.

RALPH CONNOR SAYS NEED IS AN AWAKENING

PLEADS FOR BRILLIANT SPIRITUAL LEADERSHIP BEFORE CONFERENCE OF PRESBYTERY HERE.

DEPENDS ON LAITY

The financial phase of the Forward Movement was an unqualified success, but since the spiritual aims have apparently taken a lesser place, the Presbyterian churches throughout Canada have been holding conferences to discuss this vital matter facing Christian churches. Such a conference was held yesterday afternoon and evening in St. Paul's church with Rev. C. W. Gordon, D.D., moderator of the church, present, to give his views.

In the afternoon session Dr. Gordon (Ralph Connor) addressing the one hundred representatives of the Presbytery, pleaded for a spiritual awakening. He said it was not preaching force that was required today but brilliant leadership, such a leadership as could put every man in the church to work. He told the Presbytery the progress of the church depended on the rank and file.

Addresses were given by Rev. C. F. McIntosh, of Campbellford on Educational Evangelism and by Rev. F. W. Anderson of Port Hope on "The Leadership Required." Rev. Anderson concurred with the moderator's views that the realization of the spiritual aims of the forward movement depended largely on the laity.

In the open discussion, Rev. A. H. McConachie of Centreville, dwelt on the need for some great means of reaching the thousands outside the church in Canada and the moderator also spoke of the seriousness of the situation. In Canada he believed only one-half of the population ever entered church doors.

REV. MACKENZIE TO REMAIN HERE

DECLINED OFFER OF CHURCH IN SAULT STE. MARIE

The congregation of St. Andrew's church Sault Ste. Marie received a telegram a few days ago from Rev. J. A. MacKenzie of this city declining their unanimous call to that pastorate. Yesterday a Toronto paper published this fact. When asked to-day about the matter, Mr. MacKenzie confirmed the report and said that once he had reached a decision he lost no time in communicating it to St. Andrews Church at the Soo. He had however, given no publicity to his decision in Peterboro or no confidence concerning the outcome of the overture, intending to preserve that until next Sunday morning and to make his first announcement to those most concerned, namely, the Session and congregation of Knox Church. Mr. MacKenzie's decision to remain in Peterboro will be received with a great deal of pleasure by the members of Knox church and his many friends throughout the city.

Landru Smiles Over Sentence

BOWS TO JURY AS HE IS CONDEMNED TO THE GUILLOTINE

VERSAILLES, Dec. 1.—Henri Desire Landru, the "bluebeard of Gambais", let a flickering expression of amusement cross his face as he listened last night to the fateful words from Judge Gilbert, sending him to the guillotine for a series of the most heinious crimes in the history of French jurisprudence.

"Thank you, gentlemen", said the murderer, flourishing his weather-beaten hat in a mocking bow to the jury as he disappeared to his cell. He refused to be a party to a petition asking for commutation of his sentence to life imprisonment. In a talk in his cell he said, "It has been a great show and I hope the public is satisfied. I give you rendezvous for the end of February to show you how an innocent man dies". Remarking on the great crowds at the trial he said that if it had lasted another day he would be unable "to find a seat myself".

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, December 1 (Canadian Press). — Covering of short contracts in rails, shippings, and oils imparted a firm tone to the leading shares at the opening of to-day's stock market. Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Northern Pacific, Chicago and North-Western and Norfolk and Western averaged gains, rainging from large fractions to one point. Mercantile Marine Preferred extended its initial fractional rise to two points, and Standard Oil of New Jersey was strong with Mexican Petroleum. Independent Steels made no pronounced response to the overnight reports of a proposed merger. Republic Iron and Steel was the only issue of that class to register more than a nominal change. Preliminary quotations for foreign exchange showed a further brisk rise in the German marks.

High grade Oils, especially New Jersey and California issues of the Standard Oil Company, led the list to higher levels for a while, with Chemicals and numerous unclassified shares. Sharp reversals set in before noon, however, when selling of Mexican Petroleum was resumed, that stock reacting two points. Railway Steel Spring, International Paper, Union Bag and Famous Players also feell back one to three points.

Conditions in the bond market were very confusing. Practically all Liberty 4 1-4's made new high records at gains of 40 to 80 cents per $100, while foreign war issues, notably French and Belgian government bonds, developed marked heaviness. Call money opened at five per cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—Opening wheat quotations which varied from unchanged figures to 5-8c. lower, with Dec. 1.13 1-4 to 1.13 1-2 and May 1.17 1-4 to 1.17 3-4, were followed by a moderate upturn which, however, proved transient.

Wet weather over the corn belt gave strength to the Corn market. After opening unchanged to 1-4c. higher, May 54 3-4 to 54 7-8, prices hardened all around. Oats were firmer with Corn, notwithstanding large deliveries of Oats on December contracts. The market started unchanged to 1-4c. up, May 38 1-2 to 38 5-8, and delivered near to the initial range.

EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press.)— Sterling exchange strong. Demand Great Britain 4.03 1-4; Canadian Exchange 8 7-16 per cent. discount.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, Dec. 1. —(Canadian Press.)—The Toronto stock market passed through another uneventful session this morning. In only three stocks were there any changes from the opening quotations with C.P.R., after an early loss from yesterday's final quotations strengthening and recovering all but 1-4 of this decline. Mackay at 82 1-2 showed a gain of 1-2. Government bonds, with the exception of the 1934 issue, were quiet.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, December 1 (Canadian Press). — Receipts 340; trade was draggy. Quotations:

Choice steers, $5.75 to $6.25; butcher cows, medium, $3.00 to $4.00; calves, $10.00 to $11.00; lambs, $8.00 to $10.00; hogs, selects, $9.65.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Deember 1 (Canadian Press). — Absolutely nothing of interest transpired on the local stock exchange during the first half-hour this morning. Only a few of the leaders appeared, and these without exception were unchanged at their yesterday's closing levels.

PREDICT U. S. VICTORY OVER ARMAMENT CUT

JAPAN AND U.S. ENTER CONFERENCE TO-DAY DETERMINED TO MAINTAIN RELATIVE POSITIONS

RATIO IN DISPUTE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—The situation resulting from Japan's proposal for a seventy per cent. naval ratio is regarded here as delicate, but not without hope that the original plan will be accepted.

Japan entered the conference today determined to maintain her position ,and the United States' delegates are just as determined that the original figures must stand. Observers say the latter will win.

REINDEER FLOUR USED IN CONTEST

NEARLY TWO HUNDRED LOAVES OF BREAD ENTERED

A surprisingly large number of entries were made in the bread-making contest arranged this week by the J. C. Turnbull Company, Limited. Housewives in Peterborough, Ennismore, Lakefield, Millbrook and Omemee responded to the call, and sent in altogether nearly 200 loaves of bread. The outstanding feature of the completion was easily the excellence of the entries, and was a real tribute to the quality of the flour, which composed them. This was one brand only, the Reindeer flour from the mills of the Peterborough Cereal Company, and is certainly quite an advertisement for their product, when it is remembered that the loaves came from such a widespread territory, were baked in such a variety of ways, and with so many different mixings, yet the two judges who were first appointed were unable to come to any conclusion with regard to the three best varieties until they had requisitioned the services of another expert. Mr. Thomas Hooper and Mr. H. Lush, both old and tried experts in the baking line, after working all afternoon at their task, resolved to enlist the help of Mr. James Dutton, president of Wm. Stock & Sons' bakery. After another morning's work, these three gentlemen finally made the awards.

Easily the largest bread-making contest ever conducted in Peterborough, the three judges agreed that the exhibition was one of the finest they had ever seen, that it surpassed anything of the kind offered at the annual fair, and that for quality, grain and color the prize-winning entries could not be surpassed.

The popularity and winning qualities of the Reindeer brand of flour have never been demonstrated in a better manner, and its superiority, as a product giving greater yield than others, in its milling from first grade Manitoba wheat, is effectually upheld.

A. Y. P. A. HELD GOOD MEETING

A very enjoyable and enthusiastic meeting of All Saints' A.Y.P.A. took place last Monday night in the Parish Hall. Mr. H. Sisson presided.

An item of especial interest in the evening's programme was a very interesting debate: Resolved: "That the women of fifty years ago made better wives than the women of today." The affirmative was ably presented by Miss Olga Johnston, Miss Pearl Twigg and Mr. Ralph Turner, while the negative was well upheld by Misses May Stone, Daisy Williams and Audrey Lacheur.

The judges for the evening were Rev. R. B. Grobb, Mrs. Jas. Edgar and Mr. Jas. Price. After much deliberation the decision was given in favour of the affirmative. Mr. Grobb commented favorably on the excellent style with which the debaters took their parts. He also complimented them on their arguments and delivery.

Another interesting item in the evening's proceedings was an impromptu debate: "Resolved, that love is of more value than money" This proved exceedingly humorous.

All Saints' has now a very flourishing society which is due in a large measure to untiring efforts of ther president, Mr. Hanlon Sisson, assisted by the other officers, Misses Johnston, Stone and Mr. Ralph Turner. They are endeavouring to make this organization second to none in the city.

JOHN DEWART DREW CROWD IN DUMMER

SPOKE AT NINTH LINE OF DUMMER LAST NIGHT

Attacking the Progressive party for accepting the support of Hon. Clifford Sifton, who, he said, was discredited by the Liberals in 1911, J. A. Dewart, M.C., Liberal candidate in East Peterborough, criticized the record of the Government and the personnel of the Progressive leadership at a largely attended meeting in No. 6 School on the 9th Line of Dummer last night.

With Mr. Dewart was Joseph Wearing, of Peterborough, who reviewed the record of the Government and contrasted the three party leaders to show how Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, by his experience as an economist and industrial conciliator, was best fitted to guide the nation's destinies.

Robert Martin was chairman.

Hartley Dewart, K.C., Provincial Liberal leader, will enter the Dominion campaign for the first time on Friday night, when he speaks at Lakefield in the interests of the East Peterborough Liberal candidate. He will also address meetings at Havelock and Norwood Saturday.

NOVEL NIGHT AT ROLLER ACADEMY

LEAP YEAR NIGHT FOR SKATERS —FULL BAND

The third of the special nights this week at the Roller Academy, will be the leap year programme to-night. Although this is not leap year it is expected a very large crowd of skaters will be on hand for this novel feature.

To-morrow night will repeat the big band concert and programme of last Friday night.

This is the very best weather for rollers, and the large crowds present each evening is evidence that the patrons of the rink are appreciating every effort made for their care and attention at the Academy. (advt.)

Mr. Burnham and His Opinion of The Government

"I believe that this Government is the creature of some big scheme now floating in the air, and I believe it is a positive danger to Canada."

—J. H. BURNHAM,

4d-132 December 31, 1920.

WESTERN CLOCK HAS PURCHASED 15 ACRES LAND

BLOCK IN EAST CITY EXTENDING FROM SCHOOL TO CANAL ZONE ACQUIRED FROM ARMOUR ESTATE.

BUSINESS EXPANDING

Expansion of business by the Western Clock Company, Limited, since locating in Peterboro two years ago, has demanded their securing a site for a new and larger factory, as the present quarters are too small to provide for the growing market.

J. H. Vernor, manager of the company, gave out the following statement:

"Western Clock Company, Limited, to-day purchased from the Armour estate a block of land in East City, just across from the school, on Hunter street.

"The property comprises all the land between Concession street and the Canal Zone and contains over 15 acres.

"Expansion of new business will demand new quarters for this company within a few months, and if a new factory is built it will be upon this property.

"This company began operations in Peterboro in 1920, and now has 63 employees.

"Business is very good, and up to the present time it has not been found necessary to curtail production. The prospects for 1922 are very bright, and there is every indication that the building now occupied will be much too small to provide for this market after the first of the year.

"Enough business is in view to give us an output of between 900 and 1000 movements per day after the first of the year. We cannot produce all these in a building of this size."

Progress Gratifying.

Mr. Verner told the Examiner representative he was very gratified by the progress of their company this year. The staff has been increased by 15 and greater efficiency is noticeable in every department.

Machinery of the finest make has been installed and it is of such a character that it can be transferred with no great trouble to a new plant. Most of the machines are individual units and an absence of line shafting is noticeable in the entire plant.

Kept Down Production.

The reason this business has been steady, Mr. Verner said, was because of the company not increasing production during the inflation period. No stocks were built up and because of this wise policy, which the company has never deviated from, it has had continuous orders, and the plant has been busy in the face of industrial depression. The prices of the clocks have not had to be reduced to secure business.

Optimistic of Future.

Mr. Verner is optimistic of the future and his hopefulness is quite cheering in the general business distress. Aside from the possibilities of greatly expanding the business it is the desire of the company to secure a factory that will be well situated, and the purchased site, Mr. Verner finds congenial to the erection of a handsome factory. Green lawns and glowing flower beds are in his mind and if the company erects a plant on this site it will add another to Peterboro's list of ideal manufacturing establishments.

As soon as any information about the construction of the proposed plant is available, Mr. Verner assured the Examiner it would be given publicity.

TO ENRICH THE EMOTIONAL VALUE OF CHURCH SERVICE BY STAGE LIGHTING

CLAUDE BRAGDON, WHO INSPIRED COLOR SCHEME FOR TERRA COTTA RAIL ON HUNTER STREET BRIDGE, IS ARCHITECT FOR THIS INNOVATION.

SUGGESTED PALE BLUE COLOR FOR COLLECTION

Mr. Claude Bragdon, the architect who inspired the color scheme for the terra cotta rail and facings of Peterborough's new Hunter street bridge, seems to have a penchant for glowing colors. In the display of hues on the bridge he ransacked the spectrum and probably rivalled anything seen outside Barnum and Bailey's circus wagons. Admirers of the chaste lines of the bridge hope the architect will be remembered only for his beautiful bridge design, and the decorative scheme that begins a pea green and ends in a royal purple, of which he is said to have been the originator recalled in the same light as the items of extras.

From Douglas D. Mackay's column from Over the Line in Saturday Night of this week the following in which, Mr. Bragdon is mentioned in connection with color schemes of another nature is taken.

On the corner of Tenth street and Second Avenue, New York, where all the nationalities of Europe rub shoulders and foreign language newspapers are stacked high on the news stands, is the Church of St. Mark-in-the-Bowery. Together with a tiny churchyard and a few struggling trees, this charming example of Colonial architecture rests placidly aloof from the dim of the streets. "The second oldest building in the city," announced the scrubwoman who permitted us to tread on her newly washed floors in order to explore the interior.

For some years past St. Mark's has been a regular source of feature stories for the daily papers. Although St. Mark's is very old it shelters some very modern ideas. The newspapers chuckled for some weeks over the Sunday night meetings at St. Mark's at which potential young poets read verse to each other. When St. Mark's fed the down-and-outs the papers were loud in their praise. When a nude statue was unveiled in the chuch, the Sunday papers smeared blotched photographs of the figure across the "special feature" sections, and many good people frothed at the pen. The other day when we entered the church over the scrub bucket, we found the church dignitaries in the midst of an experiment which the press the next day called a "sensational innovation."

It is an attempt to adopt the principle of stage lighting so as to enrich the emotional value of the service and make more effective an atmosphere of religious ministry. The lights are not concealed from the audience, but hang from the ceiling in decorated lanterns. Each chandelier contains four color screens—red, amber, blue and green—concealed from sight by a diffusing plate of opalescent glass. By the manipulation of controls any colour or combination of colours can be made to appear on these plates.

We arrived in time to hear Mr. Claude Bragdon (the architect who installed the system) describe the principle of the lights to some of the congregation.

"The aim," he said "has been to create an essentially religous atmosphere, one conducive to peace, quietude and devotion. Sound cannot travel outside of the bounds of our atmosphere but links us with the distant stars. It links us with the larger universe."

As we strolled up through the clamor of Second Avenue a few minutes later, we concluded our years must be weighing heavily upon us, or perhaps it was only a premature liking for old-fashioned things. Anyway we amused ourselves by speculating as to what color would be used while the collection was being taken up—pale blue probably.

WHEN PLANNING CURTAINS.

In selecting curtain materials, texture should be considered, says Delineator. We are so apt to choose a pretty pattern and pretty colors and forget the fact of quality. So much time and strength is involved in making curtains that strong material should be demanded. Curtains should last for years. Remember to pull the shades down between the glaring sun and your pretty chintz, for sun rots as well as fades.

Cretonne curtains are attractive when made with an inch ruffle or taffeta gathered in the middle. The same effect is carried in the valance, the valance being straight and fitted to the window, with the ruffle at top and bottom and up at the ends. The bottom of the valance can be shaped in scallops. A paper pattern should be fitted to the window and the scallops carefully planned. A simpler valance would be to box plait it and sew a tape in the back through which the rod runs. Between the box plaits the valance can be cut up into a shape. This should be edged with the ruffle.

STRETCH TIRED MUSCLES

Here are a few suggestions for building up the nerves. Sleep always on a low pillow, drink fresh, pure, undiluted cod liver oil, eat eggs, cranberries, apples, maple sugar, onions, beans and celery. Sleep at least eight hours during the 24 and nine hours will be better.

If you are tired you can pull yourself out of that state. When tired and fatigued take a few minutes off and literally stretch out of tiredness and into a state of vigor and vitality.

Lie flat on your back, slip your toes under the foot of the bed or any place where they may be held firm, and pull up as hard as you can without rising from that flat position. Do this several times and then, after a brief rest, repeat the treatment.

TO-DAY'S NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

REBUTS CHARGE THAT DUMMER PLAN FOR CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL RUSHED

WARSAW RESIDENT DECLARES PROJECT LONG UNDER DISCUSSION AND GIVEN AMPLE PUBLICITY IN PRESS AND OTHERWISE.

PROCEEDINGS OPEN

WARSAW, Dec. 1.—The result of the investigation on Saturday afternoon is that there is to be another vote on the Consolidated School question, as four votes had to be counted out because they were not in Section No. 3 though they believed they were. That made the vote a tie and Mr. Harold Darling as chairman to give the casting vote would constitute an unsatisfactory majority. But, they allowed Mr. Percy Tighe's vote, though his father has been off his farm for the past year and he is a hired man on another farm. Why keep the vote of one man who should not vote but "honestly thinks he should" and discard the others who think the same? However, that is all right.

One complaint of irregularity in voting would have necessitated an investigation, but a good list of names was shown; in two or three cases the men were at the hunt and their wives signed their husbands' names! Why did they not sign their own?

The complaint was brought up when the voting was rushed on, without due notice. But there were several meetings of the joint committees and everything they did was published when the public might be kept fully informed. In each section the trustees put up 3 notices of the hour and date on which voting was to take place six days before polling day; besides that in the Examiner of October 12th there is the notice that the vote on Consolidation of S.S. Nos. 3 and 5 would take place on nMonday, October 24th, at 10 a.m. True, the law says voting may be from 10 a.m. till 12 p.m. or at certain set hours in the evening, not at both times. The committee decided on the morning as more could get out then than in the evening. There was no excuse for any one not knowing. Also, some time before this the terms of agreement agreed upon by the trustees and signed by them before Alex. Watts, Magistrate, were published. Typed copies of this same agreement were used on voting day.

Minding one's own business is an excellent, practice, but it seems strange that any one could escape knowing when the said voting was to be and what it was all about. Morever, it is rumored commonly and if rumor may not be listened to in court I may write it that some of those people who did not know they were quite capable of boasting how they were going to block the prospect. If they knew nothing of it how could they say that?

Everything Open

There may be and probably are many people who do not know all that may be known about the Consolidated Schools. In any election, many vote the way others do. Everything has been done to have everything open.

Over two years ago the Woman's Institute, in planning their year's work, had the subject of Consolidated Schools largely under consideration. Dr. Munro took up the subject at one of the meetings quite fully. Mrs. Morris came to the May meeting and gave an address. At several other meetings the subject was taken up and a synopsis of every one of these talks, addresses or discussions was published. However, these meetings were only attended by women.

In January, 1920, Mr. Lees and Mr. Chisholm held a mass meeting which had been well advertised, in Warsaw Town Hall. They explained the subject carefully and gladly answered any questions; the synopsis of their addresses was also published. Since then Mr. Hutchinson and Messrs. Sedgeworth and Mills have held mass meetings in Warsaw; those meetings were advertised and a synopsis of each proceedings published.

Dr. Sinclair was in the district for five days giving addresses showing pictures and answering questions. Mrs. Morris was with him the evening he spoke in the 4th line school. This was in September and early October, 1920. These meetings also were advertised and the general points of all addresses published.

Consequently if people did not know about Consolidated Schools it is because they did not try to.

Majority Approve

The majority of people who study the subject carefully approve, of those who do not, most are childless; but all have the British right to vote as they think right, or as they please. Probably on first reading of these schools very few approved of them, or if they did approve could not see how they would be practical here. But study has made them change their mind and 3, 4 or 5 dollars a year in taxes, for the good of the community, is very little on a 50 acre farm let alone the hundreds of acres of rough lots, which are as productive of income often, as the arable land and on which the taxes are a mere trifle.

Government Grants

Not one cent of the government grants comes from taxes on any commodity we use in any way. It all comes from taxes on certain amusements; incomes from racecourses, movies, theatres, opera and kindred amusements are devoted to grants for certain things for general good and school grants come among them.

New Schools

Each school section concerned must have a new school soon. Building by itself would certainly cost each section more than will the proposed Consolidated School, even without the $3,000 grant, given if school be in operation by December 22, 1922. Then both teachers must be fully qualified, (at present the whole of Dummer has only two qualified teachers, and we can have these teachers and pay them salaries befitting qualified and efficient teachers with less cost to the sections. The two thirds of transportation cost which we pay will be the only increase in cost of upkeep. The Department has given the figures which have already been published and it has been conservative. Cement, gravel, timber are close at hand. With a Consolidated School money will come to the community and our property will be worth more to buyers should one wish to sell. If a fully equipped 2 room school, with a large play room and all other requirements could be built in the West for $15,000, surely the $17,000 estimate for here is not too small.

The $3,000.00 extra grant given to any Consolidated School, no matter how many sections consolidate, that grant is fixed and good only until December 22, 1922.

Headache

Recurring headaches usually come from an exhaustion of the nervous system, and they do not disappear until the vigor of the nerve cells is restored by such upbuilding treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Temporary relief by use of powders is often obtained at an enormous expense to the nervous system and the general health.

Get the nerves right and the headaches will not return.

Mrs. W. J. Pearse, Nunn St., Cobourg, Ont., writes:

"My system became run-down and I suffered greatly with pain in my head. This was so severe that I would have to bind a cloth tightly about my head so that I could get my work done. A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after taking the first box I found quite an improvement in my condition. I continued using them until I had taken about seven boxes, and they strengthened and built up my system splendidly, completely relieving the pain in my head."

BUGGY AND AUTO COLLIDE NEAR WARSAW

FORTUNATE ESCAPE OF OCCUPANTS FROM SERIOUS INJURY — DAMAGE TO BUGGY TOTALS $50—U.F.O. OFFICERS ELECTED.

WARSAW HAPPENINGS

WARSAW, Nov. 30.—A few evenings ago, when Mr. Hilliard Kidd and two young ladies were driving on the manse hill, a car ran into them; two wheels were torn off, the buggy and the shafts broken. The young ladies, some way, got out of the buggy into the ditch and, M. Kidd held his reins, even when thrown under the rig. Not one of the three was at all injured, except one young lady, who sustained a slightly strained foot. The horse did not get away. Damage to the buggy amounts to between $40 and $50.

U.F.O. Met.

The U.F.O. held their annual business meeting in the Town Hall, Saturday evening last. Mr. E. R. Hamblin was re-elected President, Mr. James Hawthorne is the new Vice-President and Mr. Allan Edwards continues in office as Secretary-Treasurer. Mr. Harry Morgan was appointed delegate to the U. F. O. convention in Toronto.

Women's Institute.

The regular meeting of Warsaw Women's Institute will be held in Mr. Choate's Hall on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 8th, at 2.30 o'clock p.m. Miss Blanche Hamilton and some other young ladies will give demonstrations and talks on "The Spirit of Christmas."

In the Churches.

Rev. Mr. Hughes conducted divine worship in the Anglican Church Sunday afternoon.

Rev. Mr. Weir and Rev. Mr. Vose conducted service in their respective churches on Sunday.

Next Sunday morning Rev. Girard Graham will preach to parents particularly.

Last Friday evening the debate on, "Resolved, that Hughes' '5-5-3' proposal is the most conducive to peace," was both interesting and instructive. Mr. Weir and Miss Barrie brought out many good points, supporting the affirmative. Among them were: It is a great step towards world peace; more would be inadvisable, less would not be for the best interests; it is enough to police for police purposes; not offensive, simply defensive; Britain and other allies accept it; men who made the proposals are well versed; we must have some faith; reduce taxation. Among the points brought out by negatives, Mr. Theodore Douglas and Rev. G. Graham, were: It does not touch fundamental cause: lacks Christianity; international peace, not world peace; only a drop in a bucket; Canada and even Britain not really represented; all the world trusted Germany; Hughes was making too much of himself; submarines. The affirmatives won. Mrs. Thos. Miller, Mrs. David Miller and Mr. Charles Foster were judges. Time, 10 minutes each with 3 minutes at end for affirmative leader.

During the evening Rev. Mr. Weir gave a solo, Mrs. Chas. Foster sang "He Walks With Me" and Rev. G. Graham told some stories. Friday evening's meeting of this week will be devotional, led by Mrs. Weir, in the Presbyterian Church, at 7.30 o'clock.

Social Happenings.

Miss Boyce, Peterborough, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clements.

Messrs. Wallace Anderson, Chas. Foster, Wm. Davis and several others attended the nomination in Norwood.

Mr. Brethen will address the people of this district in Warsaw Town Hall Friday evening. Capt. Dewart and Mr. Sexsmith, M.P., have already been here. One thing East Peterborough people feel is that each of the candidates is a clean, straight man.

Mr. and Mrs. Ollan L. Payne's motor went wrong about half way in to Peterborough Saturday afternoon.

Many people from this district were in at the school vote investigation on Saturday afternoon.

Among Mackenzie King's hearers on Saturday evening were several Warsaw people.

NAVAL EXPERTS FAIL TO AGREE OVER JAP NAVY

BRITAIN SUPPORTS U.S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Experts of the "Big Three" naval powers agreed yesterday that they could not reach an accord on the basis of calculation to be used in measuring Japan's existing relative naval strength. They gave up the task and turned the problem back to their respective delegations to the Arms Conference. Upon its solution hangs the fundamental principle of the naval limitation proposal, the "5-5-3" capital ship ratio.

The experts were substantially in agreement as to the accuracy of estimates of naval strength of each power originally submitted by the United States Conference group if the plan of including all ships actually under construction in arriving at the ratio was followed. The Japanese experts, however, insisted to the last that this was not the proper basis of calculation, proposing instead to disregard all ships now building by either power in determining relative naval strength.

The plenary delegates of the two powers will continue the discussion from this point illuminated by such light as the studies of the experts have been able to throw on the technical questions involved.

Firm determination of the United States delegation to insist upon the "5-5-3" ratio and inclusion of ships building in any estimate of naval strength was reiterated last night on authority. The purpose of the Japanese delegation was not disclosed.

Since no call for an executive session of the conference delegates or for further meetings of the experts was issued, it was assumed that an attempt to settle the point by informal interchanges between the delegates themselves was in progress and might last several days.

There was a strong feeling in British and United States circles that Japan ultimately would accept the method of calculation and the "five-five-three ratio," not insisting upon a "ten-ten-seven ratio" instead. This was based on the definite conclusion of the British and United States experts that the Japanese naval officers had been unable to show any sound claim to a seventy per cent. status on the basis of figures they have been able to present. There was expectation, however, that to any offer by the Jap-

TELEGRAPH AND CABLE

FORESHADOWS APPEARANCE NATIONALIST LABOR UNION.

LONDON, Dec. 1. — (Canadian Press).—A Reuter cable from Pretoria, South Africa, says that Premier General Smuts, when addressing a South African party congress, foreshadowed the appearance of a Nationalist-Labor combination. A meeting, he said, had recently taken place at Bloomfontein, which he believed would have a most far-reaching effect on the politics of South Africa. At this meeting, continued the Premier, which had been called by the National Union of Railway and Harbor Services, General Hertzog, Nationalist leader, and Boydell, leader of the Labor group in the Assembly, appeared on the same platform and a new compact was signed.

WRECKAGE OF BARGE PICKED UP NEAR OSWEGO.

KINGSTON, Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press).—A telephone message received here late last evening from Oswego reported that wreckage bearing the name of the barge Pennington was picked up yesterday afternoon four miles west of Oswego and taken there. The barge Pennington was at one time owned by the Canada Steamships, Limited, but was sold some years ago to John E. Russell, Toronto. Another report states that the Pennington is owned by the George Hall Company, of Ogdensburg, N.Y.

GRAVITY OF IRISH AFFAIRS SUPERSEDES ALL ELSE

LONDON, Dec. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—All Government business is giving way to the gravity of the Irish situation. Both Government and Irish circles express the feeling that only a miracle will avert the collapse of the conference and the renewal of warfare. The spokesman of the Sinn Fein declared last night that there is no intention of his organization altering its attitude regarding either the unity of Ireland or allegiance to the Crown.

"Whatever results, Lloyd George will go to Washington," said a Downing Street official.

JAPAN PRESENTS CASE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—Bringing with it some of the sharpest issues of world diplomacy, the celebrated Shantung controversy took its place yesterday at the Army Conference. The offer of Secretary of State Hughes and Arthur Balfour, head of the British delegation, of their offices in settlement of the controversy was accepted.

Following is the official communique issued at the close of the session:

"Mr. Hanihara for the Japanese delegation presented the following statements:

"Japan's attitude in regard to the foreign garrisons in China—

"The Japanese delegation wishes to explain, as succintly as possible, why and how the Japanese garrisons in various parts of China have come to be stationed there. At the outset, however, I desire to disclaim most emphatically that Japan has ever entertained any aggressive purposes or any desire to encroach illegitimately upon Chinese sovereignty in sending or maintaining these garrisons in China.

"(1)—Japanese railway guards are actually maintained along the South Manchuria Railway and the Shantung Railway.

"With refard to the Shantung railwal guards, Japan believes that she has on more than one occasion made her position sufficiently clear. She has declared and now affirms her intention of withdrawing such guards as soon as China shall have notified her that the Chinese police force has been duly organized and is ready to take over the charge of the railway protection.

"The maintenance of troops along the South Manchuria Railway stands on a different footing. This is conceded and reeognized by China under the treaty of Peking of 1905. (Additional agreement Article 2)—It is a measure of absolute necessity under the existing state of affairs in Manchuria—a region which has been made notorious by the activity of mounted bandits. Even in the presence of Japanese troops, these bandits have made repeated attempts to raid the railway zone. In a large number of cases they have cut telegraph lines and committed other acts of ravage. Their lawless activity on an extended scale has, however, been effectively checked by Jap-

ON BEHALF OF SPORT.

At the Kiwanis Club luncheon the other day, during the course of an address upon social welfare, a hearty tribute was paid to the work of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association, pointing out the wholesome effect upon a community of having plenty of clean manly sport, and the applause which greeted this reference showed that the business and professional men of the city thoroughly endorse the aims and objects of the association. These objects are now being rapidly developed by Mr. Walter Smaill, the Director of Athletics, who in the short time he has been here has already planned a number of new leagues and organizations that will greatly increase the number of active participants in the various sports and games. What has been lacking here was an opportunity for the youngsters of the city, both at school and at work. The organization of junior hockey leagues will give them a much better chance than has hitherto been offered. Similarly the association plans organized recreations for such bodies as the Police and Fire Departments and the militia units. It should be understood that Mr. Smaill's advice and counsel are at the disposal of the citizens on all matters pertaining to sport. He has been furnished with an office at the Y.M.C.A. and will always be available and ready to assist in any way possible. The results of such a broad policy of developing and encouraging a love for healthful sport in Peterborough cannot fail to be good, and the enterprise of the association deserves the assistance and co-operation of every citizen who desires to see his home city advance.

SHORTER SPEECHES.

Speaking to the officers of the Military Institute in Toronto the other day, Lord Byng declared they would confer the greatest favour on him if they could start a campaign in Canada to limit speeches. Lord Byng has been in Canada only a short time, but he has been here long enough to discover one of our peculiarities, the tendency to make lengthy addresses on any kind of subject at every possible opportunity. Public speakers in politics and out have this national weakness, and almost invariably err on the side of profuseness. Most of them, as was said in the House of Commons on one occasion, resemble a well-known railway system in that they have poor "terminal facilities." The clergy are not exempt from the same charge, for some of them at least are prone to drag out their sermons until the effect has been deadened. Lord Byng's suggestion of a campaign for shorter and fewer speeches is timely, but it is difficult to see how such a drive could be organized. The danger would be that those who undertook to create a feeling against long speeches would themselves talk so fervently and at such great length that the proposition would in a short time be talked to death. Nevertheless the quiet hint from His Excellency the Governor-General may not be without its effect. There is at least the hope that some of our public speakers will recall his words and successfully resist the temptation to emulate the brook of the poem and "go on forever."

ELECTION PROPHECIES.

The voice of the election prophet is beginning to make itself heard in the land. For the greater part of the campaign the individuals who usually delight in making forecasts of the results have been silent. There are so many cross-currents in this contest, so many candidates, such an entanglement of policies and platforms and issues that most of the observers have not dared to commit themselves to a definite prediction, with the end in sight they are coming out of their shells, however, and while it cannot be said that their prophecies help in the least to clear the air, they are nevertheless interesting. You can take your choice from forecasts that give the Government a working majority, to predictions that the Liberals or Progressives will find themselves thus fortunately situated. You can read in one column of a solid block of 65 Liberal seats in Quebec, in the next a statement that the Government will have at least 20 in that Province and in a third an estimate of a Progressive group from the French-Canadian Province. From British Columbia we are told that the Government will sweep the Province and again that the Meighen forces will be lucky to break even there. In the three western Provinces some predictions gave the Progressives practically every seat, others declare the trend is towards Mackenzie King, and still more credit the Government with a chance for twenty seats. Ontario with 82 seats does not give the prophets any trouble, save that of agreeing with each other, for in the past couple of days there have been forecasts that placed the Government total as high as 60 and as low as 25. Some alleged "experts" refuse to concede more than 8 Liberal seats in the Province, while there are plenty of others who name 25 as the more likely figure. Similarly the Progressives are assigned 50 seats by some authorities and 20 by others. In fact, there are as many different guesses as there are factions in the fight.

The three-cornered nature of the battle in many constituencies, of course, complicates the whole situation. A Liberal or Progressive candidate who at a meeting vigorously attacks the Government and is applauded never knows whether he is making votes for himself or for the other anti-Government candidate in the riding. There is the chance that the votes against the Government may drift all to one camp or the other, while there is the other alternative that both will fare about equally well, letting the Government nominee slide into victory between the two of them. It is a realization of these unusual conditions that makes the work of election prophets even more of a guess than usual, and never was it an easy task to foretell what the great body of electors would do.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Some election prophets declare the result will be on a "5-5-3" basis.

THE WAGER REMAINS STILL UNCHALLENGED

Mr. Campbell of South Monaghan who spoke in the town hall here Monday night, in the interests of Mr. J. J. Thurston the Progressive candidate, said that at a meeting at Warkworth, he offered to wager that no man in the hall could shoulder enough cow hide to pay for a pair of boots.

Mr. Campbell stated that there were a lot of huskies in the hall, but no one took him up on the wager.

DIVINITY OF GOVERNMENT

Cynical as fere many of his obiter dicta, and intolerant as he was of solemn humbug, Disraeli tenaciously held the conviction that a political creed, if it was to issue in good works, must rest upon moral principles. "If government," he said, "is not divine it is nothing. It is a mere affair of the police-office, of the tax-gathers, of the guard-room." The divine righ of kings may have been a plea for feeble tyrants, but the divine right of governments is the keystone of human progress, and without it governments sink into police and nations is regarded into a mob.

LEADER OF BAHAI MOVEMENT PASSES

TAUGHT THAT ALL RELIGIONS ARE BASICALLY ONE

LONDON, Dec. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—Abdul Baha Abbas, leader of the Bahai movement, died at Haifa, Persia, Monday, according to a despatch to the London Times.

Abbas Effendi, known throughout the world ah Adbul Baha, was born in Teheran, Persia, May 23, 1844. He was leader of the Bahai movement, which has as its aim world religious unity. The Bahai belief is said to be that universal peace is possible only through harmony of all religions. The Bahaists teach that all religions are basically one; that differences in them have arisen through the corruptions of theology and dogmas.

Abdul Baha visited America in 1912. He was the third of the leaders of Bahaism. For many years because of his teachings Abdul Baha was a prisoner of the Turks and Persians.

NATIONAL OUT DEFICIT IN HALF IN TEN MONTHS.

OTTAWA, Dec. 1. — (Canadian Press).—That the Canadian National System for the ten months ending October 31 had been able to cut the operating deficit of the same period last year in half, was the outstanding feature of a statement issued last night by Hon. J. A. Stewart, Minister of Railways and Canals. At the end of October, 1920, the Canadian Northern had an operation deficit of $13,909,572; Canadian Government lines, an operating deficit of $7,192,583, and the Grand Trunk Pacific a similar deficit of $10,004,580—a total of $31,106,736 for the three entities comprising the National System. For the corresponding period of 1921 the deficit has been reduced to $15,712,257, a gain of $15,394,479. This is made up by an increase of $4,415,263 in gross revenue, which amounted to $102,230,732, as against $97,815,4469 last year, and by a decrease of $10,979,215 in operating expenses, which total $117,942,989, as compared with $128,922,205 for the same ten months of 1920.

POLITICAL COMMENT

About sixty farmers attended a meeting held Tuesday evening in No. 3 Schoolhouse, Douro, about a mile east of Nassau, which was held in the interests of Mr. G. A. Brethen, the Progressive candidate The meeting was typical of other meetings being held by the Progressives throughout the riding in that there were plenty of local speakers to support the candidate, indicating that the farmers are lining up well in his interests.

Surprise Feature

One of the interesting features Tuesday night was the announcement by several Liberals that they had left the Liberal fold in order to support the Progressive candidate, and the reasons they gave for doing so. The chairman, Mr. J. E. Galvin, of Lakefield, stated that he had been a Liberal all his life and his father before him. He was satisfied, however, that if his father was alive, he would vote for Mr. Brethen, as he intended to do. Mr. Galvin said that in 1896 he was farming in Manitoba. He voted at that time for the Liberal party because they promised, if elected, to institute certain reforms that would be a benefit to western farmers. They were in power for 15 years, during which period they failed to keep their promises. When they went out of power the tariff was practically as high as it was when they entered power, as while they had lowered it on some articles they had raised it on others. He noticed that there were a good many protectionists among the Liberal candidates in this campaign, and, therefore, he did not have much confidence that if the Liberals were elected to power they would do any better for the farmers or the working people than they did when they were in power before.

Mr. M. D. Sullivan, of Douro, said that he had been a Liberal all his life and that he did not consider that he had left the Liberal fold, but that the Liberal fold had left him. He was still a Liberal in principle, but the Liberals were now advocating policies which he as a Liberal could not support. For this reason he was trying with others to build a new political home, and he believed they were succeeding well. They had the house up and shingled and there was room inside for all who cared to enter. The Progressive movement was not started by the politicians, but sprang from the people, and he believed it was entitled to the support it was receiving.

Women Secretive

Mrs. Geo. H. Barr, of Warsaw, pointed out that politicians are complaining that they cannot tell how the women are going to vote in this campaign, thus disproving the allegation that women can't keep a secret She showed that when protection was introduced in Canada it was understood that it was for the purpose of starting infant industries The trouble was that our infant industries, after 40 years of protection, are still crying out for more milk The times seems to have come when they should be required to stand more firmly on their feet and not expect farmers and other people to tax themselves for their benefit Farmers sell their products in competition with the world and do not cry out for state aid the way the manufacture do She thought the manufacturers should be more independent

Farmers Movement

Interesting information about the developement of the farmers' movement in Canada was given by H. B. Cowan, of the Farm and Dairy. He showed that at the outset it was not intended that it would be a political movement. The farmers adopted a political platform and intended to support which ever political party would agree to give them the largest percentage of the things they advocated. After trying for years to win the support of the two old political parties without success, they finally launched the Progressive movement. Today the Liberal party is trying to woo them into the Liberal fold and both parties are denouncing them as promoters of a class movement. Commenting on the speech of Hon. MacKenzie King, in Peterboro, last Saturday evening, Mr. Cowan pointed out that Mr. King had failed to strike a strong clear note describing his policy. While he referred to the platform of the party as this was prepared in 1919, he made it clear that before the various planks, in that platform were carried into effect, the party would take frequent soundings, and that if these soundings did not warrant them in taking further action they would not do so. This made it clear that whether or not the Liberal platform would ever be carried out depends upon the political situation in the future. When he made this statement, Mr. King was trying to make it clear that legimate protected interests have no reason to fear the Liberal party. It is because the Liberal party has been endeavoring to move in two directions at once, that many Liberals feel that the party has left its old policies and thereby forced many Liberals to support the new Progressive movement. Mr. Cowan explained various planks in the Progressive platform, and showed that they would benefit the urban centres as much as the rural districts

Helping Farmers

The charge that the Ontario government had been squandering money was answered by E. N. MacDonald, M.L.A. of Indian River, who showed that the Drury government has been forced to pay out large sums of money and to float new loans in order to pay the debts that were incurred by previous administrations. He showed that the Ontario Government has increased the grants to Rural Schools, and in other ways assisted rural sections and thus disproved the charge made by the Liberals and Conservatives that the Ontario Government has not done anything to help the farmers. Interest in the meeting was keen throughout, and strong sympathy was expressed for the Progressive candidate.

3,000 INDIANS TRY OUT COMMUNISTIC EXPERIMENT

MUSKOGEE, Okla., December 1. - Communism is the end toward which the lives of the Nighthawk branch of the Keetowah—full blood society of the Cherokee Indians—are being shaped. This communism, however, is but a means to the end when each shall own and cultivate his land intelligently, eventually to take his place, unrestricted alongside his pale face brother, because he will have no need for restriction, according to C. B. Cornelius, a full blooded Oneida from Wisconsin, and industrial advisor to the Nighthawks.

There are now 600 pure bred Aberdeen Angus cattle, the common property of some 3,000 Nighthawks, Cornelius says. The community also owns 2,700 hogs, with 47 registered sires.

NAVAL EXPERTS FAIL TO AGREE

As a matter of fact, the sub-committee of naval experts quit where they started, at the capital ship ratio. It is known that in two weeks of technical discussion they have not touched upon any other point involved in the plan of limitation. All such items as the ten-year holiday, submarines, proportional allotments of tonnage in auxiliary craft of various kinds and the like were deferred until the capital ship ratio problem was solved. The conference on limitation of armament still stands, as far as its major objective —the naval agreement—goes, at that point.

In Japanese circles urgent pleas to support the Japanese claim for a seventy per cent. ratio were put forward, but they were based almost wholly on questions of national security and not upon claims as to present strength of the two navies. The only compilation of figures presented to support the seventy per cent. estimate was that already authoritatively rejected by the United States delegation, exclusion of all ships under construction from the calculation and inclusion by Japan of pre-dreadnaughts more than twenty years old.

While there was no vote taken in the sub-committee of experts, the British and United States groups were in full accord that the Jananese proposal was not sound and that it constituted a question of policy, not of fact. It was this situation that ended the experts' deliberations, for they were charged only with examination of facts, not with the shaping of policies. The delegations alone may formulate these, and the matter went back to them.

The situation was described authoritatively as an agreement of the experts as to points of difference. These include minor questions relating to percentage of completion of ships under construction, whether battleships over twenty years old can be included in estimates of strength of modern navies, and similar points.

The major point of difference, however, the Japanese proposal to disregard ships under construction in calculating naval strength, are viewed as a matter of policy and a suggestion that is not open to debate so far as the United States is concerned. Neither the United States Government nor the United States people will consent, it was stated to scrap fifteen capital ships averaging fifty per cent. complete and upon which more than $330,000,000 has been paid out, as the equivalent of Japan's four new ships to be scrapped. The sacrifice the United States Government has offered to make, it was stated officially, must be reflected in the fleet ratio to be established with Japan. There was said to be no room for argument on that point.

On every other possible basis of calculation considered by the experts, Japan could show not even the sixty per cent. ratio proposed for her in the plan. The application of the capital ship tonnage measurement to fix the ratio itself is a wide concession to Japan, it is said. If existing auxiliary craft were included in the computation on any basis, from total naval tonnage to inclusion of any selected particular type of ships in addition to capital ships, she would have far less than a fifty per cent. ratio.

On the highest ratio Japan could be allowed by the figures presented that include ships under construction, her ratio was 59 per cent., and to reach that she would be permitted to include two old pre-dreadnaughts more than twenty years old. Various tabulations were gone over by the experts, and in every case Japan's ratio fell below sixty per cent. To meet this condition, the Japanese put forward their suggestion that only ships afloat be counted in estimating naval strength, since in that way alone their estimate of seventy per cent. could be attained. Both British and United States experts balked at this, and a final re-casting of the tabulations by the Japanese, presented yesterday, added nothing to the situation as it had already shaped itself, so the sub-committee quit to await instructions from the delegates. The head of each expert group so reported to the chief of his delegation.

Admiral Baron Kato, active leader of the Japanese delegation, refused last night to throw any light on what his group planned to do. In view of the authoritative statement from the United States delegation that the seventy per cent. ratio suggestion, or the Japanese proposal as to the basis for calculating capital ship strength would not be entertained, it appeared likely that compromise offers from the Japanese group were in order.

anese railway guards, and general security has been maintained for civilian residents in and around the railway zone. The efficiency of such guards will be made all the more significant by a comparison of the conditions prevailing in the railway zone with those prevailing in the districts remote from the railway. The withdrawal of railway guards from the zone of the South Manchuria railway will leave, no doubt, those districts at the mercy of bandits, and the same conditions of unrest will there prevail as in remote corners of Manchuria. In such a situation it is not possible for Japan to forego the right, or rather the duty, of maintaining railway guards in Manchuria, whose presence is duly recognized by treaty. .....

"(3) The stationing of garrisons of foreign countries in North China is recognized by the Chinese Government under the protocol relating to the Boxer Revolution of 1900. Provided there is no objection from the other countries concerned, Japan will be ready, acting in unison with them ,to withdraw her garrison as soon as the actual conditions warrant it.

"(4)—The Japanese troops scattered along the lines of the Chinese Eastern Railway have been stationed in connection with an inter-allied agreement concluded at Vladivostok in 1919. Their duties are to establish communication between the Japanese contingents in Siberia and South Manchuria. It goes without saying, therefore, that these troops will be withdrawn as soon as the evacuation of Siberia by the Japanese troops is effected.

"Memorandum—

"At the present time Japan maintains in China proper approximately 4,500 troops, located as follows:

"At Tientsin, two battalions, approximately 1,200 men.

"At Hankow, one battalion, approximately 600 men.

"In Shantung: At Tsinan, two companies, approximately 300 men; along the Tsinan-Tsingtao railway and at Tsingta, four battalions, approximately 2,400 men.

"Total—4,500 men.

"Statement regarding the maintenance of Japanese police in Manchuria and the treaty ports of China—

"In considering the question of Japanese consular police in China, two points must be taken into account.

"One—Such police do not interfere with Chinese or other foreign nationals. Their functions are strictly confined to protection and control of Japanese subjects.

"Two—The most important duties with which the Japanese police are charged are, first to prevent the commission of crimes by Japanese, and, second, to find and prosecute Japanese criminals when crimes are committed.

"Mr. Sze, on behalf of the Chinese delegation, stated that he would reserve the right to answer in detail the statements after he had had an opportunity of studying them.

"The committee discussed the matter of wireless stations in China and decided to refer it to the sub-committee on draft to report their recommendations as to the expression of the sense of the full committee with respect to these stations, with authority to include in their recommendation such suggestion for the constitution of special committees of experts in relation to any phase of the subject as may be deemed advisable.

"It was stated to the meeting by the Chairman that Mr. Hughes and Mr. Balfour had offered their good offices to the representatives of Chian and Japan in the suggestion that there should be conversations between those representatives looking to the settlement of the questions relating to Shantung and the leased territory of Kia-Chou; that these good offices were accepted by the operatives of both governments, and that the conversations were to proceed accordingly, the first meeting for that purpose to be held Thursday afternoon.

"In order to provide opportunity for special committees to continue their work, the meeting of the full committee was adjourned until Friday, December 2, at 11 a.m."

BRITAIN CONSIDERING A MORIATORIUM FOR GERMANY

LONDON, November 30 (Canadian Press). — Reports that the British Cabinet was considering a moriatorium for Germany were confirmed to-day, the point under discussion being under what conditions relief could be granted.

MR. J. DEWART AT ALLANDALE

WAS ACCOMPANIED BY MR. W. A. ANDERSON AND MR. JOSEPH WEARING.

ALLANDALE, Dec. 1.— Despite short notice a good crowd attended a Liberal meeting addressed by Capt. J. A. Dewart, ex-Warden W. A. Anderson and Mr. Jos. Wearing.

Mr. Dewart took up the railway question and showed how the system of management by directors connected with the big interests made it possible for them to give contracts to their own firms without inviting tenders.

He condemned the system of cabinet ministers and men in responsible public positions being connected with financial companes where the discharge of their duties to the people conflicted with their private interests. He mentioned the fact that Hon. T. A. Crerar while Minister of Agriculture in the Union government was also president of a great grain combine and now as leader of the Progressive party he still retained the presidency of that concern. He compared this situation with the life of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who gave his whole life exclusively as a servant of the people and never accumulated wealth.

Mr. Dewart pointed out that the Hon. Arthur Meighen and the Hon. T. A. Crerar were cabinet ministers when the railways were purchased under closure in the House of Commons, without the people's wishes being consulted. He explained that the Progressive party was a western movement designed to get free trade and was setting the west against the east and worked against unity in Canada.

He closed with an appeal for support and pledged himself if elected to promote the best interests of East Peterborough, the Dominion and the British Empire.

Ex-Warden W. A. Anderson criticized Mr. Brethen, the Progressive candidate for his statement at Norwood that the Liberals "out-Toried the Tories" by raising instead of lowering the tariff. He showed conclusively that the charge was false and said he could never support a man who made such statements to gain votes.

He affirmed his faith in the Liberal platform and the Liberal leaders, Hon. Mackenzie King and Hon. W. S. Fielding, men who were tried and experienced statesmen and much needed by the country in this financial crisis. He asked the people to support Mr. Dewart, a young man of ability and wide knowledge of economic problems.

Mr. Jos. Wearing traced the record of the late government, showing how it had usurped power and had violated the principles of the old Conservative party and Sir John A. McDonald.

He pointed out the western aspect of the Progressive party and stated that only the Liberal party possessed the confidence of all provinces and all classes in the Dominion. A strong, representative government and one in which all people had faith was needed at this critical time.

He closed with a strong appeal to support a man who had proven his ability, had shown his devotion to his country and who had a wide grasp of national affairs.

HOW YOU MAY MAKE YOUR EYES GROW MORE BEAUTIFUL EVERY DAY

The whole expression of the face is dominated by the eyes, yet many a woman who tints her cheeks and blackens her eyebrows gives little thought to the appearance of her eyes.

If you would have lovely eyes you should not read where the light is poor, otherwise you will strain them. Or if you delight in sewing or other work which demands much eye concentration you may weary the muscles of your eyes and dim their brightness. Weary eyes can never look beautiful, for all the gay sparkle leaves them, and as they become weaker it may be that they will need the aid of glasses.

One of the greatest of nature's aids for beautifying the eyes is to take long walks and let the eyes look off into the distance. But many women are so situated that this type of exercise is impossible for them. However, if it happens that they do not have the time or the opportunity for long distance walking then you should try some of the following exercises:

These may be done in bed before you arise in the morning, or if you prefer you can do them any time during the day. You will discover that the doing of these exercises will prove most refreshing should your work be of such a nature that it demands steady use of your eyes.

Whether you decide to do them as you recline in bed, or after you arise, the same procedure must be followed. Look far to your left, and then look far to your right. Next close your eyes as tightly as possible. Repeat these movements several times, allowing a moment or two for rest between the closing of your eyes and the turning of them to the left and right.

Next, you should open your eyes and turn them in an oblique angle toward your left, and then obliquely toward your right. You may vary this exercise by rolling your eyes in a wide circle to your left, then to your right. Raise your eyes upward then downwards. Next turn your eyes from an oblique upward position at your left to an oblique downward position at your right.

When you are doing these exercises you should strike your temples rapidly with your hands. This has a most invigorating effect upon your eyes as it draws the blood to them and enables them to secure more nourishment. It is also an excellent stimulant for the nervous structure of your eyes.

After doing these exercises you should lave your eyes well with cold water. This will prove most refreshing to them, and you wil be delighted with the sparkle which will glow in your eyes after such treatment.

Of course, when you begin to do these exercises you should be very careful not to overdo them. Repeat the various eye-rollings and turnings just two or three times, and do not strike your temples too heavily. A good pat will be sufficient.

Should you do them during the day—and you will find that they are most refreshing for tired eyes—you may not always be able to lave them with water afterward. However, this part of the treatment can be taken when you are at home in the morning or evening.

Doing these exercises daily will not only refresh and strengthen your eyes, but it will remove the weary look which seems to add years to the appearance of any women, especially the one who must use her eyes a great deal in the course of her duties.

Shopping Hints For The Christmas Season

Gifts that add to housekeeping joys are always welcome. A handy apron is made from white pebbled oilcloth, 65 by 18½ inches. The neck is cut 36 inches from one end and graded down each side until the back strips, scalloped and crossed under belt, measure 6½ inches at ends. It may be decorated with a tiny spray of flowers in oil paints.

Wrapping paper and string find a convenient resting-place in the bag which requires 1 1-2 yards of 34-inch cretonne. Fold lengthwise and cut to shape 8 inches from each side of the bottom centre. Sew up sides, and add for string an 8 by 10 inch piece.

A dull white pebbled oilcloth bathroom shoe bag, with cleaning outfit, needs a foundation 19 by 12 1-2 ins.; a piece for upper pockets 25 by 7 inches, and one for the lower 25 by 4 1-2 inches. Coloured enamel paint makes three-quarter inch bands and tape the bindings. Box pleat strips to form pockets of equal size and stitch the upper set two inches below the lower.

An ordinary butter tub may be converted into a dainty darning box. Pieces of cardboard are cut to fit the bottom, sides, and inside of lid respectively, covered with cretonne, and then fastened in with brass tacks. Brass cup hooks inside hold darner and needle book, while a small pincushion is in lid. Cretonne is between the hoops on the outside, and on top is a cretonne-covered circular piece of cardboard, 3 inches smaller than the top.

Dainty remembrances for the guest room make acceptable Christmas gifts. A captivating accessory is a peach-coloured box, in which a block of powder is fastened, made from a neatly fashioned wire frame, 3 1-2 inches by 1 inch, covered with shirred silk, and topped with wool-centred futuristic roses in blue and green and yellow.

With embroidery hoops, some ribbons and glass-headed tacks for the feet, one can easily make a pretty pin tray, and a tiny dolly with many-ruffled chiffon skirts conceals the tiniest of vanity cases, with powder and puff.

For the chilly nights, when you can't keep warm, no matter how many covers are added, you need this glorified sleeping-bag, with a pocket for the feet: A piece of eider-down, 98 inches by 40 inches, is lined with the same material or with silk, and turned up 27 inches at the bottom.

A handy oval sewing box, 6 inches by 4 inches, is fashioned from navy silk, with a convenient compartment at each end, and a full equipment of threads. The pastel pink and lavender flowers with which you ornament the top have soft wool centres.

An empty oval powder box is padded on top, covered with Dresden silk and striped with black velvet ribbon to make an effective pin cushion. Another cushion has a tin box for foundation. Rose satin and silver lace are used to cover it, with a finishing touch of tiny ruffles of rose ribbon.

ABOUT A DOG

They were two little things, a small miniature man and woman, about three feet high or thereabouts and they were taking the air. Accompanying them was their dog, a hairy and ferocious-looking Airedale led docilely at the end of a long leash. They clung to his bushy side, and ordered him sharply back when he loitered by the way. All was peace.

And then their enemy appeared, a tiny tormentor in the shape of a cranky Pom, which darted out from the shelter of a verandah, to snap and bark at their heels. The little things were rigid with fright. They clung convulsively to one another, and big tears of terror rolled down their cheeks. They were helpless.

Finally some one came and took the Pom in, and the children were saved from their terrible enemy. With their massive companion, they proceeded down the street.

HOLD MUSICALE

On the 16th of December, the Y.W.C.A. intends to hold its December musicale, in the form of an entire evening devoted to Christmas music, with a proposed contest among the girls in carol singing.

Community singing, which might be taken up on a much larger scale in Peterboro without injuring anyone very much, is practised in a miniature fashion at the Y.W.C.A. on Sunday evenings, where young men and women are gathering in increasig numbers after church for sing-songs, which are conducted quite happily and harmoniously, with a pleasant cup of tea to finish of the evening.

EACH IN HIS OWN TONGUE.

A haze on the fair horizon,
The infinite, tender sky,
The ripe, rich tint of the cornfields,
And the wild geese sailing high;
And all over upland and lowland
The sign of the goldenrod;
Some of us call it Autumn,
And others call it God.
—W. H. Carruth.

"Across the margent of the world I sped,
And troubled the gold gateways of the stars,
Smiting for shelter on their bars,
Fretted to dulcet jars and silvern chatter the pale ports of moon . . . .
Still, with unhurrying chase and unperturbed pace, came on the following feet . . . . .

Some time prior to the death of the late Mr. F. R. Yokome, editor of The Examiner some person borrowed from him the scores of the famous operas "Bohemian Girl" and "Ill Trovatore," and have not yet returned them. Apart from their intrinsic value, these operatic works are prized for their sentimental associations during the deceased gentleman's life time, and Mrs. Yokome would appreciate their return as early as convenient to her address 500 Gilmour Street.

BABY CUSTOMS

(By Everett Spring.)

Salted and buttered babies are just as much matter of fact as is the sterilised, hygienic baby of civilisation, and it is doubtful—could the little mites of all creeds express an opinion on their treatment when they enter the world—which custom would receive the most compliments.

When a baby is born in Guinea, all sorts of funny things happen to it. Its mother buries it in the sand up to its waist so it cannot get into mischief, and this is the only cradle it knows anything about.

The little Lapp infant is cradled in a shoe, its mother's. This is a big affair, covered with skin and stuffed with soft moss. This can be hung on a tree or covered up with snow while mamma goes to church or to any place where babies are not invited.

The baby of India rides in a basket which hangs from its mother's head, or from her hip in a hammock. In some parts the baby's nose is adorned with a nose-ring, and in others its face is wrapped in a veil like its mother's.

The Chinese baby is tied to the back of an older child.

The Mongolian infants travel about in bags slung on a camel's back.

In some parts of Europe and of Asia there is a peculiar custom of salting new-born babies. When a baby is born among the Armenians of Russia, the nurse takes the infant and covers the entire skin with very fine salt. This salt is left on the baby for three hours or more, and then the child is washed with warm water.

In Asia Minor there is a tribe of people living in the mountains who are even worse than this. They salt their new-born babies and leave the salt on them for twenty-four hours.

The modern Greeks sprinkle salt on their babies.

This practice of salting babies is an ancient custom. It had its rise in superstition, of course. The mothers think that salting their children ensures their health and strength, and that it will keep evil spirits away from them. Even in some parts of Germany salt is still used on the child at birth.

In some countries the mothers lay their babies where a stream of water falls on their heads. This is to make them tough, which it does unless the babies die as a result of the treatment. Another mother covers her baby's head with paste, while the Tartar baby is covered with butter.

The worst fate of all falls to the lot of the newly-born children in Bulgaria. Their mothers put a hot omelette on the little one's heads, to make them solid and protect them from sunstroke.—The Presbyter.

The wisest economic teacher that has ever lived was Jesus. The soundest economic rule of conduct ever formulated in the Golden Rule. When capital and labour agree to live on the terms laid down by Jesus, the world will be a comfortable world for everybody.

HINTS FOR THE CHRISTMAS SEASON

A Sewing Basket.

One of the daintiest and most practical Christmas gifts I have ever received is my sweet-grass sewing basket. The basket is a flat, round, covered one, with a diameter of about nine inches. The friend who gave it to me purchased eight spools of thread, both cotton and silk, of varied colors such as a housewife is using every day. Through each spool of thread she ran a piece of baby ribbon, and attached the spools to the inside of the basket by running the ends of the baby ribbon through the spaces between the reeds to the outside of the basket, then tying with a small bow. Since the basket became mine, I have had to replace the spools several times, but it is untold comfort to me to know that my sewing basket is always in order and that I can always find a certain kind of thread when I wish it. The tape-measure, scissors and other sewing accessories can be placed in the bottom of the basket. If you are at a loss for a suitable gift, perhaps this will be a suggestion.—Mrs. P. R. A., N.Y.

For the Christmas Plants.

At Christmas time, more than at any other, there are many who receive beautiful flowering and foliage plants as expressions of Christmas cheer, and undoubtedly there are many, like myself, in city apartments, who find that after a few days the plants wilt and droop, losing all their freshness and beauty. This is particularly true of ferns. At first I attributed this condition to too much heat, but I discovered my mistake. The air was not so much too warm, as excessively dry. I remedied the condition by creating a moist atmosphere in the following way: For each plant I secured a cheap, medium-sized sponge, saturated it thoroughly with water, and placed it as nearly in the centre of the plant as possible. I find now that the newer leaves of my plants are green, and I always keep the wet sponge in the plant.—Mrs. J. R. H., Md.

An Easy Way to Send Xmas Bundles.

In many families there are brothers, sisters, or other relatives far away, to whom the Christmas cheer must be sent in package form. During the war, in sending parcels to soldier boys abroad, I found it best to wrap the parcel in heavy muslin instead of paper. The address was easily printed on in ink, and the stamps were made to stick with a little extra mucilage. Why not try this same method when sending your Christmas bundles? Wrapping paper is rather brittle nowadays, and there is danger of the parcels being opened in the rush of Christmas mail.—Mrs. R. S. F., Conn.

For the Christmas Tree.

I am a mother and am not ashamed to say that I enjoy the fun of decorating the Christmas tree just as much as the kiddies enjoy it. Each year I try to think up some new decorations for the tree. Did you ever hang animal crackers on your Christmas tree? Nothing pleases my youngsters more. I find that the pastry tube and bag used with boiled icing will add much to the appearance of the animal crackers and gives them a real Christmas dress. The icing may be colored red, green or brown, as desired. In icing the crackers to hang on the tree, cut pieces of red baby ribbon five inches long. Loop these, and place the ribbon on the crackers in such a way that the icing covers the ends, thus forming a loop, so that the rabbit or dog may hang to the best advantage on the branches of the tree.—Mrs. L. R. A., Ore.

Crochet Napkin Rings.

I had been embroidering napkin rings for small Christmas gifts, and in experimenting with a new idea, I crocheted a band of filet insertion about two inches wide and six inches long and joined the ends. Then I starched it stiff, as I have so often seen individual crochet favors. The result was a useful and attractive napkin ring. Any simple design may be used for these. I tried several, and liked the plain ones with an initial best.—C. H. D., N.Y.

A Christmas Doll Carriage.

I was amazed at the prices asked for wicker doll carriages this being my first experience in buying toys for my young daughter. I asked if there were no doll carriages within a reasonable price, and the clerk grudgingly brought forth a little white split wicker carriage unlined and forlorn. Purchasing it, I took it home, and with thumb tacks, a bit of tape for finishing, and two discarded cretonne curtains, I made a gay vehicle, much prettier and very much less expensive than those in the shops. The small owners of the more expensive doll carriages beg to play with my daughter's, and surely that is the acid test.—Mrs. S. S., Mich.

For Making the Christmas Candies.

For most of us, the few weeks previous to Christmas day are busy with candy making. Did you ever try salting the nuts before adding them to the candy you are making? Salt adds a great deal to the flavor of the nuts, and more than that, gives a rich, indescribable flavor to the candy. Cut the nut-meats the size you wish, cover them with water, and wash thoroughly. Pour off the water, add from one-half to three-quarters of a teaspoonful of salt to each cupful of nut-meats, and mix thoroughly. If the nuts have the least bit of an "old" taste, this method of salting them will entirely remove it. I am sure that you will find this method of adding the salt to the candy most satisfactory. For cakes and breads, too, the nuts may be salted in the way way.—Miss G. G., Ill.

Card-Table Covers for Christmas.

For three tables accommodating twelve players, purchase three yards of white Indian-head and cut it into one-yard squares. Make a one-inch hem. Take eight strips of narrow white tape about fourteen inches in length for each cover. Sew these strips eight inches from each corner. These serve to tie the cover to the table. Embroider each cover with the respective Roman numerals I, II and III, in one corner, and in the opposite corner your initial or monogram. This embroidery is very attractive done in delft blue mercerized cotton. These sets launder well and make an ideal and inexpensive gift.—Miss S. J. M., Cal.

Affording an opportunity for gay holiday coloring, easy to develop in both decorations and amusements, and suitable for a luncheon, tea, dinner party or evening entertainment during any of the midwinter months, is the idea of a Poinsettia Party.

Invitations.

With each note of invitation enclose part of a stemless poinsettia prepared in this way: Cut poinsettias from red crepe paper in a convenient size for half of one flower to fit in each envelope. Paste the poinsettias on white note-paper and cut out around the petals, then cut each poinsettia half in two, in an uneven line. On the note-paper side of each piece of poinsettia write the following verse:

This gay red flower cut in two
Will bring your partner straight to you.
If in your search you do not cease
Until you find the other piece.

After all the guests arrive, explain that they are to match their pieces of poinsettia to find partners for the Poinsettia Contest.

Poinsettia Contest.

Make a slip of paper for each couple with the following story written or typed, the words in parentheses to be left blank in the story, and to be filled in with floral names. Award a prize of a jar of poinsettias to the couple who succeeds in filling in the most blanks correctly in a given amount of time:

"It was Christmas day, and Miss Poinsettia and her fiance (Sweet William) were not happy. Her mother was determined that she should not wed a poor man, but should (marigold), while his mother did not like Miss Poinsettia's flaming gown, preferred the color brown, and wanted him to wed (Brown-Eyed Susan). But he declared Poinsettia loved only him and (aster) to marry him in spite of all because he would always sew on his own (batchelor's buttons) unless she would consent. Said he, 'I will never cease to im(petunia), for no other girl is even worthy to tie on your little (lady's slipper). At last when their parents found them under the (mistletoe) with their (tulips) together, they (rose) to the occasion and the nuptials were celebrated on Christmas afternoon, with the smart young curate called (Jack in the Pulpit) to perform the ceremony. The bride wore a veil of (queen's lace), and her gown was in the (pink) of perfection. The guests arrived in (phlox) and through the years the memory of that Christmas wedding was kept (evergreen) in their affections."

Miscellaneous Suggestions on Refreshments.

Poinsettia Sandwiches—Pimiento sandwiches cut in the shape of poinsettias.

Poinsettia Salad—Lettuce leaves with poinsettia petals cut from pimientos laid on them, with an olive for the centre.

Poinsettia Cakes—Sponge cake or layer cake with white icing and on top a poinsettia made of red icing. Cookies cut in poinsettia shape and covered with red icing.

Decorations.

A large poinsettia of red crepe paper may be laid flat in the centre of the table, with a jar of poinsettias in the middle of it and a candlestick with a red candle at the point of each petal. This decoration may be used if the guests are seated at the table, or if the refreshments are served buffet fashion.

Poinsettia place-cards may be made in this way to stand by each guest's plate: cut small poinsettias from note-paper, paste over them red crepe paper, attach to one end of a wire covered with black crepe paper, bend the wire into a short spiral with a large circle at the end so the poinsettia will stand up beside the plate with the wire circle as a base. Write the guest's name on a card and attach it with a red ribbon.

THIS WILL INTEREST STOMACH SUFFERERS

Says Indigestion comes from an Excess of Hydrochloric acid.

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion are nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, waterbrash, or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescing, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important it neutralize he acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with litha and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thouand of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

THERE IS STILL MUCH SUFFERING

SAMARA, on the Volga, Nov. 29.—(By a Staff Corresponden of The Associated Press).—The numerical and geographical extent of the great famine cannot be given. There is to-day and has been as much food available in Samara, for those who have money, as in Baku, on the Caspian Sea, 2,000 miles distant. The Russian refugees from Bolshevism in Constantinople are suffering from hunger and lack of clothes almost as much as those Russians in Poltava, and they in turn as much as those in Orenburg.

The Associated Press correspondent completed a journey from Constantinople to Moscow by way of Tiflis, Baku, Astrakhan and Samara, and everywhere found intense misery, the mot sordid of which was seen in the dreary steppe region between Tiflis (Georgia) and Baku (port of Azerbaijan on the Caspian Sea).

There revolution after revolution, for five years, has left a trail of destruction and ruined houses and wrecked railway stations which cannot be matched in Russia. Added to the lack of food, is the constant battle with malaria, cholera and typhus, and added to these is the cold against which there is little shelter or fuel.

No more pathetic sight was seen than that of the Baku central railway station, where thousands of men, women and children, going, nobody could say where, were camped on dirty sidings, for the most part dressed in rags and eating scraps of food like hunted animals.

To the north, along the Volga in Russia, the misery is often of the respectable, cleanly kind. At Czaritzyn thousands of families are living in railway cars. Others have been housed in villas and palaces.

Begging is rather the exception than the rule eevrywhere in the famine regions.

The German colonist villages and towns along the Volga are so cleanly and orderly, surrounded by such lovely luxuriance of field and forest, that it is hard to believe their people are suffering from hunger. As everywhere in Russia the churches are open, and services are held. At Volsk, when the correspondent attended vespers, he was followed out of the church by one of the priests, who begged that food come from America before his people starved.

In the worst areas there is far more hunger swelling than was seen in Vienna in the winter of 1918. This is the last stage of starvation, and when it comes neither food nor medicine will help.

The majority of such cases are to be seen in the cities, about the railway station, in the trains or about the landing stages, and on the steamers of the Volga, where hundreds of thousands of peasant wanderers are seeking to reach friends in districts where they imagine food conditions are better. The government is trying to discourage such wanderings, but they are continuing.

The distances made by peasant families are incredible. At Saratov, about the river front, may be met families from Orenburg, going towards the Ukraine, where the crops did not fail, and then families from Astrakhan going up-river to some one of the German villages such as Volsk or Baronov.

While there is perfect order in all Russia, on eevry hand the individual struggle for life, for daily food, is bitter and hard. No one thinks of anyone else. Robbery is limited, as robbers are shot when caught, but trickery in small trading is the rule. A warm place to sleep, something to eat, and clothing, are the beginning and end of daily life. Children are brushed aside, ignored or treated like little animals.

A person invited to a meal will eat twice what good manners would permit. He is laying in a stock of food, building up his body, he figures, for the winter cold. Those with money are hoarding food. In some places peasants refuse to sell bread at any price. They are afraid of the winter famine.

Four wheel brakes are a French innovation and date from February, 1910.

ARE INDIANS EXEMPT FROM LIQUOR ACT?

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 30.—In the prosecution of David S. Brant here, accused of having a still in his possesssion, and of Levi Clans charged with having mash on his premises, the question arises whether or not the Inland Revenue Act applies in the case of Indians residing on their reservation. RICHARD HALL & SON LTD

HISTORIC ELECTION INCIDENTS

(Halifax Two Seats)

HALIFAX, N.S., Nov. 30.—Of nine prime ministers of Canada, three—Sir John Thompson, Sir Charles Tupper and Sir Robert Borden, have lived a considerable portion of their working lives in Halifax, and of eight leaders of the Dominion Opposition, two have residences in Halifax, while D. D. MacKenzie was a political graduate of the House of Assembly at Halifax.

Joint debates between party leaders and local candidates were long features of elections in Nova Scotia. One such memorable debate took place between Sir Charles Tupper and Hon. A. G. Jones in the drill hall here. Sir Charles and Hon. Mr. Jones, who later became Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia, belabored one another with such right good will and aroused their partisans to such a pitch of excitement that they joined the argument with wild cheers, and also with rock maple chairs. When the tumult subsided the drill hall looked like it had been wrecked by a healthy tornado, and the doctors had a busy time that night, including Doctor Tupper.

In the first Dominion Election of 1867, Halifax a double constituency, elected A. G. Jones and P. Powers, Liberals, and supporters of Joseph Howe who opposed the Confederation terms known as the Quebec Scheme. In this election Nova Scotia's two representatives in the Federal Cabinet, Hon. A. G. Archibald of Truro, Secretary of State for the provinces and Hon. Edward Kenny, of Halifax, Receiver General, were defeated. Sir Charles Tupper, Amherst, was the only Conservative returned. In 1872 Halifax elected W. J. Almon and S. Tobin, both Conservatives.

In the election of 1874 Mr. Jones and Mr. Powers were again elected, and in 1878 Mr. Jones became Minister of Militia and Defence in the MacKenzie government. In 1878 W. H. Richey and M. B. Daly, Conservatives, were elected, and they were again returned in 1882. Hon. A. G. Jones, Liberal, and T. E. Kenny, Conservative, split the constituency in 1887 and in 1891 Mr. Kenny was again returned with J. F. Stairs, Conservative, as his colleague. In 1896 Robert L. Borden, Conservative, was elected, the other successful candidate being B. Russell, Liberal, now Judge of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia. In 1900 Borden again split the constituency with W. Roche, Liberal, and in 1904 Roche and M. Carney, also Liberal were returned Borden, then leader of the Oppositon obtaining in February of the following year a seat in Carleston, Ont. In 1908 Halifax again elected Borden, with A. B. Crosby, Conservative, as his colleague. In the reciprocity election of 1911, Halifax showed a certain impartiality to the issue, electing Borden, Conservative, and A. K. McLean, Liberal.

Owing to the explosion on Dec. 6, 1917, which wrecked a portion of Halifax, polling in the general elections was a compromise by which Hon. A. K. McLean, Minister without portfolio in the Union Government, and a Liberal Unionist, was elected by acclamation, along with P. F. Martin, Conservative Unionist.

In the present election Hon. A. K. McLean and Edward Blackadder, physician, are the Liberal candidates and Hector McInnes, lawyer, and J. W. Doyle, business man, formerly of Cape Breton, are Government candidates. Labor also has two candidates. A. C. Hawkins, physician, and J. S. Wallace, manager of advertising agency.

Cape Breton North and Victoria

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S., Nov. 29.—A famous by-election was fought in Cape Breton North in February, 1896, when Sir Charles Tupper who had returned from England where he was High Commissioner to re-enter Canadian politics, was opposed by G. H. Murray who had been an unsuccessful candidate (Liberal) in the two previous general elections. Sir Charles won by a majority of 780. In the same year Sir Charles became premier of Canada, while Mr. Murray succeeded Hon. W. S. Fielding as premier of Nova Scotia a position he has held ever since.

The Federal constituency of Cape Breton North and Victoria was created in 1903, and in the general elections of the following year D. D. McKenzie, Liberal, was elected by a majority of sixty-four. Mr. McKenzie went on the Bench in 1906 and in the by-election Alex C. Ross, Liberal, was elected. In the general election of 1908 Mr. McKenzie having resigned his judge-ship, was again elected by seventeen votes. In 1911 and 1917 Mr. McKenzie again carried the constituency by a large majority.

In 1919 after the death of Sir Wilfred Laurier, Mr. McKenzie was elected House Leader of the Opposition, which position he held until Hon. W. L. McKenzie King was elected leader by the Liberal Convention of 1919 and found a seat in Prince, P.E.I.

Before the Representation Act of 1903 Cape Breton and Victoria were two separate counties, returning two members and one respectively. The electoral records of the former constituencies suggest the composition of the population. In the first Federal Election 1967, J. McKeagney Liberal, was elected by acclamation. In 1872 N. L. McKay, Liberal, and Wm. McDonald, Conservative, were elected; in 1874 they were again returned. Wm. McDonald, C. and M. Dodd, C. in 1882, D. McKeen, C. and H. F. McDougall, C. won the elections of 1887 and 1891.

In the general election of 1896 Sir Charles Tupper and H. F. McDougall carried the country by big majorities. In 1900 Alex Johnston, later Deputy Minister of Marine and Dr. A. S. Kendall carried Cape Breton for the Liberals.

In Victoria County Wm. Ross, L. was elected by acclamation in 1867, 1872 and 1874; D. McDonald, L. in 1873; C. Campbell, C. in 1882; J. A. McDonald, C. in 1887 and 1891; J. L. Bethune, C. in 1896 and Wm. Ross, L. in 1900. In the present election Mr. McKenzie is again a Liberal candidate and is being opposed by a fellow clansmen, M. E. McKenzie, a Farmer-Labor man.

Ontario

The city of London has always taken its politics seriously with the result that some of the notorious battles in the history of Dominion politics have been fought there. Two outstanding contests were the by-election of February 1892 and the general election of 1896. C. S. Hyman was elected over Sir John Carling in 1891 but his election was protested and he was unseated. When the by-election came on in 1892, 237 names on the voter's list were protested by the Liberals and the question of the validity of this protest was carried through several courts. During the campaign which divided London into two hostile camps charges and counter-charges of boodling were made and the meetings were marked by unusual heat. After the polls closed the Carling followers claimed victory by nine votes without the protested votes and there followed a demonstration which will always remain honorable in the history of the riding. Next day the Liberals claimed victory for Hyman by 16 votes and they forthwith organized a celebration which lasted until well into Sunday morning. Several persons were injured by exploding fireworks and flying stones and three were carried to the hospital. The courts eventually awarded the bulk of the protested votes to Carling and also the seat.

When Sir John Carling retired the Conservatives brought out Major Thomas Beattie in 1896 to oppose Mr. Hyman. Beattie got a majority of 41 votes but the Liberals protested the election and laid 2075 charges of wrong-doing against John Carling and his friends. After a trial lasting 23 days, the longest on record in an election court, in which the most eminent counsel appeared on both sides, the protest was dismissed with costs and Beattie retained his seat.

Carleton

Only five Federal ridings dating from Confederation have refused to change their politics down to the present. Carleton, South Simcoe and South Lanark, now Lanark have always voted Conservative while Lotbiniere and St. Johns-Iberville in Quebec have never elected any but Liberal candidates. North Oxford might properly be put in the confirmed Liberal column as none but a Liberal has ever been elected in that riding though E. W. Nesbitt a liberal varied the traditional stripe slightly by standing as a supporter of the Union government in 1917.

Carleton's friendliness for the Conservative cause induced Sir John A. McDonald to seek endorsement there when as leader of the government in 1882 he decided not to risk his fortunes in Kingston where he had been defeated n the previous election. It was to Carleton 22 years later another Conservative leader, R. L. Borden went for comfort and a seat after he was defeated in his old constituency of Halifax in the election of 1904. Sir John, in the election of 1887 stood for both Carleton and Kingston and Mr. Borden adopted the idea and stood for both Carleton and Halifax in 1908. Both leaders were elected in both ridings in those elections and both returned to their first loves, Kingston and Halifax leaving Carleton free to indulge local aspirations in the by-elections.

Haldimand.

In the five years, 1886-91 there were six Federal elections in the riding of Halimand which probably stands as a Canadian record. The first five were noteworthy as marking the struggle between C. W. Colter, Liberal and Dr. W. H. Montague, Conservative which for tenacity and bitterness had not perhaps been equalled elsewhere in Canada. Colter, a young lawyer from St. John N. B. the constituency in a by-election in 1886 and in the general election of 1887 he defeated Mr. Montague by a majority of 1. A recount was demanded and the decision was given in favor of the Conservative. The Liberals were not ready to throw up their hands. They laid charges against Montague and his friends of wrong-doing in connection with the election and following an investigation the Doctor was unseated and a new election was ordered. This time Montague won by 17 votes but the Liberals again protested the election and after a famous fight through the courts which lasted more than a year the Conservative again lost the seat. It was in January 1889 that the next by-election was held and in this contest Colter was victorious by 46 votes. Charges of boodling and personation were again lodged, this time by the Conservatives and the battle in courts was renewed resulting finally in Colter losing his seat Colter met his Waterloo in the next by-election held on February 20, 1890 when Dr. Montague won the seat by 227 votes. Montague was re-elected in the general elections of 1891 and 1896 and became a member of the Bowell and Tupper cabinets in succession.

An interesting fact is the reappearance of Colter, now Judge Colter, in the political arena after a lapse of 31 years. He is the Liberal candidate in the present campaign in the riding of East Elgin.

South York

The riding of South York since its organization in 1903 and prior to that date, East York since 1892 has been represented by W. F. McLean who is now father of the House of Commons in length of membership though not in years. East York was the stronghold of the Hon. Alexander McKenzie for ten years before his death in 1892 and MacLean made his first run for a Federal seat against the great Liberal in the general election of 1891, and lost by only 26 votes The by-election following MacKenzie's death took place in May 1892 and MacLean captured the nomination from a big field by adopting in his speech the practice he always followed in his newspaper writing, of getting to the point immediately, while other speakers wearied the audience with the brand of eloquence commonly known as "well-chosen remarks". Mr. MacLean with his opening sentence plunged into an exposition of National Policy which won him the nomination and the seat.

West Hastings

One of the big sensations of the 1904 election was the discovery of bogus ballot boxes in West Hastings. On the morning of the election, November 3, Conservative headquarters in Toronto received a telegram from E. Gus Porter the Conservative candidate in that riding saying that a great conspiracy to steal the election for his opponent Byron Lott had been unearthed. The scheme was found to involve the Liberal candidate and some of the election officers and a number of arrests were made. Lott fled to a safe place in the United States but in the investigation which followed disclosures were made which led to the finding of some of the fake ballot boxes. They had, it was said, been designed by Lott himself and contained a secret chamber from which the ballots, already marked for himself could be let down into the box by pulling a concealed wire.

Nine of the boxes were fished up out of Sydenham lake where they had been sunk after the exposure. The judicial investigation was held at Belleville and provided the newspapers with big headlines for several days. One Toronto paper printed 10 columns of the evidence in one issue. Lott was the only one connected with this bit of election rascality who found it advisable to clear out.

Kingston

The riding of Kingston is famed as the home of the great Conservative leader, Sir John A. MacDonald. Sir John represented the riding in the Canadian Assembly from 1844 until the union of the provinces in 1867. He was elected in the first general election after Confederation and again in the elections of 1872 and 1874. He was unseated on petiton in November, 1874, and re-elected by 17 majority in the by-election of December 1874. In the general election of 1878 Sir John was defeated in Kingston, but was immediately given a seat by acclamation in Marquette, Manitoba. After sojourning in Marquette, Victoria, B.C., Carleton and Lennox, he returned to Kingston in the general election of 1887, was elected and continued to represent Kingston until he died on June 6, 1891. Altogether counting the period before and subsequent to Confederation, Kingston was represented by Sir John A. MacDonald for 38 years.

South Lanark

Although the riding of South Lanark is now extinct it is remembered as having sent one man, J. G. Haggart to the House of Commons for 41 years without a break which at the time of Mr. Haggart's death in the summer of 1913 stood as a Canadian record. It has since been exceeded by about three months by Sir Wilfrid Laurier's representation of Quebec east which lasted from November 1877 until his death in February 1919. J. G. Haggart was first elected in the general election of 1872. He was one of the moving forces behind the construction of the Rideau canal which was considered a boon to Lanark. Mr. Haggart held a portfolio in five governments, the MacDonald, Abbott, Thompson, Bowell and Tupper administrations The riding was never represented by any but Conservatives.

North Toronto

The federal riding of North Toronto in its brief career of 18 years has been represented in the House of Commons by Sir George Foster who bears the unique distinction of having been a member of more Dominion ministeries than any other man. He joined the second MacDonald government as Minister of Marine and Fisheries in December 1885 and in 1888 was made Minister of Finance. Through the changing scenes that marked the period between the passing of Sir John A. MacDonald and the return of the Liberals to power in 1896, Sir George held the portfolio of finance under Premiers Abbott Thompson, Bowell and Tupper He was made Minister of Trade and Commerce in the Borden ministry in 1911 and held the same portfolio in the Meighen government. Sir George has also performed the duties of acting premier on several occasions. After nearly 40 years of active political life Sir George has decided to rest up by taking a seat in the Senate.

Nova Scotia.

Antigonish-Guysboro.

Antigonish-Guysboro forms the eastern extremity of the Peninsula of Nova Scotia. The northern part of the constituency, Antigonish, was the seat of Sir John Thompson, Premier of Nova Scotia 1882-1885, Minister of Justice in the MacDonald and Abbott Governments 1885-1892, and Prime Minister of Canada 1892-1894. Sir John, who entered the MacDonald Government in the same year that the then Mr. George Foster, of New Brunswick, became Minister of Marine and Fisheries, was generally regarded as the leader of the Conservative party, after the fatal illness of Sir John A. MacDonald in 1891, during Sir John Abbott's brief tenure of the Premiership, and until the time of his death, which occurred dramatically in Windsor Castle a few minutes after he had been summoned before Queen Victoria, and sworn in as Her Majesty's Privy Councillor.

Priced at $24, $27.25 and $32.50.

Smoking Stands for the Table

Lamps!

More Wonderful Than Alladin's

Charming Color Harmonies Through Which Filter Soft Rays of Light

There have been many stages to the evolution of the lamp. From the old smoky oil-burning kinds to beautiful silk and crepe affairs is a long jump. These we now display, we believe, represent some of the finest achievements of present-day craftsmen and women. We suspect, however, that in the finish of the stems, such as the hammered antique gold effects that our designers have borrowed something from the products of the men of old.

Floor Lamps

One decidedly French in design and color is of rose georgette. It is dome shape with a deep loose valance of the georgette from which hang tear-drop beads. Over each wire ribb is a narrow black velvet ribbon, and from the end of every second one is suspended a heavy black silk tassel. The top is finished with a wide ruffle of the crepe. The shade is priced at $60. The stem on which it is mounted sells at $27. It is antique gold and prettily turned.

A very novel design is similar in shape to an inverted paper basket. It is covered with rose georgette over silk and the upper and lower edges are finished with a five-inch band of gold lace drawn tightly. From a large rosette of taffeta hangs a double gold cord and two gold tassels. It is finished with a loose valance trimmed with tear-drop beads. The shade is priced at $47.50. The stem on which it is mounted is antique gold with the upper portion fluted and the flutings tinted with rose. It is priced at $27.

OTHERS COMMENCING AT $25

Dolly Varden Lamps

FOR THE WRITING TABLE OR BOUDOIR.

Beneath the enveloping folds of the hoop skirt of duchess silk is concealed the lamp which is mounted on a walnut stem. Dolly Varden's head and shoulders are of china. Her bodice is draped and finished with trimming just like a grown-up, and on her head is a hat of gold lace adorned with a wisp of a plum.

An assortment of colors and priced at $15.

A Chesterfield Lamp

A practical affair that stands just a foot or two above the Chesterfield and gives just enough light for reading. This one is on a pretty little walnut stem that sells at $16. The shade is priced at $36.50. It is Chinese in design and has many sides and points. Suitably covered with an Oriental silk and lined with cerise. The result is a soft, subdued, restful light. The edge is finished with blue fringe.

Boudoir Lamps

A pretty little shade in the usual round shape and appropriate size sells at $5. The edges are finished with a gold braid and little floral wreaths of silk pattern the centre all around. The lower edge is finished with tear-drop beads here and there. They are double, with georgette over habutai. Choice of rose over brown and black over cerise.

WALNUT STEMS IN A SUITABLE HEIGHT ARE $4.50.

A number of attractive yet inexpensive shades sell at $3. They have squared corners and the edges finished with chenille guimps. Double fabric—georgette over habutai. Choice of blue over cerise, gold over gold, rose over rose, and gold over black.

A Number of Table Lamps at Reduced Prices

Regular $33 for $25—handsome walnut stem and the silk shade is of blue and rose Oriental silk, finished with a deep blue fringe. Unique shape.

Regular $33.50 for $25—a metallic cloth in all-over pattern; round shade with scalloped edges with rose fringe. Walnut stem.

Regular $25 for $19.50—choice of plain rose or plain gold silk shade in round shape with straight edge and deep fringe to match. Walnut stem.

Regular $34 for $29—these have parchment shades, beautifully painted with Chinese motifs. Choice of a rose or green. Walnut stem.

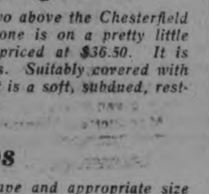
Library Lamps

Regular $26 to $33 for $19.50 — mahogany stems and frames, and the frames are filled with hand-painted glass showing Dutch windmill scenes. Equipped with double socket.

Regular $21.25 for $16.50—substantially made of strong oak and the frames are filled with clouded glass. Equipped with two sockets.

Dinner Wagons

A beautiful walnut waggon, has two drop leaves and a removable glass top tray. When the leaves are up and the tray removed it also serves as a table. There is also a lined cutlery drawer and two shelves. Rubber tired artillery wheels. Priced at $55.



Another of walnut with a glass top, three shelves and cutlery drawer is $47. The same in quartered oak, fumed finish, is $42.50.

A rattan waggon with three shelves comes at $30.

"RALPH CONNOR" ADDRESSED BIG MEETING LAST NIGHT

MODERATOR OF PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY MAKES A PLEA FOR TRUE CHRISTIAN FAITH.

In St. Paul's Presbyterian church last night, about eleven hundred persons heard Rev. C. W. Gordon, D.D., of Winnipeg, Moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, express the same strong convictions on Christian faith that are familiar to thousands who think of him only as Ralph Connor.

Dr. Gordon pleaded for an undying faith in Him who bore His cross and he dwelt particularly on Paul's admonition to the Corinthians in the last verse of the 15th chapter of the first epistle: Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord.

The World's Ills.

The only way to cure the world's ills is by driving incurable selfishness from the hearts of Christians and sweeten their passions with the soothing truths of love found in the Gospel, Dr. Gordon declared. The world has to take to heart the great truths that Dr. Gordon said he regretted were only being taught in a fragmentary way. The issue, he said, depended on the rank and file of the church; people must recognize God as all divine. "There is nothing pure in the world to-day but God is doing it. Everything that is fine and good in men's activities is the work of God."

Return to Fundamentals.

That there must be a great movement, a great return to the fundamentals of the Gospel was hs theme. "The job of the Christian church is to change the heart of the world. It is a great task but it is the Christians' task—nothing else will do. Dwelling on the Christian formula of work and love, for happiness, he said the man who worked only for his pay envelope was a slave worker, but the man who worked for love of it or for his brother was the son of a king. We have to-day the spectacle of great nations meeting in Washington. What is it all about? They are meeting there so that the great nations of Christendom and two nations not of Christendom may work together and live together without fighting. They haven't learned our formula."

Selfishness.

Dr. Gordon struck a note of hoplessness in referring to bringing about this brotherhood of man or at least he went as far as to say it looked like a job almost beyond their powers because of the selfishness, greed and lust found, blocking every means to the happy end. An appeal from the moderator to more men in the ministry was made with deep fervor. Dr. Gordon urged parents to open the way for their sons if they could do so. Cross-bearing ministers were needed, he said, for only a cross-bearing people and a cross-bearing church could win the world to-day.

Missionary Work.

Rev. C. F. McIntosh, of Campbellford, moderator of the presbytery, presided. Rev. A. H. McConachie of Centreville, conducted the devotional exercises. An address by Rev. Duncan McLeod, lately returned from Formosa, was more optimistic of missionary work in that far-off island than it was for the absorption of Gospel truths by Canadians, unless a revival occurs. Rev. McLeod deplored the departure from Bible instruction in the homes.

The choir augmented the programme by several sacred numbers, which were thoroughly appreciated.

CROP REPORT

Following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The Durham Representative is of opinion that apples have been the most profitable crop in that county this year.

Hay is selling at from $17 to $30 a ton, according to location and quality. The large yield of corn for silage is modifying the cost of hay in many of the western counties.

From a load of red clover a farmer in Renfrew County threshed 430 lbs. of clean seed.

Lennox and Addington says: "Considerable peas were grown in the county last year. One farmer sold 100 bushels at $2 per bushel. These were shipped to Montreal."

Brant has the following regarding roots: "The snow found quite a few acres of roots unharvested, although the mild weather of the past few days has permitted many of the farmers to get them in. So many of them have rotted this year that it was difficult to pull them and avoid taking some of the diseased roots into the barn, and I doubt if they will keep well during the winter."

The marketing of grain is proceeding slowly. Wheat is selling at from 80c to $1 a bushel, which seems a discouraging price to growers.

Frontenac states that a good deal of surplus livestock is being unloaded by farmers, and that the general quality is poorer than usual.

While cattle are selling at from 4c to 6c a lb. in most parts of the Province under co-operative shipment, a farmer in the county of Renfrew obtained 11c a lb. for a calf weighing 180 lbs. and 7c a lb. for calves weighing around 400 lbs. each, all of good quality.

A Manitoulin farmer who recently shipped a carload of cattle mostly three-year-olds, realized only $700 for twenty-five head, being considerably less than was paid for the same animals last fall.

At auction sales in Brant good typy grade Holsteins are selling at from $50 to $100.

Milk is selling at a milk factory in Brant for only $1.70 a cwt., while farmers sending milk to Brantford are getting $2.40 a cwt.

Prices paid for butter-fat in various parts of the Province ranged during the week from 38c to 41c a lb.

Peterborough thus describes the situation in the cheese producing counties: "All the cheese factories have closed for the season, and most of the farmers are either shipping whole milk, which brings about $1.00 a can, or skimming the milk and selling the cream."

South Simcoe says: "The majority of breeders are holding their pure-bred rams over for next year's shearling trade.

Less hogs than usual are being fed, owing to the fall in price, and also because of the comparatively light yields of grain. Sales of hogs reported range from $8 to $8.50 a cwt. Little pigs are worth from $5 to $7 each in Brant, and are going at $7 a pair in Lennox and Addington.

Kenora has the following to say of an industry that has meant much to settlers in Northern Ontario: "There is very little demand or sale for pulp wood, which is now $4.40 per cord F.O.B. shipping point, as against $8 and $10 for the same quantity of wood a year ago."

Considerable fall plowing has been done in some counties during the week.

VALERA SAYS IRELAND WILL STAND FIRM

ENNIS, Ireland, Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Eamon De Valera yesterday delivered an address in the Town Hall here in which he declared if peace in Ireland was not brought about it would not be because "there is not the will on the part of Ireland to make it, but because those opposed to us in Ireland do not want to make peace with us".

"I may tell you", Mr. De Valera continued, "that we stand to-day, no matter what other peoples say, exactly where we stood and for the principles for which we stood four years ago. We have gone as far as we can go, consistent with those principles, for peace; we cannot, and will not go any further. If we go further it would be for us to betray those principles which have been fought for by generations of Irishmen for the past six hundred or seven hundred years."

Mr. De Valera had an enthusiastic reception. He spoke with great firmness when he declared that "all the power of the Empire cannot break the spirit of one true nation."

"We counted the cost four or five years ago", Mr. De Valera continued, "and you who have had the experience of those years assuredly will not suggest that anybody having charge of the direction of affairs or who hold the standard you entrusted to them, should for a moment give away our principles. We stand on the rock of truth and principle and will face the future with the same confidence and knowledge as we faced our work four years ago."

CELEBRATES THIRD BUSINESS BIRTHDAY

LOCAL MERCHANT STARTS NEW YEAR UNDER PROSPEROUS CONDITIONS.

In celebrating his third prosperous birthday this first of December, 1921, Jack Primeau strikingly refutes the old-time maxim that a man cannot make good in his home-town. For, born and educated in Peterborough, Jack, as he is familiarly known, has in this city fought his way well up the ladder of successful mercantile enterprise until to-day he controls a gent's clothing and furnishings business in the shop of Fashion Craft, 140 Hunter street, which despite general trade depression has forged ahead month by month with increasing impetus. Acquiring Fashion Craft's local interests from Andie Laidlaw four years ago this Thursday, Jack Primeau finds himself each recurring anniversary of that deal with a bigger year's profitable turn-over and an enlarged permanent patronage of satisfied customers, and 1921 has exceeded his most sanguine expectations by the firm's books recording the biggest and most substantial business year yet for Fashion Craft in its history here.

Jack Primeau's slogan is "efficient service and equanity," and to that slogan inflexibly observed, he attributes his gratifying success. The best is none too good, has been this energetic merchant's concrete trade-building principle since his inception in the business arena here, and his discriminating patrons have appreciated and are appreciating that view, both to their own and Fashion Craft's advantage.

And now, what is the shop of Fashion Craft It is the home of super-quality of style, material and workmanship in men's clothing. Fashion Craft is synonymous for dependability in production of the latest models, and its local store is a man's shopping centre where Jack Primeau togs men out with guaranteed individual fit and distinctiveness, and at a price commensurate with the maximum of value. There a man can get the correct fashion in durable fabric overcoats or suits, ready for service, except for finishing here at the shortest possible notice; or one can pick cloth and style, and have the garments made to individual measure. In either case Fashion Craft clothes are man-tailored from properly shrunken material, assuring lasting shape-retaining quality. And their wearers always look well-dressed.

Jack Primeau also carries a desirable line of gent's furnishings, hats and caps, in conformity with his men's outer garments in both exclusive style and number one quality —comfy linen, perfectly exquisite neckwear ,all breathing of refined elegance and all combining with Fashion Craft merchandise to make of 140 Hunter street a last' word men's dress-up emporium which service and quality built.

In celebrating his third business birthday to-day, Jack can also pleasurably reflect on the happy results from extensive interior remodelling to keep apace with service requirements last year. He had to remodel ments of a rapidly expanding trade. And at considerable expense this gent's fashion store has been converted into a veritable replica of Metropolitan refined houses in the same line, with the acme of convenience both in display and service. Here there is no trouble to show goods—they show themselves. A customer readily perceives what he wants irresistibly inviting inspection; for clothing, furnishings, headwear, all appeal to one from dust-proof cabinets and show cases of attractive quarter-cut oak and clearest of glass, the whole conveniently arranged in a decorative atmosphere, clean, bright and cheerful. And this enhances efficient service at a minimum cost.

And so, Jack Primeau might well to-day rejoice that his business acumen and discriminating enterprise has fostered increasing prosperity year by year, and won for him with Fashion Craft a substantial place among Peterborough's successful business men.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

MILLBROOK, Dec. 1. — The entertainment under the auspices of the Women's Institute, given in the town hall on Wednesday evening, November 30th, drew a full house, and was thoroughly enjoyed. The four members who compose the company of the "Harp Singers" gave an excellent programme with harp, violin, 'cello and piano; also vocal numbers and readings, and received much applause. The final half of the entertainment featuring an Italian street scene with appropriate costumes, harp solos, songs, etc., has the merit of a refreshing novelty.

The members of the Women's Institute are to be congratulated on their enterprise in bringing such a splendid series of concerts to the community for the winter. It is the second of the entertainments for this season and both have been of a high order.

HALIFAX EXPLOSION WRECKED HER NERVES

The reader will, no doubt, remember when a few years ago there was a collision in the Halfax, N.S., Harbor and one of the munition ships was blown up, causing great loss of life and laying a large portion of the city in ruins, and causing a great deal of suffering and distress among the inhabitants.

Mrs. Winfield Dill, now of Windsor, N.S., was living in Halifax at that time and went through this trying experience and the shock wrecked her nerves. She writes as follows:—"I was living in Halifax at the time of the explosion, and it wrecked my nerves so that I could not do my housework. I would take such nervous spells I would be under the doctor's care.

I saw Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills advertised, so I took two boxes and they helped me so much I took six more, and now I am completely relieved. I can recommend them to anyone suffering from heart and nerve trouble".

To all those who suffer from nervous shock we would recommend our as the best remedy to tone up the entire nervous system and strengthen the weakened organs. Milburns Heart and Nerve Pills are the original heart and nerve food having been on the market for the post 27 years. Price, 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

U. F. O. ADDRESS IN MILLBROOK

A. T. REID OUTLINES THE PROGRESSIVE POLICY — ELECTION ISSUES.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 1. — The meeting held in Millbrook last evening under the auspices of the U. F. O., was very largely attended, the town hall being well filled, and many who came somewhat late found nothing but standing room awaiting them.

Mr. S. S. Staples, M.P.P., made a very capable chairman, and after a few brief remarks introduced A. T. Reid, the Progressive Candidate for Durham, as the first speaker. The latter stated at the outset that he was no orator, and also expressed his pleasure at having the opportunity of appearing before a Millbrook audience for the first time. Noting the fact that a large proportion of the audience were ladies, he predicted that the first lady representative at Ottawa would be Miss Agnes McPhail, now a candidate in Grey County. Dealing with the question often asked him in his campaign? Why should the farmers organize? he answered—for mutual gain and protection, pointing out that since 50 per cent. of the population are farmers and 60 per cent. of the wealth of the country is in their hands they should have something to say in the government of the Dominion.

Believing that the electorate should know something of the man who was asking for their support, Mr. Reid stated that he is a farmer in the townsrip of Clarke, working 270 acres of land; that until now he had always been a Conservative in politics, but about two and a half years ago, when the Farmers' Club was organized at Kendal, and he was elected president (which office he still holds) he with others had found from practical experience that when the farmers ship their own livestock is is vastly more profitable for them than when the plan of previous days was followed for its disposal. He had joined the Progressive Party and when offered the nomination at Orono, had rather reluctantly accepted it, and whether elected or not would never regret the two months spent in driving through the riding making the acquaintance of the electors, gaining information, and realizing that his outlook on life had been broadened by this experience.

Speaking on the fiscal policy, he said he was not opposed to protection; he believed in it for capital and labor, but not for watered stock; a reduction of the tariff, he considered necessary. Mr. Reid commended the press for its fairness toward him personally, except the "Review," of Bowmanville, which had grossly misrepresented some of his remarks; and stated emphatically that if he could not win in this campaign without slandering his opponents, he would refuse to be a candidate at all, this assurance eliciting considerable anplause. In conclusion, Mr. Reid thanked the people for the patient hearing which had been given him, and assured them that, if returned to Ottawa, he would not betray their confidence.

Amid hearty applause, Mr. Reid took his seat, and the chairman introduced the next speaker, Mrs. Cronk, of South Ontario, who made an excellent address, receiving a most attentive hearing throughout. Mrs. Cronk prefaced her remarks by stating that her only credential for being on the platform at a U.F.O. meeting was that she was a "simon-pure" farmer's wife, the mother of six children, five of them almost grown up, and was greatly interested in any woman's movement for the betterment of the country.

Commenting on the changes in agricultural life in the last twenty-five to forty years, the improvement in implements, in the motors for travelling, in the class of houses being built, in the educational system, and even "raising our children differently, though the improvement in this regard is questionable," the speaker said that still the two old political parties cling to ancient traditions; hence the reason for the National Progressive party coming into existence. It has a clean record, its leaders have salvaged what was good from each of the old parties and had others added what seemed necessary for a suitable and complete platform.

Referring to the question, "Where do Hon. Mr. Meighen or the Hon. Mackenzie King secure their campaign funds?" Mrs. Cronk said there was no mystery about the Progressive party's funds, as they are subscribed in small amounts by the people, and the books are always open for inspection. This eliminates patronage and allows men to fill positions of trust without being under obligation to the "big interests"; patronage had been, and is, wholly evil, because by it men lacking in the fine ideals of true citizenship had been given offices which they were without ability to fill. What is needed is an awakened public conscience and strong, capable leadership. The status of our country will largely be determined by the result of this election; hence the voters need to be well-informed, thinking intelligently for themselves, and refusing to be bound by the political traditions of the family. As there are 1,500,000 women in Canada who now have the franchise, what a transformation may be wrought if their influence is on the side of political purity, and sane, wise legislation! Home is still a woman's chief sphere, but she has also, as a citizen, a certain responsibility for the social, moral, and economic conditions that exist.

Speaking of the tariff, Mrs. Cronk thought if one drew too strong a cord round our country we dwarf industry and hinder expansion. But we have to face the fact that the big interests grow in wealth and millionaires increase in number while factories are closed and small producers are forced to the wall; this is not democracy. Why should there be conditions existing that leave 262,000 unemployed in Canada? Look, too, at conditions in the West, where oats find no market, and wheat which cost 30 cents per bushel to thrash bring only 70 cents when sold. In Ontario wool is but 8 cents per lb. and hides so small in value that if a farmer's daughter should ask for $12 pair of boots, her father would need to sell cow, beef hide and all to procure them. We should not, however, heckle and annoy our local dealers over these matters but put in men at Ottawa who can see a way out of this mammoth difficulty. In her concluding remarks Mrs. Cronk referred paticularly to her objection to compulsory military training in the schools, pointing to Germany as an example of the evil results of that system; rather teach the children the foundation principles of citizenship. "Let us have in Canada an equallized prosperity, a contented and happy people, with justice progress and righteousness reigning supreme."

Vigorous applause had punctuated Mrs. Cronk's address all through, and this was repeated at its conclusion.

The chairman introduced Mr. McKee of Dufferin County as the final speaker.

After tracing the growth of the National Progressive party from its inception, the speaker paid a glowing tribute to Hon. T. A. Crerar as a capable leader, though the bouquets handed that gentleman by those who formerly euologized his ability, are not so fragrant as when he was a member of the Conservative cabinet. Mr. McKee also stated his objection of the Senate, because it had so often blocked useful legislation, referring to it as the "Home for Incurables".

Mr. McKee touched on various other lessons in his address, the date set for the elections, when the roads would likely be in bad condition, and many farmers who have to drive ten or twelve miles to the polls would be hindered from voting; the wastage of fruit in 1920, because the combines held up the price of sugar for their own profit, although there was abundance of it in the warehouses and on board vessels that did not unload their cargoes. He mentioned also the huge national debt averaging $256 per head for every man, woman and child in the Dominion, condemning the government for borrowing money in the United States, renewing their notes, and borrowing again, till our neighbors said in effect, "Your credit is not so good as it was," and our dollar is now only worth 90c in that country. Since we have over 200,000,000 bushels of wheat to market annually the speaker thought to save transportation charges and overhead expenses we should sell to our nearest neighbor and not be sending deputations to Labrador or Mexico for a place of sale. The fact that the farmers are accused of not paying their income tax led to the question "How many have got the money to pay it?" One farmer for the hide of a good cow received one pound of Paris green and 40c. As a class they are not so prosperous as was supposed. The outcry against the "unimproved land tax," suggested by Mr Crerar, the speaker thought, was because the facts are misunderstood. Millions of acres are held in the West by non-resident land lords and railway corporations, for purely speculative purposes, and this idle land breeds grasshoppers, gophers and other pests. Is it not common sense to tax it and thus force its cultivation? Unimproved land here is already assessed; the proposed tax will only be felt in places now exempt from taxation.

The unfair scale of pensions granted to soldiers' widows and children was another point referred to by the speaker, who defined partyism as "nothing divided by two," and closed with an earnest appeal to the electors to vote, not on the old party lines, but as their consciences should direct them, for the best good of their country, and the maintenance of the highest ideals of Canadian citizenship.

Mr. Reid asked permission to contradict a statement made to him by a voter as he had entered the hall that afternoon to the effect that he had said if he were elected to Parliament he would not follow Hon. T. A. Crerar's leadership This had originated, he was informed, with Mr Preston of Port Hope. It was absolutey wrong and he desired to flatly deny it.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

"BULL-DOG DRUMMOND"

BY "SAPPER" (CYRIL McNEILE)

For the next two hours he apparently found nothing better to do than eat a perfectly grilled chop prepared by Mrs. Denny, and superintend his visitor unwillingly consuming a sago pudding. Then, with the departure of the Dennys for Paddington, which coincided most aptly with the return of Peter Darrell, a period of activity commenced in Half Moon Street. But being interior activity, interfering in no way with the placid warmth of the street outside, the gentleman without, whom a keen observer might have thought strangely interested in the beauties of that well-known thoroughfare—seeing that he had been there for three hours—remained serenely unconscious of it. His pal had followed the Dennys to Paddington. Drummond had not come out—and the watcher who watched without was beginning to get bored.

About 4.30 he sat up and took notice again as someone left the house; but it was only the superbly dressed young man whom he had discovered already was merely a clothes-peg calling himself Darrell.

The sun was getting low and the shadows were lengthening when a taxi drove up to the door. Immediately the watcher drew closer, only to stop with a faint smile as he saw two men get out of it. One was the immaculate Darrell; the other was a stranger, and both were quite obviously what in the vernacular is known as oiled.

"You prisheless ole bean," he heard Darrell say affectionately, "thish blinking cabsh my show."

The other man hiccoughed assent, and leant wearily against the palings.

"Right," he remarked, "ole friend of me youth. It shall be ash you wish."

With a tolerant eye he watched them tack up the stairs, singing lustily in chorus. Then the door above closed, and the melody continued to float out through the open window.

Ten minutes later he was relieved. It was quite an unostentatious relief: another man merely strolled past him. And since there was nothing to report, he merely strolled away. He could hardly be expected to know that up in Peter Darrell's sitting-room two perfectly sober young men were contemplating with professional eyes an extremely drunk gentleman singing in a chair, and that one of those two sober young men was Peter Darrell.

Then further interior activity took place in Half Moon Street, and as the darkness fell, silence gradually settled on the house.

Ten o'clock struck, then eleven—and the silence remained unbroken. It was not till eleven-thirty that a sudden small sound made Hugh Drummond sit up in his chair, with every nerve alert. It came from the direction of the kitchen—and it was the sound he had been waiting for.

Swiftly he opened his door and passed along the passage to where the motionless man lay still in bed. Then he switched on a small reading-lamp, and with a plate of semolina in his hand he turned to the recumben figure.

"Hiram C. Potts," he said in a low, coaxing tone, "sit up and take your semolina. Force yourself, laddie, force yourself. I know it's nauseating, but the doctor said no alcohol and very little meat."

In the silence that followed, a board creaked outside, and again he tempted the sick man with food.

"Semolina, Hiram—semolina. Makes bouncing babies. I'd just love to see you bounce, My Potts."

His voice died away, and he rose slowly to his feet. In the open door four men were standing, each with a peculiar-shaped revolver in his hand.

"What the devil," cried Drummond furiously, "is the meaning of this?"

"Cut it out," cried the leader contemptuously. "These guns are silent. If you utter—you die. Do you get me?"

The veins stood out on Drummond's forehead, and he controlled himself with an immense effort.

"Are you aware that this man is a guest of mine, and sick?" he said, his voice shaking with rage.

"You don't say," remarked the leader, and one of the others laughed. "Rip the bed-clothes off, boys, and gag the young cock-sparrow."

Before he could resist, a gag was thrust in Drummond's mouth and his hands were tied behind his back. Then, helpless and impotent, he watched three of them lift up the man from the bed, and, putting a gag in his mouth also, carry him out of the room.

"Move," said the fourth to Hugh. "You join the picnic."

With fury gathering in his eyes he preceded his captor along the passage and downstairs. A large car drove up as they reached the street, and in less time than it takes to tell, the two helpless men were pushed in, followed by the leader; the door was shut and the car drove off.

1000 Eggs in Every Hen

New System Of Poultry Keeping—
Get Dollar A Dozen Eggs—
Famous Poultryman

TELLS HOW

"The great trouble with the poultry business has always been that the laying life of a hen was too short," says Henry Trafford, International Poultry Expert and Breeder, for nearly eighteen years Editor of Poultry Success.

The average pullet lays 150 eggs. If kept the second year, she may lay 100 more. Then she goes to market. Yet, it has been scientifically established that every pullet is born or hatched with over one thousand minute egg germs in her system — and will lay them on a highly profitable basis over a period of four to six years' time if given proper care.

How to work to get 1,000 eggs from every hen; how to get pullets laying early; how to make the old hens lay like pullets; how to keep up heavy egg production all through cold winter months when eggs are highest; triple egg production; make slacker hens hustle; $5.00 profit from every hen in six winter months. These and many other money making poultry secrets are contained in Mr. Trafford's "1,000 EGG HEN" system of poultry raising, one copy of which will be sent absolutely free to any reader of this paper who keeps six hens or more. Eggs should go to a dollar or more a dozen this winter. This means big profit to the poultry keeper who gets the eggs. Mr. Trafford tells how, if you keep chickens and want them to make money for you, cut out this ad and sent it with your name and address to Henry Trafford, Suite 580E, Court Bld., Binghamton, N. Y., and a free copy of "THE 1,000 EGG HEN" will be sent by return mail.

POLITICAL COMMENT

J. H. BURNHAM MEETING

A large audience greeted Major S. T. Medd and Mr. J. H. Burnham at May's schoolhouse last night. Mr. Bell occupied the chair. Major Medd said that when Mr. Mackenzie King sprang his sensation respecting the alleged importation of munitions into Canada he pretty nearly got both Great Britain and Canada into quarrel with the United States. Had it been as Mr. King alleged that there was something unusual and therefore suspicious about this transaction the United States would have wanted to know why we were arming and why Great Britain was helping to arm us and that too on the eve of a world disarmament conference at Washington. Of course the fact was that the Armistice found the Empire with a vast store of unused munitions and as these soon deteriorate they must be used at once in practice and training or go out of business and utterly wasted.

Mr. Burnham said that the most astounding change of front that he had ever seen in a campaign was that of Mr. Gordon in this one now in a huge double-column advertisement in The Examiner recalled and recited the virtues and the glories of the Fielding Reciprocity Pact of 1911 and nailed his colours to its mast. Mr. Gordon had sent a circular letter broadcast to the electors saying that he was a protectionist but finding that this was alienating some votes that he had relied upon he now cast that pretence aside an championed the reciprocity pact of 1911. It had been the custom of Liberal politicians to point to the countries and persons that it was charged, owed their rise to protection but it had now transpired that the huge merger of cement companies that bled Canada white and had played with the workingman as if he were a mere pawn in their great game had received its charter from the Laurier Government. But once having begun that policy that government did not stop and gave charters to the Canadian Machinery Corporation, The Dominion Textile, The Steel Company of Canada, Canadian Cottons and a number of others which were licensed without one word of safe guarding the people of Canada and were made free to do as they pleased. No tariff or system of free trade either could protect the interests of the people against such a charter of merger as those granted by the Laurier government. Having granted them unheard of privileges it was not in the power of any government to revoke them. The cement merger having collared the natural resources that went to the making of cement and having secured a charter that made them a monopoly it remains for Canadian people to pay the price and to thank the Liberal government for it. Great Britain and the United States have adopted Protection and that policy is no longer a matter of argument now anywhere in the civilized world outside of Canada. The meeting closed with cheers for the King and the candidate.

W. T. R. PRESTON MEETING

Mr. W. T. R. Preston adressed a large meeting of electors of Durham at Mount Pleasant last night.

He said that the result of the election throughout Canada would be determined on Tuesday next and he ventured to predict that Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal party would have a majority in the next house.

"The larger the majority that Mr. King has in the next house" said Mr. Preston "the better will be conditions throughout the whole Dominion". Business conditions have been very much unsettled in Canada now for over a year, largely by reason of the uncertainty that exists and lack of confidence in the present Government. The lack of confidence in the present Government, which has existed ever since peace has been declared has resulted in stagnation in every branch of industry. This stagnation and lack of employment has resulted in the exodus of no less than 819,000 people to the United States and the greater uncertainty that exists in the future the greater will be the stagnation in trade and unemployment".

This situation is extremely serious when we consider that that exodus is nearly equal to one tenth of our population and when you further take into consideration that this country is now called upon to pay over $500,000,000.00 per annum in the cost of administering its affairs and in the payment of interest of $140,000,000. a year on its national debt.

In order to establish normal conditions more quickly and to bring about prosperity instead of stagnation it is absolutely necessary that there should be more co-operation amongst all the Provinces of the Dominion and all the various classes that live in each of its Provinces, and that can best be obtained by the electors giving Mr. King the Liberal leader a decisive majority in the next House.

Mr. R. R. Hall pointed out that the Hon. T. A. Crerar is the recognized leader of the so-called Progressive Party and hence his record as a member of the House of Commons and a member of the Government is most important to bear in mind in forming a judgment as to what may be expected from him in the future.

Election Promises

Mr. Crerar was a member of the Union Government when it promised exemption to the farmers from Military Service so long as they remained on the land. Both Mr. Crerar and Mr. Meghen actively assisted in having that promise made known to the farmers through the Dominion of Canada and they both knew at the time when that promise was made that there was no intention what ever of carrying it out and they both knew that the sole object of making that promise was to induce the farmers to vote for them and after the election was over both of them forgot all about their promises and the fact is that when a large deputation of farmers from all parts of Canada visited Ottawa to insist upon these promises being carried out Mr. Crerar was put forward by the Government to lecture them on patriotism.

A question naturally arises "what card has he now up his sleeve?" Both Mr. Crerar and Mr. Meighen were a party to promising the working men living in cities and towns that so long as they were engaged in essential industries they would be exempt from Military service and they both knew that the object in making that promise was to obtain their votes and when once their votes were polled the fact is that these promises were openly violated.

Both Mr. Crerar and Mr. Meighan were a party to promising the mothers, wives and sisters of soldiers who were overseas that the soldiers overseas would be given a much needed rest and would be brought home for Christmas. The base part of their conduct was that these promises were made to them as individuals in order to obtain their votes. These women had spent some of them months and years in anxiety and deep distress but neither Mr. Meighen nor Mr. Crerar sympathized with them in the least degree because they added to their distress and anxiety deferred hope that makes the heart sick.

"Go up the Line"

The treatment of the scoldiers overseas according to Sgt. Major Taylor was not much better because according to his statement the soldiers overseas were told in very plain language "vote for Union Government "or go up the line."

Both Mr. Meighen and Mr. Crerar obtained hundreds of thousands of votes throughout Canada to return them to power on the faith of these promises knowing full well that they would never be kept.

Can the Canadian electors expect from men with such a record as this an honest administration of our affairs which is so vitally important for the well being of Canada at the present time?

The serious financial condition of Canada at the present time does not call for men in Parliament who are full of 'fads and fancies" but the great need of the hour is to have men like Mr. King who is not associated with big interests or selfish classes to be given the chance to choose from all parts of Canada a Government that will comprise its ablest men who will honestly carry on its affairs on the lines that brought 15 years of prosperity to Canada under the leadership of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Mr. C. R. Widdifield also spoke.

C. N. GORDON MEETING.

Last night, at the Town Hall, Monaghan, Mr. G. N. Gordon had a large, enthusiastic meeting.

He discussed the question of soldiers' re-establishment, and declared that his leader's answer to the soldiers' inquiry, was the most favorable of all the three leaders, and was so declared by Walter Rayfield, V.C., soldier candidate in East Toronto.

Mr. Gordon dealt in detail with what Mr. Burnham had done for the riding of West Peterborough, and also what he (Mr. Gordon) had done during the short time he had been in Parliament.

Mr. Gordon also dealt with the efforts he had made to get a recommendation through which would provide for the standardization of the parts of agricultural, machinery, which were needed for repairs. Mr. Gordon said this was necessary to keep the cost of repairs low and to keep the cost of production of natural products low on the farm, and reduce thereby the cost of living.

Mr. Gordon also dealt with Mr. Burnham's opinion of Mr. Meighen and his Government, and the Grand Trunk guarantee, which, according to Mr. Burnham, was introduced by Mr. Arthur Meighen, and would bleed the people of Canada to the extent of millions. Mr. Gordon contended that, if Mr. Meighen was this kind of a man, and introduced legislation to assist his political friends to make millions in fortunes from the Canadian people, then Mr. Burnham should repudiate Mr. Meighen on account of this treachery he was perpetrating upon the people.

The candidate dealt particularly with the necessity of wider markets to get rid of our surplus natural products, which the home market could not consume, as there are more people on the farm producing than there were people to use the product of the farm in Canada.

Mr. Gordon cited in detail and gave the names of men who had been fined all over the county, because they did not make a return on their income tax, although they had no income that was taxable, while the wealthy friends of the Government were able to pay their taxes with an I.O.U. Mr. Gordon said that, as soon as this Government was turned out, these wealthy corporations which had failed to pay their taxes, would be compelled to pay their taxes, right off the bat.

Mr. E. M. Elliott, County Treasurer, also spoke, and told of his experience since 1911, and that of their friends on the farm. He said that he was supporting Mr. Gordon because he felt that he was the best one to assist in trying to get the situation cleared up, and in the interests of good Government, and particularly because Mr. Gordon had said that he would support any good legislation for the benefit of the great masses of the people, whether he was introduced by Mr. Mackenzie King, Mr. T. A. Crerar, or Mr. Arthur Meighen.

The meeting was largely attended, and Mr. Robinson acted as chairman most efficiently.

The meeting closed with cheers for the King, the candidate, and Mr. Elliott.

The adoption of a uniform three-color signal system on highways, as they are used on railroads, is gaining rapidly throughout the country, for the purpose of notifying motorists of various degrees of danger. Red light and standards are put up to show first degree danger, such as railroad crossings, dead ends of roads, and lift bridges. Yellow lights and markers show second degree danger at curves and grades. Green indicates moving or traffic danger, to be used at road intersections.

What Mr. Burnham, Says:—

At a Farmers' picnic in Chemong Park:

"The Government at Ottawa is as bad as your roads."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner:

The question of Prohibition is no longer before the people for consideration. The people have decided in favor of it and the mandate of the people must be obeyed and carried out to the letter. A revival of the argument is as useless as absurd. The Dominion Alliance wrote me a very nice letter and Mr. Spence added his good wishes and I hope my friends at any rate will not occupy space in the papers badly needed for other matters.

PIMPLES ON FACE
DIDN'T LIKE TO GO OUT

Those nasty little pimples that break out on the face and other parts of the body are simply indications that the blood is out of order and requires purifying.

There is only one way to get rid of this obnoxious skin trouble, and that is by giving the blood a thorough cleansing which can best be done by that old reliable blood medicine, and when the blood is purified the pimples will vanish and you will have a clear, healthy complexion.

Miss Mary E. Flangan, R. R. No. 3, Stella, Ont., writes: "I have suffered for about two years with pimples and blotches breaking out on my face. The doctor said it was caused by bad blood. My face was so bad I didn't like to go out among a crowd of people. One day I was talking to a friend, and she advised me to get a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and try it. I took three bottles, and there was not a blotch or pimple of any kind left. Some of my friends asked me what I had used and I said, "Burdock Blood Bitters chased them."

B. B. B. has been on the market for the past 45 years, so you are not experimenting with some new and untried remedy.

PRINCESS JOSEPHINE GIVES IDEAS ON HAIR DRESSING

It is to the lovely Empress Josephine that we owe several of our most gracious modes of arranging the hair—to Josephine who could never refuse admittance to an itinerant vendor or a swindling antique dealer, Josephine who, in spite of her many promises to Napoleon, who hated the whole dirty, gesticulating, odorous crowd, had her rooms always thronged with the violent barterers of the Ghetto, spreading their dear delights before her greedy eyes—Persians, Turks and merchants from Kashmir, sweeping the irresistible lengths of their native shawls across her floor, says Vogue. From morning till night her rooms were a bazaar—a scrambling mass of legs and arms, turbaned heads and flashing teeth, trailing scarfs and knotted packs, yellow hands holding up films of lace to the passing glance, brown hands spreading shawls, throwing out white yards of misty Idnia muslin—and the Empress, sweeping like a peacock through it all, laughing, turning, snatching this, casting that aside, piling everything into great baskets which her ladies carried away to be worn once—or not at all.

And into this, suddenly, the great little man, Napoleon, stamping, shouting, kicking packs and bodies aside, trampling on delicate laces and muslins, throwing the whole colorful litter out of doors, scolding the Empress, threatening her ladies. And Josephine, standing in a doorway, a gorgeous scarf caught to her breast, unresisting, gentle, waiting for the storm to pass.

With the shawls of the Turco-men Josephine bought their turbans—hundreds of them, and wound them about her small, dark head with as much grace as she draped a shawl—and no one could wear a shawl like Josephine. In 1800 the turban was scarcely known in France; after Josephine's adoption of it, it became an obsession. Women wore them from childhood till old age, at all times and on all occasions, with a light fringe of curls showing beneath to soften the abrupt line.

"Fear not the westering shadows,
O children of the day!
For brighter still and brighter,
Shall be your homeward way.
Resplendent as the morning,
With fuller glow and power,
And clearer than the noonday,
Shall be your evening hour."

Too much oil in the crankcase is as bad as none at all.

The last representative of Antigonish-Guysboro in the Federal House was John H. Sinclair, a barrister of New Glasgow, who was first elected in a by-election in 1904 and sat continuously until the dissolution of the last Parliament.

The candidates in the present are Walter McNeill, Government, a young man who has built up a large shipping and lumbering business from small beginnings; C. F. McIsaac, Liberal, who is a veterinary surgeon, and D. A. McIsaac, United Farmer, who is a physician by profession, and a nephew of the Liberal candidate.

Kings County, N.S.

Kings County, N.S., is a land of romance and poetry. Here, when first settled by the Acadians, were the forests primeval; here Evangeline, the mythical maiden immortalized by the New England bard, watched the turgid tides of the Basin of Minas or the mists about the brow of Blomidon. Later the people of British descent cut down the forests primeval and built ships which were famous in the ports of all the seas. More recently the inhabitants have replaced the forest primeval with extensive apple orchards.

Grand Pre, Kings County, was the birthplace of Sir Robert Borden, leader of the Canadian Government during the war. When the Union Government was formed in 1917 Sir Robert stood for his native county, being elected by a large majority. Kings also had a representative in the Laurier Government—Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia.

In the present election the candidates are: H. W. Phinney, Government, and Ernest Robinson, Liberal, both successful men, and new to Federal politics.

Colchester, N.S.

Colchester County, N.S., has helped make political history. In the first Confederation Government formed by Sir John A. MacDonald in 1867, Adam George Archibald, of Truro, was Secretary of State for the Provinces, but in the general elections of that year he was beaten in Colchester by A. W. McLelan, one of the Lieutenants of Joseph Howe, the Liberal leader. Though he had been one of the first to advocate Confederation, Howe bitterly opposed the arrangements offered by Sir John A. MacDonald, and accepted by Sir Charles Tupper, leader of the Nova Scotia Government, and after the elections, which gave the anti-confederates seventeen out of eighteen Federal seats and thirty-six out of thirty-eight seats in the Provincial Assembly, Howe held the Province in the hollow of his hand and started a fight with the Federal Government for better terms for Nova Scotia. A fight in which McLelan played an important role.

In 1869 Sir John A. MacDonald, having offered the Province more favorable terms, Howe accepted an appointment in the Dominion Government, and McLelan being made a senator and also one of the four commissioners appointed to build the Intercolonial Railway, resigned his seat. Archibald stood again for Colchester and was elected, but only by the exercise of all the influence possessed by McLelan, who was head of one of the big ship-owning and shipbuilding firms of the Province.

In 1870 Archibald was appointed first Lieutenant-Governor of the new Province of Manitoba.

In 1881 McLelan became President of the Canadian Cabinet, and in the following year was appointed Minister of Marine and Fisheries, when he resigned from the Senate and was elected for Colchester. Later McLelan was appointed Lieutenant-Governor of the Province, and, like several other Nova Scotia governors, dies at the Government House, Halifax.

The results of Dominion general elections in Colchester since Confederation follow:

In 1867 A. W. McLelan, L.: 1872, F. H. Pearsons, L.: in 1874 and 1878 Thomas McKay, C.: 1882 and 1887, A. W. McLelan, C.: 1891, W. Patterson, C.: 1896, W. D. Dimock, C.: 1900, S. Gourlay, C.: 1904, F. A. Laurence, L.: 1908 and 1911, John Stanfield, C.: in 1917, F. B. McCurdy, then head of the brokerage firm of T. B. McCurdy & Co., was elected by acclamation as a Conservative-Unionist, and when Mr. McCurdy entered the Meighen Government as Minister of Public Works, he defeated a Farmer candidate in the by-election.

In the present contest, Hon. Mr. McCurdy is again a candidate, and the Liberal nominee is H. Putnam, barrister of Truro.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

INSPECTORSHIP FOR HIGH SCHOOL PRINCIPAL—POLITICAL MEETING.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 1. — Friends in Campbellford will be pleased to learn that Mr. T. C. Smith, B.A., Principal of the Gananoque High school, has resigned to accept the position of Public School Inspector for the county of Lanark. Mr. Smith was for some years Principal of the High school here and his friends are pleased to learn of his promotion.

Rev. Mr. Horwood of Norham, was in town yesterday.

Mrs. William J. Morton, of Stirling, formerly of Campbellford, who was visiting her sister, Mrs. James Cock in town, was called on Monday to Frankford, due to the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. Lowery.

Mrs. Rutledge of Parry Sound, is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Thompson.

Political Meeting.

The meeting held last evening in the Opera House in the interests of Mr. Chas. W. Kerr, Liberal candidate, was a rousing one, the hall being packed to the doors and some turned away. Mr. D. J. Lynch presided most acceptably and introduced the speakers who were beside the candidate, Dr. George Ferris, an old Campbellford boy, and Capt. Gunn, of Cobourg, Mr. F. D. Kerr, K.C., of Peterborough, and Mrs. W. J. Stephens of the Toronto Liberal Association. Dr. Ferris referred to the friendly relations existing between himself and Mr. Kerr since his going to reside in Cobourg many years ago. Capt. Gunn, the second speaker, a returned man, referred to the elections of 1917, with particular reference to the soldier vote. Hon. Meighen was criticised as having been the mouthpiece of the Mackenzie & Mann interests. Laurier, said Capt. Gunn, always put his cards on the table. The speaker referred to the manufacturing industry in Cobourg in which he is interested, practically all Canadian labour employed and business run by U.S. capital. The golden era of prosperity was from 1896-1911 under Sir Wilfrid Laurier's regime, declared Capt. Gunn. The speaker predicted that as Liberalism went down in 1911 for keeping its pledges, it would come up again in 1921, and criticised the National Progressive Party for knifing the Liberals in the back.

Mr. Kerr, Candidate.

Mr. Kerr, who is a very pleasing and convincing speaker, after expressing his pleasure at having with him Dr. Ferris, whom, he said, was the worthy son of a worthy sire, and Capt. Gunn, an earnest and true Liberal, stated three reasons assigned for the existence of the National Progressive party.

(1) Farmer party did not receive justice at hands of government. Hon. Crerar and Hon. Meighen in 1917 were charged with breaking their promises and reference was made to the farmer delegation sent to Ottawa. The farmer movement was given development and impetus by the result of that visit stated the speaker. Hon. Sifton, who was once a follower of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, was accused of blocking the Reciprocity Bill, although not defeated on merit. Liberalism was defined as a policy that does not believe in a government by aristocrats of birth, of wealth or other landed possessions. Liberalism believes in a government by aristocrats of intelligence, of character and energy, and for which Hon. Mackenzie King is fighting. The U.F.O. was stated as creating a class movement. Sir Wilfrid Laurier promised tariff should be revised every seven years. Hon. Meighen couldn't get his party to agree, although he had information, stated Mr. Kerr. The redistribution was also referred to and the patronage abolition. Just as machinery wears out, so the tariff has to be re-adjusted to keep up with the best interests of the country. The present tariff policy continued the speaker, is that of 1897 to 1911 continued called the golden era of prosperity. Mr. Kerr urged the labourers and farmers and all to rally around Liberalism and see that laws are made for every class and every section.

Mrs. Stephens, a member of the Toronto Liberal Association, urged the formation of a Ladies' Liberal Club in Campbellford and stated woman's duty was to help secure responsible government for Canada, the first country to acknowledge the rights of women. The speaker criticised the War Times Election Act. It is unthinkable, asserted Mrs. Stephens that the destinies of the country should be again placed into the hands of those who betrayed them. Hon. King's promise to reopen the soldier question was referred to, and the high cost of living and unemployment situation could be relieved by a revision of tariff. Sir Wilfrid Laurier recognized the dignity of labour and created a Bureau of Labour. Crerar was with Meighen in 1917 and what guarantee have we that he will not go over again. The sepaker urged her hearers to get behind the Liberal party that stands for a government of the people by the people and for the people.

Mr. F. D. Kerr, the next speaker, expressed his reasons for being on the platform in support of his brother, who was fighting in the Liberal cause. The speaker in a very eloquent manner, criticised the Board of Commerce and its effect on price of sugar, etc. Mr. Kerr advocated a measure of reciprocity in natural products that will build up the west and indirectly help Ontario by their buying manufactured goods. The period from 1897 to 1911 was again referred to, in which Canada went ahead by leaps industrially. If you have no faith in your party you have no right to belong to Liberalism. It was the Liberal spirit that moved Pym and Hampden of England. The audience were carried in thought to the days of Gladstone, who said that the might of England could crush but it would destroy British honour. The policies of Hon. George Brown, Hon. Blake and Sir Wilfrid Laurier were cited as emblematical of peace and harmony and in this Hon. Mackenzie King was schooled. It is unfair to Canada said the speaker that the large industries should be built up at the expense of the small and the consumers' interest should be safeguarded. The income taxes, said the speaker were not payable by promissory notes as the taxes of the Riordon company were. Mr. Kerr again urged his hearers to follow the great principles of Liberalism laid down by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. Mackenze King, and stated that to win by surrender of your principles was to lose.

The meeting closed by the National Anthem, followed by three hearty cheers for the King, Hon. Mackenzie King and the candidate, Mr. Charles W. Kerr.

A cheap mechanic usually proves the most expensive.

Peterboro Answerea Meighen, February 7th

Elected G. N. Gordon and Is Highly Satisfied with His Performance in Only Four Month at Ottawa. Saved People $4,000,000 in Food Tax.

MEIGHEN CONTRADICTS FREE TRADE CANT.

In one breath the Hon. Arthur Meighen says the Liberals are Free-traders. That, and not the record of his Government, is the issue in this election, according to Mr. Meighen and his group.

But in the very next breath he declares that the tariff under the present Government has been lower than the Liberal tariff of the Laurier-Fielding administration.

Every man and woman of average intelligence will see through the contradiction of these diametrically opposite statements.

In industrial centres such as Peterborough, he has told his audiences that the election of a Liberal Government under MacKenzie-King will be followed by Free-trade.

Opposing Statements

But on other platforms he has sung a different tune. Mr. Meighen has claimed that the average duty under the Fielding (Liberal) tariff was 26 per cent., and that under the present Government the average tariff has been 21 per cent.

In other words Mr. Meighen says:

The Liberals are Free-traders.

The Liberals are high Protectionists.

It is evident that these two statements cannot both be true.

Mr. Meighen himself furnishes the answer to his platform political calumny that the Liberals are Free-traders when he compares the tariff averages of his own and the Laurier-Fielding administrations.

What is the Liberal Party's answer?

What is the answer of G. N. GORDON, the Liberal candidate in West Peterborough, and of MacKenzie-King, the Liberal leader?

That the tariff should be revised along the lines adopted in 1896 when the Liberal Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier inaugurated an era of prosperity which the people of Canada want restored; that the tariff shall be revised to meet the changed conditions since 1911; and that no legitimate industry in Canada shall suffer as the result of the revision.

In regard to the tariff percentages, the Government reports state clearly that the "Percentages of duty on total value of goods entered for home consumption dutiable and free" are: 15.87 per cent. in 1910 under Liberal rule and 17.61 per cent. in 1920 under Conservative rule.

Peterboro has Made Its Decision

There's nothing new for West Peterborough in this election.

The Hon. Arthur Meighen and his National Liberal and Conservative Party stand just where they did last February when Mr. Burnham himself led the attack on them with inside information that was as enlightening as the recent Riordon I.O.U. exposure.

The electors of Peterborough made their decision last February, with the eyes of all Canada upon them, when they told Arthur Meighen that the day of Government by Orders-in-Council and by Star Chamber secrecy, involving Canada in immense financial obligations without the consent of the people, was done.

Recent revelations have confirmed the wisdom of their choice.

And the business ability shown by the Liberal member, G. N. GORDON, in just four months was a proof of his Parliamentary fitness.

West Peterborough discovered in G. N. GORDON a representative, active, aggressive, and guided by good judgment, who deserves the renewal of the electors' confidence.

Does Canada Need Meighen?

Let us see!
Does Canada need a yearly deficit of $100,000,000 on her National Railways?
Does Canada need a tariff that protects the few and not the many?
Does Canada need a tariff that permits sugar gamblers to gouge the consumers?
Does Canada need a Government that costs every person in this country $42.03 a year, as compared with $11.03 in 1911?
Does Canada need a Merchant Marine run at a loss—at present ready to do rum-trucking?
Does Canada need powerful corporations paying taxes with promissory notes, while the ordinary citizen pays hard cash?
Does Canada need a Government that refuses to make an accounting of the expenditure of public moneys?
All these things—desirable or undesirable—we have along with Meighen rule.
So if Canada needs these things, she needs Meighen.
But not otherwise.

How the Liberals Helped the Peterboro Lock Co. and Released Local Labour From Competition with The Convict Labour.

Vote for G. N. GORDON

A generation ago men at the head of the Peterborough Lock Company were the most prominent Conservatives in this riding. That was prior to 1896, and during the Conservative administration under Sir John A. McDonald.

The Peterborough Lock Company was struggling along trying to compete with the lock-making department of the Kingston Penitentiary. The product of the convict labour was sold at a low price to a jobber who bought the output under contract.

Several times deputations from the Peterborough Lock Company appealed to the Conservative Government for consideration against this unfair competition, but each time they came home empty-handed. The factory owed the bank a considerable sum of money, and work was unsteady.

But from all accounts the convict lock-makers in the Penitentiary were busy filling the profitable contract the jobber held from the Government.

Came the election of 1896 and the beginning of the famous "Government of the Talents" under the leadership of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Soon after the Liberals got down to work the principals of the Peterborough Lock Company decided to interview them, probably admitting that they couldn't fare worse than when they appealed to Sir John A. McDonald.

The deputation included the two foremost Conservatives in Peterborough at that time—older residents will remember them — James Stevenson, president of the Lock Company, and John Carnegie, both of them active politicians with long political records behind them. Thos. Brooks, the manager of the shop, accompanied them.

When they explained to Laurier and Fielding the purpose of their mission, the Liberal Ministers were surprised that any Canadian industry was forced to compete with prison labour.

"Canadian workmen should not have to compete with convict labour," said Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who promised an immediate investigation of the conditions complained of.

Two weeks later the lock department of the Kingston Penitentiary was closed, and it has never re-opened. It was dismantled.

As a result, the Peterborough Lock Company shortly afterward began to pick up new business. Five or six moulders were taken on and their work required other employees, so that the entire staff was increased by some fifteen workmen.

The Peterborough Lock Company enjoyed its share of the prosperity the Liberal Government brought to Canada, and in 1911 were reported to have funds in the bank in the same amount as was their deficit in 1896.

This story is told by a Labour man.

Labour needs a Liberal Government at Ottawa.

Returned Men are Pleased with Mr. King's Reply

Returned men generally approve of Mackenzie-King's reply to the questions submitted to him and the other party leaders in this election.

At the meeting in Toronto on Tuesday night in the interests of the soldier candidate, Capt. A. T. Hunter, the following frank statement of his own position as a soldier candidate was made by Walter Rayfield, V.C., the soldier nominee in East Toronto:

"Mr. King has given the most favourable reply of the three leaders. (Cheers.) The twelve questions he answered in that one paragraph, in which he says that he is in favour of having all our problems re-opened in Parliament. That, I repeat, is the most favourable reply we have had.

Mr. King's message does not alter my independent candidature in East Toronto; but if the Government that may be elected will promise, and proceed, to carry out these promises of Mr. King, I could not, if a member, do other than support the elected Government." (Cheers and applause.)

Astonishing Solution of the Strangest Mystery in Paris

While the Giddy Capital Marvelled Over the Baffling Disappearance of Bizarre Eve Lavalliere, a Traveler, Far Off the Beaten Paths, Found Her Kneeling at a Shrine in a Desolate Mountain Hut

Louise Lavalliere, Daughter of the Famous Actress, Whose Life Was Wrecked by an Ill-Fated Marriage.

WITH Paris at her feet—with the adulation and admiration of the world to sustain her—with life young and her beauty unimpaired, Eva Lavalliere, idol of the French theatrical world, suddenly disappeared. Paris was mystified. At last it develops that she has retired into oblivion, to a little house in the Vosges Mountains—a hermit, self-immolated.

Why?

Did history repeat itself when she turned her back on gaiety and laughter and evanescent happiness?

Why did the French actress imitate the the example of her great ancestress, the Duchess Louise de la Valliere, mistress of Louis XIV, the Grand, after whom the famed necklace bearing her name was christened?

Paris is puzzled. Paris, thoughtless, paused long enough in its revels to guess—to surmise—to speculate.

But the real reason it never guessed, for that reason dates back to the end of the seventeenth century, when Louise de la Valliere ruled the court of France—when Maria Therese of Spain was titular Queen. Louise and the Queen were rivals in every sense of the word. Louise was young and beautiful. She was brilliant mentally and possessed charms of rarest type.

The Queen was heavy, uncouth, with coarse lips and broad nose. She had neither mentality, nor personality.

There was yet another woman, Madame de Montespan—another of the King's beloved—for the King had a plastic heart that adjusted itself to any and all situations, moral and otherwise. The Montespan had two sons by the King, the Duc de Maine and the Count de Toulouse. Louise had two children by the King, the Duc Laurent de la Valliere and a daughter who died in infancy. From the former is descended Eve Lavalliere, French actress—that was.

The King was most unhappy with his wife. He did not love her; he despised her homely face, her stupid ways.

"A broken creature half fell into the door—it was the wreck of what once had been Eve Lavalliere's beautiful young daughter."

He established Louise in a villa situated at one end of his palace at Trianon. He established the Montespan at the other end. The Queen occupied her quarter between the two. It was an ideal arrangement—from Louis' viewpoint.

Louise, shy, refined and just out of the Carmelite convent, sought in every way to avoid the King and his admiring glances. But in the end, Louis' persistence won and Louise became the rival of the Queen and of Montespan.

The Montespan tried a clever plan. She assumed a mask of virtue and demanded from the Queen that she send Louise away and thus end what she called an "intolerable scandal." The Queen fell into the trap. She sent for Louise.

The Queen was as queenly as she could be—which was not very queenly. She sought to overwhelm Louise with her power. Louise faced her fearlessly.

"So long as the King needs me, so long shall I stay," she said.

"Then may my curse be upon you and your descendants for all time to come. May they never know happiness. May love and fortune be snatched from them when they enjoy it most. May your race be doomed for all eternity." shouted the Queen. Louise wept. She was superstitious and believed that the curse would work to the unhappiness of herself and two children. She left the room in tears. A few weeks later her daughter died.

Louise, appalled by what she believed to be the first working of the curse, sought solace from her church.

And then, one day, Paris was amazed to learn that Louise had entered the Carmelite convent to take the vows.

Eve Lavalliere, her descendant, like Louise, came to Paris from the provinces possessed of talent and beauty. Eve was provincial to a degree and believed that she could make her way in the French capital by sheer ability. She was disillusioned quickly, for, after months of seeking—from stage door to stage door—she was still without work—success immeasurably far away.

One day fate came to her aid. She went into the office of M. Samuels, noted French manager. Her funds were low and she had eaten little since the previous day. Faintness overtook her and as she was finally ushered into the manager's sanctum, she pitched headlong at his feet—the victim of hunger. Samuels carried her to a chair and administered restoratives. Struck by her beauty and learning the cause for her collapse, he took her to dinner.

From that time began a love affair which lasted for years. Eve obtained the chance she had sought for so long. Her first appearance was a veritable triumph. Paris rose to her as one man. She awoke to find herself famous—as Byron, the poet wrote of himself. She became the rage—men of standing and wealth worshipped at her shrine.

But to all admirers she turned a deaf ear. She loved Samuels. Marriage between them was out of the question, for Samuels was already married.

In the course of time a daughter was born to Eve. The child became her mother's passion. Night and day she watched over the baby—she saw it grow into childhood. And then Samuels grew tired—they drifted apart.

To forget the man she loved, Eve plunged into wild dissipation. Night was turned into day. Princes and commoners showered her with attentions and jewels.

Then Henry Fragson came into her life. Fragson was an Englishman. He appeared with Eve, for he was an exceptionally versatile actor, who knew his French as well as his native tongue. A mutual attachment resulted, which grew into love.

But in London Fragson's father had heard of the affair. He was old-fashioned and puritanical. He was familiar with Eva's reputation—with her relations with Samuels. He tried repeatedly to break up the friendship between his son and the French actress.

Then, one day he sent for his son. The two met in their home in London. What happened can only be conjectured, but next morning London was horrified to read that Fragson had been murdered by his father—shot in cold blood. The father, in custody, raved—the shock of his crime had made a driveling maniac of him.

In Paris, Eve sat stunned—desolate. She turned to her daughter, now eighteen, for consolation. But the girl too had her love affair. Samuels had died and left his large fortune to his natural child, and an ex-convict, unknown to Eve, had laid seige to her daughter's hand and had married her secretly.

Within a few weeks he had deserted the girl and the latter, driven to despair, had taken to drink and drugs. Suddenly she vanished, and, although Eve spent thousands for detectives, no trace of the missing girl could be found. The mother was frantic—everything she loved had gone out of her existence. She had about decided to end her life. Alone in her dressing room between the acts, she thought over the past—she recalled the curse upon her namesake of other days. The door opened. The actress looked up.

Facing her stood her daughter—come home to die.

With a sob, the girl threw herself into her mother's arms.

"It is the end" sobbed the girl. The mother petted and comforted her. Then she sent for the best doctors in France. There was no hope. A system undermined by drugs could not withstand the ravages of tuberculosis. And so, the only hold Eve had on life, passed into the beyond.

Again Eve sought distraction. She plunged into the wildest gaiety. Early in 1914 she met the first secretary of the German Embassy to France. He was a young officer, who fell honestly in love with the broken but still beautiful actress. Then came the war and he was recalled.

This time, Eve did not seek surcease from sorrow in dissipation. She plunged into war work—she succored the wounded and helped the poor.

And one night, while German airplanes were bombing Paris—while the shriek of shells was in the air and the enemy was within hailing distance of the French capital—she dreamed. She was in a strange room—a strange woman of another age stood facing her.

"Then may my curse be upon you and your descendants for all time to come," the woman was saying.

Eve awoke with a shriek of fright. In the morning she discarded her finery and dressed herself in black. She sold her furniture and jewels—she vanished.

The other day a traveller in an out-of-the-way spot in the Vosges Mountains found her in a small, plain house, furnished with scanty things.

"This is my convent," explained Eve. "They would not take me in the hospice, so I retired here. All I seek is to be let alone, that I may live the rest of my days in oblivion—forgotten."

SATURDAY'S GAME IS CHIEF SPORTING TOPIC IN PETERBORO' THESE DAYS

Up around Central Park the only thing that matters this week is the rugby clash at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon between the U. T.S. team of Toronto and the Peterborough Collegiate, to decide which team shall go into the finals against Sarnia. Yesterday afternoon the Collegiate squad worked out for an hour and a half at Central Park, while inside the Collegiate the Rooters' Club were also getting ready for Saturday's game.

The going was heavy and wet for the squad yesterday, but they went at their work just as hard as if the footing was at its best and the practice was a profitable one. With a full turn out in uniform. The students will practice again this afternoon at Central Park, and with a signal practice to-morrow they sould be right on edge for Saturday's big test.

Although the Collegiate line-up has not definitely been announced, it is altogether likely that the back division will consist of Flowers at centre half, with Fanning on one side of him and Scotty Grime the other, while Ernie Legon will be at flying wing.

Word was received yesterday that Bobby Armstrong, of Toronto, who refereed the first two games of the season here, will handle the whistle on Saturday, while Baillie of Toronto, will be umpire. This choice of officials is entirely satisfactory to the local students.

Arrangements are being made to entertain the U.T.S. players during their stay in Peterborough. They will arrive here at noon Saturday, leaving for home on Sunday afternoon.

Saturday's game will be called sharp at 2.15 o'clock and the indications are for a big crowd and a memorable game. The Collegiate boys who have put Peterborough back on the rugby map after a long absence, deserve the heartiest support of the citizens, and the way the tickets are being sold indicates that they are going to get it on Saturday.

AT THE GRAND.

It required six months to photograph the many remarkable scenes in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse", the big picture that is coming to the Grand Opera House 3 days commencing today and even then the daylight hours, even in Southern California, where the filming was done, were not sufficient to satisfy the indefatigable Rex Ingram, who directed the picture.

Ingram insisted on working at night, as well as during the day, and in order to make this possible, a specially-built motor truck, with a 400 horse power Liberty motor, who constructed and installed on the Metro grounds. This "plant on wheels" which Walter Grams, the chief electrician at the Metro studios in Hollywood, declares was the largest portable electric generating plant ever made, furnished sufficient current to light the castle and entire Villeblanche, the Marne village, which were built for the purposes of the picture and afterwards destroyed by the intensive shell fire, and also enabled the Director and his assistants to arrange and photograph many of the most vivid incidents in the production at night.

The truck which carried the electrical equipment weighed five tons and was equipped with compound transmission, with twenty-one speeds thus enabling it to negotiate the steepest grades. It carried 250 gallons of gasoline for feeding the Liberty motor, which burned 25 gallons of gasoline an hour. The electricity was generated by two fifty kilowatt generators of the submarine type. Each weighed 1500 pounds. The entire electric outfit weighed 6000 pounds. An interesting feature of the "electric truck" was a folding tower which reached 40 feet in the air, and was used to carry power from feed wires where such service was available.

NEW PICTURE GIVES KATHERINE MacDONALD ROLE OF PSEUDO-CROOK

For the first time in her screen career, the beautiful Katherine MacDonald has resorted to artificial means of making herself attractive. This has no reference to the brown, smudgy make-up and the rest of the accessories which make for good photography; but applies strictly to a beautiful black wig which Miss MacDonald wears in "Stranger Than Fiction" and which will be seen at the Allen Theatre, commencing today.

The fact that the script for Miss MacDonald's latest Associated First National Pictures release called for the use of a wig, that she might disguise herself, somewhat concerned the officials of her company for the reason that the sheer beauty of the star hardly justified such measures. However, when the wig was tried on, it was found that Miss MacDonald was as beautiful as ever

Incidentally the wig plays a significant part in "Stranger Than Fiction," as it establishes the one connecting link needed to spur the "Black Heart" gang to a tremendous dramatic situation. This incident in the film occurs when Miss MacDonald has disguised herself and visits the headquarters of the notorious crook in order to aid in the solution of a mystery that has baffled the police and detective forces.

Comprising the supporting cast for "Stranger Than Fiction" is Wesley Barry, David Winter, Wade Boteler, Jean Dumont, Harry O'Conner Evelyn Burns and Tom McGuire.

AT THE CAPITOL.

Today, the Capitol Offers a Wonderful Double Show—Earle Williams in "Bring Him In"—Charlie Chaplin and Jackie Coogan in "The Kid" and Mack and Bernard, Double Vaudeville Act.

Today matinee and evenings the Capitol offers a dollars worth of picture and vaudeville entertainment at their usual prices. Charlie Chaplin and Jackie Coogan in the biggest ,funniest and best comedy ever produced, "The Kid," the vaudeville act Mack and Bernard is one of the very best seen at this house in a long time, they are not only clever comedians and singers but their dancing both with soft shoes and clogs surpasses any seen at the Capitol in some time. The work in funny tramp make ups and are big laughing hit everywhere. The feature picture is Earle Williams in "Bring Him In."

Hobbies often prove of practical value in providing ideas for delightful stories. An interesting example of thisof this is seen in the Vitagraph photoplay "Bring Hin In" H. H. Van Loan, the author has made a study of Freud's theory of dream interpretation. He has experimented in the theory that dreams are the method whereby man gives expression to his desires and volitions that common sense and expediency force him to surpress while he is awake. Friends tell their dreams to him and he in turn interprets them.

Some time ago one of his acquaintances came to him much worried over an unpleasant midnight experience that had been repeated several times. Night after night he dreamed that he was having a fist-fight with a man he had always disliked heartily. In the midst of the fight he always drew a pistol and shot his enemy dead. Mr. Van Loan assured his friend that these dreams were nothing but nature's way of giving expression to an antipathy which had to be concealed in taking life

The author thought this idea so unusual and startling that he decided to incorporate it in a story. The result is shown in "Bring Him In," which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre tonight. It is a story of the Great Northwest Mounted Police and one of those dauntless riders who trails "his man" through all the rugged wilds of the north woods.

Just the usual Capitol prices of admission.

At the Saturday matinee of Charlie Chaplin's big picture, Manager Abbey is offering a five dollar prize for the best child impersonation of "The Kid," the audience to act as judges.

—FAN—FAN

AT THE REGENT.

Shaft of Famous Gold Producer is Used in Picture.

A famous old mine known in history and started in the days of '48, during the gold rush to California, is seen in the William Duncan production, "Where Men Are Men," which will be shown at Regent theatre tonight. This mine has been worked for many years and has turned out tons of valuable ore.

The shaft was erected in the days of the gold rush, and it stands to-day practically the same as it did in the early days. While the mine is fairly well petered out, there are still traces of ore which would prove valuable if found in large quantities.

The mine at present is abandoned, but every few years prospectors work in the shaft and secure considerable pay dirt. It is believed by many old settlers that a rich vein lies just beyond the present diggings, and several are convinced that soon this mine will be in full swing and one of the principal sources of ore in the state.

The story of "Where Men are Men' deals with a plot to jump a claim owned by the hero, who, according to circumstantial evidence, believes the girl with whom he is in love is acting as tool of the villain. He later learns, however, that she is the daughter of his dead patrner and that a former sweetheart is responsible for his misfortunes.

Duncan fights his way to success through the entire film, and the production is one that will be enjoyed by all red-blooded Americans.

Light the Beacon Fires for Friends Who Drift

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service.

Winifred Black

THERE was a shipwreck out on the Pacific coast lately; a shipwreck in the wild storm and the beating waves.

The whole city knew that the ship was in danger, and no one could do a thing to help. Before the sun went down the news was abroad—there's a ship on the rocks—and the beach was black with people, watching.

But with nightfall the storm grew wilder and most of those who watched were driven home to warm suppers and snug fireplaces and pleasant company.

But a few there were who waited, and watched.

And some of these gathered driftwood—a sodden tree which had come in with the tide from who knows what far forest, a plank from some ship that sailed proudly in some forgotten day, a piece of an old wheelbarrow there was, too, they say, and all sorts and conditions of floating timber.

And they built a fire—the little handful of those who waited on the beach—a struggling fire it was, at first, and hard to keep aburning. But finally it blazed. And all night long it flamed upon the beach, a bonfire and a beacon.

And in the nearby cottages the housewives kept vigil, too, and made coffee and had the tables set, and watched, and waited. It was all that they could do, and they did it.

And in the gray dawn the ship broke in two and went down; and the sailors came ashore somehow—out of the wild waters.

Beacon Gave Them Hope.

Alive—all but one of them—bruised, beaten, spent, half-frozen, benumbed with their night of terror, but alive.

"It was the beacon fire that did it," said the captain, when they had pulled him up out of the waves and he was able to speak.

"That fire kept us alive all night. Once I thought it had gone out. 'They've given us up,' I said to the man in the rigging with me.

"'No, no,' he answered, and he spoke so loud that I heard him plain above the roar of the water and the pounding of the ship on the rocks.

"'No, no, they're putting on fresh wood'—and sure enough the flame leaped up again—the friendly flame that kept us all alive. I would have lost courage a dozen times and let go and dropped into the sea, but the flame kept telling me to hold on and wait—till daylight. So I did—and so did we all—and here we are alive, out of the cold sea—and it was the beacon fire there on the beach that did it."

The women who had watched all night hurried and found dry clothes, and the coffee was hot and strong and the bread and meat were ready, and there were a dozen anxious people to wait upon every worn and buffeted sailor, and, when the sun was fairly up, the storm was over and all was well with those who had been so little time before in desperate need and terror.

"It was the beacon fire that did it," said the captain. How true he spoke—how true.

It is the beacon fire of friendship and of love and of faith and of hope that keeps us all alive.

If it were not for that friendly fire, how many of us would last out the night of life—how many?

Oh, may I always have the courage and the kindness and the thought to keep the beacon fire burning on the beach, when the wind is high and some poor ship is beating on the rocks!

A Word Will Hearten.

The old friend of mine, how gay she used to be, how light of heart. I met her the other day. The color was gone from her face and somehow it looked gray and worn—on the rocks, the good ship youth, pounding hard on the cruel rocks. And I didn't say a word that was in my heart. I spoke to her carelessly and passed her by. How cruel of me, how bitterly cruel.

I'm going to write her a letter this very day, not a sad letter, not one that shows her that I saw the agony she was trying so hard to keep hidden—just a friendly letter telling how glad I was to see her the other day, though I didn't have time to say it then—and how much she has meant to me all my life and will always mean. I'm going to light the beacon fire.

I hope my friend will see it and take courage.

There is a man who has done something wrong, something weak and cruel and wicked, and he knows it and is ashamed of it, and no one will give him a chance to try again; oh, no, that would never do; people might think that we were weak and cruel and wicked, too, if we did that. So we must laugh at the man who has made a fool of himself and push him further into the cold sea of misery and disgrace. Look how white his face is; see the despair and loneliness in his eyes! Come, let's light the beacon fire upon the beach.

Let's go to the man and make a point of showing him by a look, by a word, by a warm clasp of the hand, that there's a chance for him yet.

Let's light the beacon fire.

"GET THE DAILY SAVING HABIT"

Blanche Sweet

Movie Star Advises Girls Who Work

By Cecile Manning

HERE are Blanche Sweet's 10 rules for saving money:

"Think twice before you open your purse.

"Have a specific reason for buying a thing. To be worth spending money for it must be useful or ornamental; owning it must give pleasure or service. When you can find no earthly reason for buying something which catches the eye, grab your purse tight and hurry along.

"Keep an expense account. When you read the entries you can judge of your business sense.

"Start a bank account. There is fascination in seeing the figure grow. There is also pleasure and sense in paying with a check. It makes you feel important, and where the change would slip through your fingers, you think twice before you write a check.

"Keep out of debt. Paying for dead horses is like having a skeleton for a chum.

"Learn to differentiate between what is necessary and what is superfluous.

"Cultivate financial prudence and learn the difference between it and stinginess.

"Don't borrow trouble, but remember that the rainy day is a cold, wet reality and that umbrellas cost money.

"Compare the time and energy required to earn a dollar with that which is necessary to careless expenditure.

"Get the saving habit."

Blanche Sweet has been a Mutual Film star for nearly three years. And she has yet to reach her 19th birthday. But she has saved money since the first day she went to work, and she says the average "movie" girl is a good business woman.

"Do you know the first and foremost requisite for a 'movie' girl?" she asked. "It is youth. Beauty and health are of minor importance. Health is next to youth and beauty is the third in importance. But the 'movie' star must be young. She must have a face free from lines, for make-up can't hide wrinkles on the screen. And her figure must be slim and girlish.

"First she has to be active. She has to run and jump and climb and be carried up and down stairs and rescued from 10th story windows, and she simply cannot have any extra weight.

"Then she is the object of some one's heart devotion. There seems to be an unwritten law that romance and fat do not go together.

"Then to get the sympathy of her audience, the heroine must have the face of a very young girl.

"Of course, after one's youth passes there is character work and minor parts to play, but the 'big money' goes to the young girls. They all know this and there seems to be a concerted effort on the part of all 'movie' stars to make hay while the sun shines.

"They pay us salaries which seem tremendous. It is not at all unusual for girls of my age to earn from one to three or four hundred dollars a week. But we all know it will only last a few years, for when we begin to lose the freshness of youth some one younger will get the plums.

"I believe all business women ought to learn how to save. Every one who earns her living has to work hard for her money. How foolish she is not to appreciate that fact and save all she can.

"I think a good way to begin to save is to have a little bank and drop into it each day whatever you can afford. The result at the end of a month will amaze you. Get the habit."

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

The Mother-in-Law Problem.

XLV.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

I HAVE always read the newspaper accounts of mother-in-laws with a sense of impatience. For the life of me I cannot understand why the people, who ought to be closest to unfledged homemakers, should turn suddenly into bothersome problems. Yet I am learning that there is a real mother-in-law problem, and as yet I have been unable to understand its tantalizing subtleties.

Nothing comes into my house that has not been previously O. K.-ed by Mrs. Penfield, Mary's mother. Now, I do not object to Mary's consulting her mother about household problems—surely it is human and natural that she should—but here is the singular element in my mother-in-law problem that I can't understand. If I wish to consult MY mother, whose good sense and kindly instinct never fails, Mary is jealous.

"Peter," she said, "I don't see why you must run to your mother with everything."

"I don't," I said mildly.

"You stop in there most every night on the way home," complained Mary, "and it makes you late for dinner."

"How many times, Mary," I flared, "do I have to wait for you when you are with your mother? And if I don't stop in to see mother nights on the way home, when am I to see her? I notice, when we plan to go visiting, you always want to go to your mother's. You don't often want to go to mine."

Now this was brutally true. And there is more which I could have said and didn't. Though mother is unfailingly kind and affectionate to Mary, Mary, I regret to say, holds herself aloof. To be sure she listens with patient civility to whatever mother may say, but I know she is inwardly champing. Mother, I think, knows it, too, but she never loses her poise. I know instinctively now that Mary is not the sort of girl mother wanted me to marry, but never by word or look has she even so much as hinted it.

On the other hand, I have had some uncomfortable sessions with Mary's mother, for Mrs. Penfield's attitude toward me is not always just or kindly. Tales of Mary's marvellous beauty and the match she should have made have taxed my patience severely.

"There's not a ghost of a doubt, Peter," Mrs. Penfield assures me with gracious inconsiderateness, "that, given the proper opportunity, Mary with her beauty could have married a duke. Beauty runs in my family."

"Opportunity," I retorted, a little nettled on one occasion, "is usually a blessing. In this instance it would have been a curse."

"Mary," flashed Mrs. Penfield, "was not made for sordid housework. She should have a maid. Look at the child's beautiful, tapering fingers."

"Mary," I replied, "was made to be a wife and a mother. Every woman was. It's nature's reason for the woman's existence."

"Then," bristled Mrs. Penfield "you consider a woman merely a beast of burden!"

I side-tracked the subject. Mary's mother and I have nearly begun quarrels this way before.

Such is the mother-in-law situation in my house. Thanks to Mary's inexperience, my mother-in-law runs my house, but, though Mary wishes jealously to keep up her own home ties, she tries to force me to break mine. I am not in the least jealous of Mary's mother. Mary is frankly jealous of mine. My wife courts her own mother's advice and resents my mother's barest suggestion.

The man who said:

"Your son's your son 'til he gets him a wife,

"Your daughter's your daughter all your life," knew exactly what he was talking about. It's true. And it's the young wife's fault. I will not let my wife estrange me from my mother, but many another man has.

Maggie Teyte's Advice to Young Pianists

MAGGIE TEYTE, prima donna soprano of the Chicago-Philadelphia opera company, was asked by a well known piano teacher to write a few hints for pupils who are specializing on the playing of accompaniments. Miss Teyte hesitated, because at various times in her career as a concert singer she has suffered at the hands of inexperienced young musicians who attempted to play her accompaniments, but finally she wrote more in kindness than in anger, as follows:

Piano playing is done with the fingers, but that is no reason for one refusing to use his brains in conjunction.

While a piano has no conscience, the player should have one when performing very late at night or very early in the morning.

Don't play with a hard touch just because the piano keys are hard.

The piano bench may be made of wood, but does that give you a right to play as if made of the same material?

Prizefighting and piano playing both require muscle, but please do not fight your innocent piano.

Time flies. It can't help that. But keep your "time" perfect.

The piano has many keys, but try always to hit the right one.

While a quick passage is called a "run." I think slow practice will improve your playing of it.

Suppose the poor old composer is dead—does that give you the right to murder his music?

It is true that the Bible says: "Let not your left hand know what your right hand doeth," but when the Bible was written there wasn't a piano in the whole wide world.

Avoid sudden and violent changes in temperature, for the transition from a frost to a roast is exceedingly undesirable.

Advice is the only thing in the world that is more blessed to give than to receive.

Said by Wise Men

He who comes up to his own idea of greatness must always have had a very low standard of it in his mind.—Ruskin.

The despotism of custom is on the wane. We are not content to know that things are; we ask whether they ought to be.—J. S. Mill.

To know that there are some souls, hearts and minds, here and there, who trust and whom we trust, some who know us and whom we know, some on whom we can always rely, and who will always rely on us, makes a paradise of this great world. This makes our life really life.—James Freeman Clarke.

The influence of custom is incalculable; dress a boy as a man, and he will at once change his conception of himself.—B. St. John.

Character is like stock in trade; the more of it a man possesses, the greater his facilities for making additions to it. Character is power—is influence; it makes friends; creates funds; draws patronage and support, and opens a sure and easy way to wealth, honor and happiness.—J. Hawes.

Men are won, not so much by being blamed as by being encompassed with love.—Channing.

Even with a Crutch

By Tom Jackson

THE tango now is all the rage—they dance it ev'rywhere. 'Tis full of steps, some on the floor, and others in the air. It hardly is the proper thing for persons who are fat. To tango, one should be quite thin—likewise an acrobat.

In tango one must glide, and slide, and run, and dip, and twist, indulge in ev'ry circus stunt that is upon the list. Woe to the maid with garments light, who tries the tango dance, for soon indeed she'll quit the floor, or call an ambulance. The tango craze is spreading fast; all hands are jumping in—from beardless youth, to Grandpa with white whiskers on his chin.

They jitsu-jitsu with the girls, declaring it is grand, and turn flip-flops and somersaults, to music of the band. They dislocate their ankles, but they do not worry much. A tango fiend will tango if he has to use a crutch. In ballrooms that are up to date soon signs like this we'll see:

"Music Furnished by Sig. Dago. Splints by Ima Quack, M. D."

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Fingers Are Guide-Posts to Traits of Character

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

Copyright, 1914, by L. K. Hirshberg.

DR. HIRSHBERG

WHAT would a fish do without fins? What would a whale do without a tail? What would a diamond merchant or a lecturer do without hands?

Really, it is more serious than humorous to say that many men would be speechless if their hands were cut off. For it is a fact, only of late disputed, that the dexterity of your right hand is symmetrically correspondent with the power of speech.

In fine, the precise area in the brain which controls your skilful muscular hand also directs your vocal ingenuity. To say that a man is making money hand over fist is synonymous with the phrase which says that money talks.

The hands are looked upon superstitiously by palmists; with a definite purpose by criminologists, and with a view to the knowledge of efficiency by psychologists and shop managers.

The idealistic hand with its delicate, long, tapering fingers is, to the others to be mentioned, tested by savants with new psychological instruments.

The realistic hand has short, square fingers. The energetic hand is flat, firm and all aquiver. Rough fingers with knotted joints indicate a philosophic temperament.

A Sign of Strength.

Hypocrites, frauds, overestimated experts and common scolds often have highly polished, long, elegant looking hands.

In the pseudo-science of cheiromancy the character is supposed to be read from the lines, hollows and hills in the palm of the hand. The ball of the thumb is called the mount of Venus, the hollow of the palm is the plain of Mars.

Shaking hands to bind a bargain, as well as a cheerful greeting, comes down to us as a sign of strength and health. The hand signifies strength and is accompanied by some healthful salutation—

"Let my hand——
This hand, lie in your own—my own true friend!
Hand in hand with you."

"Does its beauty refine, as its pulses grow calm,
Or has Sorrow now crossed the life-line in the palm?"

The well equipped, perfect hand must, to be sure, have four fingers and a thumb, which curves gracefully like the new moon. The middle finger must be as much longer than the ring finger and fore finger as the length of its whole nail.

Some Abnormal Hands.

The thumb in the open hand must not reach the first knuckle of the forefinger. The little finger should just barely reach to the second, outer, knuckle of the ring finger.

Dr. Forster gives a sketch of a hand with nine fingers. There are several recorded instances of thirteen and a dozen fingers upon one hand. Two thumbs are not rare.

The influence of heredity upon such anomalies has given a serious impetus to the study of eugenics. Eugenics is an important branch of human knowledge on the side of suspending, checking or negativizing the wicked outcome of heredity in defective families. Upon its positive side, it remains to be tested in the dim and distant future.

Dr. Reaumur first showed the hereditary effects of these supernumerary fingers. In one family of Malta he showed the fingers to increase in five generations and then to recede and disappear by intermarriages with normal persons.

There should be rigid laws everywhere against marriages between cousins. Thus a family in the tribe of Hyabites, which lives in Arabia, are very numerous. All marriages are confined to the tribe. They all have 24 fingers and infants born with less are sacrificed.

The inhabitants of a village in France, at the end of the last century, had extra fingers. They lived in an inaccessible, mountainous region.

Double-length fingers, twice as large as the other fingers on the same hand, also occur.

Club-fingers, like club-foot, are also known. These are deformities which run in families and often skip several generations.

Answers to Health Questions

MRS. MARY A., Philadelphia, Pa.—I live with a family where there is a cancer. Is it dangerous?

Cancers of certain animals have been found by Drs. Murphy and Peyton Rous of the Rockefeller Institute to be due to ultra-microscopic parasites. It is therefore advisable to err on the safe side and assume that human cancers are also induced by germs.

If you can obtain individual china, linens, glassware and the like I beleive you, with your youth and outdoor life, will be safe.

Daddy's Good Night Story—

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

"WELL, upon my word!" exclaimed Brer Rabbit one evening, as he turned the page of The Woodland News. "Here is a story by my good son Jack."

"Read it to me," said Mrs. Rabbit, as she sat down to darn Billy's stockings.

Brer Rabbit put his pipe on the table and read:

THE GOOD FAIRY.
by JACK RABBIT.

"In the long ago there lived a Little Rabbit, and he wasn't a bit like other rabbits, 'cause his ears were short.

"Every day he used to go off in the woods all by himself, away from the other rabbits, and cry and cry so that it was strange he had any tears left.

"He was sitting on a mossy bank as the sun was going down one day, when his tears fell on a little violet.

"'Thank you,' said a tiny voice.

"The Little Rabbit thought it was the violet, for he knew the voice of all the flowers in Woodland.

"'Why do you thank me?' asked the Little Rabbit.

"'Because your tears sprinkled me like the rain, and it hasn't rained here in a long time,' said the violet.

"That pleased the Little Rabbit so much that he lay back on the moss and went fast asleep.

"He dreamed that a Good Fairy came out of the violet and said to him:

"'Why do you always cry, my little friend?'

"'Because my ears are so short,' answered the Little Rabbit.

"'Would you stop crying if I made them longer?' asked the Good Fairy.

"'Indeed I would,' replied the Little Rabbit.

"'Well,' said the Good Fairy, 'you must get up and turn around three times. Then I will touch your ears with my magic wand and you can then feel of your ears.'

"Up jumped the Little Rabbit and hurriedly turned around three times. The Good Fairy smiled as she touched his ears with her wand.

"The Little Rabbit then felt of them and they were long again.

"Just then he woke up and it was quite dark.

"He scampered home as fast as he could, but when he got home his mother didn't know him.

"The Good Fairy appeared suddenly and told his mother how she had changed his ears.

"The Little Rabbit stopped crying so much and they lived happily ever after."

Change of Propositions.

"Did I understand you to say that he was broken in spirits?"

"No. I said he was broken by spirits."

Decision Readymade.

"He said he could not decide whether to propose to the widow or her daughter. What did he do about it?"

"Oh, the widow decided for him."

Realistic.

"Was Mrs. Peck's portrait a success?"

"It is a talking likeness."

A Hard Campaign.

"He looks like a battle-scarred veteran. Where did he receive all those wounds?"

"He was a delegate to a peace conference."

"It is nothing better than buccaneering for any clique to step in and seize the Government without an appeal to the people.'

HELD A BAZAAR

St. Luke's Women's Guild, whose bazaar of two days concluded last evening, report a very successful affair, and a splendid attendance. Four guessing contests in connection with the bazaar were won by the following: Weight of cake: Mrs. George Page, of Havelock. (Mrs. Page may get this cake at St. Luke's Rectory). Number of stitches in handkerchief, Mrs. Nicholls, Otonabee. Naming the doll; Mrs. T. H. Adams. The fancy apron went to Mr. T. H. Adams.

HOLDING A BAZAAR.

The ladies of the 57th Regimental Chapter, I.O.D.E., have contrived a very attractive setting for their bazaar in the Young Men's Christian Association rooms. The large entrance hall and the tea-room are prettily arranged with large flags and bowls of narcissus, and the room where the sale is going on is bright with Christmas festoons in red and green and enormous bells. There are all sorts of pretty things on view, everything is of the daintiest nature, and there is some exquisite fancy work. Useful and fancy underwear in pinks, creams and whites, the flimsiest of small handkerchiefs, a Touch and Taste novelty box ,tables for candy and a great variety of aprons, large and small, and an enormous Christmas stocking at the door make a good showing. Mrs. F. S. Schneider is convenor; Mrs. D. Walker and Mrs. W. H. Hill have the fancy work; Mrs. V. Eastwood the underwear; Mrs. W. M. Bingham and Miss E. Langford handkerchiefs and novelties; Mrs. Joseph Munro the candy; Mrs. Jno. Holmes the aprons, and Mrs. Joseph Mills has charge of the tea room. Arrangements for to-day are in charge of Mrs. H. M. Yelland and Mrs. A. E. Dickson. To-morrow Mrs. H. O. Fiske will be in charge. Tea will be served both days and a musical programme given in the afternoons and evenings.

WINNERS IN THE BREAD CONTEST

JUDGES HAD A HARD TIME TO SELECT THE BEST BREADMAKERS

"If all the women could bake bread like this, there wouldn't be much need of the bakers," was the pronouncement of one of the judges yesterday as he surveyed the mound of home made loaves which have come piling in to the third floor of the Turnbull Company's establishment in response to their advertisement of a bread making contest in connection with their annual Christmas sale of Knechtel kitchen cabinets.

The entries in this contest reached a surprisingly large number, over 200 loaves being submitted from housewives in Peterboro,Ennismore, Lakefield, Millbrook and Omemee.

Large and small, pallid and brown, in singles and doubles and triplets, long and narrow, round and squat, one tied up neatly with a ribbon, and another boasting a glazed sugar coating, they overflowed on the tables and desks.

Mr. Thomas Hooper, armed with a long and deadly looking knife, surveyed the array rather disconsolately, and Mr. H. Rush, the second judge, followed him around, gazing at sundry overgrown samples, and tasting a piece now and the. "It is all excellet bread," they averred, "and we are going to have a hard time in picking out the three winners."

"All the bread was to be made from Reindeer flour, and was judged according to the grain, the shape and the color. When sent in the name tags weer removed and numbers substituted, to facilitate impartial judging.

The Knechtel cabinet, which is described as one of the best on the market to-day, comes in three styles. It has all the latest labor saving devices, and every detail has been produced with an eye to convenience and efficiency. With the corners braced especially to prevent spreading, with dust proof interiors, handy sliding doors, compartments for flour, sugar and every necessity in baking, card indexes, for recipes and household hints.

There are sections beneath for bread and cake, sliding bread-tables, drawers for linen and cutlery. It provides an admirable kitchen accessory for the busy housewife.

The first prize, donated by the J. C. Turnbull Company, is a baking cabinet of white enamel, with solid porcelain top, flour bin, bread and cake box, cutlery drawer and large pan. It was won by Mrs. William J. Pope, 555 King street.

The second prize, also donated by the Turnbull Company is a white enamel kitchen table with porcelain top and cutlery drawer, was won by Mrs. Ford, 4 Knox street, East City.

The third award a 98 lb. bag of Reindeer flour, given by the Peterboro Cereal Company, went to Mrs. H J. Archambault, 524 Murray St.

Owing to their inability to decide on the comparative excellence of some of the loaves, the two judges last night enlisted the services of another expert, Mr. James Dutton, and the awards were finally made this morning. The different entries, with the prize winning loaves, will be on exhibition this evening, and to-morrow morning in the Simcoe street window of the Turnbull store after which they will be distributed amongst the charitable institutions of the ctiy.

SPORT GOSSIP

Cressman's and Belmonts were returned winners in the City Basketball League at the Y.M.C.A. gym last night, Cressman's finished on the long end of a 59 to 16 score, and Belmonths defeated Canadian Packers by the score of 35 to 17. Walter Smaill refereed the games.

Cressman's are leading the league with three straight wins. They were much the better team last night, showing nice team work and accurate shooting. Everybody took a hand in the scoring. Walter Jackson also had the range on the basket, and turned in a nice game for Eko Club.

Belmonts and Canadian Packers had a lively contest in which spills were numerous. Frank Jobbitt started the club quintette away right after the whistle. The Packers came right back but as the game progressed the Belmonts piled up a lead and they were always well in front. Belmonts excelled in shooting.

SINN FEINERS ASSAULT JAIL, ARE CAPTURED

DARING ATTEMPT MADE TO RELEASE PRISONERS IN JAIL AT LONDONDERRY THS MORNING

TWO GUARDS KILLED

BELFAST, Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press).—In an attack on Londonderry Jail this morning with the object of releasing the prisoners, two policemen were killed and several of the attackers captured.

When the police guards saw a rope ladder hanging over the wall they found that the attackers had entered the jail. The military guards investigated and found two policemen who guarded the Sinn Feiners lying dead on the floor, having been either poisoned or strangled. The Republicans had forced the doors of ten cells when they were surprised. The guards finally gained the upper hand, capturing three Republicans and three motor cars which had been left with the engines running.

PRESENT PROPOSALS.

LONDON, Dec. 2. — (Canadian Press.)— The Government's latest proposals to the Sinn Fein show some advances over previous proposals and they will be considered by the Dail Eireann Cabinet Saturday. They concede the Sinn Fein claim for unity. Ulster must be included and remain in for six months, after which period she will be given the option to withdraw. The proposals are the result of an all-day effort and were submitted to Arthur Griffith at one-thirty this morning. He left a few hours later with Gavan Duffy for Dublin.

ARE TO RATION WORK ON SEWER LAYING TO 100

20 MEN WILL BE EMPLOYED ON EACH SHIFT OF TWO WEEKS, ACCORDING TO PRESENT PLANS

TO LAST TEN WEEKS

The works department have made a start on the programme of sewer laying that will add another mile of sewer to the already extensive system. About 20 men are now employed at 40 cents an hour, but they will only receive two weeks' work, for there are 100 men to be taken care of. On this basis a man would get two weeks' work out of ten, and it is believed the work will only take about ten weeks.

At present the men are working on Walnut street. The City Engineer has been considering putting on another gang of men, but it will be left to the Council to decide on Monday night at the last meeting of the 1921 Council.

The sewers, with their cost, that are being laid are as follows:

Park street, from McDonnel, 156 feet southerly, $854.52.

Rubidge street, from end of present sewer to Murray street, $712.20.

Murray street, from Rubidge street to Stewart street, $926.58.

Stewart street, from Murray street to end of present sewer on Stewart street, $287.15.

Woodbine avenue, from Armour Road to a point 150 feet east of Erskine street, $3,927.85.

Euclid avenue, from Armour road to Cameron street, $6,139.48.

Munroe avenue, from Armour road to Knox street, $2,755.34.

Hazlitt street, from Armour road to Rogers street, $2,717.20.

Sutherland Place, from Rogers street to west end of Sutherland Place, $818.40.

Customs Receipts Take Large Slump

ONLY HALF THOSE FOR LAST NOVEMBER—BIRTHS AND DEATHS DECREASE.

Customs receipts for November were very small and only about half the amount for the corresponding period last year. November's total was $46,812.97.

A decrease in deaths and births in the city during November is indicated by the vital statistics for the month. In October there were 57 births and 32 deaths; in November 49 births and 24 deaths. Marriages show an increase from 16 to 28. A general increase in all statistics over the corresponding month of 1920 was shown. In November 1920, there were 21 marriages, 37 births and 22 deaths.

DAN WHETUNG WRITES TO THE WEATHER MAN

Mr. Walter Peters, it seems that he is forgetting Dan, where he says, that "many enquiries have been made as to whether we are likely to have a severe or an open winter. No man knows. Neither Dan." Some of them will remember what I told them 5 or 6 weeks ago. As long as you see the moon away down south we will not have much cold weather.—Dan.

In my little weather note yesterday I did not mention our friend, Dan, by name, though I did have him in mind. I avoided mentioning him because I felt that after the utter breakdown of his prediction for last winter, it might not be wise. "Safety First" is a good motto for all of us, and while I have endeavored at different times to get a definite statement from Mr. Whetung as to what the coming winter will be like, he has been non-committal in his replies. His above statement is the most definite that I have had.—W.P.

ROTARIANS MUST LEARN ART OF BEING FRIENDLY, CORDIAL, HELPFUL

THIS WAS MESSAGE BROUGHT BY HART I. SEELY, OF WAVERLY, N.Y., TO PETERBORO' ROTARY CLUB.

HAPPY LUNCHEON HOUR

(By F. H. Dobbin).

Rotary Club has had several interesting gatherings, but it may be doubted if anything preceding has had so much of fraternal interest as the meeting on Thursday, Dec. 1st. For there had come to town Mr. Hart I. Seely, Governor of the 4th Rotary District, which includes the State of New York and the Canadian territory on this side of Lake Ontario. Mr. Seely was on a missionary tour, and as an exponent of Rotary. He has given up his business (manufacturer of gloves, and such things in leather) and is devoting one whole year in an earnest propaganda and personal service to the cause. He lives at Waverley, N.Y., a place of about five thousand in population, though the burg is just like Peterborough, only being on the state lines of New York and Pennsylvania, much as we have East City opposite and across the river. Grouped together the population would run to about ten thousand.

The directors of the local club got together in the morning at ten o'clock and had what the junior boys describe as "a course of sprouts," meaning a general talk and instruction from the Governor. He answered all questions, affirmed all positions, unravelled several knots, smoothed out a variety of wrinkles, and generally ran a most beneficient smoothing iron over all difficulties. It was simply fine. Added much of instruction and enthused the directorate. Gave all a very much better conception of the possibilities of Rotary. Ran over the list of committees and discussed the particular function of each and how it could grapple best with its duties. All this took up from ten to twelve o'clock. By that time others were gathering for luncheon, and general greetings were extended.

For Boys' Camp.

During the time of consuming luncheon business was taken up by Chairman Fred. Roy, who attends to edifying the members to the extent that he has little time to eat. It might be well to give him an assistant to do the eating while he is busy with the rulings of the club. Rotarian Oswald Scott, of Belleville, sent in on paper the congratulations of Belleville Rotary at the fine time they all had in Peterborough on the 28th, day and night. The returns were handed in and show that the club, by its venture and the industry of Rotarian Claude Rogers and others, gleaned to the extent of $347.67 of clean profit. That goes to the Boys' Camp Fund. Salt it down. Vote of thanks to all concerned.

Business Relations.

The Entertainment Committee was looked up and, so to speak, sandpapered and varnished and made as good as new by the appointment of Rev. W. Harold Young as permanent chairman, with several members to do his bidding. Committee will now function properly. A Committee on Business Relations was named, with Rotarian Andrew Brown as chairman, and Rotarians E. B. Fowler and J. M. Green to help hold up the hands of the brother as first named. Committee approved. The Committee on Classifications seemed to need a little recuperation, and Rotarians J. H. Seals, James Hamilton and Sam. Holden were officially denuted to attend to details. All approved.

Christmas Treat.

The Entertainment Committee was authorized to look into the matter of a children's treat for Christmas, and to report. This suggestion was received with three cheers. The committee to be speedy and not to take too long in looking into the proposition. Will likely get to business after the perplexities of polling day.

To give to the Old Home Week enterprise that view of solidity and responsibility that it should have to gain the respect of the public, Rotarians Edgar Worth and Dr. McPherson were named as Rotarians to work with the men on the Old Home Week management and to help find a lot of money if such should be required. None better could have been selected.

As a final round to formal business three new members were welcomed, being Rotarians Dr. N. D. Buchanan, J. M. Greene, and Thos. Eshgrave. These were taken in with tokens of recognition and approval. All looked happy. Most agreeable thing to be in Rotary.

Rotarian Governor of District 4 Seely spoke for too short a time. Just the personality that attracts other men. Cheerful, hearty, a ready speaker and a reserve of information and the skill to use it that made his talk a most happy incident of the luncheon hour. His message, introduced with a telling anecdote or two, was that Rotarians must learn the art of being friendly, cordial and helpful. It was an expression of vital brotherhood. Membership gave the opportunity of forming lasting and mutually helpful friendships.

To get the best service make use of the men, or groups of men to accomplish. Take boys' work. Recognize your duty to your own boy, then to the boy of your neighbor.

TO DECIDE ON SEWAGE PLANT TYPE TONIGHT

MATTER BROUGHT TO A HEAD BY ULTIMATUM FROM TOWN. SHIPS DEMANDING DECISION BY DEC. 5.

SPECIAL MEETING CALLED

The City Council meet to-night to reach a definite decision on the construction of a sewage disposal plant, the matter having been brought to a final head by an ultimatum from the adjoining townships asking for a decision on or before Dec. 5th.

The Council was not to have met till Monday, but the letter from the solicitors for the townships to City Solicitor Widdifield has made a meeting to-night imperative. A copy of the letter, which is a virtual ultimatum from the townships, is as follows:

Peterborough, Ont,
Nov. 28th, 1921.

C. R. Widdifield, Esq.,
City Solicitor, Peterborough.

Dear Sir,—Re Otonabee et al vs. City of Peterborough.

From the reports published in the Peterborough Examiner of a recent meeting of the City Council, it appears that the Public Health Board have definitely refused any approval whatever of the Imhoff sewage disposal plant for the City of Peterborough. It also appears that the Board has given its express approval to the activated sludge plan prepared by the City Engineer.

It would appear, therefore, that there is nothing whatever to prevent the city authorities proceeding with the sewage disposal plant.

Our clients have instructed us to obtain forthwith satisfactory assurances that the city will immediately proceed to construct a sewage disposal plant in accordance with the plans approved of by the Board of Health. We must ask such assurances to be furnished us on or before Dec. 5th, as we desire to be in a position to serve notice of trial for the December court if the position taken by your client is not a satisfactory one.

Yours truly,
Peck, Kerr and McElderry.

NEGOTIATING FOR LOAN TO GERMANY

LONDON, Dec. 2. — (Canadian Press.)—Herr Rathenau is negotiating with Sir Robert Horne and the Bank of England for a loan of fifty million pounds to Germany.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.— (Canadian Press)— Opening wheat prices which ranged from a 1-2 cent decline to a 1-8 cent gain with December 1.13 1-4 to 1.13 1-2 and May 1.16 1-2 to 1.17 were followed by moderat upturns all around and then something of a reaction.

Wet weather in the corn belt gave firmness to corn and oats Corn opened 1-8 off to 1-4 up, May 54 1-8 to 54 3-8, and then scored a moderate general advance. Oats started unchanged to 1-4 higher, May 38 3-8, and then hardened a little more.

EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press).— Sterling Exchange weak, Demand Great Britain 4.04 3-8; Canadian Exchange 8 1-4 per cent. discount.

BRIAND FACING STORM TUESDAY

HAVRE, Dec. 2.— (Canadian Press.)—Premier Briand reached here from Washington and was greeted with deference but without enthusiasm. He was met ten miles out by the entire Cabinet on a tug and transferred to a destroyer. A heavy sea was running but his opponents made no pretence of hiding that it was balmy as compared to the storm he will face in the Chamber of Deputies Tuesday. He chatted animatedly with his Ministers, and Minister of the Interior Marraud informed him of the gossip and events transpiring since he departed for Washington.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, December 2. Canadian Press. — Gains and losses in shares of the same description again reflected the divergence of speculative sentiment at the opening of today's stock market. General Electric was the leading feature, soon rising 3 points, and Standard Oil of New Jersey continued its upward course at a gain of 2 1-4 points. Mercantile Marine preferred and American International also were strong, and Sears, Roebuck common and preferred rallied moderately on the retention of the preferred dividend. Rails displayed further irregularity within a narrow range. American Sugar, American Car and Royal Dutch weer under pressure. The leading foreign exchanges reacted from yesterday's highest levels, sterling, francs and marks making sharp reversals.

Standard Oil of New Jersey reacted five points at midday, presumably on realizing sales, and rails showed further neglete. In most other counters however, particularly among steels, equipments, coppers, foreign oils, shippings, rubbers and tobaccos the gains of the morning were extended.

Independent steels, especially those most prominenty mentioned in merger rumors, became the market leaders before noon. Lackawanna, Republic and Midvale rose three to five points and Bethlehem, Crucible, Gulf States and Sloss-Shef field were one to three points higher Gentral Electric and Standard Oil of New Jersey extended their gains with Standard Oil of California. Coppers, Shippings, International Paper and American Woollens were included among the conspiciously strong features. Rails remained sluggish, the investment group continuing to ease. Foreign exchange showed further unsettlement after a moderate rally. Call money opened at five per cent.

MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press).— The feature of the early trading this morning on the local stock exchange was Detroit United Railway which registered A 2 1-2 point advance to 72 1-2. This issue did not appear at all vesterde . Abitibi was down three quarters at 30 1-8 and Atlantic Sugar was weaker by one quarter at 31 1-4. Brompton last a point to 23 while Laurentide sagged one and half points to 74 1-4.

TORONTO

TORONTO, Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press).—The local stock exchange was again quiet and featureless this morning. Trading almost reached vanishing point and in no case did total sales for any one listed stock reach fifty shares. Imperial Oil in the unlisted section was active with prices ranging from 113 to 118.

The Labrador Medical Mission

The annual business meeting of the Labrador Medical Mission in connection with Dr. Grenfell's work in Labrador, was held yesterday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A with Mrs. W. R. Morris presiding.

Reports of the secretary and treasurer were read, disclosing a very satisfactory condition of affairs During the past year, receipts from the annual drive for funds were dispatched to Ottawa to the amount of $561.35, and the sum of $45 was deposited in the bank. A bale valued in the neighborhood of $400 was also sent to the Canadian Hospital in Labrador. Mrs. R. Denne, convenor of the Dorcas committee, also read a brief report. The report of the secretary embodied an expression of regret at the demise of one of the members of the Society, Miss Traill of Lakefield, and reported also the generous response from the Sunday Schools of the city when asked to contribute to the annual drive. "It is felt", said the secretary, "that it would be impossible to estimate the far-reaching influence of such an appeal to the children."

Election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Presiden, Mrs. W. R. Morris;; Vice President, Miss Halliday; Secretary Mrs. F. M. Somerville; Treasurer Mrs. James Wood; Press Committee; Mrs. R. Denne, convenor, Mesdames Braley, Walsh, Gilbert Blois and Garside.

Sale of Labrador Work

The exhibit and sale of Labrador work held yesterday afternoon at the Y.W.C.A. was very well attended and the sale resulted in a very nice sum being collected. Ladies of the local Labrador Medical Mission society had charge of the arrangements, and afternoon tea was served, with Mrs. Roland Denne and Mrs. Walsh in charge.

The exhibit of work was very interesting. It is entirely different from anything ever seen here at the stores, and has the added advantage of being hand-made in every particular hand-looms being used for the making of the odd rugs, with the atmosphere of the savage North in their woven designs of reindeer, husky dogs and miniature fir trees. Homespun mats in quiet colors which may be laundered, square litte hand-bags with careful silk tassels, cubiform toys of hard wood, ent and shaped in the form of tiny Northland men, reindeer and dogs, a balancing walrus with wicked fangs, warm, serviceable mittens they all testify to the excellent work being done among these people by the teachers in the Industrial Department of the Labrador Medical Mission.

REDUCE WAGES OF UTILITIES STAFF 10 P.C.

CLAIM REDUCTIONS WARRANTED BY LOWERED LIVING COST—LABORERS' PAY UNCHANGED

$750 TO SUPERINTENDENT

A reduction approximating 10 per cent. was made in the salaries and wages of the staff and employees of the Utilities Commission at a meeting last night. The list was revised downward in every category except that of laborers, who will still receive 40 and 45 cents an hour, which is considered by the Commission to be only a fair wage.

The reduction of salaries has been under consideration for some time, and while there was some compunction about pruning the list, it was felt the revision was warranted by the reduction in the cost of living.

The reductions made were as follows:

Waterworks superintendent from $3,300 to $3,000.

Chief pump house operator from $140 to $120 per month.

Two assistant pump house operators from $115 to $100.

Clerk in superintendent's office from $120 to $110 per month.

Waterworks foreman from 65 to 57 1-2 cents per hour.

Waterworks pipe-layers from 52 1-2 cents to 47 1-2 cents per hour.

Manager of electrical department from $3,500 to $3,200.

Accountant from $2,400 to $2,000.

Meter reader from $100 to $90 per month.

Meter inspectors from $140 to $125.

Meter repairers from $125 to $112.50.

Office help, minimum of $45 per month; maximum from $75 to $70 per month.

Electrical foreman from $190 to $175 per month.

Linemen from 65c. to 57 1-2 cents per hour.

Trimmers from 55 to 50 cents per hour.

Meter installers from 55 to 50 cents per hour.

Groundmen from 45 to 40 cents per hour.

Saving in Commission.

In view of the statement of Wm. Kennedy, Jr., in a letter, that he quoted a very considerable less rate for his engineerng services in connection with the filtration plant than is commonly paid, and much below the rate for his services elsewhere, and that his reason for doing so was that he considered Mr. R. L. Dobbin, waterworks superintendent, who would have direct charge of the construction in his absence was so well qualified to carry out the work entrusted to him that he would be relieved of considerable responsibility and would thus have to devote less of his time to the work than would otherwise be the case, and also in view of the fact that the superintendent made a large saving for the Commission in the work at the filter plant by him instead of by contract, it was resolved that the Superintendent be paid a bonus of $750 for services in connection with the construction of the plant, to be paid upon the construction of the plant being completed and properly operating.

Rate of Discount.

It was resolved that the discount on water rates for prompt payment from Janaury 1st, 1922 be 20 per cent. if paid within ten days from the mailing or delivery of the accounts and 10 per cent. if paid between 10 and 20 days after the mailing or delivery of the accounts.

SOCIAL PROBLEMS UNDER DISCUSSION

COMMITTEE OF THE SOCIAL SERVICE COUNCIL ARE AT WORK

A meeting of the Social Service Council took place last evening in the Y.M.C.A., with Rev. F. E. Malott presiding. Between 30 and 40 people attended the meeting, with several ladies.

Several matters of importance were discussed, and the meeting was made very interesting by the active interest manifested in the proceedings. The matter of a Juvenile court in the city, which has already been laid before the Kiwanis club by the president of the Social Service Council, Mr. Malott, and has been broached also by several welfare organizations in the city, was gone into thoroughly. A committee, composed of Rev. W. H. Young, Adjutant Bunton, Mrs. W. R. Morris, Mrs. E. V. Frederick and Mr. F. D. Kerr, was appointed to co-operate with other welfare organizations who have this court in mind, with a view to bringing a speaker, probably Judge Mott of the Juvenile Court in Toronto(to the city in January to lay the mater before the citizens of Peterborough.

The question of a paid social worker was left over for future consideration, and the third important consideration which came up last evening was the problem of the homeless baby. The Children's Aid Society have been doing a great deal of good work in connection with these small atoms of homeless humanity, but are not allowed to receive them into the Shelter under two years of age. The Salvation Army also renders splendid service along these lines, but the problem is becoming too big a one to cope with in any but an organized, systematic way.

Dr. Blagrave and Rev. F. E. Malott were appointed to look into the matter and endeavor to come to some understanding with the authorities, whereby a proper solution of the difficulty may be arrived at.

WRECKAGE STREWS INNER VIENNA AS RESULT OF RIOTS

VIENNA, Dec. 2. — (Canadian Press). — The inner city of Vienna this morning looked as though it had been struck by a tornado as a result of yesterday's rioting. The leading hotels, restaurants and stores dealing in luxuries were completely wrecked and the streets were littered with debris. Police stood idly by, some even expressing sympathy with the mobs. There were no deaths, but many were injured.

ELECTION NEWS

HON. MACKENZIE KING WINDS UP CAMPAIGN

NORTH BAY, Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.)— Winding up his campaign with the exception of several meetings in North York Friday and Saturday, Hon. Mackenzie King spoke last night to a capacity audience here after having covered eight of the nine provinces of the Dominion. He reviewed the arguments which he has been presenting for the last two and a half months and which he declared showed full promise of resulting in the reutrn of a Liberal administration. The people, he said, were determined to end of the power of the Meighen government. There had been altogether too much usurpation of the public rights and protection of the Government's friends at the expense of the tax payers." The most certain thing about the election was that Mr. Meighen and his friends would meet defeat.

MEIGHEN ATTACKS KING'S STAND ON PUB. OWNERSHIP

NEWMARKET, Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—Premier Meighen invaded the constituency of North York, referred to by some political speakers as the cradle of Liberalism last night. The reception accorded the Premier in the large rink was a hearty one and there were practically no interruptions. Referring to public versus private ownership he declared that Hon. Mr. King left himself free to climb down upon either side of the fence just as he did on the tariff and other questions. He discussed the Riordon charges, and argued for a policy of moderate protection.

CRERAR SAYS FARMERS MUST HAVE MARKETS

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Dec. 2.—(Canadain Press.)—Replying to a heckler here last night who asked "how about those false bottoms of yours?" Hon. T. A. Crerar answered that "the false bottoms are not mine. They are in the government and they will fall out on election day." Three-quarters of the farmers, he said, operated during the year at a loss and there had been equally unsatisfactory conditions in some sections of the east. He denied that any government marketing board could bring back prosperity to the farmer. The farmers must have profitable markets for their produce and they must be able to buy what they need at reasonable prices.

Ribbon is still used on the new hats. Narrow ribbons are looped and doubled to form a bristling surface over the entire hat. Long ribbons are looped in streamers over on side of the brim. Wide ribbons are knotted into high ornaments on the front of high hat crowns.

BETHANY AND THE DISTRICT

MEETING IN THE INTERESTS OF THE FORWARD MOVEMENT WAS A SUCCESS.

BETHANY, Dec. 2.— The members of St. Mary's parish and the members of St. Paul's parish held a joint meeting in the town hall on Wednesday evening in connection with the Forward Movement in the different church regarding increased membership and increased church going. The meeting was of unsual interest and about 200 persons attended. Among the speakers present were Rev. Canon Marsh of Lindsay, Rev. Canon J. C. Davidson of Peterborough, Rev. C. R. Spencer of Millbrook, Rev. McConnachie of Lindsay, Rev. A. T. Wier, also a number of wardens from the different congregations. Epworth League.

The Epworth League of the Methodist church was held in the Sunday school room as usual on Wednesday evening. About thirty-five members were present. As it was citizenship night the programme was in charge of the Tuxis boys. The opening devotional exercises were taken by the president, Miss Gertrude Dewell, who gave the programme over into the hands of Dept. Mentor Mr. P. C. Brown. The Tuxis boys excelled in their programme. The subject, the depopulation of the rural districts, was given by three young men. Mr. Donald Lowes told some of the causes of this, as did Mr. Harry Lee. Then Mr. Bertrand Monk told how the church could help to keep the young people in the country. All three addresses were fine and showed the ability of these young men. Humorous recitations were given by Theodora Davis and Ormond Wright. Two quartettes were given, "The Church in the Wildwood," and "Heaven is My Home." These were both well given. The Mizpah Benediction brought the meeting to a close.

ARGENTINE CONVENTION FRIENDLY TO IRELAND

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 2.—The first Argentinian convention, just held here, at which Laurence Ginnell, the Irish Envoy, was the principal speaker voted to send delegates to the Universal Irish Race Conference, to be held in Paris net January. All the business of the convention was discussed on the basis of an Ireland completely independent as a nation, including a proposal to seek the establishment of consulates by Argentina and Ireland in Buenos Aires and Dublin, respectively, and measures to promote the interchange of commerce between Ireland and Argentina.

It was contended that Argentina could find a good market in Ireland for her produce in exchange for Irish manufactured goods, which speakers declared, "owing to British control actually pass for British."

In addressing the convention, Mr. Ginnell said:

"If Great Britain wants peace it is only necessary to leave us alone."

The convention was attended for the most part by Argentinian residents of Irish origin.

CANADA CLAIMS 22 MILLION OF HUN INDEMNITY

EXPECTED THAT MANY ADDITIONAL CLAIMS FOR WAR LOSSES WILL BE FILED IN NEAR FUTURE.

ARMENIANS ASK SHARE

OTTAWA, Dec. 2.(—By Canadian Press) —Already 659 claims, aggregating $22,494,979.25, have been filed with Major H. Spencer Ralph, of the Department of the Secretary of State, for reparation for illegal acts of warfare committed on Canadians and Canadian property by Germany and her allies during the war. It is anticipated that many additonl claims will be made and that their total value will run into many millions of dollars. Sir Douglas Hazen, who has been appointed to investigate these claims will decide the amounts the claimants are to receive. The claims, after investigation, will be paid from Canada's share of the indemnity secured by Great Britain from Germany on this account. Canada will receive 4.35 per cent. of Great Britain's 22' per cent. of the total reparation assessed against Germany by the Allied nations.

Claims already submitted cover losses through torpedoing of merchant ships, lives of sailors and passengers, loss of property seized by Germany in other countries, restraint of persons, personal injuries following air raids and for the maltreatment of prisoners of war. Perhaps the most peculair claims are those of Armenian residents in Canada for losses alleged to have suffered by them as a result of the Turkish atrocities in Armenia. They are ninety one of these claims totalling $1,167,168.85.

The Department has received 119 claims for ships, cargoes and merchandise lost at sea. These claims total $16,958, 379.48. There are 58 claims totaling $1,134,251.11 based on passengers losing their lives at sea, and 194 claims totalling $239,-566.82 for the loss of personal effects of passengers. For the lives of sailors lost at sea two claims have been submitted totalling $137,639.83 and 21 claims for the loss of personal effects of sailors with a value of $7,769.25. The loss of personal effects of fishermen has brought in 46 claims valued at $23,968.65.

The total value of the claims for losses at sea is $18,501,595.14.

Claims for losses of property on land total $2,825,215.26. Of this the largest amount is $2,117,154.65 for goods seized abroad. An instance of this is found in the claims for Canadian property seized by the Germans on the wharves of Antwerp. Thre are eight claims for loss of life on land totalling $157,173.80, and 25 claims for illegal restraint valued at $271,898.20. Under personal injury there are 42 claims totalling $279,988.52.

DEFENCE WITNESS IN ARBUCKLE CASE IS FOUND DRUGCED

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.)— Mrs. Irene Morgan, defense witness in the Roscoe Arbuckle trial, was found unconscious in her room at the Clift Hotel. According to the house physician, she had been drugged.

C.E.F. RECORD BROUGHT UP IN ARBUCKLE CASE

CANADIAN CAPTAIN CALLED TO REBUTT TESTIMONY OF DEFENSE WITNESS, CLAIMING TO BE WAR NURSE.

DOCTORS TESTIFY

SAN FRANCISCO, December 2.—Canadian Press. — At the Arbuckle trial Captain Theodore Rayward of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, testified yesterday in refutation of the defense testimony by Mrs. Rene Morgan, the war nurse, that she was connected with the Canadian forces. Mrs. Morgan testified that she attended Miss Virginia Rappe, whose death was made the basis of the trial. The testimony was a continuation of the prosecution's rebuttal.

Mrs. Morgan said on the stand that she had been affiliated with the "Fifth Company in the Canadian Hospital Service at the front." Rayward testified that there was no "Fifth Company."

Mrs. Morgan also said that she served in the battle of the Marne in 1917. Rayward said that the battle was in 1918.

Dr. William H. Harrison, a San Francisco physician, testified, that bladder injuries of the type from which Miss Rappe died, was rarely of a purely internal or spontaneous character. The prosecution charges that Arbuckle caused the injury.

Mrs. Lula Cory, attendant at a Ventura County Hot Springs, said to have been visited by Miss Rappe, was recalled to detail the payment plan followed for the plunge at the resort, which she testified was used by Miss Rappe.

A special medical commission's report that the bladder of Miss Virginia Rape, showed evidence of chronic inflammation and the presence of rupture, was submitted by a commission named by the court and counsel for both sides.

The report was read by Dr. Wm. Ohpule, who was named on the commission by the prosecution, and who performed a post mortem examination of Miss Rappe's body.

JAPANESE PACT IS USELESS IF MEET SUCCEEDS

JAPANESE ANNOUNCE WILLINGNESS TO ENTER TRI-PARTITE UNDERSTANDING WITH BRITAIN AND U. S.

BRITISH FIRM ON SUBS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—Interest was caused in Japanese circels in connection with Japan's reported desire to see come into existence a triple understanding between Japan, the United States and Great Britain, if the Anglo-Japanese Alliance is to be discontinued, by the issuance last night of a statement by Representative Kotario Mochizuki, leader of the Japanese Opposition, declaring that in view of the probable success of the Washington Conference, there was no need of renewing the alliance. The statement said in part:

"Let the alliance be effaced and let us set up in its place an understanding between Great Britain, the United States and Japan on Far Eastern and Pacific problems. An understanding—in no matter what form expressed—reaffirming and continuing in effect the provisions of four agreements already existing, namely the gentlemen's agreement of 1908 concerning immigration, the Root-Takahira agreement concerning China, the Japanese-American arbitration treaty of 1908, referring controversies to The Hague tribunal provided they have no bearing on vital interests, and the independence or prestige of the two powers, and the Ishii-Lansin gagreement of 1917, in which the interests of Japan in China were recognized, could very well take the place of the outworn Anglo-Japanese alliance. I believe that 'open diplomacy' can reach such an understanding."

Representative Mochizuki declared that the chief object of the Anglo-Japanese alliance was to prevent Russian aggrandizement towards India, China, Korea and the Pacific. Now that Russia was no longer a cause of anxiety and the Washington Conference was about to settle the question of naval burdens, and questions pertaining to the Far East, there seemed to him no longer need of the alliance.

THE UNEMPLOYMENT CRISIS.

Even in the midst of an election campaign the question of looking after those who, as a result of the industrial situation are without employment, is too serious a problem with which to play politics. There seems no possibility of any material improvement in conditions until next spring at the very earliest and in the meantime there are hundreds of men, many of them with families, who are out of work and whose slender savings have long since disappeared. They are months behind in their rent in some cases and have contracted bills for provisions, until they are at the end of thir tether. It is no time to stand around arguing about who is responsible for the crisis; it should be enough to know that it exists and must be dealt with. The Federal and Provincial governments, as well as the municipalities, have a right to assist in relieving the distress that exists. Last winter they co-operated on a basis of each contributing one-third of the amount required. The arrangement was apparently satisfactory, for it at least averted the acute suffering that would have been inevitable without the emergency fund. The situation is even more serious now than it was a year ago. What is to be done about it? What can be accomplished locally and what is to be expected from the administrations at Ottawa and Toronto? These are questions with which Peterborough as a city should be concerning herself, for the issue cannot be evaded.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP.

Practically every aspirant for Parliamentary honours in Ontario, no matter what his stripe of politics may be, staunchly endorses government ownership of railways, and it is well that this is the case, for undoubtedly an attempt is being made to secure the presence in the next parliament of men who are opposed to such a policy. The Montreal Star, dropping party lines altogether, does not hesitate to urge the Canadian electors to forget their political allegiance and to select those candidates whatever their party may be, who are opposed to government ownership. Drop "fanatical government ownership candidates,' is the advice of the Star, and the attitude it is adopting indicates that there is very strong pressure being exerted to kill the policy that most of the Ontario aspirants believe to be in the best interests of the country. In view of the unanimous stand of the candidates from this province, it is difficult to see how the plot can succeed, but all believers in government ownership should, nevertheless, be on their guard, for powerful interests are hostile to the scheme, and the frankness of the Montreal Star shows that the next parliament will have to resist the influence of a dangerous group.

GETTING OUT THE VOTE.

An election campaign is productive of many peculiar features, and not the least remarkable is the operation that is technically known as "getting out the vote"; in other words transporting the voter to the polling booth. Why any such service should be provided except in the case of aged or infirm electors, is one of the mysteries of the political game. Why able bodied men and women who walk to work or business, to church and everywhere else, without a thought of finding it hard work, should make it necessary to send a car after them on election day to carry them two or three blocks to register their vote, is beyond comprehension. Voting should be regarded as a duty and a privilege as well, and an elector who declares that he is going to stay at home "until they send after me" has not the faintest conception of his responsibility as a citizen. There are some people who, because of age or their condition of health, would be inconvenienced if there were no "getting-out-the-vote" fleet of cars in operation on election day, but for the majority of the electors such accommodation could be done away with. In the cities, where there are good pavements and a polling booth every two or there blocks, there is absoultely no need for the use of a host of vehicles. The man who cannot of his own accord get to the polls and exercise his franchise, is a questionable asset to any community.

A WONDERFUL OPPORTUNITY

The ex-service men and women of Canada have within their grasp an opportunity, the like of which is seldo mavailable to any group of individuals. They have the opportunity of bringing a direct benefit to themselves, and to their children for generations to come; they have the opportunity of assuring those of their numbers physically incapable on account of war disabilities, of competing in the ordinary labour markets, that sheltered employment will be available at living wages; they have the opportunity of throwing into the economic balance that power which may quite possibly be the factor in swinging the beam toward a revival of national prosperity; and, morever, they have the power of demonstrating to the people of Canada that as individuals the reurned men and women are above petty selfishness, and are able, in a broad-minded way to give a constructive lead toward better conditions for all.

The most satisfactory feature of this opportunity is that it is entirely the creation of those to whom it now presents itself—the ex-service men and women of the nation.

During those strenuous days of the Great Conflict, little shops were established in conjunction with practically every unit or the great army know s the British Expeditionary Force. These little shops where small comforts were purchaseable were known as canteens. When the war came to an end a considerable sum of money had accrued as the profits from the operations of several thousand such canteens.

It is Canada's share of these profits that now presents such a splendid opportunity to her men and women who went overseas in the service of their country.

By the establishment of a non-competitive industry, jointly owned by all ex-members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, this money can be used to a far greater advantage than by any other means. It can be made an investment that will multiply and its benefits thus extended year by year; it will place in the hands of Canadian veterans some of that economic power which hitherto has been vested in the Chosen Few; it will be the vanguard in Canada of industry conducted on a co-operative basis—a condition advocated for years by labour the world over.

On the other hand, if some suggestions are followed, individual ex-service men and women will have a little more spending money for a day—and a great opportunity will be gone, never to return.

Other suggestions would have the money expended to benefit only the disabled, the widow and the fatherless. These are most worthy objects, but they form part of a national obligation—an obligation that the Great War Veterans' Association of Canada intends to see fulfilled by the elected representatives of the people, and from public funds. Under the non-competitive industrial scheme, the disabled, and the dependents of those killed in action, would benefit equally with the other participants.

In their own interests, in the best interests of those comrades who lie in the stricken fields of the Western Front, in the best interests of future generations, and in the best interests of Canada as a whole, the ex-service men and women of the Dominion, voting in the Canteen Fuds Plebiscite, should mark their ballots opposite that line which reads: "Establishment of a non-competitive industrial enterprise jointly owned and operated by ex-service men and women."

EDITORIAL NOTES

Lord Byng by his plea for shorter speeches has won the gratitude of evey newspaper.

The decision of Rev. J. A. MacKenzie to remain in Peterboro is good news not only to his congregation but to the community generally. He has been a very useful citizen.

A lot of candidates are having their brief hour of fame. The calcium light will be turned off them after next Tuesday.

Those who call this a quiet election never heard a Farmer audience heckle a speaker from outside the riding.

Lord Byng's hint about shorter addresses recalls the old one about the best after-dinner speech being, "I'll pay for this."

HEALTH OF THE BUSINESS MAN

Rattling the pill box and tipping the medicine bottle have become so universal that the medical profession, to prosper, must use the trtificial methods to relieve failing health. People will not adopt the natural method, will not cease overeating, will not "waste time" on excercise, will not abandon the habits which hurt them. They fee their doctors to maintain artificially, through drugs and stimulants, their power to enjoy existence, make money and stay in the game, until the sudden collapse comes which carries off so many between 45 and 60 who should live to 70 or 80. A business man does not continue a policy which slowly but surely bring his finances to ruin. Why should he cling to habits which swiftly and inevitably carry him to the grave before his time? It is infatuation with success which may enrich his family, but destroys himself. There is a better success than that—one which carries him along to see his grandchildren married. But it is not arrived at by the drug route.

LAST POST FUND QUERIES CANDIDATES

MONTREAL, Dec. 2. — (Canadian Press.)— The Last Post Fund, Incoporated, with head office in this city, has issued a manifesto to candidates for the Federal Parliament, asking if "you consider that the post-war provision already guaranteed to ex-service men and women to ensure them respectful interment, should be further extended to all honorably discharged ex-naval or military persons who through the adversities of life may be found destitute and friendless at death."

The manifesto asks candidates if they will support this principle in Parliament if elected and says that it has been endorsed by "the most representative people and public bodies in Canada and other parts of the Empire."

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Dec. 2. —(Canadian Press.)— Armed robbers held up three Express Company employes here last night and escaped with loot valued at forty thousand dollars. A crowd of people watched the hold-up, but believed it was a joke or thinking of a motion picture.

A Stitch in Time

Quick action is the only hope when kidney disease appears.

In Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you will find a treatment which is both quick and thorough.

Mr. C. E. Raymus, Lindale, Alta., writes:—

"I was a great sufferer from kidney disease and lame back for more than a year. A friend of mine one day told me of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and acting upon his advice I tried them. After I had taken one box I felt better, so I continued until I had used five boxes. JAPANESE PACT IS USELESS

Viscount Kato, President of the Kenseikai, or Opposition Party of which Mr. Mochizuki is a leader, was the Japanese Ambassador at London when the British alliance was last renewed.

BRITAIN STILL DEMANDS ABOLITION OF SUBMARINE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—Complete abolition of the submarine as an instrument of warfare, still regarded by the British delegation as the most preferable decision to be reached by the Armament Conference when the question of submarines is brought up.

While the British delegates realize, it was said, that their views as to the unsuitability of the submarine for warfare might not prevail in the conference, they felt certain it would receive much sympathy in the world at large.

In anticipation of a lively discussion on this subject before the conference, one of the highest British authorities last night set out the British attitude as follows:

The submarine hardly can be used without being abused; in the past it certainly was a gross abuse of every rule of war; it destroyed the innocent and the non-belligerent as well as the crews of warships. There might be a legitimate use for the submarine if it could be confined to operations against warships; it could not be used against merchant ships without violation of the rules of war.

Moreover, the British spokesman said he doubted seriously whether the submarine really was the weapon of the weaker power against the stronger. In response to an inquiry as to whether the same objection made to the submarine might not with equal force apply to the use of poison gas or to the dropping of bombs from airplanes, the British spokesman declared there was a great difference.

It would be impossible without great injury to industrial life, he said, to end the manufacture of chemicals capable of being turned into poison gases in time of war. As to airplanes which are now a valuable means of transportation in times of peace, it would be impossible, he said, to check the development of these new means of communication. While these airplanes, capable of carrying large cargoes in times of peace, might carry bombs in time of war, he contended, the submarine could not be turned to any other useful purpose than that of a weapon of war.

Asked whether it would be possible to limit submarines in war time to attacks on warships, the British official replied:

"One must judge the future by the past. Human nature would break down hopelessly in such cases."

He expressed doubt as to the possibility of storing up secretly material for submarine construction in time of peace and this violating any agreement to limit their use by speedy construction in time of war.

MEET OVER SHANTUNG.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.) —The conference between the Japanese and Chinese on Shatung was adjourned late yesterday until three p.m. to-day after decision had been reached as to the procedure to be followed in the conversations.

The following statement was issued after the meeting by the Chinese and Japanese delegations:

"The conversations between the Chinese and Japanese delegations relating to Shantung questions arranged through the good offices of Mr. Hughes and Mr. Balfour, commenced this afternoon at three p.m. in the conference room of the Pan-American Building.

JAPANESE VIEWPOINT ON SHANTUNG ISSUE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—The opening of conversations between the representatives of China and Japan on the Shantung question has caused great satisfaction in Japanese circles where, it is believed, it may mark the inauguration of an epoch of better understanding between the two nations.

The Japanese viewpoint was explained last night as one of conviction that Japan should insist, in the negotiations, upon an agreement to conduct the Shantung Railroad from Taingtau to Tsinan-Fu as a joint Chino-Japanese enterprise. Such an arrangement, it is believed, also should be extended to the mines which lie near the railroad.

The Japanese point out that when Germany was in Shantung she was in exclusive control of the Shantung Railroad. Japan feels that she has inherited all the German rights in Shantung and that, therefore, when she proposes a joint management of the railroad in suestion, she is adopting an attitude which is eminently treasonable.

"The degree of inflammation was comparatively small in Miss Rappe's bladder," he said.

Dr. G. Y. Rusk, the third member of the commission, said he could not determine whether the inflammation noted would predispose the bladder to rupture.

BRITISH FARMERS MUST NOT EXPECT A SUBSIDY

LONDON, Dec. 2. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—Sir F. Griffith-Boscawen, minister of agriculture, speaking yesterday at the annual dinner of the Williton Somerset Fat Stock Society, sympathized with the farmers in "these difficult times," but said they must not look for help from protection or subsidy. The farmers must breed the best possible stock, he said, and the government would help them to get the best sires for horses, cattle and pigs.

Continuing the minister said that in England they had the finest pedigree stock in the world and he was opposed to indiscriminate importations of store cattle from abroad.

NERVOUS FAINTING SPELLS

Mrs. Werner tells how they Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Camden, N. J.—"Before my baby was born I was run down and weak, had pains in my back and stomach, was very nervous and would have fainting spells. I certainly suffered awfully with those nervous fainting spells. I did not know anyone at times and used to scream. A doctor treated me but did not seem to do much good. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt a change and could do my work without pain and was relieved of those nervous spells. Now I have a nice baby girl and had an easy time at birth, thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. WILLIAM C. WERNER, 1216 Van Hook St., Camden, N. J.

STENCILED LINENS WASH

Linen or canvas curtains that are decorated with stenciled borders will wash if the washing is carefully and quickly done. They should be put into lukewarm soapy water that has a half cupful of salt in it, and be washed not on a board, but by hand. They should be squeezed to get rid of all the water possible, then allowed to drip dry in the sun. Iron the curtains when quite damp and place a cloth over the stenciling. Don't use too hot an iron for fear of changing the color.

Flush the radiator occasionally. Test the valve springs for strength Grease the wheel bearings at intervals.

HUGHES' PURPOSE

The disarmament proposals with which Secretary of State Hughes startled the world on Nov. 12 contain a central principle, knowledge of which furnishes a key which is necessary to any one who would clearly understand the problems confronting the Conference on the Limitation of Armament, now beginning the third week of its labors in Washington. This central point of policy, though it has been alluded to a number of times since the limitation of armament idea was projected last July has never been given the attention it demands, and now as the conference progresses, it is being lost sight of entirely. With so much being said and written on the one hand, having to do with the great spectacular features of the proposals, and with comment and news on the many secondary phases of the conference so voluminous on the other hand, it is not surprising that fundamental principles of policy should be forgotten. To get at the gist of the Hughes' proposals it is necessary therefore to dismiss from the mind so far as it can be done, the bewildering mass of fact and speculation with which the newspapers have been filled for the past two weeks, and go back to the very beginning with a view to considering the reasons for which the conference was called.

In Mr. Hughes' speech, it will be recalled, reference was made to the fact that the first Hague Conference was called by the Czar of Russia to consider the question of limiting armaments. Mr. Hughes pointed out that the principal of limiting armaments was not merely an incidental subject to be taken up by the first Hague Conference, but the reason for convoking it, and he placed great emphasis on the failure of the conference to accomplish its purpose. Another point made by Mr. Hughes was the fact that it was in the period between the first Hague Conference and the summer of 1914 that the world saw happen just what the projectors of the first Hague Conference had predicted, and which they had hoped to prevent, namely, the unprecedented race in armaments that many authorities have held as one of the principal factors in bringing about the conditions which made war possible in 1914. It is significant that Mr. Hughes made it clear that Germany was the outstanding opponent of the principal of armament limitation at the Hague Conferences and the implication is that it is his view that if Germany had fallen in line with other signatories at the first Hague Conference, the causes that lead to the burdensome armaments that were developed on land and sea in the following fourteen years would never have arisen.

Some figures will illustrate: In 1899, the year of the first Hague Conference, Germany was spending only about $32,000,000 for her navy, as against $111,320,000 the year before the war. Germany's naval budget for 1914, the year war broke, was nearly $121,000,000. Thus it will be seen that her naval expenditures more than quadrupled in fourteen years.

The effect of the increase in naval expenditure in the case of Germany's three great rivals on the sea, Great Britain, France and Russia is indicated in the following:

Great Britain in 1899 spent about $122,500,000 for her navy; Great Britain's budget for 1914, was around $257,000,000.

France's naval expenditure in 1899 was somewhat over $58,000,000 and in 1014 it had grown to nearly $98,000,000.

Russia in 1899 spent $41,000,000, and $121,000,000 in 1913-14 or about three times as much as in the year her Emperor called for disarmament measures.

In 1899 the navies of the United States and Japan were not regarded as serious factors, but our naval estimate for 1913-14 was about $140,000,000 as against approximately $100,000,000, eight years previous. Japan's naval expenditures for 1913-1914 were around $21,000,000.

In a little more than a quarter of a century, from 1887 to 1914, Great Britain's naval expenditures rose from $6,000,000 a year to $257,000,000.

To a good many minds, in this year 1921, there were two prospects, either agreements between nations or a repetition of the armament race which took place between the years 1899 and 1914, in which Japan and the United States would step into the places vacated by Germany and Russia as contestants for first place in the new race. It is this phase of the situation that actuated the United States in calling the present conference, and it cannot be too emphatically stated that this is so. It was not today's building or tomorrow's; not the carrying out of our program, or Japan's or England's; but the prevention of the development of the spirit of rivalry which would lead to no one knows where. It was not the relief of the tax-burden that was a primary motive either, for there are those who contend that in spite of colossal national debts, nations could so arrange their industrial forces as to produce marine war machines in spite of financial obstacles.

The aim of the Conference on the Limitation of Armaments is to end rivalries and to remove suspicions, and the Hughes policy was devised to attain this end immediately by not merely making navies smaller, or to keep them from getting larger in a general sense, but to prevent them from getting illimitably larger. In other words, the conference is proceeding on the theory that the experience of all the years between 1899 and 1921 has taught the world the futility and folly of armament racing.—Barron's Weekly.

FORSAKE CHICAGO FOR TORONTO AS MEETING PLACE

CHICAGO, December 2. Canadian Press. — For the first time in forty years, the International Association of Fairs and Expositions yesterday decided to forsake Chicago as the annual place of meeting, and voted unanimously to hold the 1922 meeting in Toronto, Canada.

Another precedent was established when John G. Kent, the managing director of the Canadian Natianal Exhibitio, Toronto, was elected president of the association.

The last time a Canadian was given a place on the executive was in 1885, when H. J. Hill, also a former manager of the Toronto Fair, was apointed Secretary,a position he held for several years.

Catarrh Of The Stomach Is Dangerous

"Thousands Have It and Don't Know It," Says Physician. Frequently Mistaken for Indigestion—How To Recognize and Treat.

"Thousands of people suffer more or less constantly from furred, coated, tongue, bad breath, sour burning stomach, frequent vomiting, rumbling in stomach, bitter eructations, gas, wind and stomach acidity, and call it indigestion when in reality their trouble is due to gastric catarrh of the stomach," writes a New York physician.

Catarrh of the stomach is dangerous, because the mucous membrane lining of the stomach is thickened and a coating of phlegm covers the surface so that the digestive fluids cannot mix with the food and digest them. This condition soon breeds deadly disease in the fermented, unassimilated food. The blood is polluted and carries the infection throughout the body. Gastric ulcers are apt to form and frequently an ulcer is the first sign of a deadly cancer.

In catarrh of the stomach a good and safe treatment is to take before meals a teaspoonful of pure Bisurated Magnesia in half a glass of hot water as hot as you can comfortably drink it. The hot water washes the mucous from the stomach walls and draws the blood to the stomach, while the Bisurated Magnesia is an excellent solvent for mucus and increases the efficiency of the hot water treatment. Moreover, the Bisurated Magnesia will serve as a powerful but harmless antacid which will neutralize any excess hydrochloric acid that may be in your stomach, and sweeten its food contents. Easy, natural digestion without distress of any kind should soon follow. Bisurated Magnesia is not a laxative, is harmless, pleasant, and easy to take, and can be obtained from any local druggist. Don't confuse Bisurated Magnesia with other forms of magnesia, milks, citrates, etc., but get it in the pure Bisurated form (powder or tablets), especially prepared for this purpose.

Unemployed One-Third Less, Hoover Says

WASHINGON, Dec. 2.—The National Conference on Unemployment has been instrumental in putting betwee 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 idle men and women back to work, Secreary of Commerce Hoover believes.

Based on the last Labor Department estimate of 5,500,000 unemployed, this would be a eduction of nearly one-third in the nation's idle in the last two months.

RATHENAU CONTINUES MEETINGS WITH BRITISH.

LONDON, December 2. Canadian Press.—Dr. Walter Rathenau, the former German Minister of Reconstruction, who is here in connection with the German reparations, continued yesterday the private conferences with officials and bankers.

Thus far the public has been obliged to be content with speculation over the form the help for Germany, which is under discussion will take, while the French newspapers apparently are greatly disturbed that such negotiations are proceeding between Britain and Germany's semi-official representative, with France outside the secrets of the council.

Sir John Bradbury, the British member of the Reparations Commission, has issued a denial in Paris that he recommended a moratorium to the British Government. That, however, in no wise excludes the possibility of a moratorium being considered.

Reports in the British press credit Dr. Rathenau with trying to raise a British loan to float Germany over the payment of the January installment on the reparations account.

LETTER CARRIERS SUBMIT QUESTIONS

ASK CANDIDATES TO DECLARE THEMSELVES ON BONUS AND OTHER POINTS OF EMPLOYMENT.

The Federated Letter Carriers of Canada through their local unions have presented a questionaire of four queries to all the candidates in the election in ridings where Letter Carriers are engaged.

A copy of this interrogatory was presented in Peterboro to J. H. Burnham and G. N. Gordon as follows:—

(a)—Are you in favor of the present bonus being incorporated into the salaries of civil servants, without prejudices to their statutory increases?

(b)—Are you in favour of all employees who have been filling a position of a permanent nature for one year or longer being placed on the permanent staff?

Are you in favor of removing the discrimination against single men, by placing them, as far as earnings are concerned, on a par with married men?

(d)—Are you in favour of civil servants being granted full civil and political rights?

The Replies.

Mr. Burnham replied "Yes" to all four questions. Mr. Gordon answered affirmatively to questions (a), (c) and (d).

To question (b) his reply was, "Yes providing they are returned men."

U. S. PLANS TO STOP FLEEING SHIPBUILDER.

WASHINGTON, December 2. — Aroused by the departure of Chas. W. Morse, the New York shipbuilder, from the country, just as the government is about to place before a Federal Grand Jury its investigations of his transactions with the Shipping Board, officials of various departments are considering what means may be taken to bring him back to the United States.

It is hoped, Department of Justice officials said, that word can be sent to the French government in time to permit Morse's detention at Havre to-day, when according to the latest advices, the French steamer Paris, on which he sailed from New York, is due to dock.

Early in the day yesterday the Justice Department called on the Navy Department to send a destroyer to meet the vessel outside of Havre and take Morse off the ship. No such order was issued by the Navy Department, however, and the officials declared later that they were without authority to act in that manner.

Last night a plan to cancel the passport issued to Mr. Morse was under consideration. The effect of such action, it is understood, probably would be that the French Government might under representations from the United States, refuse to permit him to land. His return to the United States on the Paris probably would result.

AROOSTOCK POTATO BELT IS IMPORTING

FREDERICKTON, N.B., Dec. 2.—The State of Maine's famous potato belt in Aroostock County is importing potatoes from New Brunswick. Through the Aroostock Farm Bureau two carloads of potatoes have been taken into the very portion of the Pine Tree State made famous by its tubers. These potatoes were grown in Restigouche County, New Brunswick, and because of prevailing east winds on the North Shore district of the Province, they are declared to be particularly free from disease, and were purchased as seed stock. New Brunswick has recently been sending seed potatoes to other States of the American Republic, includnig New York, and as far south as Vrginia.

THEY PICK ON MARY 'CAUSE SHE'S FAMED.

That's Her Answer to Effort to Set Aside Divorce.

CARSON CITY, Nevada, December 2nd. — Mary Pickford says she is being persecuted because she is famous.

That is the answer of the picture star through her attorneys to the effort of Attorney-General Leonard B. Fowler of Nevada to set aside her divorce from Owen Moore.

Her answer to the suit is now filed with the State Supreme Court and it will be that body's duty to determine whether she came to Nevada in good faith and got her divorce, or whether she conspired with her ex-husband for him to step out of the way quickly so that she could marry Douglas Fairbanks.

The answer of Mary's attorneys to Attorney-General Fowler's appeal from the decision of Judge Frank P. Langan, granting her the divorce, sizzles with charges against the state officer.

Fowler assumed powers never granted him, acting without the law and every precedent, and he is attempting to act as a "Superlaw" against the little person because she is the darling of the movies, says Gavin McNab, who wrote the bill for Mary.

WAS TROUBLED WITH HER LIVER FOR OVER 4 MONTHS

When the liver becomes slow, sluggish and torpid it is not working properly and does not supply sufficient bile to thoroughly act on the bowels and carry off the waste products of the system, hence the bowels become clogged up, the bile gets into the blood, constipation sets in and liver troubles follow among which are, sick or billious headaches, heartburn, water brash, jaundice, floating specks before the eyes, pain under the right shoulder, coated tongue, bad breath, yellow eyes, etc.

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

quickly remove the secretions, clear away the effete and waste matter by acting directly on the liver, and making the bile pass through the bowels instead of allowing it to get into the blood.

Mrs. Alice Mehill, Napanee, Ont. writes:—"I was very badly run down for over four months. I tried several remedies, but got no relief. One day my husband brought me home a vial of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and before I had used half of it I was much better. I only used two vials and I am a different person today.

I can safely recommend Laxa-Liver Pills to any one troubled with liver trouble."

Price 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PARENTS' HELP? NOT IF WED, VOTE GIRLS

College Seniors Would Make Modest Incomes Do.

BALTIMORE, Md. Dec. 2—College girls do not desire parental subsides when they marry a vote among the 103 seniors of Goucher College disclosed here. Forty-seven of the girls voted an empathic "no" on the propositions while 37 more voted "no" with reservations. Among the reservations made was that of the husband being a young doctor or a teacher.

The question was put to the girls to shed further light on the recent vote by the seniors that $48 a week is a fair income for married college graduates. Nineteen of the girls thought there was no reason why the aid should not be accepted, provided the parents could spare the money.

The vote on the question of whether present business conditions would not justify the adoption of the French system of dowries was unanimously and emphatically negative. "Too commercial, mercenary resembles barter," the girls chorused.

PRICE COMBINE CHARGED TO 104

Indictments Accuse Glass Manufacturers and Head of Labor Union.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The Federal Grand Jury yesterday returned an indictment charging 51 individuals and 53 corporations in the window glass industry with violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. Joseph M. Neenan, president of the National Glass Workers' Union, also was indicted on similar charges.

In naming Neenan, the indictment charges conspiracy between the labor union and the gla.s producers to limit production, thereby enabling the defendants to maintain excessive prices.

The Johnson Brokerage Co., an alleged selling agency, also was named in the indictment. This agency, the indictment declares, was part of "a price scheme to enable the defendants to combine to dictate terms of sale and to eliminate competition."

Tests Labor Clause

Indictment of Neenan, according to William Hayward, Federal district attorney, will test the validity of provisions of the Clayton Act and the Civil Sundries Service Bill extending immunities to labor organizations under the anti-trust laws.

The corporation defendants include, Mr. Hayward declared, the leading window glass manufacturers of the United States and about two-thirds of the window glass industry.

To carry out the alleged conspiracy arbitrarily to fix excessive prices, it is charged an agreement was entered into with the labor union through Mr. Neenan, whereby the quantity to be produced annually by the manufacturers, the period within which the manufacturers were to operate their plants and factories and the amount to be manufactured by each of the employees were predetermined and prescribed. It is alleged further that in pursuance of this agreement the employees did not engage their services to any manufacturer who did not sign the so-called "wage scales" and that as soon as a manufacturer had produced the amount of window glass prescribed under the scale, the employees were withdrawn and that fines and penalties were imposed upon the employees by their union for violation of this agreement.

Wage Agreements

Discussng the labor features of the indictment, David L. Podell, who has been specially retained by the Government for the prosecution of building trades cases, declared:

"It is quite true that certain immunities are granted to labor organizations under the anti-trust laws, particularly the Clayton Act and the civil sundries bill, but those immunities cannot be extended to cover any acts which are clearly part of a general scheme or conspiracy to restrain trade, and whose primary motive is to curtail the production of commodity. A wage scale ordinarily is entirely legal, and may be adopted by any labor organization either with or without agreement of employers, but where it is obvious that the wage scale is merely a subterfuge or device to accomodate manufacturers in their efforts to curtail the supply, it is just as clearly illegal and a violation of the Sherman Law."

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND
BY "SAPPER" (CYRIL McNEILE)

"Don't forget," he said to Drummond suavely, "this gun is silent. You had better be the same."

At one o'clock the car swung up to The Elms. For the last ten minutes Hugh had been watching the invalid in the corner, who was making frantic efforts to loosen his gag. His eyes were rolling horribly, and he swayed from side to side in his seat, but the bandages round his hands held firm and at last he gave it up.

Even when he was lifted out and carried indoors he did not struggle; he seemed to have sunk into a sort of apathy. Drummond followed with dignified calmness, and was led into a room off the hall.

In a moment or two Peterson entered, followed by his daughter. "Ah! my young friend," cried Peterson affably. "I hardly thought you'd give me such an easy run as this." He put his hand into Drummond's pockets, and pulled out his revolver and a bundle of letters. "To your bank," he murmured. "Oh! surely not that as well. Not even stamped. Ungag him, Irma—and untie his hands. My very dear young friend—you pain me."

"I wish to know, Mr. Peterson," said Hugh quietly, "by what right this dastardly outrage has been committed. A friend of mine, sick in bed—removed; abducted in the middle of the night: to say nothing of me."

With a gentle laugh Irma offered him a cigarette. "Mon Dieu!" she remarked, "but you are most gloriously ugly, My Hugh!" Drummond looked at her coldly, while Peterson, with a faint smile, opened the envelope in his hand. And, even as he pulled out the contents, he paused suddenly and the smile faded from his face. Fromt he landing upstairs came a heavy crash, followed by a flood of the most appalling language.

"What the —— hell do you think you're doing, you flat-faced son of a Maltese goat? And where the —— am I, anyway?"

"I must apologise for my friend's language," murmured Hugh gently, "but you must admit he has some justification. Besides, he was, I regret to state, quite wonderfully drunk earlier this evening, and just as he was sleeping it off these desperadoes abducted him."

The next moment the door burst open, and an infuriated object rushed in. His face was wild, and his hand was bandaged, showing a great red stain on the thumb.

"What's this —— jest?" he howled furiously. "And this damned bandage all covered with red ink?"

"You must ask our friend here, Mullings," said Hugh. "He's got a peculiar sense of humour. Anyway, he's got the bill in his hand."

In silence they watched Peterson open the paper and read the contents, while the girl leant over his shoulder.

To Mr. Peterson, The Elms, Godalming.

	£	s.	d.
To hire of one demobilised soldier	5	0	0
To making him drunk (in this item present strength and cost of drink and said soldier's capacity must be allowed for)	5	0	0
To bottle of red ink	0	0	1
To shock to system	10	0	0
TOTAL	£20	0	1

It was Irma who laughed.

"Oh! but, my Hugh," she gurgled, "que vous etes adorable!"

But he did not look at her. His eyes were on Peterson, who with a perfectly impassive face was staring at him fixedly.

Answers to Correspondents:

ROMANTIC MAN—You are not "Over Romantic" just because you desire to have a clean, smooth face when you call on your sweetheart. And you certainly would not be business-like if you went to work with an unshaven face in the morning. Of course, frequent shaving will make any skin super-sensitive unless something is used to protect and to soften it. Try CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM. It will keep your skin soft and smooth and prevent cracking. It is also fine for the hands; rub some on after each washing. CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM really is marvellous. You can buy CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM at any Druggist. 40c a large bottle.

MORE AWARDS TO CANADIANS AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, December 2. Canadian Press.—Canadian interests in the International Livestock Exposition turned yesterday from the horse and cattle arena to the sheep judging ring, where J. F. Linden of Denfield, Ont.; J. H. Patrick and Son, of Ilderton, Ont.; T. L. Patrick, of Ilderton, Ont.; and Cecil Stubbs, of Wheatley, Ont., exhibited their stock. In the Dorset division, Cecil Stobbs was the only Dominion entrant and he won five second prizes, three third ribbons and also one fifth award. In the Oxfords, Peter Arkell and sons of Teeswater, Ont., won two first prizes, six seconds, one third, four fourths and one fifth place.

A ram belonging to J. H. Patrick & Sons of Ilderton, Ont., won the Lincoln championship. This firm also won four first prizes, two seconds, one third and one fourth award.

Linden captured two seconds and two third places. T. L. Patrick won one third and also a fourth, while Stobbs finished fourth and fifth in two classes.

Not a Bite of Breakfast Until You Drink Water

Says a glass of hot water and phosphate prevents illness and keeps us fit.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind incombustible ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and ptomainelike poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before breakfast each morning drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the bowels the previous day's poisons and toxins, and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

FROM OSHAWA TO KINGSTON

By J. E. Middleton

That region of Ontario from Oshawa to Kingston and north to Fenelon Falls is served with electrical energy through the Central Ontario System of the Hydro-Electric organization. That System is a merger and co-ordination of twenty-two Company enterprises which were purchased from the controlling stock-holder, a Montreal Insurance Company for $8,300,000.

The purchaser was the Provincial Government; therefore this System differs materially from the other "Hydro" Systems, which are organized on the principle of co-operative municipal ownership. The Government's object in taking over this diversified property was to extinguish the varied private water-power rights along the Trent Canal which had been alienated by the Dominion Government, while that picturesque waterway was in course of construction.

The relation of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission to the Central Ontario System is that of managing trustee for the Government. Ultimately, it is hoped, the municipalities which are served will unite to take over the property on their own joint responsibility. Meanwhile the Commission has re-constructed most of the lines and stations, has increased the generating facilities and now has a flexible high-grade service throughout the territory and there is a steady increase in the demand for power.

There are six generating plants in operation and one, at Ranney's Falls, under construction. The Healey Falls Development at Dam No. 13 of the Trent Canal, six miles from Campbellford, produces 16,800 horsepower at a head of 76 feet. The transmission lines include 372 miles of 44,000 volt conductor and about 84 miles at lesser voltages.

The Auburn Development at Dam 18 of the Trent Canal is near Peterborough. At a head of 18 feet the plant produces 2,850 horse-power.

Fenelon Falls Development at Dam 30 of the Canal has a capacity of 1,400 horse-power, but by reconstruction is capable of a larger production. Trenton Development at Dam No. 2 has a capacity of 5,600 h.p. under a head of 20 feet. Campbellford Development at Dam No. 1 generates 5,000 horse-power at a head of 23 feet, and Frankford Development has a capacity of 4,800 h.p. at a head of 18 feet. Ranney's Falls will produce ultimately about 5,000 horse-power at a head of 47 feet.

The total present production capacity of the Central Ontario System is 36,450 horse-power. Since the Commission for the Government controls a number of undeveloped power sites the growing demand for service from the communities within the bounds of the System can be met for many years to come.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

PETERBORO' TEACHER WRITES FROM LONDON

The following extracts from a letter written by Miss Janet Purvis, of Peterborough, now in London.

Memorial Cross.

LONDON, Eng. Nov. 13.—The Agent General of Ontario sent invitations to all the Ontario teachers here to attend last Sunday the unveiling and dedication of the Memorial Cross to the Ontario soldiers who died there at Orpington Kent. Edith Edge and I went. Kent is a beautiful country. I desire greatly to visit it in May or April and see the cherry blossoms. You remember in "the Private of the Buffs," the lines "For Kentish hopfields round him seemed like dreams to come and go. Bright leagues of cherry blossom gleamed, one sheet of living snow." It is great to see all these places that I have read about and longed to visit.

Sir George Perley made a speech and several titled persons were present. The ceremony was short, solemn and impressive. We stayed about until after the crowd had departed and the moon came out. It gets dark very early in England now. It made me feel unutterably sad to stand about among these many little unpainted wooden crosses gleaming white in the moonshine. So many Ontario lads lie buried here with only a cross to mark their graves, their names carved across the bar. White flowers bloomed on every mound and about the pure white cross, so lately unveiled, were many floral tributes and wreaths, one of which came from the Ontario teachers in London. But such a wonderful peace pervaded, I could not help but feel that these, our brave dead, are truly at rest.

Armistice Day.

Armistice Day was observed very quietly in London. By nine o'clock there was already a great mass of people about the Cenotaph, most of them carrying wreaths or garlands of flowers. Near the hour, a small group approached; general officers in their scarlet and gold plumed hats, and civilians in great coats and silk hats. One by one they ascended the steps and reverently laid the flowers at its foot. The officers saluted, the civilians bowed deeply.

The first wreath was the King's—a circle of plain white flowers twined with sprays of Flanders' poppies. General Lord Horne placed it in position. Others followed; then Mrs. Asquith, dressed in mourning and walking alone, placed a wreath at the foot of the column. A huge cushion "From Douglas Haig" was entirely of poppies. Then the chimes of Big Ben began to ring and every hat was off. When the great bell ended the strokes of the hour, bang! crash- bang! went the maroons, and then dead silence. This silence was so intense and awe-inspiring that many women fainted and men stood perfectly still with the tears streaming down their faces. Then the bugles sounded the Reveille; the guard marched off, drums beating, and the crowd surged down Whitehall bearing still more wreaths of red and white flowers.

The procession of unemployed (numbering 10,000) observed perfect order as they passed the Cenotaph with bands playing "Abide with me" and "Auld Lange Syne." Not one of the men had his head covered and many saluted. They said one man wore, instead of his medals, the pawn tickets for them.

The school children observed the silence with great reverence. We gathered them in the largest schoolroom, and as 11 was neared listened to the head master or mistress recalling the heroism of those who fought and the lessons of the war. The sound of the military music died away, the exultant bell ceased. We went back to our school work. It was finished.

A TEA HINT

ing tea with milk, instead of water, when they want a drink which is especially refreshing. The milk is boiled in a souce pan, the urn warmed and then the usual amount of tea put in. The milk is poured over it just as water is. It is ready to pour after standing three minutes.

ALASKA! EMPIRE IN THE MAKING

(By Hector J. Neil.)

Robert W. Service, in his "Law of the Yukon," epitomized the insistent plaint of the North for virile, red-blooded men in these words:

"This is the law of the Yukon, and ever she makes it plain;
Send not your foolish and feeble, send me your strong and sane,
Strong for the red rage of battle; sane, for I harry them sore;
Send me men grit for the combat, men who are grit to the core."

Strong men and hardy responded to the call and came to the North and swarmed over the mountains and valleys. They did the rugged, lonely work she demanded and they left their mark in her prosperity and in the uninterrupted flow of riches that drains ceaselessly to the southward. The North calls for a strong breed of true men.

Interior Alaska is a land rich in opportunities for seekers of independence; it is a country in the very early stage of development, with a record of achievement for a foundation of future greatness; it is an empire in the making, its growth and permanent prosperity dependent, like all other countries, upon people, men and women who will be attached to the country by home and business ties.

Visitors to Alaska are invariably favorably impressed, both by the scenic wonders of the Territory, which rival those of any part of the world, and by the possibilities of future development. Fairbanks, the town in which I made my home for nearly four years, because of its distance from the coast of Alaska by way of the tedious although picturesque Yukon river route, sees little of the tourist travel, but those few who have ventured into the Interior country have always been unstinting in their praise of the wonders they have seen.

The greatest present need of Alaska, in my opinion, is publicity. The people of the United States and Canada, generally speaking, and particularly residents of the East know practically nothing about Alaska. They picture the North as a vast territory of snow and ice, a worthless and inhospitable parcel of Uncle Sam's domain, and almost question the sanity of anyone who talks of going to or visiting Alaska. Many of my friends laughed at me four years ago when I made known the fact that I was going to the far North, and assured me that I was wasting my time and money besides taking an awful chance with my life, However, the only regret I have in connection with my trip is that I did not take it several years sooner.

"If the ordinary man in the street were questioned as to whether Alaska were an island or whether it was contiguous to North America, I opine that the large majority would show complete ignorance on the subject." Thus spoke an eminent international lawyer, who visited Alaska in the early part of 1919, as the guest of the Governor of the Territory. Americans and Canadians are said to be a travelling people, yet, upon the Estern seaboard, great numbers of the so-called ntellectual classes know little or nothing of the Pacific coast and have confined their travels to occasional excursions over the Atlantic in search of the scenery of Switzerland and the antiquities and monuments of France, England, Germany, Italy ad other countries of the old world.

But what of Alaska, its land and its people? To one who went to this great Northland without having first looked into the statistics regarding its gold and fisheries and fur-bearing animals, yet whose ignorance has left his mind open to original impressions, Alaska appears a glorious land of sea and mountains, of snowclad summits rising straight out from long sunlit arms of the Pacific ocean, touching live glaciers and running along precipitous cliffs. Alaska, in default of good press agents is surely the land of the unknown, and one cannot resist feeling that one has delayed too long seeing this gorgeous land of sparkling glaciers, mountains and snowclad peaks. According to veteran travellers whom I have met in Alaska there is nowhere else on earth a place of such effect of infinite grandeur, or combination of sea and land.

And on the other hand, what of the people of this last frontier? I can never forget the hospitality, amiability and energetic self-confidence everywhere to be found. The old world is undergoing a revolution in which the servility of those who belonged to the so-called lower classes translates itself into mere rudeness an incivility, betraying the newness of their democracy, but among the people of this last frontier, democracy is real because completely unconcious Manners are good because they flow from natural kindness and a sense that men are dependent for position upon their real worth as men rather than upon accidental circumstances. It hs been well said that a new land attracts all that is best as well as much that is worst. Alaska is young enough to have obtained the best, yet old enough to have eliminated, in great measure, the worst. Its population, gathered from all parts of the world, made up of those whose energy and ability were such that they dared cut those roots which attached them to their old homes and to begin life anew, naturally possesses a breadth of view and originality not usually to be found among more settled inhabitants of older countries.

From what one sees of the industries of this great Northland, its vast fisheries, its fur markets, its endless timber and its valuable ore, it is evident that it is the great storehouse of the future; that its chief need is an intelligent administrations. A little kowledge of its governments, or rather governments conveys the impression that the system of checks and balances has paralyzed, rather than protected, Alaska, and that the public policy has been one rather of sterilization than of conservation. The department of the interior, the department of agriculture, the army, the navy, and the territorial governement combine to create a bueraucratic system admirably adapted to check activity and hamper development Intelligent thought for the morrow is not incompatible with the development of present resources, and exclusion of capital, by reason of onerous regulation or inadequate protection, will not lead to healthy industrial development or to attraction of a population in some degree commensurate with the resources of the Territory. From what one sees of the people of Alaska, one can easily belive them now capable of attending to their own affairs, not only the standpoint of law, order and personal profit, but as trustees for the generations of Alaskans to come They are too intelligent, too interested in the future of the Territory, too alive to the permanent self-interest of their own families settled in the land to allow those resources to be wastefully expended. On the other hand, they have the capacity and knowledge needed to develop them so that the people of the whole United States might profit more largely from this great storehouse of plenty.

ALD. JAMES HAMILTON

NEW CENTRE QUALITY

NEW CENTRE SERVICE

SPONSORED a motion in the City Council, which in effect would enable farmers to sell small cuts of meat on the local market. This motion was seconded by Ald. R. Morrison.

In supporting this heavy piece of civic legislation, Ald. Hamilton made the statement that local butchers were paying two, three and four cents a pound for meat on the hoof and retailing it over the counter at thirty cents a pound.

Apparently Ald. Hamilton does not see the meat bills he gets from the NEW CENTRE MEAT MARKET, or he would know that many weeks have passed since meat was retailed at thirty cents a pound. NEW CENTRE meat prices at the time Ald. Hamilton made this mis-statement ranged from eight cents for the cheaper cuts to twenty-two cents for the choicest cuts.

Keeping Tax Rates Down

Ald. Hamilton was chairman of the Special Bridge Committee of the City Council. This committee was entrusted with the construction of the Hunter Street overhead bridge, which, when completed, will cost the city a half a million dollars. Just a matter of two hundred thousand dollars or more above the original estimate. A difference of eight cents a pound on the retail price of meat and two hundred thousand dollars in the cost of a bridge apparently means little to Ald. Hamilton and his intensified sense of exaggeration.

Ald. Morrison is known to the Owners' and Tenants' Association of Peterborough as the man who accompanied Fire Chief Grange to the Fire Chiefs' Convention at Three Rivers and came back with an expense account of one hundred and fifty dollars.

A Heavy Taxpayer

Now let it be known that the NEW CENTRE MEAT MARKET represents an investment in the city of many thousands of dollars, and if it were not for such investments Ald. Hamilton would not be able to build expensive bridge and Ald. Morrison would not be able to go to Three Rivers at the expense of the ratepayers. Not only does the NEW CENTRE MEAT MARKET pay tribute to the city for the privilege of doing business within its confines, but it also employs a number of men whose names are entered upon the civic lexicon as ratepayers and breadwinners for their respective families.

Perhaps Ald. Hamilton and Ald. Morrison will extend their efforts at price-cutting to the bakers, the shoe dealers and other allied trades. Members of the Retail Merchants' Association could dispense with their highly-taxed properties and, equipped with a horse and waggon, peddle their wares from the market curb stone. In this way they could evade the payment of taxes and other civic financial demands. NEW CENTRE MEAT MARKET brought lower prices to Peterborough. Since the NEW CENTRE opened up meat prices have dropped one hundred per cent., but our taxes have not shown any sign of a decrease. If Ald. Hamilton and Ald. Morrison were as solicitous about the tax-burdened public as they are about the retail prices of meat, such an organization as the Owners' and Tenants' Association would not exist. They would have no reason for existing.

The NEW CENTRE MEAT MARKET spent thousands of dollars to provide facilities that would give Peterborough better meat and cheaper meat with the utmost degree of quality and sanitation.

Farmers Lack Facilities

The average farmer lacks the facilities to handle the meat in the way it should be handled. Gone are the days when a market vendor of meat can throw a horse blanket over a beef carcass and drive into town with it.

The Sanitary Inspector would have something to say about this, besides the farmers do not have to pay thirty dollars a ton for hay, which is only one item in connection with a very expensive system of delivery that must be maintained.

This kind of municipal twaddle does not appeal to the farmers or labor men. The labor men of Peterborough have too much good sense to be carried away by such aldermanic efforts. The bulk of the taxes are paid by the labor men of this city, and in an effort to supply them with good meat and cheaper meat we have their appreciation and patronage.

Labor Men Are Appreciative

It is such enterprises as the NEW CENTRE MEAT MARKET that help to keep the taxes within its present limit. The labor men of this city will appreciate that, regardless of what a minority in the City Council may do or think.

This week a traveller not in any way connected with the meat business volunteered the information that Peterborough enjoyed the lowest meat prices of any city he had visited in Ontario. Furthermore, we do not believe that the City Council will attempt to enforce any such impositions on the retail meat trade of this city. The better judgment of its members will prevail.

In the meantime we are going to continue to supply the Peterborough public with better and cheaper meat, consistent with NEW CENTRE quality and NEW CENTRE service.

INITIATIVE

Initiative is the high-brow name for "pep." It's the vim and vigor that makes great men great, the latent power in every man. In these modern times it is the hustler that gets there — the dreamer can only enjoy his dreams.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

SHOE INDUSTRY FACTS

Many people do not understand why the shoe manufacturing industry of Canada requires the protection of tariff duties ranging from 17½ to 30 per cent when there is not that difference between prices in Canada and those in the United States for most lines of footwear.

In the first place, it should be stated—and the statement is unqualifiedly true — that Canadian manufacturers' prices for boots and shoes are determined by Canadian costs of production, without any reference whatever to the tariff. The absolutely unrestrained competition between the Canadian shoe factories —there are something like 170 of them distributed from British Columbia—can be counted upon to keep prices within an exceedingly narrow margin of actual production costs. There is a complete absence of any agreement or understanding amongst the manufacturers of leather relative to prices. In respect at least of standard lines of boots and shoes which are produced in Canada in fairly large quantities—excluding only certain novelties and special style shoes—manufacturers' prices are not higher in Canada than in the United States, except perhaps to the extent that they may be raised by revenue equipment or raw or semi-manufactured materials. For the tariff duties on boots and shoes do not represent net production, but are offset to a considerable extent by duties on imported supplies.

The shoe manufacturing industry in Canada requires protection against competition from both the United Kingdom and the United States, principally the latter. An investigating committee headed by Hon. Herbert Hoover, reported recently that the shoe factories in the United States,—there are some 1,500 of them—had a daily capacity of 1,750,000 pairs, but were producing only 977,000 pairs. These plants, when operating at capacity, can manufacture the entire annual requirements of their own home market in less than 9 months. They would seize eagerly an opportunity to capture the Canadian trade, which would be supplied for a year by the United States factories in a little more than two weeks' spare time. Morever, the United States plants can handle Canadian orders practically without any increase in their overhead expenses and there is abundant evidence of their willingness to sell for export to Canada—to help keep their plants operating—practically at manufacturing cost, without provision for overhead expense, which is accounted against their domestic trade If the Canadian tariff were reduced, the shoe manufacturing industry in this country would be subjected to unfair competition from the surplus production of United States factories, offered at specially low prices in times of business depression A recent investigation by the Canadian Department of Customs proved the repeated statements of the Canadian shoe manufacturers that footwear is being exported to Canada at prices considerably below the cost of production in the United States.

Footwear manufactured in the United States is similar to that made in Canada, and flood stocks and surplus goods of the United States provide all the requirements of the Canadian trade. But while a reduction of the tariff would result in the Canadian market being flooded with United States footwear whenever the factories of that country required an outlet for their surplus production the United States plants would consider their home trade first whenever the demand exceeded the supply. There is no reason to believe that a lowering of the Canadian tariff would effect any permanent reduction in the prices which Canadians pay for boots and shoes. On the other hand it would fadilitate "dumping" and at least spasmodic importations, resulting in a diminution of the volume of business available for the Canadian factories, and a consequent increase in unit costs of production in the Dominion. This increase either would have to be passed on to the purchaser or Canadian factories would be forced to close. More than 25 shoe manufacturing businesses in Canada have failed discontinued operations, or been forced into financial reorganization during the last three years; and since 1885 there have been something like 160 such casualties in the industry. Tariff reduction would add greatly to this already heavy list.

Quantity output is needed to keep unit costs of production and selling prices as low as possible. If conditions were such that the Canadian shoe manufacturing industry could develop trade abroad, to compensate for the loss of any part of the Canadian market which might be captured by the United States factories, tariff revision downwards would not be disastrous. But Canadian-made footwear is practically excluded from the United States by the mass production of the plants there, where the industry was developed to its present position by high protective duties. Exchange debars Canadian shoes from the United Kingdom, and exchange and protective duties have put a stop to Canadian exports to France, Belgium and other continental countries. Australia has erected a tariff of 55 per cent. ad valorem against Canadian footwear, and South Africa prohibits importation of boots and shoes, except under licenses issued only for those classes of footwear which are not in the Union. The South American republics and other countries have their own shoe manufacturing industries, which they protect by customs tariffs. If the home market demand for Canadian-made shoes is to be impaired as it would be by reduction of the tariff, there is no other outlet for that quanity production without which the present efficiency of the Canadian factories would not be maintained.

Again, the tariff is needed as protection is asked for the Canadian product against prejudice in favor of imported products. Fortunately that prejudice is being overcome by the sheer merit of Canadian footwear, but it still has to be reckoned with as a trade factor. Cases can be cited where ill-informed purchasers have paid much more for imported shoes when Canadian footwear equal or even superior in every respect, was obtainable at substantially lower prices. If doubt on this point persists in the minds of any reader of this article, the Shoe Manufacturers' Association of Canada would refer to the representatives of the National Council of Women—one of who had not worn any but shoes of United States manufacture since she was 13 years of age—who were convinced of the merits of Canadian footwear as a result of an actual demonstration some months ago. Shoes of United States and Canadian manufacture were taken from the shelves of a retail store and when they had been matched as closely as possible, the ladies were invited to compare them. In every case they selected the Canadian product as preferable in respect both of quality and appearance. They found, also, that retail prices of the Canadian footwear were lower than those of the United States shoes from $2 to $5 per pair; yet many people had been buying imported shoes solely from habit and lack of knowledge as to the quality of Made-In-Canada footwear.

The Canadian shoe manufacturing companies are not great monoplies. The largest shoe manufacturing organization in Canada has an output not more than one twentieth as great as that of the biggest United States producer. Two great corporations in the United States representing mergers of smaller companies—have each a daily output of close to 120,000 pairs, and an annual production valued just about twice that of all the Canadian shoe factories combined. It is against unfair and overwhelming competition from these gigantic organizations that continuance of adequate tariff protection is and asked for the Canadian shoe manufacturing companies, and the 70,000 persons who are directly dependent upon the industry for their livelihood. That industry owned or controlled outside the Dominion and much of the raw materials which it uses is of Canadian production.

Canadian shoe manufacturers recognize and accept the responsibility which tariff protection involves, that they supply honest goods at reasonable prices. The tariff has enabled the Canadian industry to develop and improve its products so that at the present time it is supplying about 95 per cent. of the Canadian trade. Made-in-Canada footwear, grade, for grade, is equal to the best produced anywhere in the world, and there never has been a time when the manufacturers' profits have been immoderate. Domestic competition fully protects the public against excessive prices.

Shoe Manufacturers of Canada.

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK AND BEAUTIFUL

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large obttle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everyobdy uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gary hair disappears, and after another application or two, you hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

Real Rest Depends Largely Upon the Depth of Your Sleep

A warning to "light" or "poor" sleepers

The deeper and sounder you sleep the better you feel. Five hours sound refreshing sleep does you more actual good than ten hours restless, disturbed sleep.

This is because the final conversion of food into vital tissue and nerve cells goes on more rapidly when the physical and mental forces are at rest.

You can't get sound, refreshing sleep if your nerves are agitated with tea or coffee. Both these drinks contain caffeine, which is sometimes very irritating to the brain and nervous system.

If you want to know the joy, vigor and stamina that comes to the person who gets sound, healthful sleep, why not stop taking tea or coffee for a while, and drink delicious, invigorating Postum instead.

Thousands of people everywhere have found that this was the only thing they needed in order to bring about these very happy results.

Order Postum from your grocer today. Drink this delightful cereal beverage of satisfying flavor, for a week. Perhaps, like thousands of others, you'll never be willing to go back to tea or coffee.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

POLITICAL COMMENT

G. N. GORDON MEETING.

Last night the largest political meeting known in Baillieboro for years was held at Greer's Hall in the interests of Mr. Gordon.

Mr. Wilbert Barnard occupied the chair most efficiently.

Sam Clarke, M.P.P. of Cobourg, gave one of his telling addresses, and said he had a particularly soft spot in his heart for the Monaghan people, because Monaghan was in his riding, and he had many opportunities of seeing them and becoming well acquainted with them.

He stated that the time, he thought, had come when partyism should be broken down and people should vote for the man who would present the most active, up-to-date and needed policy, for the needs of the great masses of the people. Mr. Clarke insisted that no help along this line could be expected from Mr. Arthur Meighen and his party, because Mr. Meighen and Mr. Burnham's whole cry had been to increase the tariff beyond all proportions, which gave combines and mergers opportunities for growing and nearly every trade had gathered together under an agreement for fixing prices, which increased the cost of living to the man on the farm to such an extent that the ordinary farmer today was not able to make a dollar above his taxes, and the necessary expenditures he required for living.

Mr. Clarke handed out some hot stuff, about the agriculture manufacturers in Tororto and Brantford, who were not willing to take their losses on their machinery when prices of material fell the same as the farmer had to do when the prices of farm products were shot all to pieces.

He said that he had not spoken in any other riding, nor on behalf of any other man, but liked Mr. Gordon's independent attitude and the assurance that Mr. Gordon gave, that he intended to support legislation for the needs of the great masses of people, irrespective of party, and that he intended to support any measure whether it came from Progressive, Liberal or Conservative if it was for the general need and benefit of the people at large.

He said that he had watched Mr. Gordon's fight to get taxes off flour, oatmeal, bran, shorts and other milled products, and he said this was the kind of a man that was needed there. So far as he had been able to learn, Mr. Burnham had never said a word, or even written a letter against the introduction of taxation on food, although he said that Mr. Burnham would write a letter nearly every day on every conceivable subject when he was in the humour.

He wound up with a strong appeal for Mr. Gordon, and for the people to forget party, and join in supporting a good man.

Mr. Gordon spoke at considerable length, dealing with the Riordon loss, and how men had been punished all over this county, and fined, because they did not make their income tax returns. He gave the names of most prominent men, who were a few days late in making returns, and were fined for it. But the men who owned the Mail and Empire, which supported the Government, were able to give a scrap of paper to pay their income tax.

The candidate claimed that Mr. Meighen was fighting behind 'Ramparts of Gold." He said that the bill boards were covered, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, with life-sized portraits of Mr. Meighen, showing how the profiteer was standing behind this Government. He said he was not prepared to say that every member of this Government was a grafter and a profiteer, but he would say that every grafter and profiteer was supporting the Government.

He criticised Mr. Burnham, in a kindly way, and took up Mr. Burnham's statement of what he had done for Peterborough. He said that Mr. Burnham suggested that he got $50,000.00 for the Hunter Street Bridge, when, as a matter of fact, Mr. Burnham told the Minister of Railways and Canals that he did not think the city was entitled to it. He said they got a rifle range, and where practice took place, bullets were shot across the road, endangering the lives of the residents of the township. The dry dock which Mr. Burnham said was coming, was just a vision, for nobody had ever heard of or seen it or knew where it was. Likewise, the Post Office he hoped to get was turned down, and because Mr. Burnham was in bad with the Government, he had no possible chance of getting it, because Mr. Burnham had said that he would not take the support of this Government, but would sit on the cross benches. Mr. Gordon said that Mr. Burnham was trying to steal from Mr. R. J. Soden credit for the effort made to establish a Government Hatchery, and Mr. Burnham had not obtained any appropriation, but, as a matter of fact, Mr. R. J. Soden was the one who first developed this idea, and Mr. Gordon said he intended to support it, and see that a hatchery was located in Peterborough County.

The meeting was a most enthusiastic one, and over seventy people were unable to get seats, and required to stand at the rear of the hall, and on the steps leading up to the hall.

The meeting closed with three cheers for the King, and for the candidate.

SEXSMITH MEETING.

On Wednesday night at Norwood J. A. Sexsmith, Major D. Johnston and J. F. Strickland addressed a splendid meeting of over five hundred in the interests of Mr. Sexsmith, the Government candidate.

In opening the meeting Major Johnston dealt very comprehensively with the efforts made and of what had been accomplished in the interests of the returned soldier.

Mr. Sexsmith dwelt at length on the policy of the Government, explaining the danger and difficulties which would beset the farmers if either the Progressive or Liberal parties were returned and carried out the platform which they have announced, the danger of making Canada a dumping ground for the immense production of the United States was emphasized. Mr. Sexsmith also replied to the charge that the Meighen government was a friend of big interests, refuting absolutely the statement and pointing out that the mergers denounced by Mr. King and Mr. Crerar were all established under the Laurier administration. He also dwelt on the immense amounts raised from what these gentlemen termed "big business" by way of taxation. The railway question said Mr. Sexsmith, was being dealt with ably and efficiently and was left over from the old Liberal administration.

J. F. Strickland dwelt entirely on the protective policy and the necessity for retaining that policy as the fiscal policy for this country.

DEWART'S BIG MEETING AT INDIAN RIVER.

A large and enthusiastic crowd that filled to overflowing the hall at Indian River listened to speeches by Capt. J. A. Dewart, M.C., the Liberal candidate, and Mr. Joseph Wearing.

Dr. Donald Munro was chairman, and expressed his pleasure at the real welcome given to Mr. Dewart in his home village. He affirmed his faith in the Liberal party as being the only body of men capable of forming a representative, strong and capable government. He eulogized Mr. Dewart on the fair, clean way in which he was conducting the campaign, and upholding the true principles of Liberalism. He spoke of the support that was springing up in all parts of the riding for the Liberal candidate, and prophesied victory on Dec. 6th.

Mr. Dewart, in an eloquent speech, traced the record of the Government and declared that the real issue was democracy versus autocracy.

A Concrete Case.

He illustrated his comparison by reviewing the railway question, showing how the Liberal administration ran two general elections on the 2,000 miles of railroad which were built, while the present Government bought 20,000 miles from the Canadian Northern, the Grand Trunk and other lines by putting the bill through the House under the Closure Act, and without consulting the people.

He explained the interlocking directorate, showing how the big interests were in league with the Government. He charged the Hon. Arthur Meighen and the Hon. T. A. Crerar with being, with others, responsible for the purchase of the railroads, the secret system of accounting and the system of management.

Strange Company.

Captain Dewart went into the Western aspect of the Progressive party, showing how it was setting class against class and West against East, working against the co-operation of all people in the Dominion. He mentioned that the Hon. Clifford Sifton, a discredited man who had been forced out of the Laurier Cabinet, and who helped to defeat the Liberal administration in 1911, was, with his organ, "The Winnipeg Free Press," strongly supporting the Progressives, and had been on the platform with Crerar at Massey Hall in Toronto. Mr. Dewart suggested that Sifton seems to be the master-mind behind the Western Progressives, directing a plot to defeat the Liberals.

PROBE ABILITY OF GERMANY TO PAY INDEMNITY

Guaranties Commission Collecting Vast Amount of Data.

BERLIN, Dec. 2. — (Associated Press).—A vast mass of material on German raw materials, productivity, labor, wages and the country's financial status is being gathered by the members of the Guaranties Commission, the sub-committee of the Reparations Commission now in Berlin.

Almost daily consultations are being held with various Government officials as well as financial and industrial leaders as to the prospects of Germany meeting her $100,000,000 gold installment to the Allied powers on January 15, and in some of these conferences Roland W. Boyden and Col. James A. Logan, the unofficial American representatives, are having a part. The second of four installments, another $100,000,000, is due next April.

The commissioners are expected to remain here until December 1, when they will go back to Paris to report to the full Reparations Commission. One of the most important phases of their investigation has been currency inflation and the decline of the mark. It is interesting to note that since the reparations payments began last May the outstanding paper money circulation in Germany jumped from 69,724,403,000 marks to 91,347,101,000 marks for the week ending October 31.

A comparison with pre-war issues shows even more pronouncedly the extent of inflation. For instance, in the week ending July 25, 1912, the paper money issue aggregated only 1,004,260,000 marks. The same week of 1913 it was 1,826,920,000 marks and in 1914 it was 1,890,893,000. The week of November 6, 1916, it had jumped to 7,246,260,000. The same week a year later it was 10,403,740,000 marks and two years later it had gone to 16,959,260,000. The week of May 24, 1919, it was 27,286,480,000 and the same week in 1920 it reached 49,127,540,000 marks.

A recent statement by Dr. Friedrich Rosen, former Foreign Minister, that the amount of German property sequestrated in various countries is sufficient to meet her reparations obligations has been the subject of discussions. The United States at one time possessed $150,000,000 worth of property belonging to the German Government. Representations by Dr. Bernhard Dernburg that only "an indeterminate moratorium" can save Germany from ruin are also being looked into as well as the recent negotiations here between Baron Anthony Rothschild of London and German bankers regarding a proposed loan of $500,000,000 in three per cent. 35-year bonds with amortization provisions.

The decline in the value of the German mark, normally worth 23.8 cents before the war, to a fraction of a cent and, perhaps, "the vanishing point," greatly complicates the financial outlook of every nation in the world.

The "tobogganing" of the mark has been attributed by German financiers to the forced payments on the Allied reparations of $33,750,000,000, while others see in their almost negligible value the result of unsound finance, cut-throat export sales and the rush of the German masses to the stores to exchange their almost worthless currency for any and every kind of commodity. German printing presses have been so busy putting out paper marks (10,915,500,000 were issued in one recent month) that some of the currency has appeared engraved on only one side.

It has been said that Germany does not possess one-half of one per cent. of the gold required to meet her tons and tons of paper obligations. Representatives of the Government of France, as an indication of this, recently arranged terms with Germany at a conference in Weisbaden by which Germany has agreed to deliver seven billion gold marks worth of building material. German bankers have repeatedly urged the necessity for an international conference and the declaration of a three-year moratorium to enable Germany to recover her equilibrium.

Many Allied economists, however, maintain that the depreciation of the mark has been artificially brought about by the machination and trickery of German financiers. They point out that Germany is much more prosperous in comparison with other European countries and that, while there is a great contrast between the extremes of wealth and poverty in Germany, speculators are making millions and nearly everyone is at work even if at low wages.

The sub-committee, known as the Guaranties Commission of the Reparations Commission, has gone to Berlin to investigate whether German marks really have any value. In event of finding them worthless, all foreign trading with Germany conducted on a paper currency basis, will cease and the Elbert Government may face such a crisis as will necessitate new action by the Allied powers. Prior to the war German marks in New York were third in importance in foreign exchange transactions, the British pound sterling and the French franc being first and second, respectively.

Since Germany agreed to the Allied reparations terms last May the following dates and amounts were fixed for payments:

June 1—1,000,000,000 gold marks to the Reparations Commission.

July 1—Delivery to the commission of bonds for 12,000,000,000 gold marks.

July 15—First quarterly payment of annual sum of 2,000,000,000 gold marks.

Aug. 15—First quarterly payment of the 26 per cent. of the value of German exports.

Oct. 15—Second quarterly payment of annual sum of 2,000,000,000 gold marks.

Nov. 1—Delivery to the Reparations Commission of bonds of 38,000,000,000 gold marks; also bonds without coupons attached for 82,000,000,000 gold marks.

Nov. 15—Second quarterly payment of the 26 per cent. of the value of German exports.

The Guaranties Commission now in Berlin is composed of M. Mauclere, of France, its Chairman, and M. Bemelmans, Vice-Chairman. Other members are Sir Hugh G. Levick, Great Britain; Signor Dameglio, Italy; M. Sekiba, Japan; M. Tiourtch, Jugoslavia, and Roland W. Boydon and Col. James A. Logan, unofficial representatives of the United States.

The duties of the commission are described under eight heads as follows:

"First—To insure enforcement of Articles 241 and 248 of the Treaty of Versailles.

"Second—To supervise the collection of German customs, export taxes and other revenues for the payment of reparations.

"Third—To see that Germany supplies funds for the interest on reparation bonds.

"Fourth—To watch German legislation so that the revenue is not diminished, to require Germany to submit to such measures for approval and also to require new income if the old source of income are abandoned.

"Fifth—To determine if German resources devoted to the interest on bonds are adequate.

"Sixth—To examine the German fiscal system in the name of the Reparations Commission.

"Seventh—To check and correct, if necessary, the German figures on exports on which a 26 per cent. tax is collectable.

"Eighth—To take any other measure deemed necessary to assure fulfilment of its mission, without, however, interfering with the German administration."

Mrs. W. S. Hamilton, of Toronto, was in town on business yesterday, and ere leaving on the afternoon train for home, kindly visited the annual meeting of the W.M.S. of Knox Church, and feelingly rendered a number.

TRICKS MISSED FROM GRIDIRON

STUNTS THAT MADE CARLISLE IND ANS FAMOUS ARE NO LONGER TRIED.

Where are the trick plays of the old days that used to give the football fans a thrill? Incidentally they offered food for conversation during the rest of the winter.

Glen Warner, now so successfully coaching the University of Pittsburg was the master magician of the old days. The football season was not complete unless Warner pulled some of his sleight of hand stuff in one of the big games.

The old time football fans recall without difficulty the year that Warner pulled the hidden ball trick against Harvard. One of the fast men in the Carlisle back field was equipped with a sweater having an elastic band around the bottom.

On the kick-off the Indians all massed together, as was customary in the old days, to form interference for the player who caught the ball stuck it under the back of the sweater with the elastic equipment. Then the players scattered and all ran in the direction of the Harvard goal. The Crimson players were bewildered, as no one seemed to be carrying the ball. The Indian with the ball secreted under his sweater ran the length of the field for a touchdown. Harvard entered a strenuous protest, claiming the play illegal, but it stood.

Secreted Player.

Warner later pulled another one that set the football world to talking. In pulling several trick plays he used a player secreted on the side lines, covered by one of the big blankets which a great many of the teams used. The player would be just within the sidelines and would be lying flat on the ground. To make the play all the more intricate, it was customary to have several substitutes lying around the same way, but just outside the side ines. At the start of play, the athlete concealed along the side lines would jump to his feet, throw off the blanket and then pull some weird trick at the expense of the opposition.

Those two plays were responsible for section 7 or Rule 23, which now reads: "There shall be no unsportsmanlike conduct on the part of the players. Concealing the ball beneath the clothing or "hiding" along the sidelines shall be deemed unsportsmanlike conduct. The penalty is the loss of 15 yards, and for flagrant conduct the loss of 15 yards and disqualification."

Warner Loses One.

However, the biggest coup planned by Warner never materialised. It seems Warner always had a desire to make Harvard the goat for his trick stuff. One year when his regulars removed their heavy sweaters to start the game, each player had a regular sized football worked on his jersey. So that by merely assuming the position a player ordinarily does in running with the ball, each player appeared to have a ball tucked under his arm.

Percy Haughton, who was then coaching Harvard, yelled murder, but Warner merely smiled, and insisted there was nothing to bar such a decoration. It was at this point that Haughton won the decision. "I'll grant you that," said Haughton, "and don't forget there is no rule that defines the colour of the football. I intend to have this one painted crimson."

With that he started off the field with the ball. Since the Harvard players wear crimson jerseys, Warner realised the edge would be with Haughton. Whereupon he agreed to rip off the football decoration, and the game proceeded. — Billy Evans in the Detroit News.

WHEEL THE GREATEST

Some time ago readers of an English newspaper were asked to state what, in their opinion, constituted the world's greatest invention. There followed a veritable postcard deluge. Having sifted the wheat from the chaff, it was decided to award the guinea prize to Sergt. H. Jordan of the 19th Hussars, Aldershot, whose entry read:

"The world's greatest invention is undoubtedly the wheel, and the palm should be awarded to the unknown genius who invented it.

"Steam traction, spinning looms, motor cars, and, in fact, almost every invention and machine now in everyday use owes its very existence to wheels, and depends upon the wheel to enable it to carry out its functions.

"A world without wheels is best left to the imagination. No taxis, no trains, no watches, no ships, and no 'revolutions.' In fact, like love, it is 'wheels that make the world go round.'"

THE CRIME WAVE

FREIGHT TRAIN ROBBED.

BUFFALO, Dec. 2.— (Canadian Press.)—A New York Central freight train was held up last night between Dunkirk and Fredonia by eight armed bandits and a truck load of merchandise stolen.

MONEY TO COVER PATENT APPLICATIONS HERE STOLEN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.)— It is believed here that the forty thousand dollars stolen from the Express Company at Niagara Falls may have been part of large amounts sent to Canada to cover United States patent applications which had to be paid by December 1.

THE HICKEY SALE OF MEN'S WEAR

A GOOD CLEAN STOCK OF CLOTHING AND FURNISHINGS OFFERED AT A SACRIFICE.

This week end will see many extraordinary good values snapped up in men's wear quickly. Prominent among the worthy offerings is that of the well known Hickey, Clothiers and Furnishers, 345 George street. This particular event is not for the disposal of old stock, of clothing or deleted styles and designs, but of real up-to-date garments and fashionable haberdashery of the newest and smartest kind. With good cloth ing offered at such suprisingly low prices, there ought to be packed houses every minute of the day to-morrow. It's a case of having to raise ready money to meet imperative demands. Thus comes this forced sacrifice. The crash to get the cash is the story in brief. The Hickey store have conducted sales in a creditable and successful manner, and young men especially have found this store's methods and goods, very attractive and popular.

ROTARIANS MUST LEARN ART, ETC.

and in a broad sense to the underprivileged boy. This for your own self-respect and the measure of duty you owed to your city. We have to work on the boy for the benefit of coming citizenship. It was a truism to say that a community was judged more by its boys than even by its young men and men of mature age. The moral tone of your community is shown by and reflected in the growth and activities of your boys. For boys come out of families, and if the family is as nearly right as families should be, the boy carries out with him to those with whom he mingles the true attributes of a morally right boyhood. If this be lacking, get at the lapse and have it righted.

At this juncture in his address Rotarian Seely brought forward illustrations, and examples from life, of the effects of boy service work. Most of it had its inception in the getting together of the real live men of a city, and any man coming into Rotary was sure to rub off other men much more of value than he gave up.

He bespoke for a branch of service the serious and sympathetic attention of the club. The work for crippled children of parents too poor to gain for their children the proper remedial attention. He illustrated this by what had been accomplished at Illyria, Ohio, where a modest beginning had developed into a State-assisted institution that had branches to the number of nine, all doing remedial work. His address closed with an appeal to keep Rotary going, to watch the activities and to stretch out the hand to help in cases and in situations where needed. Not to attempt to interfere with regular channels of municipal or fraternity assistance, but to get under and behind, and assist where such would be helpful.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

WOMAN'S REPLY TO MR. BURNHAM

Dear Sir,—In last night's Examiner, Mr. Burnham expresses the hope that the space in the Examiner will not be used for discussing the temperance question. He said that the Dominion Alliance wrote him a very nice letter and Mr. Spence added his good wishes. Mr. Burnham's attitude now is very different to what it was a few months ago when he was abusing the men and women who were attempting to repress the liquor traffic and all the harm that it did to their brothers, fathers and sons.

The temperance question may not be an issue in this election, but the heart-burnings caused by Mr. Burnham's unkind remarks concerning the temperance people will not be forgotten by the women of Peterborough. On page 1218 of the 1920 Hansard Mr. Burnham said about the Dominion Alliance, as follows:

"You have a right to be your "brother's keeper, and if he does not "want you to be his keeper, you have "a right to make him; that of "course is slavery. That is the prin-"ciple which this man (Mr. Ben "Spence) and the Dominion Alliance "have laid down."

"They are determined to seize pow-"er and to exercise their power, "and they are just as treasonable in "their intentions as any other body "which wishes to overturn the con-"stitution, the general principle of "Government, the general principles "that safeguard the freedom and lib-"erties of the people.

"A common dog-fight, or a fight in "the bear-pit, or a prize-fight is a "model of fair play and virtue along-"side the acts which these people "will permit themselves to do do "which they will do in order to gain "their purposes, because they pious-"ly and sublimely smile and say that "it is for the general benefit, without "any regard to whether the other "people want it or not."

"Yet these same pious frauds will "tell us that all that has gone be-"fore has been covered with corrup-"tion; they alone are the true, the "really good and the beautiful, and "they have the impudence to say: "Since we know we are so and we "are well provided with money, we "will put it all over you and put you "under our feet and make you do as "we please."

Those are some of the things you said about the temperance people of Canada and I think before you ask the people to forget what you said about the temperance people of Canada you should apologize to the women of Canada for those statements which you made on the floor of Parliament in 1920.

Yours truly,
E. SINGLETON.

G. N. Gordon Prevented Tax of $4,000,000 on Food That Goes Into Every Home In Canada.

His Objections in Parliament Forstalled Sales Tax on Flour, Rolled Oats and Other Mill Products---and Protected Branch of Milling Industry and Labour.

The electors of West Peterborough sent G. N. Gordon to Ottawa last February, and right off the bat Mr. Gordon began delivering the goods.

Mr. Gordon saved the people of Canada more than $4,000,000 by successfully opposing the sales tax of three per cent. which the Government was about to impose on flour, rolled oats, corn meal, bran, shorts and other grain products, when sold in bags or packages of less than 48 pounds.

The average workingman can't afford to buy these staple foods in fifty and hundred pound lots.

These days he usually buys the makings of the family's porridge in the well-known packages; and his wife's purchases of flour at the grocery shop run mostly to 25-lb. bags.

An Authoritative Estimate

The estimate of what Mr. Gordon's intervention means to the consumers of Canada is furnished by no less an authority than the secretary of the Canadian National Millers' Association.

This is what he says:—

The sales tax for one year, based on the quantity of flour consumed last year, would amount to $3,900,000, or roughly $4,000,000; AND THIS DOES NOT BEGIN TO TOUCH THE TAX ON OATMEAL OR OTHER MILL PRODUCTS WHICH WERE LATER EXEMPTED, LARGELY DUE TO YOUR EFFORTS.

That's what the electors of West Peterborough sent G. N. Gordon to Ottawa for—to look after their interests.

New Member's Accomplishment

And by that stroke of business alone, G. N. Gordon has demonstrated to the electors of West Peterborough that their duty to themselves is to re-elect him.

It should be remembered that Mr. Gordon was in Parliament only four months, just one session.

He was a new member, but he was no stranger there, no back-bencher, and, above all, he was no figurehead.

He was on the job from the outset. That's the kind of representative West Peterborough needs.

The foregoing, high tribute to Mr. Gordon's service to the people, contained in the statement of the secretary of the Canadian National Millers' Association, makes it clear that Mr. Gordon has largely underestimated the total of the food tax he forestalled when he places the figure at $4,000,000.

He Protected Local Labour

And there is no mention of the fact that his action has had a big effect in protecting the interests of the employees of the package department of the Quaker Oats Company, who would very probably be out of work at the present time had that sales tax on package cereals gone into force.

It is quite evident that Mr. Gordon was quick to realize the potential effect of that tax on a numerous branch of labor not only in Peterborough but elsewhere in Canada.

And not only on labor, but on the companies employing such labor.

In brief, Mr. Gordon killed three birds with one stone.

These are sound and convincing reasons why the men and women of West Peterborough should, on December 6th—

Elect G. N. Gordon

POLTICAL COMMENT

Liberals Have Strength.

He declared his confidence in Mackenzie King, Fielding and other experienced Liberals to bring the country out of the financial crisis.

He closed with a strong appeal to unite, race and race, class and class, Province and Province, into one great contented and prosperous people by combining behind the Liberal party

Mr. Wearing.

Mr. Jos. Wearing reviewed the careers of the leaders of the different parties. He showed Crerar and Meighen to be connected with the big interests of the country, having been Cabinet Ministers together, working for and advocating the same policies in the past. Their record did not justify the people in selecting either as Prime Minister. He traced Mackenzie King's history, declaring that it was without blemish, because he had not been connected in any way with Union Government, and had fought for the people's rights in the House of Commons. He was particularly a friend of labor and the common man.

Appealed For Candidate.

He appealed to the people to support Mr. Dewart, a young man showing great ability as an orator and thoroughly conversant with public affairs. He declared that if the people of East Peterborough would give him a chance he would some day become one of the public leaders of Canada. He mentioned his business and military career, and asked all the people to vote for him on Dec. 6th.

A chorus of the school children sang "O Canada" on the opening of the meeting, and Wilson Rosebrough rendered a vocal selection. The hall was beautifully decorated with bunting, and mottos were displayed reading "Vote for a Man at Home."

The meeting closed with the National Anthem and three cheers for the candidate.

The intense enthusiasm indicated the support Mr. Dewart has from his home district.

CALGARY, Dec. 2.— (Canadian Press.)— Hon. R. B. Bennett was given the hottest time of his campaign last night when he appeared before an audience composed of Great War Veternas. At times the meeting was very boisterous and the Minister was almost continuously hooted and hissed by a section of the audience.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I have noticed a good deal in The Examiner about game protection. I thought a description of how game is protected on the east, ten miles from Rice Lake, might interest some of your readers. Well, last spring, about the 20th of May, they started to troll, and there is a channel about one-half mile from four to ten canoes fishing. They were doing this openly one-half mile from shore. Well, first of September came around and the duck shooting season opened, and one hour and a half before sunrise you could hear the steady bang of the guns. It could not have been a hard task to find out who they were. Later in the fall we have a lot of city hunters and they generally bring a motor boat with them, and the first thing they do after they get their decoys out is to circle all flocks and try and drive them in. They drive them out of the lake. Most of those hunters own an island or point, and when they can't get shooting there they hire a guide and go around and stick up "hides" in front of other people's property. Every man that carries a gun likes to be called a sportsman, but some should have the prefix hog. There are "hides" on this lake that are over one hundred yards outside the legal limit. On the 28th of October there were three men that spent the greater part of the day chasing wounded ducks in a motor boat and shooting out of it.

These are only a few of the breaks that may be seen any time. There is two changes we need—(1) do away with "hide" hunting. (2) the open season for duck October 1.

WIDGEON.

Rice Lake, Nov. 25, 1921.

Dear Sir,—Kindly allow me a small space in your valuable paper re J. H. Burnham and to the electors

On the 5th line of his card he states it is no time to talk of theories. I therefore ask th support of very man and woman, who realizes that a flood of cheap imports would put our home worker on the street I would like to ask why the locks for the Parliament in Ottawa also the rugs and the clocks, which were placed in the same Parliament house were not purchased in Peterboro, instead of being bought in outside places, while the employers of the Peterboro Lock Works also the employees of the Brinton Carpet Works were only given part time work. Both these factories are and were able to supply. Just as good if not better any of these articles and our money would have been spent in our home town and the men would hav been working full time and Mr. J. H. Burnham never made any objection but allowed the contract to go away from his own home town. Does this not show how much he cared for the home workers. Mr. Burnham says one thing but he means another. He was in Parliament 10 long years what did he do nothing: But G. N. Gordon only was in a short time and the promises he made to the electors in the Grand Opera House last January he carried out. He said I will help the toiler. And so he did just think electors of Peterboro: $4,000,000 taxes were taken off our shoulders . Give him a 5-year term and the toiler won't know what hard times would mean; and he will see everybody will be having an honest living not walking the streets as lots of us are doing at the present. I say give Mr. Gordon all the support and on Dec 7th you will raise your head in pride and proclaim I am glad I voted for the best man.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor,

JOHN COUGHTON

NOVA SCOTIA APPLES TOOK THE FIRST PRIZE

HALIFAX, Dec. 2.—Nova Scotia box apples took first prize at the recent Imperial fruit show in London, England, an achievement indicative of the recent rapid progress of apple culture in this Province. Ten years ago Nova Scotia apples had a rather poor reputation in British markets were bringing from four to ten shillings less per barrel than Ontario or British Columbia apples. About that time the Dominion Government, the Nova Scotia Government, and the Canadian Pacific Railway, which inaugurated a campaign to stimulate interest in improving the methods of maintaining and caring for orchards, and developing a better quality of fruit. Five years later Nova Scotia had become an important factor in the barrel apple market, but there were still horticulturists who doubted that this province would ever be able to compete successfully in the box apple trade. Careful cultivation and free use of sprays and insectitides have, however made a notable improvement in the productivity and quality of Nova Scotia apples. For three years now the Province has had large apple crops of an excellent quality, and the orchards can be educated out of the old habit of having full crop one year and a poor crop the next.

This season Nova Scotia has sold an unusual quantity of apples in the American market, and the fruit growers expect to dispose of the balance at good prices in the British market. The crop is estimated at 1,500,000 barrels and ti is expected to yield the producers a profit of $3.00 per barrel, clear of culls.

BUILDING PERMITS FOR THE MONTH

Building permits issued at City Hall for the month of November totalled $11,578. Four houses were started during the month. Two permits for houses were given this week. George A. Agnew is erecting a seven-roomed brick veneer dwelling on Rogers Street, costing $2,500, and Ephgrave and Barrett have begun work on a stucco dwelling on Lock Street. The cost is estimated at $3,000. It will be of two-storey construction, six-roomed, 28 by 22 feet.

"MY LITTLE GIRL HAS GAINED 15 POUNDS," SAYS HAPPY MOTHER

LITTLE RHODE ISLAND GIRL IS AS BRIGHT AND CHEERY AND HER CHEEKS ARE AS ROSY AS EVER

SHE CAN NOW KEEP UP IN HER CLASSES

"ONLY A MOTHER CAN UNDERSTAND WHAT I SUFFERED WHEN I SAW MY DAUGHTER SLOWLY WASTING AWAY," SAYS MRS. MARY SMITH.

"Every time I look at my little girl's rosy cheeks my heart goes out in praise and gratitude for Tanlac," said Mrs. Mary Smith, of Peacedale, R. I., a suburb of Providence, recently.

"Until Mary was eleven years of age she had always enjoyed good health and had a very happy, fun-loving disposition. However, during the past three years she became very thin and frail. She took on a very sallow color, her tongue coated over, she complained of a bad taste in her mouth dull-head aches, and of feeling languid and tired all the time. She lost her sunny disposition and became nervous, irritable and moody. Her appetite got so poor that I had to coax her to eat. Her sleep was fitful, her eyes dull, and her steps so heavy that it seemed she hadn't strength to lift her feet from the floor

'She had always stood high in her studies, but now her reports were so bad that her teacher called on me to find out why she had gone back so in her lessons. When I asked her why she had failed so in her school work she cried and said she studied as hard as ever, but couldn't seem to remember. Only a mother can understand what I suffered when I saw my daughter slowly, but surely, fading away each day. I could hardly keep back the tears when I looked at her.

"Six months ago we took her out of school, thinking this might help her, but she continued to grow worse. We were told she would get better when she got older, but I was afraid she couldn't live and have shed many a tear over her condition. In fact, my husband and myself were downright sick from worry over her, and yet nothing did her any good.

"One day my husband said, 'Why not have Mary try Tanlac? Each morning I have read in the papers of someone being helped by it and it may be what she needs.'

"Well I had tried everything, else, so as a last resort I had Mary try Tanlac and I have felt thankful a thousand times that I did. Before she finished the first bottle she was eating like I have been wanting to see her eat for three years. Now she is the first to the table and the last to leave. She has gained fifteen pounds and is still gaining, and her face is as round and rosy as it ever was. Her eyes sparkle with health, her steps are light, and she is as full of life as a kitten. It does my heart good to hear her running around, singing and laughing and enjoying life and good health again My gratitude to Tanlac is unbounded."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists everywhere.

A Fellow Member's Opinion of Burnham

"He (J. H. BURNHAM) stated that he believed the Farmers' party would be thrown into the garbage barrel. Mr. Speaker, I hope when that happens the people will take my hon. friend out of the barrel before they put me in, for I would not like to occupy the same barrel with him."

COLLEGIATE LINE-UP FOR BIG GAME ANNOUNCED

EVERYTHING READY FOR THE CLASH WITH UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO SCHOOL WHICH PROMISES TO BE A MEMORABLE GAME.

Everything is set for the big battle between U. T. S. of Toronto and the Peterborough Collegiate to-morrow, and if the weather man does his part, there will be a memorable gathering of rugby fans at Riverside Park when Referee Bobby Armstrong blows his whistle at 2.15 o'clock.

The Collegiate team who, since their game with Oshawa a week ago on Wednesday, have had four field practices and three work-outs in the Y Gymnasium, are all in good shape and eager to try their ability against the much-touted Toronto aggregation. They will have no excuses to offer if the tide of battle flows against them, but they promise their supporters a real fight for the honours, and Cawkill, Munro, & Company will realise there has been a game.

Every lover of clean sport is urged to attend to-morrow's game as a proof of their appreciation of the efforts of the Collegiate boys. Fans are requested not to stand along the touch-line on the west side. It is possible to follow the game easily from the grand stand, but fans who want a closer-up view should line the east side, where their presence will not interfere with the people in the grand stand.

The Collegiate line-up will be as follows:

Flying wing—Ernie Legon.
Right half—Jack Fanning.
Centre half—C. Flowers.
Left half—Len Grime.
Quarter—Doug. Young.
Outside right—Clayton Kidpath.
Inside right—Bill Gilchrist.
Snap—Bob Breyfogle.
Inside left—Stan Stacey.
Substitute quarter back—Howard Young.
Substitute middle wing — Hay Bookhout.
Substitute inside wing — Stevens Parrington.
Substitute half—Maniece.

LIGHT THROWN ON STORE THEFT

Wife of Guard Who Fled With $25,000 Tells of Wrecked Home.

DETROIT, Dec. 2.—The dreams of a home and a happy old age are shattered for Mrs. Rose Vashegyi whose husband, George 41 years old an employe of the Ernst Kern Co., disappeared with $25,000 of the company's money Monday afternoon.

A warrant signed by Judge John Faust charging the man with larceny by conversion was issued this morning.

The story told by Mrs. Vashegyi a maid in a Dexter boulevard home, is the old, old story of the love triangle, of a prettier face, and another wrecked marriage.

For three months Mrs. Vashegyi has known of the "other woman", for whom the police are looking today. The wife intercepted a letter from the girl, who is believed to be a former resident of Three Rivers, Mich. She worked in the department store where Vashegyi was employed.

"The letter was full of endearments, it told of the happy vacation together in Jackson this summer," Mrs. Vashegyi said to-day. "It was the first I knew about it and it almost broke my heart."

Spent her Money

Then she told the story of how she had worked for years trying to save money for a home—money which her husband she said spent on the "other woman".

"When I accused him of it he admitted he loved her," she said. "He said she was beautiful and clever, and he spent our money. I would not care about that. I would forgive him this other woman, but this theft of money from his employer —I can not forgive that."

"He lived in the same apartment as this woman on Cass avenue for weeks. I knew it. But I loved him and I thought I could make him a good man again. She seemed to have him hypnotized. He was crazy —not himself. I just want her to suffer as I have suffered. I am young in years, but look at me—I look 15 years more than my age. It 's just this worry."

The savings of the couple have been spent. Mrs. Vashegyi has given her husband all her wages with the exception of a few dollars a month since July.

"I knew what he was doing with the money but I had hoped he would come back to me," she said.

His Last Visit

Mrs. Vashegyi told of a visit from her husband last Thursday.

"He looked me in the eye for the first time since I found out about her," she said. "I had hoped everything was going to be all right. I did not know were he was living at the time—he did not say—but I believed he had left her".

Monday afternoon, soon after Vashegyi stepped out of the Kern store with the $25,000 which he and another employee were taking to the bank, he called his wife.

"Goodbye, Rose, you will never see me again," he said. That was all.

Police officers believe the man called his wife from some railroad station, but no clue has been found to indicate where he went with the bag of money.

Detectives Collins and Wisneiwiski assigned to the case have asked for co-operation from various police departments of the state, including that of Three Rivers in the belief that the man is with the "other woman". If he is not with her he will endeavour to communicate with her, they believe.

The woman, the police say they have discovered, took Vashegyi to visit her mother at Three Rivers last summer.'

Vashegyi was well educated in Austria, his native country, his wife said.

AT THE GRAND.

"THE FOUR HORSEMEN"

"Say, are you going to see that picture at the Grand the Four Horsemen of Oh! I can't pronounce that last name—

Why —I can't pronounce it myself—you know I read the book, but I didn't know what it was all about and I never could say hard words. Well—I may go to see it — Never even knew there was such a book"—

A propos of the big picture one movie fan says we are to have music with it —another says we are not and the management of the Grand tells us it is to be a twelve piece orchestra. The only way to find out will be to pay the price of admission I guess—

Two women were standing last night in the lobby of the theatre One said to the other—"Think I'll go to see that Spanish picture"—and the authority on international costumes pointed gaily to the picture of the old Centaur Madariagn in full Argentine array!

Two girls at the Toronto Exhibition were discussing the same subject—One said to the other, "Are you going to see "The Four Horsemen of the Eucalyptus?" the answer was "No—I've seen, "In Old Kentucky" and the "Whip" and I'm sick of them racing pictures".

LAURA

Peterborough lovers of the silent drama had read many flattering references to Rex Ingram's film version of Vicente Blasco Ibanez's remarkable novel, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," and those who visited the Grand last night and saw the production for themselves came away satisfied that none of the tributes, however lavish they may have seemed, did full justice to this wonderful film. It is doubtful if any moving picture that Peterborough has seen so gripped one's attention as does this fast moving masterpiece. From the opening scene depicting old Madariaga gazing at his vast lands and huge flocks to the last fading out of the face of the Prophet the interest never flags for a moment. Wonderful acting by a carefully selected cast, splendid photography, masterly direction and an evident appreciation of the necessity for realism and accuracy, characterizes "The Four Horsemen." In adapting Ibanez's gripping story for the screen, June Mathis has not followed the example of other scenario writers who, given a novel to prepare for film purposes, do not hesitate to tear it all to pieces, with the result that there is little resemblance between the original and the picture. Not so in this case. The film follows the novel with remarkable fidelity. Ibanez has simply stepped from the printed page to the silver sheet, and the result is a picture that will dwell long in the memory of those fortunate enough to see it.

The public is familiar with the story of "The Four Horsemen," but the film imparts a new punch, a fresh thrill to the stirring novel. The war scenes are depicted with a realism that holds the audience spell-bound. Nothing better has been done on the screen than this feature of "The Four Horsemen." There is not a dull moment in the film, no padding, no dragging, just two hours and a half of enthralment.

The cast is superb. Rudolph Valentine in the leading role of Julio justifies his selection for the part by his wonderful work throughout. Alice Terry is a convincing Marguerite, Joseph Swickard contributes a remarkable performance as Marcello Desnoyers, Nigel De Brulier's conception of the Prophet will not soon be forgotten, and the other members in the cast are true to life.

An orchestra of eleven pieces, under the direction of Chester Smith, who was in charge of the music of the original New York production of the picture, renders a remarkable score in a manner that greatly increases the effect of the production. The musical setting is as effective as any score that has been heard here.

"The Four Horsemen" will be repeated at the Grand to-night and to-morrow night, with a matinee to-morrow. No one should miss this opportunity of seeing one of the greatest triumphs that the silver sheet has yet recorded.

TWENTY-FOUR HOURS OF TRUTH.

William Collier is recognized by critics and public alike as the premier farceur of the American stage. Other comedians can make an audience laugh heartily, but no one can provoke the spontaneous, prolonged applause that Collier's does. For the entire year he played "Twenty-four Fours of Truth" at the Longacre Theatre in New York to capacity houses. It was an outstanding success for the past three seasons on the road, and when the Rex Stock Company, supporting Miss Zana Vaughn, plays this bill next week, Peterborough will proclaim the production superior in every respect. The scenery, being specially prepared, is unusually attractive, and Rex will be seen again in the variety of character he does to the best advantage. Mr. Snelgrove's clientele insists on having their favourite actor in a humorous vein and they will not be disappointed in next week's bill. The plot hinges on the simplest occurrence—a chance promise to double his fiancee's money and a rash determination to tell the truth and nothing but the truth for twenty-four hours. Rex, Zana and the entire company will return to Peterborough on Monday, Dec. 5th, for three days. LAURA.

"THE THREE MUSKETEERS."

Louis Gottschalk, who will long be remembered as the producer for Henry Savage of Franz Lehar's famous "Merry Widow" in this country in 1908, arranged the musical score for Douglas Fairbanks' film version of "The Three Musketeers," which will be shown at the Grand Theatre on December 8th, 9th and 10th.

Gottschalk was in daily conference in Los Angeles with Fairbanks, also with Doug's director, Fred Niblo, and Edward Knoblock who is credited with the lens edition of the famous Dumas' story, before starting work on his remarkable score.

For two and a half years, Gottschalk prepared the musical accompaniments for D. W. Griffith's productions, and his score for "Broken Blossoms" is considered a classic example of this kind of work.

Among notable stage productions which Gottschalk has written the music for are Frank Baum's "Ticktock Man of Oz" and "The Wizard of Oz." He also staged several Broadway successes.

AT THE CAPITOL.

The Capitol has a splendid double show programme for the week end. Charlie Chaplin with his little pal, Jackie, romp through six reels of fun and frolic, mingled with enough pathos to make the most indifferent theatre-goer sit up and enjoy himself. Some of Chaplin's best work is embodied in this picture.

Earle Williams has an unusual vehicle in "Bring Him In," a colorful picture with a background of Canadian Northwest with its Mounted Police, and a peculiar motif which embraces the Freudian theory of sub-conscious active mind. The pictured scenes in this picture are an outstanding feature.

Completing an exceptiinally entertaining programme is the vaudeville act, Mack and Bernard in a clever 'tramp' act with some excellent step-dancing.

At the matinee to-morrow, five dollars will be awarded to the cleverest child imitator of the hero of "The Kid" picture. The audience will do the judging.

AT THE ALLEN.

To-day's program at the Allen Theatre is a veritable galaxy of unusually interesting films. Those who have followed the adventures of Tavernier in the wonderful million dollar Indian serial story of the Hope Diamond will see the Frenchman re-enter the temple of Sita and steal the diamond. Just as he is practising "Here comes the bride" (or what may have been the form equivalent of that air that seals the end of man's freedom) Bibi is Kidnapped. The comedy is a side splitting expose of Toonerville where a spinster shaped like a lath, only longer, is the only advocate of prohibition. Then comes one of the most admirably staged and superbly acted plays ever screened. This is "Stranger than Fiction" with Kathleen McDonald, as Diane. The play opens with the presentation of Carmen at the Drexel mansion for charity. Those who saw Charlie Chaplin's play of Carmen and do not quite know yet whether that production was comedy or tragedy, except possibly those who paid for it and thus know it to be the latter, will enjoy the Carmen in "Stranger than Fiction". It is refined, airy, wholesome, gloom dispelling comedy. After the play at Drexel's mansion is over, Diane, to save her lover, who has undertaken to arrest the chief of the Black Hand gang, works her way into the underground haunts of the New York underworld. An airplane chase starts from the roof of a thirty-storey sky scraper. The plans engage in combat and the villain escapes by 2,000 foot fall with a parachute. Those who are fond of thrills will get all they want in this startling mid air stunt.

AT THE REGENT.

FILM SCENES MADE IN DEATH VALLEY.

"Where Men are Men," which will be shown at the Regent Theatre on Hunter street, is the William Duncan production in which Edith Johnston is the co-star. It is an adaptation of "The Priness of the Desert Dream," a novelette by Ralph Cummins which appeared in Snappy Stories. Nearly all of the action takes place in the Death Valley gold section of California during the gold fever with rough and ready prospectors as characters. The title is peculiarly descriptive. Scenes of the desert with its cactus and sage brush, of mining shafts, of camps, dance halls and recreation resorts, are numerous.

Some of the most famous locations in California are used, making the production one of scenic beauty, as well as of entertaining value. As far as possible Mr. Duncan used the locations described in Mr. Cummins' story, most of which are almost inaccessible and rarely visited by any tourists. Thus "Where Men are Men" will give the picture fan a view of scenery seldom seen in films.

MISS PAYTON'S RECITAL AN ENJOYABLE EVENT.

A large number of her friends were present at a very enjoyable recital recital given by Miss Ethel Payton, on Wednesday evening last, at the studio of Mr. George H. King, 418 Rubidge Street. Miss Payton, who is a pupil of Mr. King, has a lovely soprano voice, and her well-balanced programme of pretty numbers evidenced the most careful training and attention to vocal technique.

Her selections were chosen to bring out every phase of excellent musicianship, and included a group of dainty ballads: "Who'll Buy My Lavender," "By the Waters of Minnetonka," and "Nothin' but Love"; a "Hindoo Song," Bishop's "Bid Me Discourse," and "Love Eternal."

Several cornet solos by Mr. F. W. Robinson added greatly to a pleasant musical evening, which was closed with the service of dainty refreshments.

WEDDING BELLS

AINSLIE—BOOTH

Park Street Baptist Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding Thursday, December 1st at 2.30 p.m., when Miss Eva Booth and Mr. Ernest Ainslie, of Peterborough, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev. W. E. Morrow in the presence of a large number of friends.

The bride, who was beautifully attired in her travelling suit of brown duvetyne with hat to match and seal scarf, the gift of the groom, and carrying a sheaf bouquet of 'mums, entered the church on the arm of Mr. Neil Porter to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Thomas, sister of the bride.

After the ceremony, the bridal party returned to 516 Chamberlain street, the home of the bride's mother where a sumptuous repast was served, after which the young couple left on the 3.50 C.P.R. train for a short honeymoon, amid showers of confetti and good wishes for many happy years of wedded life.

The young couple were recipients of many costly and useful gifts.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. H. Ainslie, Toronto; Mrs. E. Graham, Lindsay, Mrs. A. Merrett and son Harry of St. Catharines.

COUNCIL PLANS MORE WORK FOR LOCAL JOBLESS

SURFACE DRAINAGE AND PAVEMENT TO BE CONSTRUCTED ON HUNTER STREET EAST, TO ALLEVIATE SUFFERING.

BIG RELIEF BILL

In relief of unemployment this winter, besides the sections of sewer work previously passed the City Council planned last night for surface drainage construction on Hunter street east, from Sheridan street to Armour Road.

With this end in view Alderman Hay and Alderman Crowe's motion that the Solicitor prepare a by-law for surface drainage and pavement on Hunter street passed Council unanimously. And when this measure is prepared and adopted by Council—the work having been advertised without opposition resulting—the city can go ahead with the drainage scheme, but it is not likely that paving construction will be undertaken this winter. Both pavement and drainage will cost about $68,000.

Big Relief Bill

Talking to the question of work to relieve the unemployment situation, Ald. Crowe pointed out that the amount paid out in relief last month was $700 odd, and he contended that such money might better be expended on public work such as drainage. The people, he said, want to "earn" relief and not be "doled charity"; and he suggested that storm drainage work be undertaken generally where needed and its cost put on th rate next year to met the overdraft created now in payment of such work. The citizens, he urged, have got to put up the price for relief in either employment or charity and the former principle is preferable to both those who must defray the cost and recipients of assistance.

His worship replied that Ald. Crowe's idea could not be carried out.

Ald. Jones—"Whatever we do must be done legally. A by-law for $40,000 of storm drainage, including the Edison drain, to be paid for out of the general rate, was voted down by the people a year ago. We are all anxious to help out the unfortunate with work, but Ald. Crowe's plan is unpracticable."

Ald. Hay agreed with Ald. Crowe that the city should get value for relief distributed if possible, he concurred with the Mayor's and Ald. Jones' views on the question of legality, and pointed out that the Hunter street east, work is all that ready for prosecution.

Lawyers and Clients Involved In Election, So Court Held Up

The proximity of election day interfered with the progress of Division Court yesterday so involved are solicitors and clients in the campaign.

Only one case, in which G. W. Hatton, Crown Attorney, recovered fees for services totalling $65, from Robert J. Scott, of Asphodel township, was heard by Judge Huycke.

Mr. Hatton's fees were for bringing about reconciliation between Robert J. Scott and Mary J. Scott, his wife.

F. D. Kerr, K.C., represented Mr. Scott.

In the police court Mrs. Scott has charged her husband with non-support and the case was remanded till December 8th. Magistrate Dumble urged them to try and live harmoniously together.

COUNCIL GIVES IN TO PROVINCE; TO BUILD THE ACTIVATED SLUDGE TYPE OF SEWAGE PLANT DEMANDED

RESOLUTION MOVED BY ALD. CROWE AND PASSED AFTER MODERATE DISCUSSION DIRECTS THIS.

TO RUSH CONSTRUCTION

"That this Council, having been ordered by the Provincial Board of Health to construct sewage disposal works of the activated sludge type, direct the City Engineer to complete the details of the plans and specifications for disposal works of that system in consultation with the Provincial Engineer as quickly as they can be prepared, and that the Committee of the Whole Council be directed to advertise for the construction of the works as soon as plans are completed."

The foregoing resolution, moved by Ald. Crowe and Turner, and carried after a moderate discussion, is the City Council's answer last night to the demand from Otonabee Township et al—published in full in yesterday's Examiner — that assurance be given them on or before December 5th, that the City will proceed with installing an activated sludge sewage disposal plant, or notice of trial for damages in the December court would be served.

This is the plant ordered by the Provincial Board of Health to be constructed, in opposition to City Engineer Parson's recommendation in favor of the Imhoff system.

The members of the Council present were: Mayor McIntyre, Aldermen Harry Gainey, Jos. Crowe, J. J. Turner, R. N. Jones, Robert Morrison, Nagel Phelan and G. L. Hay.

The resolution carried on a vote of five to two, as follows:

For—Aldermen Gainey, Morrison, Crowe, Turner and Jones.

Against — Aldermen Hay and Phelan.

Ald. Hay and Phelan's amendment that no action be taken fell down, with only themselves voting in the affirmative.

No Alternative.

Ald. Turner concluded that, after listening to Engineer Dallyn, of the Provincial Board of Health, last meeting, the Council had no alternative but to comply with the Board's order for an activated sludge plant. Still, he pointed out, that opinions do not always agree, and cited the case where Thos. Barrie thoroughly renovated his building, then situated at the corner of George and Simcoe Streets, installed an electrical system approved of by the Government's inspector, and, with a subsequent change of inspectors, had to spend between $14,000 and $16,000 in replacing that electrical system. The Alderman, in support of expert opinions differing, referred to Ottawa, the Council of which carried the Provincial Board of Health's order for a water system to the courts, and won out in favor of their own plan. Men's views change from time to time, he continued, and new ideas originate; still he could see no alternative for Council, and hoped that when the sewage disposal plant is gone ahead with, everything will be perfectly satisfactory.

The Responsibility.

In support of the motion, Ald. Crowe emphasized the fact that Engineer Dallyn had declared the Provincial Board of Health would assume responsibility for the activated sludge plant. With the Imhoff system advised by Engineer Parsons, our engineer is liable to quit at any time, and then we could not, in his absence, hold the Provincial Board responsible for that system advised against by them.

Ald. Phelan was quite pronounced in his negative views. This Council, he said, has spent a number of years on this question, and thousands of dollars on deputations and visits of inspection to arrive at which system of sewage is the best; our engineer advises the Imhoff system, he said, and I think in the face of that report, and where there is so large an expenditure involved, we would not be justified in accepting the order of Mr. Dallyn, who admits that in such matters he is practically the whole Provincial Board of Health. The Alderman conveyed quite an air of indifference to the threatened litigation and injunction by North Monaghan and Otonabee; besides, he concluded, this Council has only a few weeks to run, and should not tie up its successors.

Sit Back.

Ald. Phelan found a warm endorser in Ald. Hay, who, opining that there were but two courses for Council to pursue — accept the instructions of the Board of Health or sit back—declared in favor of the latter course. What damages against the City can the Townships win, he questioned; they have got to prove damages first. Then, he wanted to know what authority Engineer Dallyn had for pledging the Provincial Board of Health's assuming responsibility for an activated sludge plant, and what their standing back of that system amounted to for this city. The townships, he contended, could only issue a writ; and he doubted if any court would assess damages against this municipality in the circumstances.

To Make Work.

The Mayor's idea in having this vexed question settled was to furnish work for the unemployed as early as possible.

Ald. Phelan here interjected that he did not think any Judge would levy damages against the city in the face of all Councils, past and present, have done in selection of the best sewage system for this locality, and delays consequent upon disputes between our engineer and the Pro-

WOMEN'S LEAGUE HELD A DEBATE

DEBATE DECIDED IN FAVOUR OF THE OLD FASHIONED WOMAN

The first open meeting for this season of the Catholic Women's League took place last evening in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum, and took the form of a debate between four young ladies, on the resolution, that: "The woman of the twentieth century is superior to the woman of the nineteenth century."

The hall was well filled and close attention was paid to the various arguments advanced on either side. These comprised quite an assortment of ideas pro and con, and brought out some interesting angles for both the older-fashioned and the modern lady.

The speakers on the affirmative were Mrs. R. McQuaid and Miss Mary Lonergan, and on the negative Miss Kathleen McCarthy and Mrs. F. Overend.

The judges, Rev. Father Cantillon, Mr. J. P. Finn and Mr. Joseph A. O'Brien, decided in favor of the negative, the women of the nineteenth century proving the victor.

Miss M. A. O'Connell, presided at this meeting. Mrs. J. T. O'Connell and Mrs. D. O. Legendre were at the door, and Miss Margaret McGrath had charge of the stage, which was beautifully decorated with ferns, palms and cut flowers.

During the judging, Miss Ina Allen rendered a vocal solo, her sweet and clear soprano calling forth a voiceferous encore, to which she responded with a second lovely number. Miss Stella Shearer acted as accompanist, and a pretty instrumental selection was rendered by Miss Mary Timms.

$2,000 TRANSFERRED TO CHARITY BOARD

Some $7,000 Still in Hand From Old Peterborough Relief Assn.

Two thousand dollars will be transferred from the approximtaely $9,000 still in hand from the old Peterborough Relief Association to the local Charity Board for relief purposes, the city treasurer to hold the balance subject to direction from the City Council. This was the motion of Ald. Hay and Ald. Morrison in a session of Council's Finance Committee last night.

On motion of Ald. Phelan and Morrison, a $100 grant was voted the Peterborough Poultry Association.

And the National Sanitarium Association was granted $1,000 in result of a motion by Ald. Hay and the Mayor; this amount to be abstracted from the Manufacturers' committee's surplus.

TILT OVER PLUMBING INSPECTOR'S CHARGE FOR USE OF HIS CAR

ALD. GAINEY MOVED FOR STRIKING OUT FROM PROPERTY COMMITTEE REPORT—$75 FOR THIS SERVICE.

Ald. Gainey took exception in Council last night to a clause in Ald. Jones' Property Committee report that Plumbing Inspector, A. Metheral, be paid $75 for the use of his motor car this year. The city replaced a $600 a year man with a $1500 official, and to add on $75 to that salary savors of injustice to the late inspector, he contended.

Ald. Gainey also objected to the plumbing inspector or any other city official using their cars and billing for same without permission from the council.

Ald. Jones replied that the late inspector was allowed car fare; Metheral did twice the work, and transportation for covering the ground was necessary. Inspector Metheral, he added, averages well up toward a hundred inspections of plumbing pieces a month, and he reminded Ald. Gainey that the Railway Committee were to request from Sir Adam Beck free street railway transportation, but nothing had been reported in that connection.

Ald Gainey replied that council threw out that proposition.

Ald. Hay inclined to the view that the higher salary paid Metheral and his need for using his car in the prosecution of his duties, indicated his increased value to the city above that of the late inspector.

Ald. Turner supported Ald. Jones' attitude, and considered $75 a reasonable charge for the use of Metheral's car a whole year, by which he asserted the city had reaped $100 or $150 value in service.

Ald. Gainey's amendment to eliminate this clause found no seconder, and the account passed.

MORE ARRESTS FORGERY CHARGE

CASE WILL BE HEARD ON FRIDAY NEXT—POLICE COURT

Harry Allard alias Ray Wager, Kenneth Morton's alleged accomplice in forging cheques, was arrested in Oshawa, and brought back to the city yesterday by Detective George Cookman.

This morning he was charged with aiding or abetting Morton in cashing a cheque for $2,150, drawn on the Royal Bank on 29th November, payable to R. Wager, and purposted to be signed by A. Dinsdale.

On the request of his solicitor in Oshawa, he was given a remand to the 9th instant, without electing or pleading.

When Morton, who comes up on Tuesday, was arrested by the police, Allard made a getaway. The Chief of Police immediately wired neighbouring towns, and he was arrested in Oshawa as soon as he reached the town.

MOTOR VEHICLES ACT.

The Motor Vehicles Act yielded $20.00 in fines to-day. Percy Stock paid $10.00 for failing to transfer an auto license, and a juvenile's first drive into town behind the wheel of his dad's car, which came to grief against a street car, cost the dad a ten-spot. He took the assessment in fine spirits, and assured His Worship he wouldn't make any more mistakes. He said he let the boy drive because he was better at it than he was himself.

SEWING CIRCLE HELD A SUCCESSFUL CONCERT.

A very successful concert, under the auspices of St. Anthony's Sewing Circle, was held last evening in the basement of the Sacred Heart Church. There was a large crowd in attendance, and the programme rendered was most enjoyable, the different numbers receiving enthusiastic applause.

Vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. Herman Laplante, Messrs. Ted Bartley, and J. McNamara, and a duet by Miss Minnie Allen and Mr. McNamara. Recitations were given by Miss Rose Black, Joseph O'Toole and Jerry Collins, an instrumental duet by Ethel and Harold Armstrong, and violin solos by Vincent Richea and Charles Liebers. Mr. J. L. Armstrong acted as accompanist.

The Misses Alma Goselin, Margaret Jones, and Vera Chouinard enacted a short sketch, entitled "The Three Missions," and pupils of the Sacred Heart School gave a dialogue in which Geraldine Doig, Herbie Masterson, John Kirns, Francis O'Keefe and Victor Grady took part. A comic song by nine school boys was very good. Those included were: Jerry and Joseph Collins, Bill Rady, John Kirns, Victor Grady, Herbie Masterson, Joseph O'Toole, Francis O'Keefe, and Victor Minicolo.

DIED.

GRUBBE.—At "Kingsley," Southwold, Suffolk, England, Colonel Edmund Arthur Grubbe, Connaught Rangers, third son of the late John Eustace Grubbe, of "Horsedon Manor," Buckinghamshire, and grandson of Captain John Grubbe, Lord of the Manor of "Horsendon," "Princes Risborough," and "Abbotsfield," or the "King's Manor," in his sixty sixth year.

DR. McCULLOUGH STATES DUTIES OF CITY M.O.H.

REPLY TO BOARD OF HEALTH'S QUERY SUPPORTS HIS STAND AGAINST MOWAT, DR. YOUNG SAYS.

SETTLES CONTROVERSY

The reply of Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, chief officer of health for the province, to the resolution of the local Board of Health querying him on the duties of the city M.O.H., supports the stand taken by Dr. T. W. H. Young, Dr. Young claims. The reference of the matter to Dr. McCullough was the result of a controversy between Dr. Young and A. Mowat, Inspector of Public Schools, regarding the former's duties.

Following is Dr. McCullough's communication:

Toronto December 1st, 1921.

Sir,—I am in receipt of your communication of the 30th ultimo enclosing the following resolution:

"That the Chief Officer of Health "be asked whether it is the duty of "the Medical Officer of Health to "give medical attendance in all cases of contagious diseases in the city, "including carriers, and in cases of "school children give them a cer"tificate to show that they can re"turn to school; also whether the "Medical Officer of Health is legally "bound to attend children in quaran"tine who have no family physician, "and, further whether sub-section 3 "of Section 13 of the School Regu"lations respecting the duties of "school nurse staffs applies to con"tagious diseases."

(1) It is not a part of the duty of Medical Officer of Health to attend cases of contagious disease, or of carriers of disease in persons able or unable to pay for such service, unless Council has made an arrangement with the Medical Officer of Health to this effect under the authority of Sec. 52, S.S. 1 & 2 of the Public Health Act. This section of the Act imposes a duty upon Council to see that persons suffering from disease or injury and unable to pay for medical servce shall have such service provided.

Sec. 58 deals specifically with the care of persons ill of communicable disease and imposes upon the Medical Officer of Health and local Board of Health certain duties which are clearly laid down in the section. Thus you will see that in case of any communicable disease the local Board of Health and the Medical Officer of Health must see that the quarantined persons are in want of nothing, which is necessary for their illness or comfort, but the Medical Officerof Health is not personally obliged to give this service. If the Board should be shown to have neglected persons under quarantine the courts might award (as I have seen happen) damages against them.

Under the Act and Regulations it is the duty of the Medical Officer of Health to see that premises having communicable disease are placarded and quarantined, to see that quarantine is lifted at the proper time, and to certify when the inmates if children, may return to school.

While the school nurse might properly bring the matter of a contagious disease in the school to the prinpal's attention, it is the latter's duty to notify the Medical Officer of Health. (See Sec. 72, S.S.S. 3, Public Health Act.)

I hope I have made myself clear, but if any further question is in dispute please let me know.

I am sending a copy of this letter to the Medical Officer of Health.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your Obedient Servant,
Chief Officer of Health.

S. R. Armstrong, Esq.,
Clerk,

TO-DAY'S NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

HON. SIR GEORGE E. FOSTER TELLS EAST PETERBORO' FARMERS THEY HAVE BEEN WELL LOOKED AFTER

VETERAN OF MANY AN ELECTION CAMPAIGN VISITS HAVELOCK IN THE INTERESTS OF J. A. SEXSMITH —THE GOVERNMENT RECORD EXPOSED TO VIEW — RETURNED SOLDIERS LOOKED AFTER

CRERAR AND KING CRITICIZED

HAVELOCK, December 3. — Last evening between 600 and 700 residents of Havelock and vicinity crowded into the Town Hall to hear Sir George E. Foster speak in the interests of Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, the Government candidate in East Peterborough.

In spite of a severe cold which he contracted two days ago, Sir George gave a stirring address, in which he warned his auditors that "Canada's fate would be decided on 6th December."

Mr. H. C. Brewster occupied the chair, and introduced Major T. D. Johnston as the first speaker.

The latter dealt with the returned soldier problem and in the various efforts that have been made by the Government to deal with the situation. These efforts included a land settlement scheme, in which twenty-six thousand returned soldiers were placed on the land, and a total of ten million bushels of grain produced. Vocational training took care of one hundred and nine thousand men at a cost to the Government of $102,000,000. Seventy-three thousand men have been provided for by the pension scheme of the Government, and gratuities to the returned soldiers have cost the Government $164,000,000. Returned soldiers have taken out $13,000,000 worth of Government insurance, which dispenses with medical examination. Thirty-one thousand men have been placed in the Civil Service, of which number seven thousand have been taken in permanently. Continuing, Major Johnston said forty-seven thousand soldiers' dependents were returned to Canada at the expense of the Government. The total cost of re-establishing the returned men has been in the neighbourhood of $400,000,000.

Concluding, Major Johnston emphatically denied that the soldiers' vote in the 1917 election taken overseas had been put to improper use.

His Sixth Campaign.

Mr. J. A. Sexsmith said this was his sixth campaign in the riding, and this election differed from any other i nEast Peterborough in that there were three candidates.

"Crerar," said Mr. Sexsmith, "is president of one of the largest industries in Canada, and Mr. Rice-Jones, general manager of the Grain Company headed by Mr. Crerar, had had admitted that his company had made a profit of 530 per cent. Mr. Brethen, Progressive candidate in East Peterborough, upholding Mr. Crerar, practically contends it is all right to steal from your neighbours, so long as you do not steal from your own families. The election of King or Crerar would constitute one of the worst setbacks Canada has received in years."

Concluding, Mr. Sexsmith said he was proud to have been a member of the Meighen Government. In his opinion, no Government ever governed so well, and the proof of this assertion was that Canada is in much better shape to-day than any other country in the world.

Personal Interest Removed.

Commenting upon his thirty-third consecutive platform appearance during the present election campaign, Sir George Foster said that for the first time in many years he was relieved of the personal interest in an election campaign in that he was not seeking re-election hmself. As a member of the Senate, he had one vote like any other elector. He admonished those present not to overlook the fact that Canada, like the rest of the world, had been at war and had emerged in much better condition than any other country. The speaker pictured the famine-stricken conditions of Russia, Poland, and adjoining countries. In Canada, men out of work are grumbling and blaming the Government for their lack of employment. Sir George contended it was unfair to blame the Government for conditions arising out of the war. The mandate to prosecute the war and expend money for that purpose came from the people.

The Fruits of War.

"Some people," said the speaker, "would have you think that the defeat of Meighen will prove a panacea for all ills, including the disappearance overnight of the national debt. This debt will be just as big should King or Crerar be elected, and would have to be met in the same way. The various forms of taxation of which so many complain, were imposed by Parliament and not the Government. The people of Canada endorsed these measures through their Parliamentary representatives."

At this juncture, the speaker eulogised the work in Parliament of Mr. Sexsmith, and urged the electors of East Peterborough to re-elect him.

A Pioneer Farmer.

Sir George Foster said he was born and raised on a farm, and as a pioneer farmer of this country he had nothing but the friendliest feeling towards the farmers. He did not object to farmers in Parliament. He would like to see more of them there. What he objected to was the class idea which the farmers' movement was trying to impose on this country. The Government of this country must legislate for all and not for any one class. The speaker said Crerar would be lucky if he got fifty-five seats in the whole of Canada. If he got two in the Maritime Provinces, he could sink down on his knees and thank God for that small contingent. He would not get one single seat in Quebec, and he would be lucky if he got one out of British Columbia. The three Prairie Provinces might give in a large majority, but at the most they only had forty-three seats to offer. In Ontario he might get twenty seats, making a total of fifty-five altogether.

"Crerar has no more chance of heading the Government than I have of climbing up to Mars and sailing on some of the canals which are said to exist there," declared Sir George.

Legislation for Farmers.

The speaker reviewed some of the legislation enacted by the Conservative Government in the interests of the farmers, as compared with the record of the Liberal Government which preceded it. In fifteen years the Liberal Government spent a total of $8,000,000 for the benefit of the farmers. During the past five years the present Government has expended $10,000,000 in the interests of the farmers. The farmers wanted duty free implements, and they went to the Finance Minister of the Liberal Government, who in effect said: "It is not fair that you should escape paying duty on your implements. You ought to pay your own shot"—and the farmers during the Liberal regime paid an average duty of 20 per cent. on goods imported. The farmers do not contribute to the business profits tax, while the rest of the public last ear, through this medium contributed $169,000,000 to the treasury.

Farmers' Contribution.

Last year the income tax collected amounted to $64,000,000. Of this amount the farmers of this country paid one half million, or a little less than 1 per cent. At the request of the farmers of Western Canada, the Government erected five elevators at a cost of $7,000,000. In 1013 the Government loaned the Western farmers the sum of $14,000,000 with which to purchase seed and feed when their crops failed. "That is Crerar's farmer party," observed Sir George.

In 1013 the Government set aside $1,000,000 a year for a period of ten years to provide agricultural education to the farmers. The Liberal Government never did anything like that. It is hard to understand what grievance the farmer has against the Government and why he wants class legislation.

Eliminate Protection.

Crerar's proposal is to eliminate Protection. In 1879 the first Tariff Act was passed by the Government of Sir John A. Macdonald with the endorsation of the people. From that day to this the protective principle has never been removed. The Liberals left it there when they were in power, and to-day it remains.

In 1881 all industrial workers in Canada worked the whole year and produced $300,000,000 worth of manufactured products. in 1920 all industrial workers in Canada worked the whole year and produced three billion six hundred thousand dollars worth of manufactured products. "That does not indicate that the tariff is a failure," said the speaker. Tear down Protection, and you open up industry to the competition of the world. Protection is not for the capitalist. Protection is for the labouring man. The capitalist is the man who furnishes the capital. Protection is of more benefit to the farmers of the East than to the farmers of the West. The farmers of the West grow wheat and raise stock. They deal with the raw product. There are few industries in the West. In the East the farmers sells his products direct to the home market.

Shells Versus Old Clothes.

Sir George referred to King's exposure of the so-called shell scandal at Levis. According to the speaker, what Mackenzie-King assumed to be munitions, turned out to be boxes of old clothes being brought home for the use of the Canadian Militia units.

The speaker said that during the present campaign the Liberal platform has never been published or elucidated on the public platform. Half of it was Free-trade and the rest a reduction of Protection. The platform was made to get in on and guaranteed not to hurt anybody.

In conclusion, the speaker said the Government continued in power after the war because it was its duty to do so. It had to complete the task of demolishing the Canadian Army.

"On Tuesday next," said Sir George, "we are deciding the fate of Canada. Future generations will be affected by that decision."

Before the opening of the second part, the three ladies were called to the platform and presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses. Miss McTurk renlied, thanking the pupils for their kindly thought.

Then came the principal part, "The Meeting of the Nations." Six girls, acting as entertainers, all nicely dressed, introduced friends from Britain, France, Italy, Spain, Holland, Sweden, Norway, Russia, etc. Each couple were attired in the characteristic dress of the nation they represented. The songs and movements of all were true to the nation, so that the cantata was entertaining as well as instructive. The finish was a drill, particularly well done.

NOW DISCOUNT PROSPECTS OF AN IRISH WAR

EYES OF ALL TURNED ON DUBLIN WHERE DAIL CABINET CONSIDERS PROPOSALS TO-DAY.

MANY AGAINST WAR

LONDON, December 3. Canadian Press. — The eyes of all those interested in Ireland now are fixed on Dublin, the seat of the Dail Eireann, as they were early in the week on Belfast, the centre of Ulsterism.

All the Sinn Fein peace delegates now have left London to meet with the Dail Eireann Cabinet to-day for consideration of the Government's latest proposals.

It is also possible that the delegates will ask the Dail Cabinet whether it would consent to adjournment of the negotiations for a certain period in the hope that time might bring the two sides closer together, and incidentally permit Premier Lloyd George to attend the Washington Conference which it is suggested that he intends to do no matter what the desult of the negotaitons.

The Sinn Fein delegates went home not at all optimistic regarding the decision of their Cabinet. They themselves do not think the new proposals are acceptable and regard it as unlikely that Eamon De Valera and the other members of the Dail Eireann have so far changed their minds regarding what they contend are Ireland's rights as to agree to the proposals.

There is some difference of opinion respecting renewal of armed strife should the truce be denounced. Officials on both sides declare that it would not be possible to keep the "Irish Republican Army" and the Crown forces from clashing, and this view is endorsed by some of the "Republican Army" officers who are visiting London. On the other hand business and professional men in the Irish towns and landowners and merchants in the country, who have seen actual warfare, cannot bring themselves to believe the government will risk, as they put it, losing the sympathy of the outside world by starting to "clear up" Ireland, or that the men of the "Republican Army" who have had six months' comfort, voluntarily would go back to the hills.

FEAR TO STOP LLOYD GEORGE

BELIEVED NEITHER SINN FEIN OR ULSTER WOULD TAKE RESPONSIBILITY FOR NEW IRISH CRISIS

AWAITS TEST OF BRIAND

LONDON, Dec. .—(Canadian Press).—It is understood Mr. Lloyd George is planning to make the trip to Washington in the belief that the apparent impasse in the Irish negotiations is one which time may help to solve. An eventuality which might conceivably offer greater obstacles to the Premier's early journey to the United States is the necessity for France and Great Britain to formulate a clearer and more united policy regarding German reparations, which are understood to have reached an acute stage in France and to be fraught with many difficulties for Premier Briand.

What transpires when the French Premier reports to the Chamber of Deputies is considered more likely to determine Mr. Lloyd George's chances of adhering to his sailing plans than the prospects of some new and decisive turn in Irish affairs.

Goverment officials pointed out to day that neither Ulster nor Sinn Fein were likely to be willing to take the consequence should Mr. Lloyd George be prevented from being present at the Washington conference on their account.

The reported plans of the British delegates now attending the Washington conference to go to New York on Monday are interpreted here as indicating their reluctance to make the decisions, so far tentatively arrived at in Washington, binding and final, because of the possibility of Mr. Lloyd George's participating in final conclusions. There was an impression in official circles here to-day that the proceedings of the Washington gathering were being "soft pedalled" in consequence of the receipt of word from London that the British Premier might soon join in the Washington deliberations

NEW STAGE IN PARLEYS SEEN AS FAVORABLE

BALFOUR, KATO AND HUGHES HOLD CONFERENCE SAID TO HAVE RESULTED IN NEW STAGE BEING REACHED.

JAPAN YIELDING?

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press Bulletin.)—A new stage in the negotiations over the question of naval ratio, described as "very favorable," is understood to have been reached at last night's conference between the representatives of the United States, Great Britain and Japan.

After the conference between Secretary Hughes, Admiral Baron Kato and Arthur J. Balfour was concluded, the Japanese delegation immediately began communicating with Tokio.

This official communique was issued:

"Arthur J. Balfour, Admiral Baron Kato and Secretary Hughes met at the State Department this afternoon and had an extended interview with respect to the naval proposals. No comment on the interview can be made at this time."

The conference lasted about two hours and intimations were given at its conclusion that basis existed for some optimism. One delegation spokesman referred to it as one of the most important discussions yet held which would mean much to the success of the Conference as a whole. The result was "most favorable," he added.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press.)— The conciliatory influence of Great Britain has given a more hopeful aspect to the controversy over Japan's proposal to substitute a 10-10-7 naval ratio for the 5-5-3 plan of the United States.

As the ally of Japan and at the same time a supporter of the principles that underlie the proposed ratio, it was realized that Great Britain occupies a position of peculiar influence. Widespread gratification was expressed when it became

TIME FOR ACTION.

The Provincial Government, so far as can be ascertained, is the stumbling block that is preventing the carrying out of the relief scheme that was in force last winter. The Federal Government has already announced that it is prepared to repeat its part of the programme by jointly sharing the expense with the municipalities and with the Provincial Government, but so far the Queen's Park administration has shown little eagerness to co-operate. Their failure to do so is holding up the whole scheme. It is apparently high time that the municipalities endeavoured to arouse the Ontario Government to a realization of the situation and to stir them into action. Some Ontario cities have on their own account waited upon the Government without much success, and it would seem desirable that the municipalities of the Province should make a concerted effort to secure the co-operation of the Drury Government. The unemployment problem is one in which Federal, Provincial and municipal Governments should share the responsibility, and none of the three should be allowed to shirk their duty in this most important matter.

CO-ORDINATION NEEDED.

The question of relieving those families who are victims of the industrial repression is one that The Examiner has no apology for frequently bringing forward. The situation is not as satisfactory as it should be, not beacause there are not plenty of agencies for the distribution of relief, but because there has not been effected that co-ordination of effort that will be necessary if the work is to be done effectively, economically and equitably. Frankly speaking, the responsibility of taking care of those who as a result of unemployment are in needy circumstances is too serious to allow jealousy between different organizations to interfere. There is no need of such feeling existing, for there is plenty of work for all to do, but what is required is for the creation of representatives of the different orlapping and permit of intelligent relief being provided. Perhaps His Worship Mayor McIntyre might accomplish a good deal towards smoothing out the difficulties of the situation if he would call a meeting of reresentatives of the different organizations and have the whole matter thoroughly threshed out and a working basis adopted. At present there are evidences of too much working at cross purposes. Let us get down to business and forget the personal glory in an effort to be of real service.

A RIGHT STEP.

Some objections are being raised because the City Council has seen fit to construct a municipal rink in East City. That is not to be wondered at, because there are citizens in any community who grumble at every expenditure, no matter how much it may be justified. In this instance the Aldermen need not worry for the majority of the citizens have come to realize that recreation facilities, such as playgrounds, bathing beaches and rinks, are not only desirable from their effect upon the health of the community, but that they are in the long run economical as well, because they help to preserve and increase the value of the greatest asset any city can have—its boys and girls. Give the youngsters plenty of opportunity for healthful organized sport, keep them off the street and out of the pool-rooms and their morals will not cause any worry. The boy whose mind is busy over the chances of his ball team or hockey team and whose body is built up by the exercise afforded by those sports has no time to think about fobidden things or to get into mischief. It has been proved by actual experience that the establishment of supervised playgrounds in the slum district of a large American city put the juvenile court out of business in a year. The youngsters who formerly got into trouble because the street was their playground and there was nothing for them to do found a new interest in life, and within a year their manner of living had so much changed for the better that there was no longer any work for a juvenile court.

If we have erred in Peterborough in the matter of recreation facilities we have erred on the side of being too miserly. It took years of agitation to secure any civic assistance for bathing beaches, and there is still much to be done in this respect. The majority of our parks were made possible by the generosity of individual citizens. Supervised playgrounds were inaugurated and financed by other public-spirited residents. As a city, we have not measured up to our responsibilities, and it should be a matter for congratulations rather than for grumbling that the Council has undertaken to provide skating facilities for the benefit of those children who otherwise would be unable to enjoy the benefit of that popular Canadian pastime.

INCOMES OF RICH AND POOR.

For some decades it has been evident that, in the face of the often quoted prediction of Karl Marx, the poor are, by and large, becoming richer than ever before—or at least have more of the necessaries of life, and indeed of many things once thought luxuries. Now comes a report of the National Bureau of Economic Research which tends to show that, relatively if not absolutely, the rich are growing poorer. That at least is the conclusion of Professor Henry R. Seager, who reviews an advance copy of the report in The survey.

During the decade covered, the average per capita income in the United States rose from $317 in 1909 to $338 in 1914 and to $595 in 1918. To indicate more nearly the rise in purchasing power these figures are translated into "terms of 1913"—the year before the war—the rise being only from $331 in 1909 to $335 in 1914 and $376 in 1918. The "statistical" family of five would thus have in 1918 an income of $2,975 and a purchasing power equivalent to $1,880 in the money of 1913. In this final year of the decade, the study of which was most nearly exhaustive, "about 88 per cent. of the persons gainfully employed had incomes of less than $2,000 and only about 12 per cent. incomes exceeding that sum." The 88 per cent. who had incomes less than $2,000 received about 60 per cent. of the total income of the nation and the 12 per cent. whose income was over $2,000 received some 40 per cent.

The hollowness of war prosperity is strikingly illustrated in the figures as to the total national income. It rose from 34.7 billions in 1913 to 62 billions in 1918, or about 80 per cent., whereas the increase when measured "in terms of 1913" is only from 34.6 billions to 39.2 billions, or 13 per cent. Incidentally, the economic and financial structure of the civilized world has been thrown out of joint and will not again function normally until deflation has been not only drastic but approximately uniform in all industries. A farmer who has come back with a bump to dollar wheat is not a good customer for shoes and clothing, the makers of which still hold fast to wartime wages.

Professor Seager cites the average per capita income of $595—$376 in deflated money—as a measure of what each of us would receive if income were equally distributed. He points out, furthermore, that the equal distribution could not be effected "without serious impairment of the machinery of production on which all incomes depend." He regards the present tendency toward a more nearly equal distribution as salutary; but he cogently urges that if it is to work any notable benefit to the world it must be accompanied by an increase of production.

To this end two things are equally necessary—greater labor efficiency and greater energy and resource in management. Here also a new light is dawning upon the radical mind. Walther Rathenau, the German Minister of Reconstruction, is a professed Socialist, yet in his recent volume, "The New Society," he says: "In a world where there are no rich men there will only be very poor men."—New York Times.

STEPPING INTO GERMAN SHOES

We have just emerged from a war which was to end war. It has, in fact, broken the power of three of the greatest State. But the threat of war is hydra-headed. To-day you cut of one head, you cut off three, and tomorrow there is another grinning at you. Yesterday the storm broke in Europe, and already today the clouds are seen to gather in the East. Yesterday the North Sea saw the encounter of the fleets; today it is the Pacific Ocean which is the point of danger. There is no question of any immediate peril to peace; only the necessity of guarding against its coming. There are the usual causes at work—fear, ambition, the so-called need of expansion for population and for commerce. It is just the German story over again with Japan in Germany's shoes, and our business is to see that the parallel goes no farther. There is a conflict of interests and a conflict of claims

HUTCHINSON INQUEST ON WEDNESDAY NEXT--PERSONAL MENTION.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 3.—The girls' branch of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Thomas' Church held their devotional and business meeting on Friday evening at the home of their president, Mrs. Westmacott. After the devotional exercises, at which Miss Dixon, of Toronto, gave a very helpful talk on the Parable of the Ten Virgins, the reports were read. The girls' and junior branches sold, for Armistice Day, 400 poppies, the proceeds of which go to buy comforts for the inmates of the consumptive ward of the Christie Street Hospital, Toronto. The necessary business was then transacted, and a chapter read from the missionary study book for the year, before the benediction was pronounced and the meeting adjourned.

Mrs. H. Elson, of the 7th Line, Cavan, attended the funeral of her cousin, Mr. Rowand, in Port Hope, on Friday.

Public Meeting.

A public meeting, under the auspices of the Liberal-Conservative Association, will be held in the Armouries, Millbrook, on Saturday, Dec. 3rd, at 8 p.m. The speakers for the evening will be ex-Alderman R. M. Yeomans, of Toronto; Mr. A. J. Fallis, Cavan, and the candidate, Mr. Bowen.

The same speakers will address a similar meeting at Mount Pleasant at 2.30 p.m. on the same date.

The funeral of the late Mr. John Hutchison, who was accidentally killed on Thursday, December 1st, by being struck by the C.P.R. Toronto-Montreal train at a level crossing half a mile west of Cavan Station, will take place from his residence, Cavan, on Sunday, December 4th, under the auspices of the L.O.L. No. 79.

The service at the house will be at 1.30, and the funeral will leave at 2 p.m., interment taking place at St. John's Cemetery. Ida. Mr. Hutchison was in his eighty-first year at the time of his death.

Hutchison Inquest.

The inquest following Mr. Hutchison's death will be held in the Town Hall, Millbrook, on Wednesday, Dec. 7th, at 7.30 p.m.. Dr. Turner being the coroner for the district.

Amongst those from Millbrook and vicinity who went to Peterborough to see the "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" this week were: Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sayles, Mrs. I. C. Kells, Misses A. Vance, E. Abbott, M. Brown, Marjorie Sayles, Anna Kells, L. Vance, Margaret Wood, Irene Trancey, Jean Thorndyke, Violet Swain, Theo. McBride, Pearl Burnham, L. Hunter, Mrs. Kenyon and Messrs. Cecil Larmer and Frank Alcorn.

The funeral of the late Amy Gertrude White, whose death in her twentieth year, after a lingering illness, occurred on Monday, November 28th, took place from the residence of her father, Mr. Harry White, Anne Street, on Wednesday, Nov. 30th, at 2.30 p.m. Rev. C. R. Spencer had charge of the services, and the pall-bearers were: Messrs. M. Gray, D. Fowler, A. McCorry, A. Sloan, B. McCorry and H. Hearst. Interment took place at the Presbyterian Cemetery. Besides her parents, there are left four members of the family, Wilford, Hector, Kingsley and Kathleen, to mourn the loss of a sister, whose death occurred so early in life.

Mrs. George Lacheur, of Peterborough, is the guest of her sister, Miss Alice Stewart, for a few days this week.

Service Withdrawn.

The service in the Methodist Church will be withdrawn on Sunday evening, Dec. 4th, on account of the anniversary services being held in Grace Presbyterian Church, when Rev. Stanley Pickup, of St. Giles' Church, Toronto, will be the preacher for the day.

The annual meeting of the L.O.L. No. 421, Carmel, was held in their lodge-room on Thursday evening, Dec. 1st, with forty members and visitors in attendance. The following officers were elected: Mr. Joseph Thorne, Master (re-elected); Mr. Lawrence Gray, Deputy-Master; Mr. Howard Henry, Secretary; Mr. William Earle, Treasurer; Mr. Arthur Thorne, Master of Ceremonies.

After the business of the evening was concluded all sat down to a bountiful hot supper of roast goose, mashed potatoes, pies, cakes, etc., which, needless to say, was thoroughly enjoyed, and to which ample justice was done.

Those present from Millbrook were: Messrs. M. Todd, N. Williamson, J. L. Byam, and Mr. Harry Roddy, of Fraserville.

Hockey League.

An Inter-Church Hockey League for boys in the 'teen age was organized at a meeting held in Grace Presbyterian S. S. Hall, last Friday evening. The representatives present from the various church organizations were very enthusiastic in their support of the movement, and doubtless a good winter's sport may be looked forward to. The following officers were elected:

Hon. Presidents—Rev. G. S. Gervan, Rev. S. T. Tucker and Rev. C. R. Spencer.

President—Mr. L. C. Russell.

Secretary-Treasurer—Mr. Howard Lancashire.

Managing Committee—Messrs. J. L. Byam, C. Garside, J. Lancashire, J. Steele, J. Shaw and G. F. Harrington.

An open-air rink, on the lot next the Presbyterian Church, where the old covered rink used to stand, will be put in shape for practice, through the kindness of Miss Lottie Vance, who has generously loaned the property for this purpose.

Mr. and Mrs. N. G. Rowland and daughter, Ethel, and Miss Eagleson motored to Peterborough on Friday, combining business with pleasure for the trip.

Mrs. George Raymes, who has been visiting at her former home here, helping to take care of her father, Mr. H. Richards, during his illness, returned to her home in Brighton on Friday. Mr. Richards is convalescing slowly.

The next meeting of the Millbrook Council will be held on Monday, Dec. 5th, at 8 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Fiddes, of Toronto, paid a brief visit at the home of Mrs. Fiddes' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Janes, recently.

The Go-to-Church Campaign

Peterborough citizens who have been interested in the Go-to-Church Sunday Campaign, and who have been reading the advertisements that have appeared in The Examiner each week during the past five or six weeks, may be interested to know that the committee of laymen who conducted the advertising campaign report that the campaign has met with a hearty response from the members of the various congregations interested. The ministers in different churches report that the canvassers were well received, that the pledges to attend church regularly during November were readily signed, and that there has been a marked increase in the attendance in the various churches because of the campaign.

So hearty has the response been, there is a strong hope that those who have been encouraged to attend church more regularly, will continue to do so now that the campaign is over. Many who signed the pledge cards frankly admitted that they had allowed themselves to become careless in the matter of church attendance, and said that they intended to do better hereafter.

Similar campaigns are now being conducted elsewhere, including one in the city of Brantford.

NEW STAGE IN PARLEYS SEEN

known that Arthur J. Balfour had visited Baron Kato and had conferred with him at length on the question.

An authorized spokesman of the British delegation revealed clearly the decision of his government to use its best offices for a solution.

"Great Britain," said he, "has tried to do everything within her power to bring about a settlement of disputed questions between other powers. I have no doubt that Mr. Balfour has used his best efforts to find a plan which will meet with the views of both the United States and Japan."

Most of the United States delegates joined in the expression of gratification, but when the attention of an authorized spokesman of the United States delegation was drawn to the development, he only remarked that it was amusing how such rumors gained circulation.

In many quarters there was a disposition to regard last night's conference of the "Big Three" as bearing a close relation to the conversation Thursday between Mr. Balfour and Baron Kato. There were indications that Japan's views had not yet been fully defined by the exchanges proceeding between th Japanese delegation and Tokio, however, and one Japanese spokesman said after the "Big Three" conference that it would "take some time" to bring the ratio question to a solution.

During the day the United States delegation also held a long session to discuss the naval problem while the Far Eastern committee debated, without result, the question of withdrawing foreign troops from China and the Chinese and Japanese, in a separate meeting got down to business in their new effort to settle the Shantung controversy. A broadly drawn declaration of general policy on the troop question may be adopted in the Far Eastern committee today, but the Shantung discussions were adjourned until Monday after the two sides had set forth the general outlines of their positions.

The Japanese predictions that no naval ratio agreeent was in prospect was given further weight by the announced purpose of Mr. Balfour and several other members of the British delegation to leave Washington to-night for a visit that will keep them away until Tuesday or Wednesday. Meantime, it is expected that the Jaapnese will further communicate with their home government so that Baron Kato can lay a more detailed statement before his associates of the "Big Three" next week.

As the naval negotiations slow down there is growing speculation in Conference circles whether in the end the Far Eastern and naval problems will not become interlaced. It has been the apparent hope of Conference officials to keep the two discussions entirely separate, but there has been more than one indication that there might be an attempt to make a naval agreement in some degree conditional on a solution of the political relationships of the Orient.

This Department will be presented twice a week for the benefit of those interested in this phase of local activity. It will be conducted by Miss Kathleen McCarthy.
Articles of a social or general nature are always welcome, providing they are brief. Address all communications, such as personals and other social items, to the Society Editor of the Examiner, or telephone 1,600.

DOLLS AT BAZAAR IN MARKET HALL

One of the most attractive booths, usually, at any bazaar, is the doll booth, and the doll at the bazaar next week in the Market Hall isn't going to be an exception, if the array already achieved has anything to do with it.

With all the tints of the rainbow in their clothing, in blonde and brunette shades of beauty, with a sprinkling of red heads and a general air of well-being and happiness, they wait in boxes and baskets, sit perched on tables and in sundry corners, for a brave exhibition next week and the future homes where they may be cuddled and cared for, or neglected and torn, as the case may be. They evidently have no thought for the future, but survey the present world with a vast experience of smiling faces. The little "Yankee Triplets" are three small vamps, blonde brunette, and Titan, who peep with daring boldness from beneath carefully-coifed and netted heads; a lady in a scrumptious silver-lace costume makes friends with a fat child in blue rompers and cap; Little Red Riding Hood is demurely attentive to a small Chinese lady in blue and white; and a tiny dolly in pink wool blushes a becoming pink from her warm coverings.

Jolly Jonathan, with wide painted smile, "bells on his fingers and bells on his toes" beams on all the world: a drowsy beauty wth lovely dark curls rests in folds of rose pink chiffon, and a lovely blonde, blue-frocked bride is serenely beautiful.

A Highland laddie in kilts and shoulder-knot stands stiffly on his spiked stadard, and a flirty-looking damsel in sleeveless dress of stunning black and red makes eyes at Harlequin, in mask and pointed cap. He does not care for her, however. He favors the blonde type, and keeps his eyes on the prize doll, the gorgeous "Eaton Beauty" with big brown eyes and yellow curls, in orchid gown.

AIDING THE CHILD'S TABLE MANNERS

(By Caroline Taylor Barton).

Phyllis, age four, had been talked at and to for months but still would she clutch her spoon and grab her fork on the top side. All the training and cajolery of the nursery seemed of no avail. Phyllis had a mind of her own.

The circumstance of an insisting friend brought Phyllis to the dinner table. Her mother was in a panic. But Phyllis among "grown-ups" at a "grown-up" table imitated "grown-up" manners. A perfectly trained child! Given a setting of certain formality and dignity, she had been born with the imagination to rise to the situation. The technique of table manners so insistently promoted in the nursery blossomed suddenly into gratifying results.

The child's imagination or ability to "make-believe" is a most potent factor in teaching the child accepted table manners and customs. Parents do not realize that the gist of most children's lives is pretend. Little Phyllis holds make-believe tea parties and would not think of displaying any other but good manners at them. The minute that she got the mental picture of adult elegance, which was lacking in her perfectly modern nursery, she characterized perfectly the role of good breeding that she had played so many times at her own imagined social affairs.

All little Phyllises and Corneliuses, Jr., should be permitted on rare occasions to dine in the formal dining room. A sort of finish to their not too dependable table manners. Occasionally one little Phyllis and Cornelius of my acquaintance are permitted, when their parents are not at home, to forsake the nursery and play host and hostess in the large dining-room with the complete maid and butler service. They are the best trained children of my acquaintance.

Mr. Ruskin rightly insists that good taste is inculcated in childhood, which brings us naturally to the more specific consideration of the silverware, dishes and linen with which a child is daily associated.

Eating is one of the most regularly conducted habits of man, occurring three or more times daily. Should not this constant contact with silver, linen, and china be used to the utmost advantage in inculcating good taste? Of the highly civilized Greeks, Whistler wrote, "All drank alike from the artists' goblets, fashioned cunningly, not from choice but because, forsooth, there was none other!" We know the result of their inculcated good taste.

Should Cornelius, Jr.,—to continue with our hypothetical child—use three times a day a beautifully formed and carved silver mug, he can in no better and more sustained way learn the culture that comes with elegant possessions. Then, there is the sense of possessing his very own mug which is conducive to its better care in his hands.

I have heard many adults treasure the memory of the little knife and fork of their childhood even above remembered toys. The knives and forks were more vital to their existence!

China for children that is more commonly termed nursery china is usually decorated with Mother Goose stories and rhymes. These are stimulating to a child's imagination, giving him daily an intimate acquaintance with the characters of his story books. For a child to possess his own Humpty Dumpty egg cup is always a great source of amusement, especially over that ever newly discovered riddle that Humpty Dumpty is an egg!

If you have thought for a second that the nursery dining - room was hereby being pushed clear out of the scheme of a child's life, I hasten to say no. Indeed no! That is the school far away from adults where all the technique of good manners is drilled into the child. It takes the most constant vigilance and patient showing. But lest the child become deadened to these constant admonitons, as he will later to the classics because they are a part of school routine, I suggest a recourse to his imagination just as soon as he is old enough to characterize. Give him the occasional stage property of a formal dining-room and elegant fittings, and let him enact the drama of good manners. He will do it because it is play. He will remember his good manners always. You, his parents, will be glad of them for the present and doubly so for the future.

CHARITABLE SOCIETY

The new reorganization of a group of ladies who have been doing charitable and helpful work for some years amongst the poor and unfortunate of the city, has already got under way with a splendid beginning. Since their initial meeting, about ten days ago, to organize along broader lines, they have had a number of calls, many of which were of the most abject poverty, and have also received co-operation from generous-minded citizens in the city and surrounding districts in the way of contributions of food and clothing.

Homes in the city and suburbs where real, actual want, and the pressing need that follows long seasons of unemployment and sickness, walk hand in hand, come under the jurisdiction of these women, and it is no common thing for them to meet with tears of gratitude from the objects of their benefactors, whose need, in most instances, is a matter of silent endurace.

The providing of stove-pipes in one instance did a great deal to mitigate a case of bad housing, quilts, bedding, clothing of all sorts, food, positions for young girls which have been secured in farmers' homes. All these activities belong to the daily routine of the new society.

DR. GRENELL MISSION WORK

A little girl was one of the eager inspectors of the exhibit of toys and rugs at the Y.W.C.A. on Thursday afternoon, in connection with the autumn rally of the Grenfell Association. She had her mind set on one of the little hand-bags, a square, woven affair in brown, with silk cord and carefully-stitched design. She could speak, but her parents couldn't. With nimble fingers, she told them all about it, and they examined the bag. It was more expensive than they had bargained for, and they cautioned her with upraised brows and quick, flashing signals. She persisted, and finally went off with the bag carefully guarded. Just why she was so persistent in her desire was the question for the work, although very interesting, seems more calculated, with its careful weaving and subdued colorings, to appeal to a mature intelligence than to the mind of a small child.

In connection with the bale of goods shipped in the spring to the Grenfell Mission Hospital at Harrington, in the Canadian Labrador, the treasurer, Mrs. Jas. Wood, received a letter in acknowledgment, as follows:

"My dear Mrs. Wood:—We are more than delighted to receive your donation, and groceries and canned goods were never so welcome as those were. We had a epidemic of 'flu—every family sick—the hospital full, and our supplies not yet arrived. You can imagine how welcome those articles of sustenance were! Also the soaps and clothing. I have often remarked that those bales and boxes usually do contain a direct answer to prayer. So many, many times since I have been here and have felt that I would give anything for some one special thing, often the first bale I would open would contain the very wished-for article, and this time it was found in the Peterboro bale. We are indeed grateful to you for all your branch has done for the Mission. I am busy doing up the clothing into parcels for each family, before I leave on my two months' furlough. This year it is so easy to make them up, the clothing is well assorted, no super abundance of any one thing and enough of everything to go around. It is really a pleasure. The good Canadian friends are making it easier every year.

I am enclosing a copy of our annual report. I thought it might interest you. During the eight months from October until July the doctor and I are here alone. In the summer we have a larger staff: one medical student, two nurses, one aid, a nutritional worker and two 'wops' so we feel like a real party. Much gratitude. Sincerely yours,

M. A. MURRAY, R. N.

Helpful Hints

The Present Ugly Dress Coat

Or swallow tail, had its origin when the cutting away of the front waist had the reasonable purpose of preventing the side coat skirts from getting in the way of riding, while the pair of present useless buttons behind the waist are also relics from the times when such buttons really served the purpose of fastening these skirts behind. Thus the present dress coat has been handed down from the practical coat in which a man rode.

Heat Clothes in Steamer

When hot appliances are being used, it is a great saver of time and hands to heat clothes in a steamer. They can be easily handled while extremely hot.

Marking a Hem

In marking wide hems which are to be put in by hand run the material through your unthreaded machine, with the gage set for the desired width. Then crease on the line of needle-marks.

Ants in Refrigerator

If ants get in the refrigerator, get four bricks and four lids of baking-powder tins, put the lids on top of bricks, and set the casters of the refrigerator into the lids, and fill the lids with turpentine. You will have no further trouble with ants in the ice-box.

Wash all closet shelves where ants come with borax, washing-blue, and turpentine. Ants loathe all these things.

The first tire to wear out is that on the right rear wheel.

WOMEN'S ART ASSN.

An activity of the local branch of the Women's Art Association that should be productive of good results is the proposed Sketch Club. A meeting was held on Wednesday afternoon of this week, when it was decided to commence the Club in January next.

The meetings will be open to all members of the Art Association. There will be no special teacher. Those of the members who are experienced in this work will be asked to help in any possible way, and the attending members will co-operate with their efforts. Models will be provided in real and still life, and, in more favorable weather, the meetings will doubtless be held out of doors.

It is hoped that young girls may become interested in the club, and a students' membership fee of fifty cents only will be charged for any young lady of eighteen or under desiring to join. Clubs of this nature are actively and successfully conducted in many centres where the Women's Art Association has branches.

Fizz

by Jack Lait

LOWLY seems the life of the soda-squirter. He wears the livery that makes him seem a cross between a barber and a dining-car chef; he is the soft-spoken leavings of that hoary hero, the bartender; he is beset with a pointless existence of flips and sundaes, eggs and pulverized nuts, ice cream and hot chocolate, crushed fruits and bruised ambitions.

Only when he pulls the knob or presses the button that shoots the carbonized liquid with the smart hiss of the compressed power behind it, does he feel for one fleeting wink his oats as a citizen and a man. For not every nobody is to be trusted with the agencies that control the spasmodic shots of that combination of nature's two great elements—air and water.

This, alone, makes him a skilled operator, as it did his roughneck progenitor, the barkeep. Any untrained fool could put a decanter and a glass on a bar, but it required an artist to tap a keg and to run the beer into the snit or schooner with that nicety of touch and judgment which foamed it up with a collar, filled it against the eye yet not against the overhead, and set it down with a flourish that hyptnotized the victim into drinking before the foam—as fleecy as a woman's love and as unfilling—had petered into a few shown-up drops of hangdog beer.

The soda-squirter has, in a measure the same responsibilities and light-fingered functions. By a twist of the wrist, just so, he must make the bedraggled composition of frozen cream and canned extract fizz and froth into a bubbling, purring, luring masterpiece of color blend, action, and fiction. Therefore a soda-squirter usually remains one; when he loses his job he finds another at his craft, for he has become a specialist, not just a clerk. He may wander from town to town, and he will find the soda fountains, the beverage mixtures, the psychology and the physics of his calling largely standardized, like a safe-blower who has familiarized himself with the several types of safes and the few variations of guarding wealth.

Let it not, in view of this, be further accepted that the fountaineer is a vagrant with no more substantial means of support than the ejaculated air with which he inspires the tired raspberry paste or the insidious coca compound. He not only is a professional, but he often works in a drugstore where he cannot help absorbing medical science and a smell of collodion; and besides, he stands pretty in a sweet spot to meet the ladies.

Full many a desk-bent executive whose most exhilarating view during the hours of occupation is a desk, a wall, correspondence and maybe one stenographer who seriously thinks spelling matters, might do well to grind his teeth in green resentment against the soft and strategic cinch of the soda-shooter. For the peaches come to him in droves as well as in tins, and cherry lips talk to him of saccharine subjects that wouldn't say as much as "Where do you get that stuff?" to bank directors and train dispatchers.

A soda fountain is like a Turkish bath. The richest and most effete snob must come to it. Nobody is rich enough to have a soda fountain at home. Millionaires and potentates and field lilies may have their own yachts, Pullmans, billiard tables, golf links, lakes, roads, theatres, cellars, ocean beaches and menageries, but nobody has a soda fountain at home; they may have their own private preserves, but they haven't their proprietary fizz. Like a marriage-license clerk, a soda clerk can wait in the satisfying security that the haughty and the mighty must come to him! He cannot be sent for like a plumber or a portrait painter. There are no fountains on casters yet.

Archey Woodhull was not only a soda-squirter; he was a chief soda-squirter in the profiteering pharmacy around the corner from one of the most swagger blocks of the most exclusive avenue. He ran his two underlings like a second lieutenant.

Many a secret of the upperworld was his. The prescription compounder, his colleague among the department heads of the institution, told him everything—and did you ever stop to consider how much that bird knows about you?

Moreover, Archey waited on the best and the snappiest. When any one of ultra quality entered and tripped toward the counter, Archey always brushed or signaled aside either of his supers with hauteur and decision, and, in person, brewed and assembled and fizzed up the order. Thus he was a mixer among the finest.

Next door to the corner, as is the rule on the fingernails of the areas o.k.'d by the hands of "the set," was a toppy modiste's brownstone establishment. The proprietress catered to the debs and the dowagers of the ugliest and most inhospitable of the mansions thereabouts. To tickle the appetites of these aging ones seeking to look young and the youngsters seeking to look grown up, she employed a flock of manikins—statuesque, diminutive, dashing, demure, blonde, brunette, chic, chilly, voluptuous, slim—but all beautiful.

When the society ma'ams and misses saw wraps and gowns and frocks and toques upon these hand-picked types of feminine charm, they mesmerized themselves into thinking they would look like them in those clothes, and they ordered and they ordered and they charged and they ordered.

How the models envied the society women. And how the society women envied the models.

It came about that Helen Harberry, out one season, daughter of a financier, returned from Europe after an absence of a year.

Archey did not recognize her when first thereafter she entered the drug-store and wafted to the marble bar for her malted milk. He noted at a glance that she was tall and svelte and that she had the eyes to do a very effective juggling act.

Archey had seen one of the new models coming out of the modiste's a few days before. He had only snatched a brief profile glance. He took Miss Harberry for the model.

"All right, cutie," he beamed. "How's your heart?"

Miss Harberry rose from the round stool. In her expression and in her air were the combined essences of Vassar, Deauville, the Avenue, the Blue Book and the dollar-mark.

"Beg pardon," she froze, "were you addressing me?"

"Bet your life, peaches," said Archey. "And while I'm in the mood, let me get it across that beside you all the rest of those crows that Mme. Cecile palms off as models, look like a round-up of slightly damaged seconds."

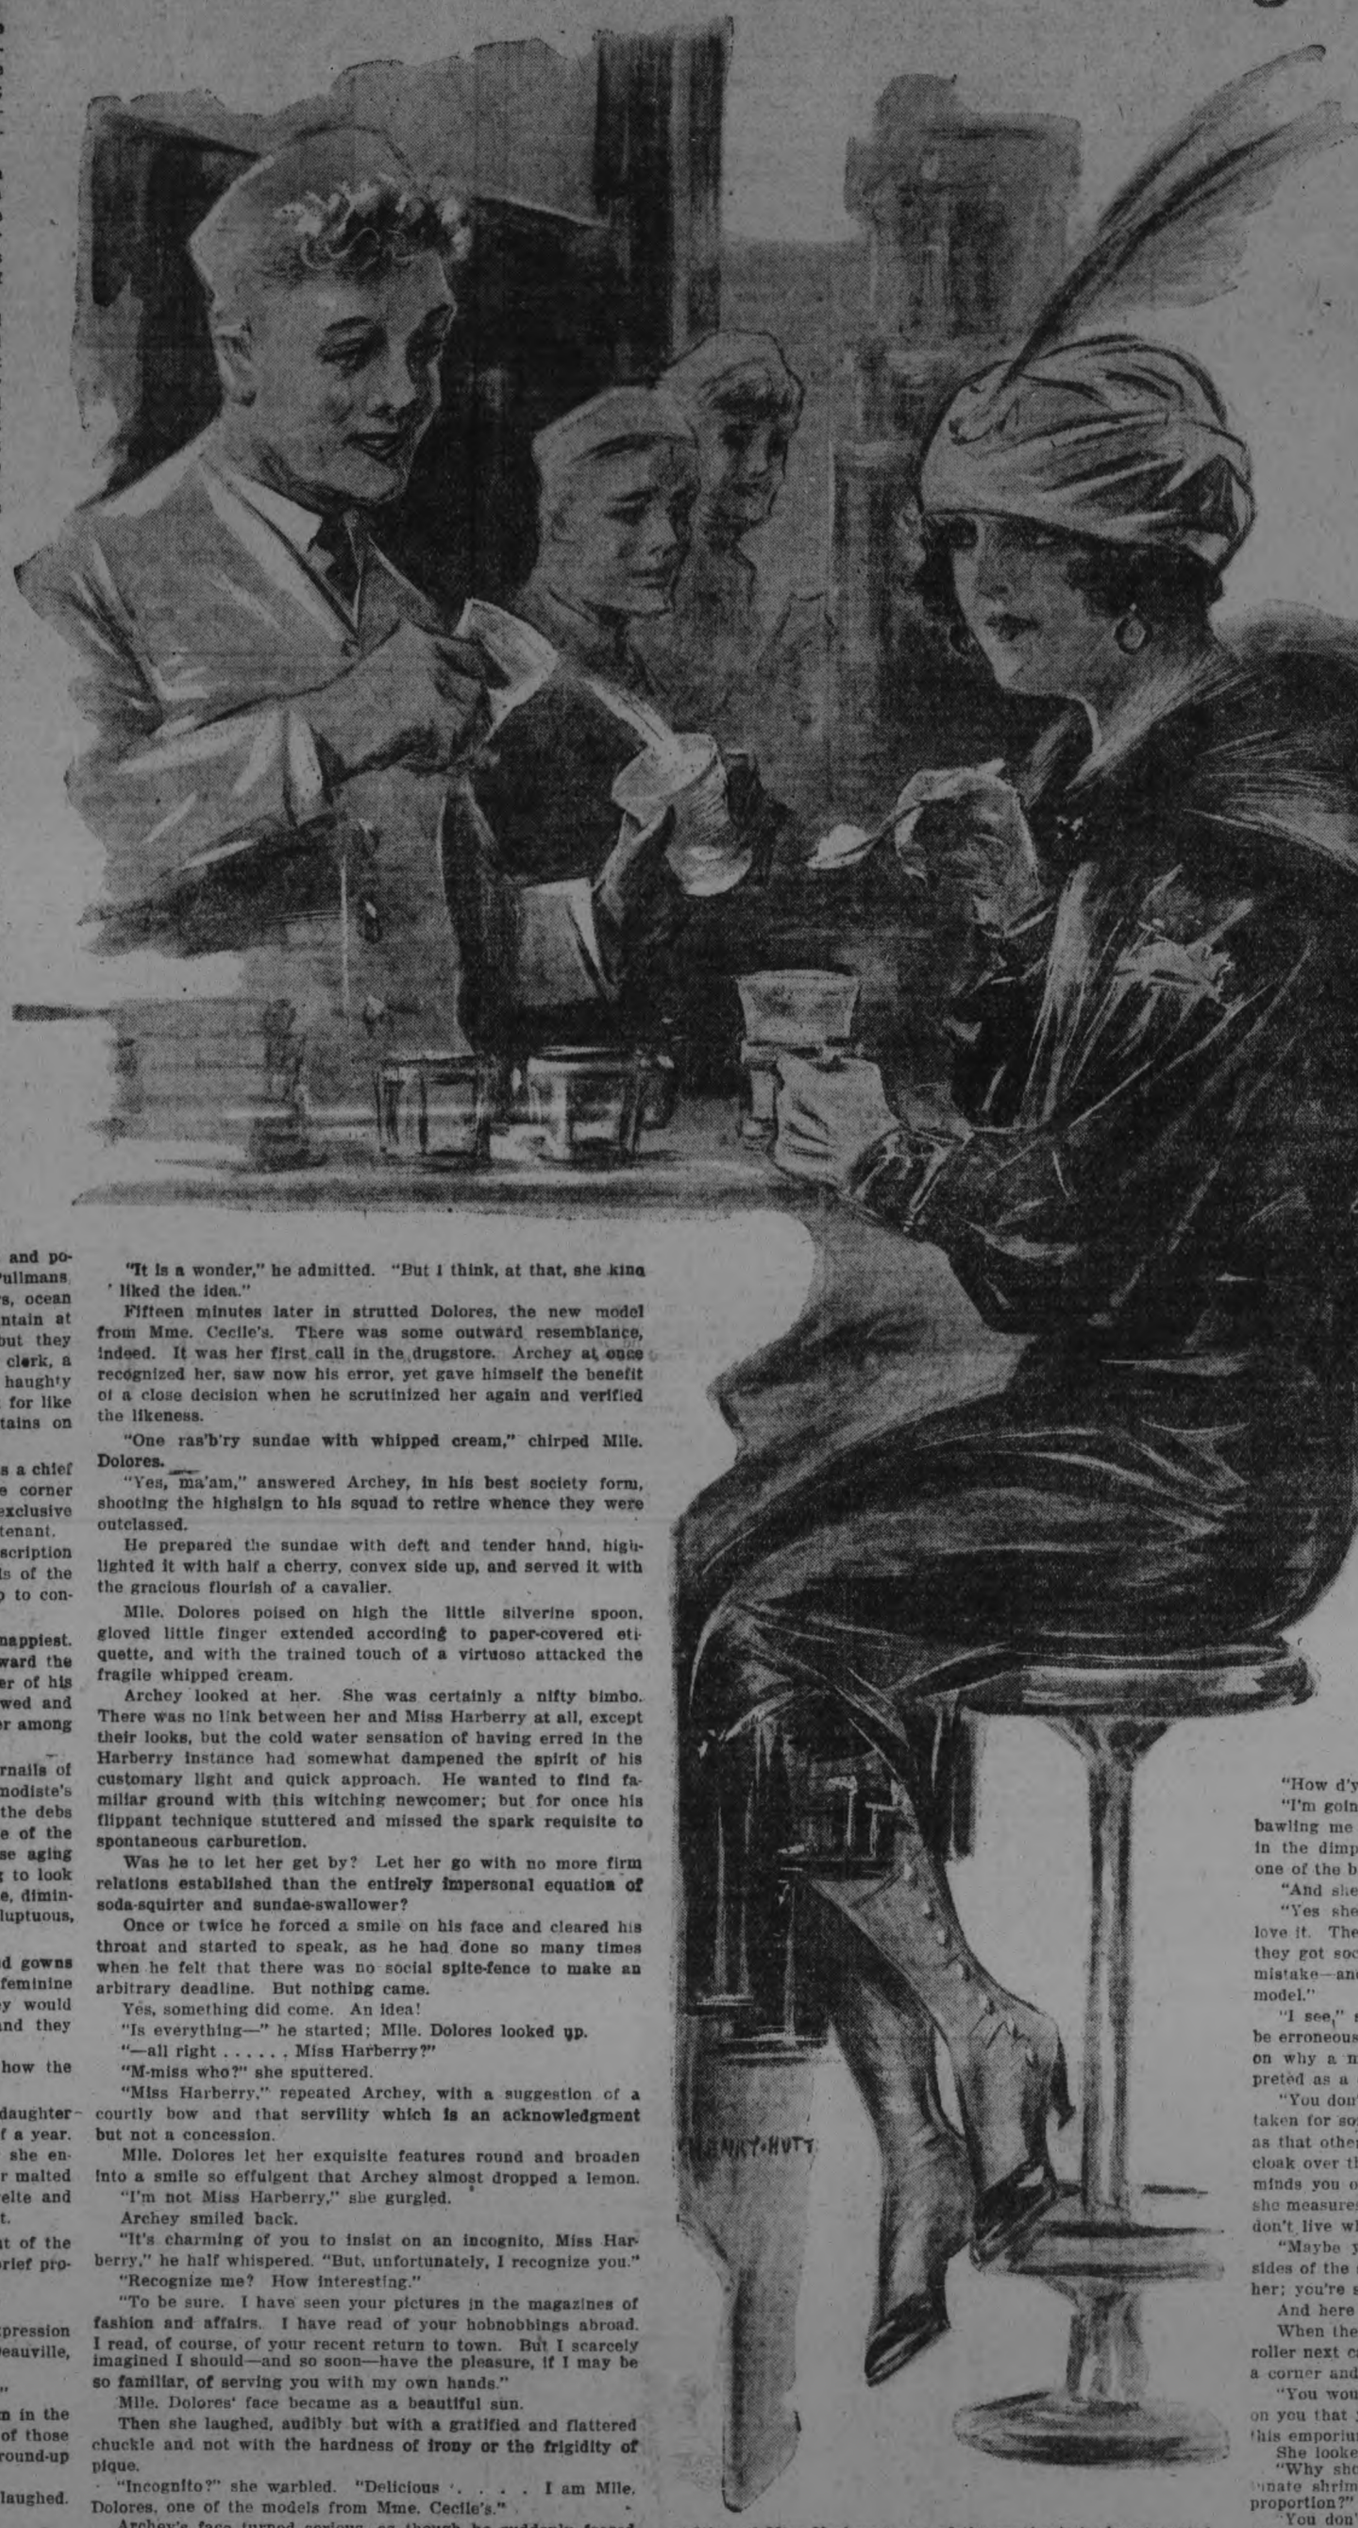
Miss Harberry looked angry, then stern; then she laughed.

"That is mixed enough," she said.

And so it was. She meant the malted milk—but I mean the situation. Half a minute after Miss Harberry had left, smiling, the prescription man gave Archey the lowdown—he had sassed and kidded none less than the Harberry heiress.

"It's a wonder she didn't crown you one with the straw-glass," guffawed the chemist.

Archey scratched his neck.



"All right, cutie," he beamed. "How's your heart?"

"It is a wonder," he admitted. "But I think, at that, she kind liked the idea."

Fifteen minutes later in strutted Dolores, the new model from Mme. Cecile's. There was some outward resemblance, indeed. It was her first call in the drugstore. Archey at once recognized her, saw now his error, yet gave himself the benefit of a close decision when he scrutinized her again and verified the likeness.

"One ras'b'ry sundae with whipped cream," chirped Mlle. Dolores.

"Yes, ma'am," answered Archey, in his best society form, shooting the highsign to his squad to retire whence they were outclassed.

He prepared the sundae with deft and tender hand, highlighted it with half a cherry, convex side up, and served it with the gracious flourish of a cavalier.

Mlle. Dolores poised on high the little silverine spoon, gloved little finger extended according to paper-covered etiquette, and with the trained touch of a virtuoso attacked the fragile whipped cream.

Archey looked at her. She was certainly a nifty bimbo. There was no link between her and Miss Harberry at all, except their looks, but the cold water sensation of having erred in the Harberry instance had somewhat dampened the spirit of his customary light and quick approach. He wanted to find familiar ground with this witching newcomer; but for once his flippant technique stuttered and missed the spark requisite to spontaneous carburetion.

Was he to let her get by? Let her go with no more firm relations established than the entirely impersonal equation of soda-squirter and sundae-swallower?

Once or twice he forced a smile on his face and cleared his throat and started to speak, as he had done so many times when he felt that there was no social spite-fence to make an arbitrary deadline. But nothing came.

Yes, something did come. An idea!

"Is everything—" he started; Mlle. Dolores looked up.

"—all right . . . . . Miss Harberry?"

"M-miss who?" she sputtered.

"Miss Harberry," repeated Archey, with a suggestion of a courtly bow and that servility which is an acknowledgment but not a concession.

Mlle. Dolores let her exquisite features round and broaden into a smile so effulgent that Archey almost dropped a lemon.

"I'm not Miss Harberry," she gurgled.

Archey smiled back.

"It's charming of you to insist on an incognito, Miss Harberry," he half whispered. "But, unfortunately, I recognize you."

"Recognize me? How interesting."

"To be sure. I have seen your pictures in the magazines of fashion and affairs. I have read of your hobnobbings abroad. I read, of course, of your recent return to town. But I scarcely imagined I should—and so soon—have the pleasure, if I may be so familiar, of serving you with my own hands."

Mlle. Dolores' face became as a beautiful sun.

Then she laughed, audibly but with a gratified and flattered chuckle and not with the hardness of irony or the frigidity of pique.

"Incognito?" she warbled. "Delicious . . . . . I am Mlle. Dolores, one of the models from Mme. Cecile's."

Archey's face turned serious, as though he suddenly feared he had, indeed, made a faux pas. Then he smiled again, as though to say "I thought for a moment that you really meant it," and said:

"You have a sense of romance, I see, if I may so bold as to comment. You want to make me believe you are a modest model and see what I will say and how I will act, thinking you a poor working girl of my own station, in place of the elevated position of Miss Harberry, one of the most admired and envied belles of the younger social set."

No mean phraser was Archey, when it came to high-grade book talk

It took all of ten minutes—long after most of the ice cream had been eaten and the rest had melted into stringy-looking library mucilage—for Mlle. Dolores to convince Archey that she was, in truth and beyond further argument, Mlle. Dolores and not Miss Harberry.

Then Archey laughed with her. But it was not a hearty laugh. He told her that never, as long as he knew her, would he ever be able to eradicate thoroughly his first impression of her; that never, no matter how kind she might be to him, no matter how often she might deign to go out with him, no matter even if she were to allow him to kiss her and be her sweatheart, could he ever view her in the same light, come-and-go frame of mind which characterized, and always heretofore had characterized—his attitude toward women.

The kiss-work and the sweetheart-stuff he larded in in the middle of sentences between emphatic professions of his enduring reverence, where she couldn't have impulsively stopped him and begged him to go easy, even had she wanted to.

When Mlle. Dolores paraded out of that drugstore that night she was breathing perfumed ozone and walking on eiderdown.

She was mistaken for Miss Harberry!

Only that afternoon she had shown off, before the bright eyes of Miss Harberry and the lorgnetted scrutiny of Mrs. Harberry, the trousseau wardrobe of Miss Harberry.

How she had envied that other girl, the possessor of wealth and super-position.

Now, what was there to envy? Had not she, the manikin, been taken—mistaken, but nevertheless taken—for that same Miss Harberry? And by no blundering boob; indeed not—by a gentleman, by a blood, by a poet, by a connoisseur, by a chief soda-slinger.

Archey was mauling it over with the prescription chap.

"Archey," said he, "that was probably the most workmanlike piece of coarse putover that I ever saw."

"I guess I'm bad," agreed Archey.

"You knocked her forty feet from her jabeau and she's still sailing."

"It's a system, ain't it?" Archey acquiesced.

"I'll tell you how great a system it is," pursued the compounder. "It worked both ways."

"How do you mean both ways?"

"It tickled Miss Harberry to think you thought she was a professional model, and it tickled the professional model to think you thought she was Miss Harberry."

"Oh—I wasn't thinking of Harberry. That was an accident, up and up."

"Sure it was. But I got my mind on a girl that comes in here now and then. And the next time she shows I'm going to have just about that same accident happen to me."

"How d'you mean?"

"I'm going to get fresh with her, and when she gets through bawling me out I'll slap her on the shoulder, pinch her right in the dimple and ask her who she thinks she's ritzing—her one of the babes from Mme. Cecile's."

"And she'll knock you for a goal."

"Yes she will—she'll loosen up like Harberry did. They love it. They'd love it anyways, if you didn't camouflage it, but they got social rules to p'serve. This gives 'em an out—it's a mistake—and what a peach of a mistake—mistaken for a model."

"I see," said Archey, "why a hard-working model wants to be erroneously greeted as a swell jane, but I don't get the angle on why a millionaire's daughter should crave to be misinterpreted as a dummy for other people's clothes."

"You don't, eh? In the first place, everybody likes to be mistaken for somebody else, just to see how people will treat them as that other party. In the second place, a queen will put her cloak over the mud puddle for you to hoof on if you say she reminds you of a certain picture star or chorus girl—that means she measures up to professional beauty demands, and the woman don't live who can get sore at that."

"Maybe you're right," said Archey. "Maybe you got both sides of the system. But I'll say I've met my model—and dated her; you're still waiting for your heiress. We'll see."

And here is what they saw:

When the dignified girl who had charmed the eye of the pill-roller next came in, that ambitious Romeo manoeuvred her into a corner and whispered:

"You wouldn't get mad at me, would you, if I served notice on you that you're about the best-looking baby that toddles into this emporium?"

She looked at him, perfectly composed, and replied:

"Why should I get 'mad,' as you express it, with an unfortunate shrimp like you, who has no manners and no sense of proportion?"

"You don't get the angle. I know who you are—you're one of the queens from Mmme. Cecile's——"

"Thanks. That's very flattering. I'm not. But, if I were, would that be any reason for your assuming liberties?"

"Go on—don't salve me—I'm in that business; you're one of the models, all right, angel-face."

She smiled, hesitated, replied:

"Yes, I am. When I'm off, I love to pose as an upstage society girl And a society girl, take it from an old-timer, could never see you—you poor fish!"

RICHARD HALL & SON LTD

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

CAMPBELLFORD, December 3.

The meeting in the Opera House last evening in the interests of the National Conservative candidate, Mr. Milton Maybee, was a most unqualified success. Eager crowds thronged the hall long before the hour of starting and the enthusiasm of the men and ladies, of whom there was a large number present, was self evident. Mr. J. A. Anderson most acceptably occupied the chair, and with him on the platform were the following speakers: Mr. Wilmot, Cobourg, Mr. B. Grant (Bank of Montreal staff), Campbellford, Dr. Caroline Brown and Mr. G. M. Morley of Toronto, F. M. Field, K.C., Cobourg, and Mr. I. A. Humphries, Campbellford. The following ladies occupied seats on the platform: Mrs. William Hume, Mrs. W. H. Ashton, Mrs. (Dr.) Haig and Miss Hilda Bonnycastle, who rendered the solo, "Rule Britannia," in fine voice.

Lieut. Wilmot, a returned man, expressed his pleasure at having the ladies on the platform, and since Hon. Meighen had extended the franchise to the women they surely owed him their first vote. The speaker stated reasons why he could not support the Progressive candidate, Mr. Slade. He stated he had returned from overseas with an unbiased mind. He showed up the statements of Capt. Gunn on Monday night re soldiers' vote, as utterly false.

Mr. B. Grant, in a most enthusiastic manner, on behalf of the returned soldiers, refuted the arguments advanced by Capt. Gunn re the soldiers' vote in 1917 as utterly untrue, as he was in France and he considered the same a direct insult on the soldiers.

Mr. F. M. Field, K.C., of Cobourg, stated that the fact of such a great crowd being present despite the inclement weather, augured well for the Meighen cause. The speaker mentioned the enviable record of Hon. Meighen and three reasons that should influence us in casting our votes. No party can be more progressive or better than its leader, and invited comparison of the three leaders. The political and moral life of a country is never higher than the average members of its parliament.

Mr. Field expressed his regret at Mr. Maybee's inability to be present, as he was conducting a meeting at Castleton. Mr. Slade, the speaker declared, was nominated by a fairly representative body of farmers, but a party representing only one section of the people, denied an opportunity to all other classes. Hon. Crerar, affirmed the speaker, as Minister of Agriculture in 1917, was the man most to blame for the reception of farmers in Ottawa. Hon. King is only leading a part of the Liberal party. In 1917 when we were struggling for our very existence as a nation, Mr. King took a position across the line with Mr. Rockefeller, oil magnate. The policies of the three leaders were discussed and the people of Campbellford were assured nothing could be more fatal to Campbellford's industries than free trade. The railway policy of Liberals of Quebec is to take railways away from government and make them private. The speaker said he was confident that on Dec. 6th Campbellford and old Seymour would pile up a very large majority for Mr. Maybee.

Dr. Caroline Brown.

Dr .Brown said in her wide acquaintance with women they were nearly all imperialistic and conservative. The speaker said she came from the west riding of Toronto, where in 1917 Mr. Hockins defeated the present Liberal candidate, Mr. Kerr, by over 10,000 majority.

Mr. Maybee represents principles held by that great young man, Hon. Meighen, representing a policy that is traditional from Sir John A. Macdonald's time. The Lieutenant-Governor was stated as saying that class governments were bad for a country and in group government we never knew where to place the blame. Dr. Brown traced the extension of the franchise in England and in Canada. How can we, a country of eight millions, hope to compete against a country of 110 million people. The speaker went back to 1867, showing the policy great enough for all and reviewed the great progress made between 1911-1921 and grants to radials, postal system for rural districts, building elevators. 20 millions for good roads, 25 millions for seed grain, all for the benefit of farmers, because they are the backbone of the country. Immigration was referred to as selective of the socially and morally clean, but better than outside immigration, the health of the child should be secured, thus the necessity of a Health Department, which Hon. Meighen has established.

The next speaker, Mrs. Morley, in a very convincing manner, asked where Canada would have been if the manufacturers had not come to her assistance during the war. Crerar says we must have more business for trunk railways, and how will this be secured if produce is to be shipped across the line. Mr. Crerar foregts to state that the 4 million dollars lent to the western farmers, and still outstanding might have been paid in their prosperous years. Mr. Morley stated that a vote for the U.F.O. (Mr. Slade) meant a drop in the price of wheat and a further depreciation of the Canadian dollar. For every $100 purchase of U. S. goods by us, the U. S. purchases from us goods to the value of $4. We pay 100 millions for the privilege of buying U. S. goods.

Rural Depoplation.

The west has increased in rural population. Certain communities have been converted into towns in Niagara Peninsula, Essex county, the introduction of modern machinery, etc. Mr. Crerar speaks of the watered stock in some of the large companies, such as Sherwin Williams Co., but he does not state that Rice Jones, manager of Export Co. branch of Grain Growers, stated that company made over 500 p.c. profit. With protection R. G. Dunn, financial authorities, state that between 1911 and 1920, manufacture failures range from 200 to 650. In Canada over 2 million people are dependent on factories, and our tariff is a fair one, averaging only 22 1-2 p.c.

Mr. I. A. Humphries, the next speaker, excelled himself in the forceful arguments put forth, and on refuting beyond a doubt the statements made at the previous political meetings held here this week. Senator Turiff's statement re the extravagance of the Union government was quashed beyond a doubt by quoting figures to prove his assertion that in the years 1919-1920 the expenses of the Federal government were 21 p. c. higher than in 1913, while the U. F.O. government at Toronto had increased their expenses in the same years 121 p.c. Mr. Humphries showed that the manufacturing industries pay a large share of the debt, and if by free trade the industries close, the farmer will have to pay the debt. In 1897 there were in Canada 21 binder twine industries, but protection was removed, 14 went into liquidation, 7 went out of business and one remains. The speaker affirmed the farmer needed protection as much, or more than the ndustral man. By the Fordney Bill on every sheep entering the U. S. there is a duty of $2 and 30 p.c. value of every animal. The U.S. would like Crerar returned, stated Mr. Humphries, so they can swamp our country with their goods.

The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion with flags and bunting by the ladies and due to the kindness of Mr. Bert Johnston, of Cobourg, who is playing at the opera house this week and who kindly gave up the use of the hall for the night. The meeting closed with the National Anthem and a hearty cheer for Mr. Maybee.

Rev. C. F. McIntosh has returned from Peterborough, where he gave an address. Mrs. John Storrie and Miss Emma Meiklejohn were also delegates to Peterborough during Ralph Connor's stay.

Mr. Byron McLaughlin of Enniskillen, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Skitch this week.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to save $2. and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

DEWART AT LAKEFIELD

ADDRESSED BIG AFTERNOON AND EVENING MEETINGS—EXTRAVAGANCE OF AGRARIANS IN ONTARIO AN INDEX OF LACK OF ADMINISTRATIVE ABILITY, SAID H. H. DEWART, M.P.P.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 3.—A large audience greeted Capt. John A. Dewart at his meeting in the Memorial Hall on Friday night.

Mr. A. E. Dawson filled the role of chairman in a most acceptable manner while Mesdames, Lawless, J. H. Sherin, Leonard, Graham and Brown and Messrs. Robt. Duff, J. A. Porter, J. H. Sherin occupied seats on the platform.

Mrs. Burrows rendered a solo in splendid voice as the opening number on the programme after which Mr. Dawson, in a witty little speech welcomed the audience and pointed out the appearance of cat on the platform as a good omen. He was glad to see such a fine crowd and introduced the candidate, Capt John Dewart M.C.

Mr. Dawson in commenting on Capt. Dewart's speech, which dealt with the big issues of the campaign, said he knew the electors would show their belief in these principles laid down by the candidate by voting for him on December 6th.

Mr. H. H. Dewart M.L.A.

Speaking on behalf of his cousin, Capt. John Dewart, M.C., the Liberal candidate for East Peterboro, Mr. Hartley Dewart, K.C., M.P.P. said he would hardly have left the Provincial arena, to discuss federal issues were it not for the blowing of horns and trumpeting with which the members of the U.F.O. Government at Toronto had sounded their own praises. They were telling the people what might be expected at Ottawa if a similar agrarian outfit, misnamed a Progressive party, could be returned as the dominant party in the Dominion elections.

Doherty a Conutractor

Mr. Crerar has adopted Mr. Drury and his Agrarian Ministers as his sponsors. One of them, Mr. Manning Doherty, an ex-contractor, to whom he would presently refer more particularly, was giving special attention to East Peterboro. The Drury Government had broken its pledges and failed to keep faith with the people who elected it. Never had the Province of Ontario known such uncurbed extravagance. Such financial bungling, to the financial loss and disdvantage of the Province, had never been seen before. The proceeds of loans had been misappropriated and the conduct brazenly upheld. Promises to reform the evils of Civil Service patronage had been thrown to the winds.

Contractor Doherty, whose Maritime Dredging and Construction Company have received over four million dollars from the Dominion Government during the period of his management, after fattening at the Government trough was appropriately made Minister of Agriculture U. F. O. President Burnaby, the Agrarian candidate against the Liberal leader in North York, after making charges of wholesale bribery and of an individual attempt to bribe himself, was upheld both in commit tee and in the House, (Premier Drury turning his usual somersault and reversing his committee vote in the House), but refused to name the man and allow the guilty to be brought to justice, and was supported by the whole U.F.O. Government and members upon a division by the narrow majorty of six.

Big Pay For Lawyers

We had been told that the Farmer Government would rule without legal assistance. Yet, in the very first year of their career, we find a U.F.O. law list comprising ten judges and thirty-two lawyers, costing the Province upwards of half-a-million dollars, to assist in advising the Little Attorney-General and his colleagues.

Unprecedented Extravagance

Taking the several counts in his indictmet up in detail, Mr. Dewart pointed out the cardinal planks in the U. F. O. platform, as printed, and on which the changes were rung on every U.F.O. platform and picnic ground in the Province:—

1.—"To cut out all expenditures that are not absolutely essential".

2. "To abolish the system of Party Patronage".

Both principles had been violated. Dealing with the extravagant expenditure first, Mr. Dwart referred to th extravagant and unprecedented expenditure of the new Government in its first year of office With ovr $5,000,000 more receipts than the Conservaive Government had in 1919, they wound up the year with nearly $2,00,000 less in hand than when they started and still had a deficit of over $800,000. The financial business of the Province had been incompetently handled and mismanaged. In December 1920, $16,000,000 of Bonds were issued at a price of 92.34, or a loss of $7.66 on every dollar borrowed. $2.00 on each $100.00 would have been an ample commission. Within a month these bonds were selling at par, as Quebec has sold her bonds in the same year at 99 to the public without discount.

7 2-3 per cent. meant a loss of, $1,225,600;— allowing the full 2 per cent. commission, $320,000;—meant a loss to the province of $905,600.

On this one issue of bonds alone. Nearly a million on one issue! What had take place in that case had occurred in a smaller degree on every bond issupe sold without tender. No wonder the "Renfrew Mercury" and other sane journals said "It is time to call a halt". In 1900 the total expenditures of the Province were just over $4,000,000. In 1919 nearly $20,000,000. In 1920, the U.F.O. expenditure was nearly $26,000,000. In the year 1920, the first year of office, the borrowings amounted to approximately $55,000,000. In the last fiscal year, the credit of the Province has been staked for the unparalleled sum of over $125,000,000 of borrowed money though the Government was granted only $39,000,000, and loans of $25,000,000 authorized, a total of $64,000,000.

Even the Farmers' Sun declared it to be the duty of all good citizens 'to demand in no uncertain tone that the brakes be put on, be put on hard, and be put on at once".

Can you trust these reckless agrarian financiers in the larger opportunities which the Dominion Treasury offers?

Addressed Ladies.

On Friday afternoon, Captain Dewart addressed a number of the lady voters in the Queen Street Theatre.

Mr. Dewart explained that it was the first time he had spoken at a ladies' meeting, but was glad to do so, and glad that the franchise had been extended to the women. They deserved it, if only for their noble work during the war. The Red Cross, the I.O.D.E., and kindred organizations did a great deal in providing comforts for the troops, and every man who wore His Majesty's uniform owes a debt of gratitude to the women. Now the devotion which, given to the country at war, is thrown into public life and can't help but raise the standard for ideas of purity are stronger in women than in men. The confusion to-day is the result of a revolt against present conditions, and the fact that 51 per cent. of the voters are women, cannot help but make a difference in the election.

The Board of Commerce.

In 1917 a wave of patriotic fervor swept over the country, and party differences were sunk and men cooperated to win the war. In order to provide a check on the wholesale profiteering which was sending the cost of living ever higher and higher a Board of Commerce was appointed to look into the excess profits which were said to have been made by many firms. A textile company, making 518 per cent. profit, was one of the most glaring offenders. Mr. James Murdoch, a prominent Labor man, and vice-president of the Railway Trainmen's Association,was appointed on the Board of Commerce, and, as the result of his discoveries, he prepared a case for the prosecution of these proved profiteers by an Act providing for the same. Mr. W. F. O'Connor prepared the case for the defence of the big interests, and Hon. Mr. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, impressed on Mr. Murdoch the fact that the Board of Commerce was not to attempt any prosecution, but could advertise itself a little just to keep the people quiet. Mr. Murdoch resigned from the Board, after sitting 145 days upon it. He is now Liberal candidate in South Toronto by the wish of the people.

MEIGHEN ASSAILS CHARGES ON RIORDON.

GUELPH, December 3.—Canadian Press. — South Wellington and South Waterloo, two constituencies which supported the government in the last election, were visited yesterday afternoon and evening, by Premier Meighen, when he addressed meetings in Galt, Hespeler and Guelph. His speeches followed closely along the lines which he has laid down in previous addresses.

"A more brutal, cruel, vicious piece of mendacity never saw printers' ink," declared the Prime Minister, in referring to an advertisement accusing the government of "robbing widows and orphans to help the Riordons."

He presented the explanation of the Riordon charges which he has already given on several occasions.

Dealing with the tariff he declared that with the United States and all other countries in the world well protected, it would be nothing but madness for Canada to adopt the policies of either Hon. Mr. King or Hon. Mr. Crerar.

Last night he gave out a statement denying a story in the Montreal Star in connection with rumors relating to railway management in Montreal.

SINN FEIN PROBE ATTACK ON PRISON

DUBLIN, Dec. 3. — (Canadian Press.)—The Publicity Department of the Dail Eireann announces that an investigation into the attack on the Londonderry Jail yesterday morning has been ordered, and if it is proved that members of the "Irish Republican Army" were implicated, severe disciplinary action will be taken against those responsible. Reference is made in the announcement to the recent instructions to all units of the "Republican Army" in which it is pointed out to attempt to rescue prisoners constituted a breach of the true.

It adds, however, that such tragic incidents as the deaths of Alderman Barry at Ballykinlar, and of Constables Gormen and Little in the Londonderry Jail, are a direct consequence of the "atmosphere engendered by the prolonged imprisonment of political suspects under conditions of exceptional hardship during the truce," and emphasizes the fact that these imprisonments constitute the greatest menace to the truce.

BRITAIN TO OBTAIN SATISFACTION FROM THE CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press)—"Great Britain is likely to find herself one nation that will be completely satisfied with the results of the conference, that is because her objects in entering the conference were so simple and so clear."

This statement was made last night by a representative of the British delegation to a group of newspapermen.

N. S. PEOPLE'S SCHOOL WINS APPROBATION.

BOSTON, Dec. 3. — (Canadian Press).—The People's School, conducted by St. Francis Xavier College at Antigonish, N.S., for the farmers, miners, fishermen and carpenters of that region was cited yesterday as an example of loyalty to education. President Kenneth C. M. Sills, of Bowdoin College, in describing the experiment to the convention of the New England Association of School Superintendents, said:

"What is needed to-day in our schools is more liberal education. Not long ago I was impressed at hearing of a people's school that was conducted last winter by the most eastern institution of learning on the Continent, the little Roman Catholic College of St. Francis Xavier at Antigonish, Nova Scotia. For eight weeks the school gave instruction of a very elementary and practical nature to fifty people of the vicinity.

"Not a person enrolled had gone in school beyond the eighth grade, and most not beyond the sixth. Instruction was given in a very elementary way in agriculture, arithmetic, debating, chemistry and stock breeding, English grammar and English literature. There were no fees, no examinations.

"The director of the school told me that the most successful course was that in English literature, where the 'Twelfth Night' of Shakespeare was read and studied. The whole idea of the school was to broaden the horizon of men of very limited intellectual opportunity."

ACTION AGAINST MORSE AWAITS RETURN TO U S

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press). — Developments in the case of Charles W. Morse, of New York, whose transactions with the Shipping Board are under Federal investigation, appear to await his return to this country from France.

While it was announced at the Shipping Board that Morse had been stopped at Havre after having "fled the country" upon learning of the Board's investigations, the Government's next move was not disclosed. However, Elmer Schlesinger, General Counsel of the Board, said that with the co-operation of Attorney General Daugherty and the State Department such steps had been taken as in their opinion were necessary to secure the return of Morse to this country.

Morse's reported willingness to come to the United States was said by Department of Justice officials to simplify matters although officials discussed the possibility of a warrant being obtained against him upon which his extraditions could be asked of the French Government.

The Department's course of action was as yet undetermined, was said last night.

Attorney General Daugherty in a formal statement declared that the Department had nothing to say regarding the "contemplated proceedings in what is now characterized as the Morse and other conspiracies," but that when the complaint is presented to them, the "Justice Department will promptly cooperate so that it may be presented to a Grand Jury".

Charges that "a deliberate effort has been made to peresecute and defame Mr. Morse were made in a formal statement by his attorney, Wilton J. Lambert.

Nervous Breakdown

The extreme depression and discouragement which comes over one at times is the most alarming symptom of nervous exhaustion,

This letter is a message of hope to all who find themselves in this unfortunate condition,

Mrs. Geo. T. Tingley, Albert, N.B., writes:—

"For years I was in a very nervous, run-down condition, was much depressed in spirits and suffered a great deal at times. The least noise would irritate me and at times I felt as though I certainly would go crazy. I consulted different doctors to no effect.

"A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and I can truly testify today to the great benefits received. There was a marked change before I had finished the second box and when I had used a dozen boxes my nerves were thoroughly restored and I was entirely relieved of those terrible feelings I used to have. I shall ever be ready to testify to the benefits of this wonderful medicine, feeling sure that it will give to others the quick and permanent relief it has given me."

To the Electors of East Peterborough

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

On December 6th you will determine by your vote what body of men will administer the affairs of Canada. In deciding what way to cast your ballot I would ask you to consider the claims of the Liberal Party.

The Liberal platform was drawn up by delegates from every riding in the Dominion of Canada and representing every class and occupation. It is a platform designed for the purpose of giving a square deal to every industry in the country.

It stands for a tariff for revenue purposes, but not for the direct protection of industries. It is opposed to Free Trade as being an unsound policy for this country at the present time and directly against the interests of the farmers.

It calls for the implements of production to be brought to the user at the lowest possible cost in order to encourage the developing of our great national industries—farming, lumbering, mining and fishing—whereby additional wealth is brought into the country.

It stands for a square deal to all soldiers and their dependents in the way of pensions and re-establishment.

It advocates a policy to bring about better relations between capital and labor and a more efficient Labor Department.

It stands for equal right to all and special privileges to none, the right of the masses rather than classes.

We protest against the Government as being a body of men who usurped power and governed this country in an autocratic manner, as is shown by their purchase of the Canadian Northern Railway, the Grand Trunk, and other lines, without consulting the people.

We protest against the Progressive Party as a movement which is designed to bring Western trade policies, ideas, and ideals into Eastern Canada, as a party which is dividing the forces of progress, and is tending toward group Government, thereby preventing fullest co-operation among all peoples in this Dominion.

We protest against Hon. Arthur Meighen and the Hon. T. A. Crerar, the leaders of the Conservative and Progressive Parties respectively, who as Cabinet Ministers in the Union Government are responsible with others in giving the limited franchise to women in 1917 election, using the soldiers' vote to defeat the will of the people in this country, and ruthlessly breaking pledges made prior to the election of 1917, thereby violating the principles of Democratic Government.

We protest against these two leaders for working and voting together to conceal from the people the expenditures of public money in connection with the Canadian National Railways, and thereby defeating Hon. Mr. King's motion for the fullest information upon this subject, and also of combining to defeat the Liberal motion to have Cabinet Ministers separate themselves from their private interests and give their time exclusively to the business of the country.

We protest against any candidate who supports or subscribes to the record of either of these leaders, because when he does so he shows himself in accord with the undemocratic acts to which they have been a party while elected representative of the people of Canada.

We present to you a leader who was chosen by the people, has a splendid record both as a world-wide authority on all industrial matters and as an experienced legislator. He is surrounded by able and experienced men, among whom are Hon. W. S. Fielding, Finance Minister of Canada for 15 years, Hon. George P. Graham, former Minister of Railways and Canals, Hon. Rudolphe Lemieux, and many others.

With glorious traditions of 15 years unexcelled Government which brought prosperity, progress, and happiness to all classes of people, guided by the democratic principles laid down by our great leaders in the past, with a leader who had a clear Parliamentary record, and in whom we have confidence, with a policy suited to the conditions of all industry and tends to unite class with class and province with province into one contented race, we present our cause to the people, and solicit their support.

I therefore ask you to take these facts into earnest consideration, and if you believe I am honest and conscientious, if you are suited with my record, and if you feel that I have ability to fight the battle of East Peterborough on the floor of the House of Commons, then I ask you for your support and influence.

If you do me the honour of electing me as your representative, I will pledge myself to do everything possible to advance the interests of East Peterborough, our Dominion, and the British Empire.

I am, sincerely yours,

JOHN A. DEWART

vincial Board of Health. It can be shown that we have made earnest effort to get ahead with a sewage disposal system, he said, and he thought a compromise with the Provincial Board might eventually be reached. In any event, he did not believe in being rushed into action on a minute's notice after all the unavoidable delays which have transpired.

Ald. Turner—"We have to act on the Provincial Board's order. Dallyn told the truth when he said his authority would be taken before that of our own engineer. Let us instruct the City Engineer to prepare plans for an activated sludge system, then invite tenders, and we will not get started on the plant till next year."

Ald. Hay—"I thought the plans had been prepared."

Ald. Turner—"Not completed; Mr. Dallyn has suggested that there might be some advantageous changes on opening up the matter up again."

Ald. Jones thought this matter had been prolonged long enough—some ten years now—and that it's time the city started on the project. He could see no use in further opposing the Board's order, or in delaying procedure.

Ald. Phelan fired a parting shot by qualifying Engineer Dallyn as only one man, with some one higher up than he to whom the city might appeal.

Council adjourned till the call of the Mayor, having cleared the slate of routine business at this meeting. Consequently the regular session for the first Monday in this month is called off.

PACKERS ADVISED TO STRIKE MONDAY

CHICAGO, Dec. 3. — (Canadian Press.)—Packing house workers in Kansas City have been advised to disregard the orders of the Industrial Court and go out on strike on Monday when the union strike order goes into effect in all packing centres.

Coincident with the oredr from Armour and Company of the 'Big Five" packers that all employes who walk out Monday in protest against the ten per cent. wage reduction will lose their jobs, advertisements appear today signed by Swift and Company asking for men to fill their places if they go on strike.

COUNCIL PLANS MORE WORK

would be in order by passing a by-law for storm drainage elsewhere than for the pavement on Hunter street. Surface drainage, he added, is needed in other localities before there.

The City Clerk explained that storm drainage in itself does not come under local improvement act And under the drainage act people must petition for a certain area to be storm drained, when the engineer reports the cost of the work, which is sent to the owners of property affected thereby, who then have opportunity to withdraw their names from the petition if they so desire. The only other way is to submit a bylaw to the people as was done a year ago.

In the case of Hunter street east, necessary storm drainage must be constructed before pavement is laid and drainage there becomes a portion of the local whole improvement, so to speak, but the clerk pointed out that a move on the whole work must be made, to permit of getting ahead with the drainage.

Government's Delay

In connection with relief, Ald. Phelan said Council had an employment relief committee, but with no funds. There has been no reply from either the Legislature or the Dominion Government in regard to their each putting up a third of the aditional winter cost of municipal work; it looks like a case of one is willing if the other moves first, with no decided answer from either.

Ald. Turner thought Mr. Burnham and Mr. Tooms, M.P.P., might each urge this matter upon their governments.

Ald. Phelan, replying that the Mayor had written the Legislature and the Federal Government for explicit answers as to what they intend doing in this regard, developments will be awaited before Messrs Burnham and Tooms are asked to take action.

Tree Trimming

Ald. Turner here suggested that the engineer employ a number of men trimming and removing trees. Engineer Parrons replied that only a few men could be engaged in this work and they must understand tree trimming, otherwise their labor would prove destructive.

His worship fell in with the plan.

Ald. Jones — "You have got to have good men for tree trimming".

Ald. Turner granted this, but contended that unskilled men could saw up trunks of trees removed, and limbs, from trees trimmed, thus furnishing considerable employment.

On motion of Ald. Turner and Jones the city engineer was directed to take steps to remove what trees should come down, and give employment at this to as many men as possible.

May Erect Garage

On motion of Ald. Gainey and Morrison Ed. Conroy was granted permission to erect at 47 Water street, a garage with concrete floor, of wod superstructure sheeted with galvanized iron, under the supervision of the city engineer. This was Ald. Morrison's motion.

Mr. J. H. Burnham's written enquiry as to what measures are being taken regarding the Dominion government's and the Provincial Legislature's offer each to pay one-third of the additional cost in undertaking municipal work during the winter months in relief of unemployment, elicited the information that neither governments had definitely committed themselves in this matter yet.

Prepare For Election

A by-law naming polling places and deputy-returning officers and poll clerks for the municipal elections passed its three readings. Nomination for Aldermen will take place in the Council Chamber at 7.30 in the evening.

Mothers' Allowance Board

On motion of Ald. Turner and Jones, F. H. Dobbin was reappointed Council's representative on the Mother's Allowance Board, and Mrs. J. Knox appointed in place of Miss Mary L. Stratton, resigned.

Highway to Peterborough

In reply to Mr. Kylie of Lindsay, Council will, on motion of Ald. Turner assure him that this city will gladly in with any deputation from Lindsay in pressing upon Hon. Mr. Biggs, minister of Highways, the undesirability of "delaying" construction of the Provincial High way from Whitby to Peterborough via Lindsay, as petitioned by Victoria County Council.

In this connection Ald. Jones pointed out that last spring the Mayor, Alderman Whitehouse and himself, interview the minister in favor of this provincial highway to Peterborough, and Ald. Turner's resolution specifies that this Council is still of the same mind and urges the road's construction as soon as possible.

To Sell Debentures

On motion of Ald. Turner the Utilities Commission were granted permission to sell $50,000 worth of debentures. Of late the Commissioners' profits have been devoted to capital expenditure and they need the $50,000 to retire an overdraft of $38,000 and to complete the new lighting line. The Commissioners pointed out in their communication that the old lighting system was in a wretched condition when they took it over, entailing considerable expenditure for renewals.

There were present Mayor A. A. McIntyre, Aldermen Harry Gainey, Jos. Crowe, J. J. Turner, R. N. Jones, Robert Morrison, Nagel Phelan, G. L. Hay.

THE LIBERAL CANDIDATE

In Mr. John Dewart the Liberal party have a young man of outstanding ability, who should rapidly force his way to the front ranks if elected to the House of Commons.

His career has been difficult but very creditable. He was born on a farm in Dummer Township and had a very hard struggle for an education. He worked on the farm and also taught school in Dummer, Douro and Otonabee Townships.

He went overseas early in the war and served through all the principal battles in which the Canadians took part, being promoted to the rank of Captain, decorated by His Majesty the King for gallantry in action, and was severely wounded at the battle of Cambrai.

On his return he was engaged in farming in Dummer and Otonabee townships, also conducting a general store and grain elevator at Indian River in Otonabee.

In the campaign he has proved himself a forceful speaker and his arguments are fair and to the point. He strongly advocates clean politics economy and the principles of Democratic government and condemns the system of class or group government or special privileges to any individuals.

If elected his constituency should hear of him in the House of Commons. 1w 1d 130

GOLD TROPHY FOR MARSHAL FOCH

Among the very many gifts received by Marshal Foch during his visit to the United States, one of the most beautiful was a gold Victory Trophy, presented to the Marshal by the Federation of French War Veterans of America. The trophy is of pure gold on a base of American marble, and consists of a French flag, with victory palms and olive branches—the symbol of peace—and at the top a crowing rooster with outspread wings, personifying victory and the war's end.

TRINITY CHURCH HELD A BAZAAR

The bazaar held yesterday afternoon and evening at the Reid street Sunday school hall, under the auspices of the Trinity Mission Circle, was very successful, and a great credit to the ladies who worked so hard with the arrangements.

The hall and the several booths were tastefully decorated in the Christmas manner, with huge red bells, evergreens, tinsel and streamers of red and green crepe paper. A miniature Christmas tree was the attractive decoration of one corner.

Mrs. A. Parker, president of the Circle, had charge of all the arrangements and was assisted by the members. The candy counter was in charge of Miss Edith Preston; aprons were sold by Miss Olive Marshall; fancy work by Miss Flossie Derry; home-made cooking by Miss Carver and Mrs. N. D. Seaton, and Miss Leona Walsh looked after the pretty tea room, arranged with dainty floral centres.

A goodly crowd attended the sale in the afternoon and evening. An excellent musical programme was rendered by vocal solos by the Misses Dorris Pilling and Annie Rigby, and instrumental selections by Mrs. T. Cruikshank and Miss Margaret Walsh.

BY "SAPPER"
(CYRIL McNEILE)

CHAPTER IV

In Which he Spends a Quiet Night at The Elms

I

"It is a little difficult to know what to do with you, young man," said Peterson gently, after a long silence. "I knew you had no tact."

Drummond leaned back in his chair and regarded his host with a faint smile.

"I must come to you for lessons, Mr. Peterson. Though I frankly admit," he added genially, "that I have never been bought up to regard the forcible abduction of a harmless individual and a friend who is sleeping off the effects of what low people cal la jag as being e actly typical of that admirable quality."

Peterson's glance rested on the dishevelled man still standing by the door and after a moment's thought he leaned forward and pressed a bell.

"Take that man waay," he said abruptly to the servant who came into the room, "and put him to bed. I will consider what to do with him in the morning."

"Consider be damned," howled Mullings, starting forward angrily. "You'll consider a thick ear, Mr. Blooming Knowall. What I wants to know——"

The words died away in his mouth, and he gazed at Peterson like a bird looks at a snake. There was something so ruthlessly malignant in the stare of the grey-blue eyes, that the ex-soldier who had viewed going over the top with comparative equanimity, as being part of his job, quailed and looked apprehensively at Drummond.

"Do what the kind gentleman tells you, Mullings," said Hugh, "and go to bed." He smiled at the man reassuringly. "And if you're very, very good, perhaps, as a great treat, he'll come and kiss you good night."

"Now that," he remarked as the door closed behind them, "is what I call tact."

He lit a cigarette, and thoughtfully blew out a cloud of smoke.

"Stop this fooling," snarled Peterson. "Where have you hidden Potts?"

"Tush, tush," murmured Hugh. "You surprise me. I had formed such a charming mental picture of you, Mr. Peterson, as the strong, silent man who never lost his temper, and here you are disappointing me at the beginning of our aquaintance."

For a moment he thought that Peterson was goingto strike him, and his own fist clenched under the table.

"I wouldn't, my friend," he said quietly, "indeed I wouldn't. Because if you hit me, I shall most certainly hit you. And it will not improve your beauty."

Slowly Peterson sank back in his chair, and the veins which had been standing out on his forehead became normal again. He even smiled; only the ceaseless tapping of his hand on his left knee betrayed his momentary loss of composure. Drummond's fist unclenched, and he stole a look at the girl. She was in her favourite attitude on the sofa, and had not even looked up.

"I suppose that it is quite useless for me to argue with you," said Peterson after a while.

"I was a member of my school debating society," remarked Hugh reminiscently. "But I was never much good. I'm too obvious for argument, I'm afraid."

"You probably realise from what has happened to-night," continued Peterson, "that I am in earnest."

"I should be sorry to think so," answered Hugh. "If that is the best you can do, I'd cut it right out and start a tomato farm."

The girl gave a little gurgle of laughter and lit another cigarette.

"Will you come and do the dangerous part of the work for us, Monsieur Hugh?" she asked.

"If you promise to restrain the little fellows, I'll water them with pleasure," returned Hugh lightly.

This new drug is called Tanated Calomel. It acts only on the Liver, which immediately relieves many troubles, as Rheumatism, Constipation, Boils, Kidney Pains, etc. No Salts, Seidlitz, are necessary after taking, because it is self-eliminating. It does not have a nauseating sickening feeling the next day, like so many similar drugs. You, no doubt, have been taking all sorts of laxatives, Salts, castor oil, etc., with only temporary results. The reason is that some of these draw liquid from the blood and tissues, causing a great flush. What you need is something like Tanated Calomel, which causes the Bile to be excreted from the Liver into the Bowel, causing a natural elimination of the waste. You know waste allowed to remain in the system causes a multitude of troubles. I can venture to say that 90 per cent. of all sickness is due directly to this very thing. What is generally the first thing your doctor does when you are sick? He gets your Bowels operating so as to eliminate wastes in your Bowels, which are poisoning your system. Now, in order to be happy, healthy, vigorous, vivacious bright, alert, keen to observe and understand, you must first keep your Liver clean, or you are coaxing all sorts of trouble upon yourself. Doctors recommend that you take a tablet before eating and one at bedtime. Just get some of these, and I feel assured that you will feel as if you had a new lease of life.

These Tanated Calomel Tablets are for sale by F. C. Webber, Charlotte street.

ECZEMA ON FACE AND HEAD FOR FIVE YEARS

Eczema or salt rheum, as it is so often called, manifests itself in little round pimples which contain an extremely irritating fluid. These break and subsequently a crust or scale is formed and the intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the part is exposed to a strong heat, is almost unbearable and relief is gladly welcomed.

There is only one way to get relief and no remedy like

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Take it internally and it gets at the seat of the disease in the blood and drives it out of the system.

Apply it externally and it takes out the itching, stinging and burning and promotes healthly healing.

Mrs. J. Sage, 215 Princess Ave., Vancouver, B. C., writes: "Having suffered with eczema on the face and head, for the last five years, I consulted several doctors, and tried various kinds of salves and lotions, but I derived no benefit from any of them. I did not know what to do until a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and after I had used two bottles I began to get better and now after taking eight bottles I have not even a blotch on me. I feel that I cannot praise B. B. B. too highly I hope you will make full use of this recommendation for the benefit of those who are suffering from this terrible complaint, eczema."

SHOW WINDOWS

The importanceof window displays is everywhere admitted by progressive merchants, and all are of the opinion that window displays go hand in hand with newspaper advertising in the successful merchandising of goods. The show window is a great silent salesman, often selling more goods than a staff of highly trained clerks. It reminds the great buying public of its necessities, and keeps people informed with new suggestions and prices. A good window is inexpensive and effective in promoting sales.

The well-dressed window is the merchant's point of contact with the public. It reflects the policy and personality of the business. Effective advertising and show window displays are the eyes of your store. Careless, ill-arranged window displays are fatal to business. Attractive window displays have become a necessity. The inclination to buy is aroused in the customer's mind, not his pocketbook.

It is up to the grocer to make the most of his windows. Every opportunity for the displays of seasonable lines should be taken advantage of. The value of a good display has been proved time and time again, and constitutes one of the big factors in stimulating and increasing sales.—Canadian Grocer.

CLAIM GERMANY BEING SOLD OUT

NEWSPAPERS RAISE CAMPAIGN OF PROTEST

COBLENZ, Germany, Dec. 3.—(Associated Press).—German newspapers for weeks have been waging a campaign of protest against what is termed the "selling out of Germany" to foreigners who have invaded the country to purchase goods since the mark began its sharp decline early in October.

The mark has fallen in value much faster than the prices advanced and, as a consequence, thousands of speculators have been attracted to Germany to take advantage of the situation.

In the occupied area the influx of foreigners became so great within a few days that the Allied authorities soon decided that some concerted action was necessary to protect the residents.

The President of the Rhineland Province, acting under direction of the Inter-Allied Rhineland High Commission, issued a decree prohibiting purchase of merchandise by foreigners not actually residing within the territory of occupation. This order does not affect members of the Allied military forces, the Rhineland Commission nor other foreigners who were in the occupied area on legitimate business.

Officials deemed that this step toward trade regulation was necessary to prevent retailers from selling all their stocks to foreigners taking advantage of the low rate of exchange on foreign currencies at a time when the price on goods in the German stores had not been advanced, or at least not marked up in comparison with the depreciation of the German money.

For days buyers poured into the Rhineland on every train, and by automobile from Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, France and other nearby countries and business in the stores of Coblenz, Cologne and Aix-la-Chappelle flourished as it never had before. The foreigners bought everything on sale and in whatever quantity could be arranged with the retailer. This abnormal demand for goods continued for days and reached such a stage at times that storekeepers found it necessary to close their doors, because of the crowds, or because the shelves were empty. Clerks worked 16 and 18 hours a day trying to keep up with the demand.

Many articles of American manufacture are on sale in Coblenz stores at retail prices much lower than in the United States, taking into consideration the rate of exchange. It is explained here that these goods came from surplus army stocks in France which at various times since the armistice have been disposed of by the United States Liquidation Commission to Germans and merchants of various other countries.

WON'T TAKE I.O.U. FROM PORT HOPE MERCHANT

PORT ROPE, Ont., Dec 2.—While the Meighen government was accepting I.O.U.'s from the Riordons and other "big interests," whose taxes totalled hundreds of thousands of dollars, the "little fellows," owing a hundered dollars or so, were threatened with legal action if they did not pay up promptly.

Take the Port Hope cases, says the Port Hope Guide: "Our merchants made their returns to the government, and we are staisfied they were perfectly conscientious in making these returns. But soon afterward a Government auditor visited Port Hope and called on four of our busienss men, W P. Tickell, Paul Haggis, Henry Reynolds and H. B. Roseavear. The auditor went over the books carefully, and in each case demanded increased returns for the government. In the case of Mr. Haggis the auditor held that he was liable for both manufacturers' and retail tax. Mr. Haggis had already paid $100 to the government, but was told another $140 was due. Mr. Haggis tendered his cheque for $50 and agreed to pay the balance within a few days. But before the few days had passed he received the following telegram:

Department of Customs and Inland Revenue.
Ottawa, March 31, 1921

Paul Haggis,
Port Hope, Ont.

You are indebted to this department $99.33, covering arrears excise taxes. Unless this amount paid to collector inland revenue, Peterboro, immediately department will be compelled to take legal action. Wire decision. GEO. W. TAYLOR
Asst. Dept. Minister, Inland Revenue

"In other words settle up or get out of business. And while the government was squeezing the last dollar from our local merchants the Riordon Paper Company, with two million dollars in the treasury, was allowed to pay its tax of $800,000 by promissory notes."

It was learned by The Star today that Mr. Haggis, after being threatened by the government, showed the officials by his bank book that he was unable to pay at once. The official, however, refused to give him time or take his I.O.U. Mr. Haggis had to borrow the money from the Bank of Toronto.

MAKING DOLLS

Have you seen Jolly Jonathan, the new doll that all the kiddies have fallen in love with? Jolly Jonathan is made of socks and is so soft and cuddly and altogether loveable that he makes the most delightful crib-fellow to go to sleep with. A great many of these dolls are being fashioned now for church fairs; they go like hot cakes and sell for anywhere from fifty cents to a dollar each—and cost but ten cents to manufacture.

First you purchase at the "5 and 10" a pair of those heavy masculine socks that are sold in these emporiums. The socks are gray or tan and have white heels and toes. One sock makes Jolly Jonathan's body and the other his gay cap and sweater. His engaging features you put in yourself with worsted; and the more skill you have, the more lovable will be his face.

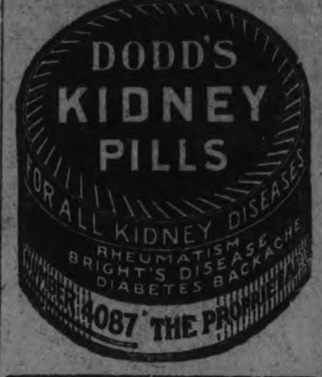
This is the method of procedure: First cut off the tops of the socks, leaving each sock with its heel intact. Take sock No. 1 (the long heelless strip) and slash it up about five inches through the upper or ribbed end. When you have stitched up the legs on the machine you stuff the body plumply with cotton and tie a string around tight to make a neck. The rounding-over part of the heel will give you the back of the doll's head.

Now draw over this, sock No. 2 which is Jonathan's sweater. The ribbed part should be rolled up at the bottom to give the sweater effect, and the heel part will fit over the stuffed head, making Jonathan's face. Around the tied-in neck adjust a bit of ribbon for a cravat.

At the back of the head will be a bunched up effect where you have gathered in the open part of the heel but this will be covered by Jonathan's cap which is made of one of the sliced off toes, drawn over the head and rolled up at the edge, toboggan cap style. The other toe, slashed in two and stuffed, makes the arms which may be sewed n the proper place.

Put in the features with worsted; Black for the round eyes and eyebrows; two red dots for nostrils and a red line for the mouth. One woman who makes these dolls by the dozen for fairs gives Jonathan a fascinating mouth, with red worsted lips and white worsted French knot teeth, revealed in a wide smile.

As one youthful football enthusiast remarked seeing Jonathan grow under his aunt's nimble fingers: "Say, you might call them a reg-lar sockdolager of a fellow!"



LET THEM GO DOWN, SAYS MR. BURNHAM OF THE GOVERNMENT.

Speaking at Chemong on 16th July, 1920, Mr. Burnham said, in reference to the Government: "If they go down, let them go down. I bear no ill-will to them."

Mr. Burnham evidently felt that CANADA DIDN'T NEED MEIGHEN.

Take him at his word—and vote for G. N. GORDON.

IRISH JUDGES AWARD FOR DAMAGE BY BRITISH

DUBLIN, Dec. 3.—(Associated Press).—Recorders and judges are daily awarding thousands of pounds as compensation to people who have suffered loss or injury during the fighting with the British forces; but few of these awards seem likely to materialize in hard cash. There is no money with which to pay them.

Sir Hamar Greenwood, Secretary of State for Ireland, answering an inquiry in the British House of Commons, put the total amount of awards to September 30 last at £8,000,000; but the amount involved in the 26 southern counties is at least £10,000,000, while another £2,000,000 has to be added for the area in Ulster.

Some of the claimants are Sinn Feiners, and others are business men who took no part in politics.

When an award is made, the local authority is supposed to levy a special tax for the purpose; but since Sinn Fein assumed political control of the country, no local authority in Southern Ireland has imposed such a tax.

For the great mass of sufferers there is no prospect of relief, and how the thousands of claims already granted are to be met puzzles everybody, including the claimants.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Voice of the people

Dear fellow citizens all who may read these lines, I had intended giving this on the park before the closing of those services for the season, but when I was present there was plenty of so much better talent, and when there might have been time I perhaps could not be there. I have one request to make, that all who may read these lines will receive them in as good a spirit as they are given. The message is not mine; it is the holy spirit communing with mine. My appeal is to the church members, of whatsoever church you may belong. I believe the time is here when judgment must begin at the house of God and if it first begin at us what shall be the end of them that know not God? I may ask some pointed questions, but you do not have to answer them to me, but I hope and pray that you will answer them between yourself and God. Now let us take for our thought the 1 psalm, blessed is the man who walketh not in the council of the ungodly nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful, but whose delight is in the law of the Lord and in it doth he meditate both day and night. My brother, my sister, where is your delight? Is it with the people of God in prayer and praise and song as in the dance hall or around the card table. We heard a great deal the latter part of summer and early fall of the needs of Peterborough, some of it very good, but coming so far short of the real need. What every man and woman this wide world over needs is the soul-saving power of God's grace in the heart. When love gets into the heart it will transform the life of our stubborn sins, will fight and reign as long as love is absent, but sorrow and sadness will turn to gladness when love shines in. It has always been the custom more or less to engage in cards and dancing, but it seems the last few years it has become king; we see so much of it in the paper, don't forget the dance. Then we see later who won the valuable prizes. I would not perhaps notice the list at all if it were not to know who were there, and sometimes my heart is sore to know, or thought I knew, to find their name in the list. My brother or sister, how many souls do you ever expect to win for the kingdom of heaven from either the cards or dance? Lest I make this too long, I will close by asking you to look at the subject we started with and see whether you are standing in the way of any who might be brought into the kingdom or walking in council of the ungodly or have got where you have taken your seat among the scornful and made sport of those who are trying to do the will of God as revealed in His word.

Your most respectfully,
C. S. CUNNINGHAM.

Meighen "Calliope" Said Burnham Voted For G.T.R. Purchase Bill That "Stuck People For Millions"

Do you remember having read this before?

"NOTHING MORE IS NECESSARY TO ILLUSTRATE THE WILDNESS OF MR. BURNHAM'S STATEMENTS UNLESS POSSIBLY TO ADD THAT HE HIMSELF, INSTEAD OF OPPOSING THE LEGISLATION, SUPPORTED IT."

That is the Hon. Arthur Meighen's "compliments" to Mr. J. H. Burnham.

Not directly, but indirectly through the Meighen candidate's publicity in the West Peterborough bye-election last February.

The above extract was the retort of the Meighen "calliope"—perhaps you remember the imported publicity machine that was quartered in the old Oriental Hotel last winter—to Mr. Burnham's denunciations of the G.T.R. deal and his reflections upon the Government that jammed it through the House.

Mr. Burnham was hunting with the hounds then, and he was right out in front of the pack, making things decidedly uncomfortable for the Government in the famous bye-election. ....

Back home here, Mr. Burnham was full of denunciation of the whole thing;

But in Parliament he voted for it—VOTED FOR THE G.T.R. PURCHASE ON ITS THIRD AND FINAL READING.

Is that the type of representative West Peterborough wants at Ottawa?

Surely not!

"Meighen Engineered It"

Mr. Burnham said, in one of his letters to the press, that the Hon. Arthur Meighen himself engineered the G.T.R. Bill through Parliament.

And then the Meighen "calliope" shot the following blast at Mr. Burnham:

"The above (quotation from a campaign speech by Mr. Burnham) is a sample of what an irresponsible aspirant for office is capable of saying. Indeed, it is doubtful if a more amazing sample could be found. . . Nothing more is needed to illustrate the wildness of Mr. Burnham's statements unless possibly to add that he himself, instead of opposing the legislation (the G.T.R. resolution) supported it. (See Hansard, page 1748, Vol. 2, second session, 1919.)"

Hansard is the official and exact report of the debates and the divisions in Parliament.

If you turn up that volume of Hansard, you will find that Mr. Burnham voted "YES" ON THE THIRD READING OF THE G.T.R. RESOLUTION INTRODUCED BY THE HON. DR. REID.

Every man and woman in West Peterborough will understand the full meaning of Mr. Burnham's action.

And the worst feature of it was not so much that he voted for that legislation, as it was that he fully realized the evil of it.

Millions of Worthless Stock

Mr. Burnham knew that as a result of that Bill the people of Canada would have to pay millions of dollars for G.T.R. stock that was worthless.

Vote for Gordon

And yet, that tell-tale page of Hansard lists Mr. Burnham among the "Ayes" when the vote was taken.

Mr. Burnham was not dumb to the Meighen publicity machine's quotation from Hansard.

In a reply through The Examiner he wrote: "I voted against the G.T.R. guarantee clause, as Hansard shows."

And he concluded that epistle with this statement: "Those now owning or controlling the stock (G.T.R. stock) will accordingly make an enormous haul. WHY DID THE GOVERNMENT DO THIS ENORMOUS THING? It was Mr. Meighen who engineered the Bill through the House."

Let us examine Mr. Burnham's attempted defence.

Mr. Burnham did make a short comment in which he affirmed that the G.T.R. Bill should be referred to the people.

Genuine democracy spoke in that suggestion—but it was only a suggestion.

But Mr Burnham Voted For It

Had Mr. Burnham stood steadfast on that opinion, things would be vastly different for him to-day.

But he swallowed himself. HE VOTED FOR THE G.T.R. RESOLUTION ON ITS FINAL READING—AND IT CONTAINED THE CLAUSE WHICH HE SAYS HE HAD PREVIOUSLY OPPOSED.

That's one page—and a black one from Mr. Burnham's Parliamentary record.

He was tested and found wanting.

In a letter to The Examiner on 15th January, 1921, Mr. Burnham wrote in part as follows: "It is the people of Canada first with me. . . if anybody thinks that I am going to stand by and see the people robbed, that person is mistaken."

A lofty sentiment that, but HANSARD SAYS MR. BURNHAM VOTED FOR THE G.T.R. PURCHASE BILL.

Here's another paragraph from Mr. Burnham's letter:

"Stuck Canada for Millions"

"In the Grand Trunk purchase when Mr. Meighen introduced into the Bill a clause guaranteeing common stock 4 per cent. interest when it hadn't earned a dividend in 20 years, and thus raised the price of millions of stock to be purchased by the Government from 45 (dollars a share) to nearly twice that, and THUS STUCK CANADA FOR MILLIONS, was I not right? It was the most barefaced transaction I ever saw. IT MEANT THAT THE MASSES OF CANADA WERE TO BE BLED FOR THE FINANCIAL ADVENTURERS, WHO ALWAYS DEPEND ON THIS WAY OF GETTING RICH."

According to the Meighen publicity machine in the bye-election, Mr. Burnham voted for the legislation which, on his own estimate, "Stuck Canada for Millions."

ENFORCE LETTER DROPS IN DOORS OF NEW BUILDINGS

CITY COUNCIL PASSES BY-LAW TO THIS EFFECT—BUILDING PERMITS TO CARRY THIS PROVISION.

In Council last night Ald. R. N. Jones fathered a by-law providing that any building hereafter erected in accordance with a building permit issued under this by-law, provision must be made for the installation in the front entrance door or any door designated by a street number of a letter drop, or other suitable mail receiving device, the aperture to be 1-2 by 5 in. each to permit letters and ordinary newspaper mail packets being deposited therein. The flap of the letter drop is to be designated by the word "letters" and fitted with a spring so as to automatically close after the letter or other piece of mail has been inserted. The letter drop or other mail receiving device must be placed in a prominent position in the door and to be easily accessible to the letter carrier.

This measure passed its several readings.

INCREDIBLY LAVISH FEAST WAS AN EPOCH IN INDIAN LIFE AND CUSTOMS

HIAWATHA INDIANS ON NEW YEAR'S DAY, 1847, FIRST ADMITTED THEIR WOMEN FOLK TO FESTIVE BOARD.

ADDRESS BY PAUDASH

(By F. H. DOBBIN.)

Everyone knows of the Indian reservation on Rice Lake, centreing in the village of Hiawatha, set apart years ago in the general scheme of betterment for the descendents of the original inhabitants of the country, and following on the general details of cessation of claim by the natives who lived and roamed over this part of Ontario, which we now, in a general definition, call the Midland district of Ontario. Possibly a few paragraphs may be printed to describe the situation as it existed at the time of this narrative, which will be a tale of an incredibly lavish feast, an ephocal event in Indian life and custom, and of the self-sacrifice of a man who in his day and time humbly and diligently groped for an answer to the eternal question, "Am I My Brother's Keeper?"

In 1818 the bands of Indians known as the Mississagaus of Rice, Chemong and Scugog lakes (all members of the same tribe), held a claim, recognized by the British Government, on the lands of the district and comprised in what was officially known as the Newcastle district, stretching from about Whitby on the west to the confines of the county of Frontenac. Out of this area was afterwards carved the counties of Lennox and Addington, Hastings, Northumberland and Durham and Peterborough and Victoria; and in general carrying back to the height of land between the waters drainage to Lake Ontario and the Ottawa. At the date mentioned these lands were surrendered to the Assembly of Upper Canada, the tribes accepting an annuity of £740 ($3,000), to be paid in perpetuity to the heads of families in the bands, or until the race became extinct, of which there seemed to be a possible contingency at the time indicated.

Hiawatha Reservation.

The tract so ceded embraced about 2,000,000 acres. The location made afterwards at Hiawatha comprised about 1,550 acres with some additions gained by purchase. The reservation was set apart in 1843 and placed in charge of trustees having the care of the monies and distribution. Other reservations were laid down at Curve Lake (Chemong), on Scugog Lake and to the north, at Rama, near Orillia. It is understood that the annuity now nets heads of families yearly about $15.00 each.

In what is to be related the reader will remember that it occurred in a community of Indians not more than twenty-seven years removed from nomadic habits, from living in skin wigwams and accustomed to roam whither and hither at will, and find a living after the manner of their forefathers. And only thirteen years after the first dwelling of logs had been built on the Hiawatha reservation. And, considering that we in Peterborough have been for eleven years trying to settle down and build a sewage disposal plant and have not as yet, accomplished anything startling, what was done at Hiawatha is notable in community life.

John William Love.

All the heros are not of the battlefield. Men we have who hold some conception as a duty to man to those in view and who loyally and in humble ways are trying to make the world a little better than they found it. Such a man was John William Love. His name speaks his action. He came into the intimate life of the tribe, on the Hiawatha reservation, and lived and worked for its betterment. A man of middle age, he came from around near Welcome, back of Port Hope, at that time known as Smith's Creek. Having a fair general education, he volunteered as school teacher to the new community and took up the work under large disadvantages. A report he made some years later than the time of the incident we are to consider showed that under his inspiration and example the village had within its limits twenty-six houses—all but one of which were of logs—a number of barns, a frame church, a school house and council house and a house for the schoolmaster. The adult population numbered about 145. With a school attendance, he proudly states, of forty.

Industry and Trift.

He labored with the community, instilling habits of industry and thrift and managed for them the sale of skins and furs, negotiating for them with the dealer named Herkimer, who had a trading post at a point on the north shore of Rice Lake, west of Hiawatha, the ruins of the old place now being visible near the summer residences of several Peterborough men at the shore of the lake. Afterwards the post was carried on by Major Anderson, who married a Mohawk squaw, by whom he had a son who was for many years chaplain at the Mohawk reserve at Tvendenega, and later lived at Penetang, Ont. In all desirable ways, Mr. Love was useful, keeping a careful watch that the effects of the use of liquor should be kept down to a minimum, for there were at that time no restrictions as to the sale of liquor to members of the band.

One thing that impressed him was the condition of the women of the tribe, looked on by the men as inferior. He knew that the way to improve the outlook for the children was by way of the mothers and earnestly strove to better their conditions and place in the family. For instance, on all formal occasions, at feasts, conferences, meetings, etc., no woman was suffered to sit with men as an equal, and if at all present must stand. This badge of inferiority he sought to break. And then there came a day when the happy event crowned his effort.

Woman's Elevation.

It was most significant; for the first time in the history of the tribes woman was admitted to a feast as the equal of her husband. Actually sat with him at the board. Shared in the viands and the attentions. It was little short of revolutionary, and throughout the length of Canada had never been permitted. In addition, to lend more importance to the event, it was seen at the yearly feast, the tribal gathering, an annual affair.

Mr. Love has left his own account of the occasion, and we will have him tell it in his own words—plain, simple and pathetic—little of eulogy for himself, but much of appreciation for the momentuous step the heads of the bank had taken. So in a letter he had written early in 1847 he tells of the happy time, and itemizes the depth and breadth of the preparations for the feast of such a memorable New Year's Day, 1847. His account is as follows:

"This will meet your eyes, and it is from John W. Love, school-master of Indians at Rice Lake, and it is of the annual feast which the Indians of Hiawatha carried out on New Year's Day, last. The writer was present on the occasion and has pleasure in giving a description of the variety, quality and prodiguous quantity of food which had been provided for the day, also the manner in which it was conducted.

"This is the first time that females were permitted to sit at table with men at any annual feast or important occasion, but I have pleasure in testifying that the old and barberous custom was now to be a thing of the past. I had pointed out to them the injustice they were inflicting on their waves and the rising generation in not bringing their women forward as white men did their wives and so raised their wives to the level which they should occupy in society.

"This appeal had its effect, and to the astonishment of all the Indian wives and maidens all women were seen to be seated before a single man was allowed to be placed. I contend that by this act the Rice Lake Indians raised themselves to the head of every tribe on any reservation of the Province."

Joy and Happiness.

He writes of his joy and pleasure at seeing the result of his long efforts, virtually in favor of the franchise for women, even if in a humble way, and adds: "I saw the joy and happiness that glowed in each feminine face at the pleasing idea of their being so raised to a level with the men."

Then follows at considerable length his account of the viands provided for the feast. In these days of high cost of living the plentitude and variety reads like a page from "Ivanhoe," and of one of the baron's reflections in the baronial hall.

Chief Paudash.

"When all were seated the old Chief, Paudash, stepped forward and gave an eloquent address, partly in the Indian and a part in English tongue, contrasting their present with the former state and condition when they lived—as he had lived—in wigwams in the wild woods, and all this goodness he attributed to the Great Spirit in sending to them the religion of Jesus Christ and its teachings.

"This annual feast had been heralded far and wide, and many Indians had come very long distances through the forest to share in the event—from along the river Trent and also from the Alderville and Roseneath reservations, and even a few from Scugog Island, on the river of that name. All this in the dead of winter and its deep snows. But such zeal was as gratifying as remarkable. Of whites who chose to be present were Rev. Messrs. Case, Sunday and Armes, the latter bringing his lady. In addition, numerous farmers from Otonabee graced the event with their presence and approval."

New Council House.

On the Tuesday evening following a special supper was given to celebrate the formal opening of the new Council House of the community, and it proved to be an evening of songs, addresses and much enjoyment. Mr. Love makes no mention of the provender provided, but we may assume that it was a case of "the day after Thanksgiving, memories of Thanksgiving Day dinner." And possibly they exceeded the record of another feast of old when they took up of fragments even so much as seven baskets full.

A Fellow Member's Opinion of Burnham

"He (J. H. BURNHAM) stated that he believed the Farmers' party would be thrown into the garbage barrel. Mr. Speaker, I hope when that happens the people will take my hon. friend out of the barrel before they put me in, for I would not like to occupy the same barrel with him."

VOTE FOR GORDON.

The Navy League of Canada and DISARMAMENT

ADMIRAL EARL BEATTY, O.M., Etc.

Speaking in Massey Hall, Toronto, November 28th, 1921, said:—

"THE NAVY LEAGUE IS A NATIONAL ORGANIZATION PERFORMING A GREAT NATIONAL WORK. IT SHOULD BE SUPPORTED BY EVERYONE."

THE following is the broadest possible indication of the feeling of the Navy League of Canada on the proposals of the Washington Conference on the limitation of naval armaments.

When the war began the tonnage of "capital ships" (i.e., battleships and battle cruisers) in the British Navy was:—

ONE MILLION THREE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-TWO THOUSAND AND SEVEN HUNDRED.

That of the United States Navy was:—

FIVE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-EIGHT THOUSAND TWO HUNDRED AND FIVE.

It is now proposed that by "scrapping" and cessation of new construction the ratio for the next ten years shall be:—

Great Britain	Five hundred thousand tons
United States	Five hundred thousand tons
Japan	Three hundred thousand tons

There are so many technical, moral, economic and political questions involved in consideration of the points at present under discussion, and it is certain that there will be many modifications of the original proposals which form the basis of these discussions, that at this stage of the Conference it would only be confusing to enter upon a more detailed analysis of the whole question.

This involves an immediate sacrifice by:—

Great Britain of TWENTY-THREE SHIPS, nineteen of which are afloat;
United States of THIRTY SHIPS, seventeen of which are aflcat;
Japan of TWENTY-FIVE SHIPS, ten of which are afloat.

The proposal to allow the question of submarines to be left wide open with construction unrestricted, prompts one to ask the question:—

Is the whole aim of the Conference to equalize naval strength by scrapping the costly capital ships and offering increased facility for competition in a less costly but much more deadly and diabolical weapon—the submarine?

The economy of such a proposition which would increase brutality at a decreased cost, leads one to believe that there is no altruism in the whole business.

The Navy League of Canada endorses the following statement made by Mr. Balfour:—

> "We have considered the proposal with admiration and approval. We agree with it in spirit and in principle."

But—a prominent Canadian newspaper says.—

> "We welcome it as an expression and a symbol of a moral ideal, the substitution of the reign of law for the rule of force."

The Navy League of Canada

BELIEVES THAT THE "SYMBOL" OF THE REIGN OF LAW AGAINST THE RULE OF FORCE IN 1914 WAS—BY THE HELP OF GOD—THE BRITISH NAVY, AND THAT THE WASHINGTON CONFERENCE IS ONLY POSSIBLE TO-DAY THROUGH THE READY EFFICIENCY OF THAT "SYMBOL" AT THE TIME OF HUMANITY'S SOREST NEED.

The Navy League of Canada believes that the word of a writer in the Washington "Mail" more nearly defines the character of this proposal:—

> "It is not humanity revolting against the barbarism of war, but business commonsense revolting against going bankrupt."

The Navy League of Canada does not advocate National and Imperial bankruptcy, but DOES emphasize the simple truth, easily overlooked, that, WHAT HAS BEEN MAY BE, AND THERE IS NOTHING NEW UNDER THE SUN.

The Navy League of Canada shares, in common with all men and women of good-will, the longing for a world commonwealth in which everyone shall respect his neighbor's property. But it is the duty of the League to remind us that, just as hunger for food, discontent with wages, labor conditions and the like, stir men and women to revolt so that they attack their nearest neighbor who has—or seems to have—what they lack; so do land hunger, territorial ambition and kindred afflictions torment nations.

A special despatch to a Canadian newspaper says:—

> "Disarmament proposal puts axe to grandiose plans attributed to the Minister of the Naval Service, for future expenditures . . . . Proposal is preventive of ills to come."

Playing Politics

The Navy League of Canada exists for the purpose of protesting against the dissemination of just such disloyal propaganda throughout the Dominion.

The "grandiose plans" referred to are but proposals to pay a trifling instalment of a debt to the Mother Country that self-respecting Canadian citizens of the British Empire feel should have been settled in full long ago.

Mr. Balfour said:—

> 'The geography of your country (United States) makes you wholly immune from perils to which the British Empire is subjected . . . . We are not lamenting over the weakness of our country. But this strategic weakness is known to our enemies. Then do not let it be forgotten by our friends."

The United States coastline is:—

TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND MILES.

The British Empire coastline is:—

OVER ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND MILES, scattered over the seven seas.

Arthur Brisbane, U.S. writer, says:—

> "With her danger points all over the earth,—Britain would need a navy twice as big as ours for purposes of defence."

We recall the word of Mr. Balfour:—

> "Our weakness should not be forgotten by our friends."

It will never be forgotten in Canada so long as the Navy League of Canada is true to her charge.

POLITICAL COMMENT

MEETING AT ROCKCROFT.

Notwithstanding the very bad weather, a good crowd gathered at the Rockcroft School-House yesterday afternoon to hear Roland Denne, C. H. Ackerman and J. F. Strickland, who addressed a meeting on behalf of Mr. J. H. Burnham.

Mr. Denne dealt with the lack of serious criticism against the Government and pointed out the petty tactics adopted by the opposition.

Mr. C. H. Ackerman spoke at length on the splendid manner in which all parties had got together in 1917, and pointed out that the crisis at the present time was just as great and that it would indeed be a blow from which Canada would not recover for some years if the Government was not returned.

Mr. J. F. Strickland contrasted the policies of Mr. Meighen and of Mr. King, and pointed out the fact that Mr. King did not seem to be able to take a definite stand on any question of importance. He also dealt with the effect of the Fordney Emergency Tariff Bill in the United States and with the Safeguarding of the Industry Act in Great Britain, and emphasized the fact that the only safe policy for this country was that enunciated by the Honorable Arthur Meighen, a policy of adequate protection of all classes.

FINAL MEETING.

Mr. J. H. Burnham held his last meeting of the campaign at the town hall, North Monaghan, last evening. Mr. Bert Sanderson occupied the chair. As several of Mr. Burnham's assisting speakers went north to hold a meeting in his interests at Rockcroft, and as others of the staff had gone to give help where they thought it was more needed, the Conservative candidate was the sole speaker. He said he was glad that no unusual bitterness had arisen to mar the good feeling of the campaign. We were all Canadians and should not forget that we were all citizens of the same great Empire. It was difficult, said the speaker, to follow the Liberal candidate in his different policies. One day it was protection for the city dweller and free food provided by the farmer, who was to have world-wide competition in his home market, to make cheap food for the city dweller, who was to be protected from world-wide competition by a protective tariff. Such a wooden-legged policy as that was sure to come down with a crash, as it had done and a new one of the reciprocity of 1911 substituted for it. Reciprocity, of course, meant that the farmer was to get other national markets if they were allowed to get free entry into ours in the industries. As this policy was also a wooden-legged one, it would in due time come to the ground. Because farmers do not sell to farmers anywhere but to city dwellers and it would be of no use to break up the cities on the assumption that it would help the farmer since if that occurred the farmer would have no customers. Mr. Gordon was no doubt a capable and energetic lawyer and had grown into the habit apparently of taking one policy one day, and if necessary the very opposite the next, for lawyers will send a man to prison one day and defend him strenuously the day after. The speaker dwelt upon the necessity of national insurance against the unemployment of the worker, as in Great Britain. It was the social balance-wheel, without which the machinery of employment would never cease having its break-ups and idle moments. The day would come, too, for old age pensions for those who are old and in need, and with these two great disiderata easily provided for in a country with so much national property to realize upon, we need not fear the gaunt spectres of enforced idleness and the tragedy of an old age of despair. Upon these two policies the speaker had worked for years and had set his heart, and if elected he would bring them once more to the fore. He had done much in that direction already, as they knew, but the next step was the decisive one, and he hoped to live to see it accomplished and at no distant date.

AVERT OPERATIONS FOR APPENDICITIS —INTERNAL BATHS

Hundreds of surgical operations for appendicitis have been avoided by the timely employment of the J. B. L. Cascade. Most troubles arise from the accumulation of waste in the colon, or lower intentine, from which poisons spread.

Cleansing of the intestinal tract with pure warm water, applied with the J. B. L. Cascade, removes the causes of a large number of common ailments—constipation, indigestion, headache, loss of energy and rheumatism.

Mr. James McLaughlin, 91 Evanston Street, Winnipeg, writes:

"I bought a J. B. L. Cascade for the cure of a bad case of appendicitis. My doctors told me I must have an operation at once. I had spent more than fifty dollars in doctors' bills, but the Cascade completely removed in a few days every trace of soreness and pain. I eat and sleep well now, and have regained my former weight, and am now in perfect health."

The J. B. L. Cascade is being shown at the Warne Drug Company, Peterborough, Ont., who will gladly explain to you its simple operation, tell you why it is so certain in its results and give you free an interesting booklet by Dr. Charles A. Tyrrell, who was a Specialist on Intestinal Complaints for 25 years. Ask for booklet or write Dr. Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute, 163 College St., Toronto.

NEW YORK MARKET

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press). — Equipments, Steels and Rails were strong at the opening of to-day's Stock Market on week-end covering of short contracts. General Electric was the conspicuous feature at a two-point advance. Domestic and Foreign Oils made slight recessions.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—The market was unusually active this morning and trading was interesting. Paper issues continued to display much weakne and more than one drop was registered. Abitibi lost 5-8 to 30, Brompton 1-2 to 21 1-2, Laurentide 1-4 to 72 3-4 and Spanish River Preferred 1-2 to 70. Detroit United Railway was among the stronger stocks this morning and was very active. It closed yesterday at 72, weakened to 70 3-4 early this morning and then rose to 73. National Breweries remained unchanged at 57 1-2. Steel of Canada was down half a point to 62 1-4.

BUSINESS GIRLS' CLUB.

A rally of the Business Girls' Club took place at the Y. W. C. A. last evening. The club entertained non-members, and a very enjoyable evening, attended by nearly 40 young ladies, was spent in games and music. Refreshments were served, and a general social good time was the order of entertainment. Vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. I. Clark and Miss Barbara Massey-Cooke, and Miss M. Breckenridge gave a reading.

Mrs. G. S. Cameron attended this meeting and gave the audience an outline of the projected work of the Peterborough Health Association in connection with the Summer Camp at Jackson Park. The members promised to co-operate in every possible way.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are even just a little hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone losing hearing or who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

STREET CARS KEEP WITHIN SPEED LAW

THEY'VE STOPPED DEAD A COUPLE OF TIMES THIS WEEK BUT CAME UP GROGGY, REFUSING TO TAKE THE COUNT

Peterborough's street cars are still running on half power while one of the machines in the sub-station is in Belleville for repairs. All week the cars have been mooching along the streets as slow as the coming of Christmas to little Willie, and sometimes slower than those polite and perhaps expensive funerals that run their few blocks through the city by motor. No complaints about the service have been heard from the public, and it may therefore be assumed that everybody is satisfied as long as the system doesn't stop altogether.

Perhaps the patrons are disposed to be lenient in their disposition toward the operation of the street railway under the Beck quasi-public ownership plan, and consequently are not unduly perturbed over a little matter like the snail's pace the street cars have been hitting up till the oil boxes smoked during the last week. Maybe if the old company still had control the public might not be so considerate. However, it will be all the same when the machine gets back on the job, so why the grouch

But all this is going on while Mr. J. E. Middleton, the special propagandist for the Hydro, is working six days a week or thereabouts telling the world of the wonders of Hydro. Probably Peterborough Street Railway is too much of a nuisance aroud the Beck santum-sanctorum to get a second thought.

FARMER SUFFERS A SERIOUS LOSS

BARNS AND CONTENTS, INCLUDING STOCK, DESTROYED ON NORTH MONAGHAN FARM.

In less than an hour to-day the barns, machinery, grain and stock excepting 3 horses of R. J. Waller, well known, North Monaghan farmer were totally destroyed by fire

The Peterboro Fire Department and one hundred willing volunteers from the city and country were unable to save anything in the face of a strong wind and could only watch the progress of the fire. The principal losses were:

Barns and adjoining buildings.

This year's crop with $2,000 worth of last year's alsike and $1000 worth of this year's alsike, 13 pure bred Holstein milch cows.

Three valuable horse 200 chickens Machinery and an automobile, practically new.

The total loss will be between $5,000 and $10,000 of which half is covered by insurance.

Mrs. Paillois Waller discovered the fire at 11.15. Mrs. R. J. Waller has been ill in bed for seven weeks and her husband was in the city. The fire department was appealed to and neighbours along the line responded willingly but the wind fanned the flames into fury and within an hour the fine buildings were in ashes. The house which is only about 30 yards from the barns was carefully watched but flames veered to the side and only once for a few minutes was the house in actual danger.

The fire started so quickly we believe it must have been caused by combustion. It seemed to break out first above the stable and in a few minutes the whole barn was on fire, the Examiner was informed at the Waller home. Mr. Paillois Waller is a milk proprietor and the loss of the valuable Holstein cattle will seriously cripple his business. The Waller farm is situated one and a half miles west of Jackson's Park. At time of going to press fire was still sweeping through the last remnants of the barns.

WEATHER AFFECTS LOCAL MARKET

FOWL PLENTIFUL AND PRICES REASONABLE — BUTTER PRICE EASIER.

A large basket market to-day, with turkeys, geese and all kinds of fowl abundant was very remindful of Christmas. It is not likely many housewives have yet bought the piece de resistance of the Yuletide dinner, but the close scrutiny of the fowl to-day indicated there was a trend of thought in that direction. There were a number of turkeys at 40 cents a pound, more ducks at 30, still more geese at 30, and hundreds of chickens at 22 to 25. Eggs were higher in price, and 85 and 90 cents was asked. Butter ranged from 40 to 45 cents, and was plentiful.

The dimensions of the open market shrunk to-day possibly on account of the unpropitious weather or the poor prices farmers allege they are getting. Potatoes and meats were the leading commodities. Potatoes were $1.75; beef was 10 to 12; pork 14 to 16; lamb, 20, and mutton 18. Young hogs were down to $8 a pair.

Apples were not very plentiful. Spies were 60 cents a peck, or by the barrel $7.

A galaxy of auctioneers held forth on the square, and sundry articles, from ploughs to bed springs, were knocked down, or "given away," according to them.

MONTHLY MEETING OF I.O.D.E. CHAPTER.

The regular monthly meeting of the Major Bennett Chapter, I.O.D.E., took place yesterday afternoon in the rooms at the Chamber of Commerce.

Routine business was attended to, and election of officers made to fill the places of the absent Regent and Vice-Refent until the annual electins in February.

Miss Janet Stapleton was appointed as Regent for the time, and Miss Amy Beal as Vice-Regent.

Mrs. G. S. Cameron was present at this meeting, and informed the Chapter of the intention of the Peterborough Health Association to erect a dining-room at Jackson Park this summer for the convenience of the children—the room to cost in the neighbourhood of $300.00.

The Chapter decided to donate the sum of $50.00 towards this purpose.

THE FISH HATCHERY FOR THIS DISTRICT

During the present election campaign the question of a fish hatchery for Peterborough has crept into some of the platform utterances of the speakers. Mr. T. The matter is at present being dealt with by the Provincial authorities through the medium of Mr. Tooms, who is representing Peterborough's interests in the matter.

Ouch! Lame Back

Rub backache, Lumbago, Soreness and stiffness away - Try this!

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get blessed relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameless and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub on and out comes the pain. It is perfectly harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.

Our Position

LEST OUR FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS MISUNDERSTAND.

One of our Competitors, advertising, in December 2 issue of Examiner, gives the impression that other Shoe Merchants of the City were endeavouring to get him to discontinue selling Rubbers at Cut Prices.

We wish it to be distinctly understood that we have never in any way interfered with this Merchant, and have no desire to do so.

We do not claim any right to, nor do we ask any Merchant to sell his Goods at Prices to suit us.

We do not handle or sell Dominion Rubbers. Our Rubber business is built up on Miner's First Quality Rubbers in fine goods, and Miner's Invincible in heavy goods.

These Goods are recognized by the Public and Merchants as equal to the Highest Standard of Rubber known to the Trade, and are Guaranteed Goods.

With about 50% increase in our Sales this year over the preceding year, we are satisfied that our Customers recognize that our policy of "Fair Dealing and Solid Values" means something.

"Miner's Rubbers are cheaper because they wear longer."

AT THE GRAND.

What would ye modern Lochinvar do these days if he had to call in a gentleman's hair-dresser to comb his jet black tresses every time he wanted to call upon his lady love?

Yet that's exactly what happened during that reign of King Louis XIII. And that's also exactly what happened to Douglas Fairbanks every morning during the filming of "The Three Musketeers," which will be a feature at the Grand on December 8, 9, and 10.

As D'Artagnan, hero of this famous Alexander Dumas' story, Doug is all dressed up a-la-Seventeenth-Century, in long hair, knee pants, high boots and long sword. The work of getting into this regalia has caused him to appreciate and recommend modern garb vera vera much.

"I don't see how they did it," he said, comparing modern styles with those bygone days. "How any man could take two valuable hours out of a day to saddle himself into such clothes is too deep for me. And an hour to comb a wig!"

The man who did the heavy work on the Fairbank's haircoming job is Zan Zak, professional hair dresser and wig maker. For an hour each day he fussed with Doug's wig to get the kinks out of it. The first time Doug had to stand for this it was almost necessary to tie him down. Finally, this difficulty was somewhat overcome by first placing the wig on the head of a wax dummy and doing the preliminary work there.

"No wonder the Chinese cut off their queues," said Doug. However, no one can deny, according to Mr. Philips, manager of the Grand, that the picturesque costumes and elaborate hair combs displayed in this feature do much to make it one of the most colorful and romantic photoplays ever shown.

When the Rex Stock Company opens on Monday night at the Grand in "Twenty-Four Hours of Truth," they should have a capacity house to greet one of the best bills of the season. A broker's office in a foshionable New York hotel is the opening scene of the bill—big business deals in Sulphur and Silver mines are taking place when Bishop Doran come in. He asks Mr. Ralston the head of the firm for a large contribution to a pet charity and at the same time Gwendolyn Ralston tells her father that sh has offered to raise $20,000 for the bazaar in five days and wants him to double it. So Mr. Ralston tells the Bishop that is about his limit and shortly after an interesting conversation takes place between Gwen and Bob Bennett, a young stock broker. He is very much in love with Gwen she is a most sympathetic listener when she comes to him with her troubles. Gwen has raised five thousand dollars and has to double it in five days in order to get ten thousand more which they have promised from papa for this bazaar. She wants Bob to invest it for her so as to increase it to the desired sum in a few days. It is some problem but as a devoted lover Bob has no alternative but to promise that he will do it. In a moment of mutual gratification they are about to embrace when Mr. Ralston enters the room hurriedly.

The rash promise to tell nothing but the truth for twenty-four hours is the result of sudden inspiration. Remembering his promise to Gwen, Bob makes a bet that he can and will tell the absolute truth for that length of time. He little knew the trouble in store for him—his partners' home is nearly broken up, he openly insults people about their personal appearance, almost wrecks his business and naively confesses that his income the last year was $2200 instead of $40,000 as he had told. But—does he win the wager? Come to the Grand on Monday night December 5th and you will know the rest. LAURA

AT THE CAPITOL.

THREE-QUARTERS OF A TON OF COMEDY IN ETHEL CLAYTON'S SUPPORT IN "SHAM"

Dainty Sylvia Ashton, Rotund Walter Hiers and Eunice Burnham, Fattest Girl on the Stage, Provide Much of the Fun.

Three-quarters of a ton of comedy is provided in "Sham," a new Ethel Clayton Paramount picture, which will open at the Capitol Theatre for a three-day run, beginning next Monday, at the Capitol.

For adding "weight" to the support of the beautiful star, are those famous fat fun-makers, Sylvia Ashton, Walter Hiers and Eunice Burnham. The first two have appeared in scores of Paramount productions, while Miss Burnham, a newcomer in pictures, won fame as the fat partner of lanky Charlotte Greenwood in vaudeville and on the stage in "So Long Letty."

"We're fat and we don't care," maintain the three. "The fellow who said 'Nobody Loves a Fat Man' is crazy. If you don't believe it—look at our pay checks!"

The comedy players named are responsible for many of the laughs contained in the film version of the famous Elmer Harris and Geraldine Bonner stage success. Walter Hiers as a rotund and disappointed lover is quite funny in his scenes with the star, while Miss Burnham gains gales of laughter as his sister, good-hearted but a mess on the dance floor!

In "Sham" Miss Clayton has the role of Katherine Van Riper, a "gentle grafter" of irreproachable social standing; one of those who entertain the best society—and "forget" to pay their bills. A wealthy marriage seems the way out—but before this happens a real romance evolves which carries the interest at high pitch to the final fade out. Thomas Heffron directed under the supervision of Elmer Harris, the author. Douglas Doty wrote the scenario.

The balance of the short reel and comedy program will be up to the usual Capitol standard. Two big double acts of vaudeville—Leonard & Wright, known as the international dancers, do a variety of styles of dancing with six complete changes of wardrobe; Sheik Hassan Ben Abdiz & Co., the world's greatest cyclone acrobats and iron jaw kings, in Oriental pastimes.

This program, combined with the excellent music of the Canitol Concert Orchestra, will complete a great show for the first three days of next week.

AT THE ALLEN.

ACTOR SO VILLAINOUS CAN'T LOOK AT COP WITHOUT SHIVERING.

"I haven't been able to look a policeman in the eye for a month."

This from Wade Boteler, as fine a gentleman as ever faced a motion picture camera, and who plays the part of "the Black Heart," leader of a band of New York criminals in "Stranger Than Fiction," Katherine MacDonald's latest starring vehicle, distributed by Associated First National Pictures, Inc., and which will be shown at the Allan Theatre last time to-day.

It has been Mr. Boteler's lot to be cast by Fate and directors for crook roles in the biggest and best photoplays. He is considered by motion picture detectives to be the hardest-boiled villain in all screendom.

"Playing the part of 'The Black Heart' in 'Stranger Than Fiction' was one of the most interesting roles I have ever interpreted on the screen," said Mr. Boteler. "After I got through playing my part I'd instinctively cross the street rather than pass a policeman. I was so used to having cops on my trail in the studio that it didn't seem as though a real officer of the law would pass up the chance to ninch me after all the jewel robberies I had been committing every day on the studio sets."

Nervous Trouble

Nervous troubles are, without a doubt, the most discouraging form of sickness to the sufferer. You are tired and ill but cannot say what is wrong, no pain except frequent headaches, you are fretful, cross and irritable without a cause, no ambition or desire to continue your daily routine, you feel a picking or itching of the limbs or body and feel that some terrible calamity is about to overcome you, cannot enter into your former pleasures and prefer solitude to the company of your friends. In such cases the whole nervous system is deranged and requires the most careful attention. Take one of Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets every night or every second night and if there is any tendency to Stomach trouble take one Special Stomach Tablet three times a day before meals.

SEVERAL IMPORTANT MATTERS TO BE AIRED AT BASE BALL POW-WOW

(By Henry L. Farrell, United Press Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Baseball will shake the moth balls next week the moth balls next week for its for its annual winter airing.

The yearly meeting of the minors opens Monday in Buffalo, to be followed by the winter sessions of the National and American leagues, and the joint sessions of both leagues in New York.

With Judge Landis, the president, and most of the managers and owners of the big leagues attending their session the little fellows will find themselves the real Ritz gathering of baseball.

While the worthy majors will be about with pocketbooks for the best of the minor crop, the magnates will be chiefly interested in what comes from the keyhole of the conclave room about the draft.

The majors still want all the minors under the draft blanket, although they maintain that they are disinterested, and that the bushers are planting thorns by not coming in.

Appeal of the players of the International and Pacific Coast leagues and the American association for a chaneg in the present arrangement which they claim denies them promotion and larger salaries may cause Judge Landis to recommend the draft, or suggest some other remedy.

The International league is about on the rocks, because the Baltimore club refuses to sell its "major league" team, and, thereby makes a joke of the pennant race.

The major leagues will be interested to learn the plans by which the Pacific Coast league will carry out its intentions of putting major league baseball on the coast.

Mike Sexton, president of the minors, however, says the greatest problem before the little fellows is the reduction of expenses. It is understood he will recommend a reduction in salaries, operating expenses, and the number of players on the roster. He would also do away with traveling secretaries, training trips, and would, return to the one-umpire system, with tourist sleepers and a reduction in meal allowance for the players.

Sexton will present figures showing that expenses of maintainig a club have increased 2z0 per cent., since 1914 and that wholesale reductions will have to be made to save the "little fellows."

SPORT IN BRIEF

Fifty thousand dollars from the New York Americans, and five thousand dollars from each other club in the American league.

That is the salary that Babe Ruth will ask for the season of 1922. I have Babe's word for it, writes Billy Evans.

Ruth had a sliding contract with the New York American league club last year. His actual salary was $20,000. He received a bonus for his home-run record, which perhaps carried the figure to $35,000.

Ruth's contract with the American league expired at the close of the 1921 season. When he confers with the New York club he intends to ask a combined salary that will total $85,000, which is $10,000 in advance of what the president of the United States receives.

This will be the first time that a player has demanded a salary from the other clubs in the league, to which he is in no way affiliated other than being a member of teh same organization.

"I broke the home-run records in 1920 and 1921," says Ruth. "Likewise I broke a lot of attendance records. Fifty-nine home runs are a large flock. I am going to be mighty lucky if I break that mark in 1922. If I don't break it I am going to fade out of the picture."

"I am a big card right now; the moment I quit smacking those old home runs every one is going to forget all about me.

"The time to get the dough is to get it while the getting is good. If I can't get it now, I never will be able to come through.

"I feeel that I am an asset at the gate to every club in the league, that is why I feel the burden of my salary should be divided."

Lionel Conacher can be justly termed the iron man. He has been in training for three years now, being such a versatile athlete that there are few days in the year that he is not engaged in some kind of sport. He played hockey last winter with Aura Lee, and then started in to train with the Hillcrests baseball team and Maitlands lacrosse team on two or threee occasions playing lacrosse and baseball on the same afternoon. When the football season opened, the Hillcrests were playing baseball, and he was forced to divide his attention between the Hillcrests and Argonauts. He will play football with the Agos today in the Canadian championship game against Edmonton, and is slated to play hockey with Aura Lee tonight against the Cranites in the first S.P.A. cup games at Toronto. If ever an athlete was entitled to the name of "iron man", Conacher is the one. Is it any wonder that professional hockey and baseball teams are seeking the services of such a willing worker?

Canadians who are anxious to see the forward pass introduced into Canadian football will be interested in the following from the pen of H. G. Salingser, in the Detriot News;

"Forward passing is football's great gamble. That is what the coaches tell you. One of the reasons is that coaches have not given the forward pass proper attention.

"Coaches take it for granted that players can throw a football. They try out the players and select for their forward passers men that can throw a ball with speed or men who can throw a ball a long distance, depending upon whether they intend using the long or short forward pass on attack.

"There is one feature to which the coaches give scant attention and that is receiving forward passes. Any man who plays football is supposed to be able to catch a ball. This is far from true. Catching a football is an art in itself. Few really know it.

"During the football season of 1921 we repeatedly saw forward passes fumbled or grounded that had a perfect direction and should have been completed; the only reason they were not completed is because the intended receiver did not have the ability to catch the ball.

"We have this year seen players in position to take forward passes, miss the pass because they were late in getting their arms into position. Had they been well coached in receiving passes this would not have happened.

"Football players who also play baseball, make the best receivers of forward passes, for the simple reason that they are able to judge a thrown ball instinctively. The man not accustomed to catching a ball, or lacking thorough training in the matter does it clumsily and is tardy in getting the hands and arms into position, which a man accustomed to catching a baseball is not. The receiver, if he also plays baseball, times the oncoming ball, is in position when it arrives and gathers it in naturally."

LATEST GOSSIP IN BASE BALL

If Connie Mack puts Joe Dugan on the market, the New York Americans will make a strong bid for him. It is figured Frank Baker hasn't many more years to go.

The fall meeting of the American League will be held in Chicago, December 14. President Johnson has just so annouced.

Contrary to the general belief, Kid Gleason has not yet signed a contract with the Chicago White Sox. Chicago wats Gleason but the Kid wants more money than Comiskey has offered him.

It is said that at least 20 ball players, who quit the majors for the outlaws, have petitioned Judge Landis for reinstatement.

Duffy Lewis who is to manage the Salt Lake team next year, has finally realized his ambition. Lewis when with the New York Yankees always hankered after a managerial job. When Huggins was selected as the leader, Lewis was given considerable thought.

Eddie Collins would much prefer to play east than west, and it is said he has made a request that a trade be made with some club in the eastern end of the American League circuit. Eddie's value to the White Sox is so great, however, that Owner Comiskey probably won't pay much attention to it.

Now that it is a certainity that Heinie Groh will not e with Cincinnati next year, Pat Moran of the Reds is sounding out the other National League clubs as to what they have to offer.

Charley Rigler, National League umpire, is a bug on the golf game Rigler is perfecting his play with the thought that he might become a golf professional when he decides to give up umpiring.

Manager Griffith of the Washington club has squelched all the rumors that his team was in the field for a new third baseman. Howard Shanks will play that bag for the Nationals. Griff figures there are few better men in the league.

A number of major league clubs have their eyes on Johnny Stuart of Ohio State, who is regarded as a big league possibility. If Stuart plays base ball as well as foot ball he has a great chance to make good.

SCORE 6 IN THE FIRST—SUN AND WIND PARTIALLY DRY SODDEN FIELD FOR SEMI-FINAL WHICH DECIDES WHO SHALL MEET SARNIA.

Riverside Park, Dec. 3.

University of Toronto schools and Peterboro Collegiate met here this afternoon in a sudden death game in the Interscholastic semi-finals. The biggest crowd that has seen a rugby game here in many years was in attendance and the Collegiate Rooters club added some organized cheering to the proceedings. The weather conditions are remarkably good, considering the lateness of the season, the wind and sun having greatly improved the condition of the field. A strong wind from the west threatens to give the rival back divisions some trouble in catching punts. U.T.S. arrived at noon and were met at the station by the P.C.I students who had cars ready for them and gave the visitors three cheers as they stepped off.

Snow fell shortly after Noon

Peterboro Collegiate — Flying wing, Legn; Halves, Fanning, Flowers, Grime; quarter D. Young; Snap back, Breyfogle; inside wings, Gilchrist, Stacey; Middle wings, Brown Eastwood; outside wings, Ridpath, Rishor; subs, H. Young, Hay, Parrington, Stevens, Bookout, Maniece.

U. T. S. Line-up:—

Referee—Bobby Armstrong, Toronto.

Umpire—Baillie, Toronto.

The U. T. S. team have a wide margin in order and size over their Peterborough rivals.

First Quarter

U.T.S. kicked off and got possession on a forward pass twenty yards out. They bucked for yards took an onside kick and then Munro kicked over for a try which Plaxton converted. U. T. S. 6, Peterborough 0.

Cawkell took the kick-off and ran it back ten yards. Plaxton kicked to Fanning. Peterboro gained on bucks and Legan took an onside kick for a gain.

Flowers kicked into touch and Plaxton from the first scrimmage punted 50 yards to the dead line for a point.

U.T.S. 7, Peterborough 0.

Peterborough rallied and Legon, taking a beautiful catch of an onside kick, carried the play into U.T.S. territory. Campbell ran a kick out of danger.

Quarter time.

Play was in mid-field for a while in the second period until a fumble by Legon gave them possession in Peterborough territory. U.T.S. held them for a while, but finally Cawkell went over for a try on a pass from Munro. Plaxton failed to convert. U.T.S. 12, Peterborough 0.

LOCAL HELP FOR THE UNEMPLOYED

BOTH GOVERNMENTS COMMUNICATED WITH—A REPLY FROM OTTAWA.

Mayor A. A. McIntyre and Mr. G. N. Gordon have partly succeeded in their efforts to provide means to relieve the unemployment situation. The Dominion Government, together with the Provincial Government, have promised to each pay one-third of the cost of establishing an unemployment fund. The remaining third is to be met by the municipality.

Mr. Gordon has communicated with the Department of Labour at Ottawa, and received assurance that the Department is ready to carry out the Government's promise.

The Provincial authorities have been asked to state their intentions, and if affirmative, an employment fund will be inaugurated at once in this city.

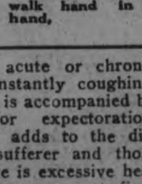
Does Your Cough Add to the Theatre Chorus?

Weekly Health Talk No. 7
By A. P. Rogers, D.C.

There is nothing more annoying to healthy folks than the cough that goes from seat to seat in a theatre, often at a tense moment of the play when you are anxious to catch every word.



Uncle Ben Says:
Good health and a bank account walk hand in hand.

Sufferers from acute or chronic bronchitis are constantly coughing. Usually the cough is accompanied by the necessity for expectoration, which, of course, adds to the discomfort of the sufferer and those around her. There is excessive heat in the bronchial passages at first, but later this subsides and the mucous discharge changes from a clear to a purulent character. In chronic bronchitis any of the above symptoms may be intermittently present and the cough hangs on continuously. It may lead to more serious lung weakness if not given attention.

Rid of Bronchitis and Persistent Coughing

"For years I have been troubled with a bronchial cough. As a rule it was not troublesome in the summer, but as soon as the leaves began to fall, it would become in evidence. I coughed frequently and occasionally would spit blood. Chiropractic spinal adjustments broke up the persistence of this trouble the first season. It is now three years since my first series of adjustments and there have been no symptoms of a return of this chronic trouble."—Thos. Carr, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No 1291F.

HEALTH FOLLOWS
CHIROPRACTIC CORRECTS PRESSURE ON SPINAL NERVES IN DISEASES OF THE FOLLOWING ORGANS:

THE LOWER NERVE UNDER THE MAGNIFYING GLASS IS PINCHED BY A MISALIGNED JOINT. PINCHED NERVES CANNOT TRANSMIT HEALTHFUL IMPULSES. CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTING REMOVES THE PRESSURE. THE UPPER NERVE IS FREE AS NATURE INTENDS.

THE BRAIN, SPINAL CORD AND NERVES CONTAIN AND CONVEY LIFE

THAT SOMETHING

That "Something" that sustains life is generated in the brain.

This energy is transmitted over the spinal cord and nerves to all parts of the body.

The nerves leave the spinal column through small openings between surfaces of the vertebrae (small bones of the spine).

Pressure upon any of these nerves is produced when the vertebrae become out of normal position.

This pressure diminishes the amount of energy, or mental impulses, carried over the nerves pressed upon.

The organs, tissues or parts supplied by the particular nerve or nerves upon which the pressure is produced, suffer because of the decrease in this vital energy.

From lack of this essential energy disease develops.

Therefore, disease is caused primarily by subluxated vertebrae producing pressure upon nerves as they leave the spine, diminishing the normal supply of vital energy, or mental impulses.

The Chiropractor adjusts these vertebrae to normal position, removing the pressure and allowing the normal amount of vital energy to be transmitted. This accomplished, health is restored.

Meighen Government is a Positive Danger, Declares Mr. J. H. Burnham

"I believe that this government is the creature of some big schemes now floating in the air, and I believe it is a positive danger to Canada. It shows that it will stop at nothing. Its origin is one of the mysteries of the day." J. H. Burnham, January 7th, 1921.

The Rural Vote.

In the rural section of the riding there are appoximately 4,275 voters, as follows:

Galway	225
Cavendish	50
Harvey	500
Ennismore	400
Smith	1400
North Monaghan	1200
South Monaghan	500

It is impossible to accurately ascertain the number eligible to vote in the country for the lists are more flexible than in the city. In rural sections even if those eligible to vote are not down they can cast a ballot on taking an affidavit sworn to by some person. Slightly over half the electors are women. Lady workers in the campaign have taken the percentage of the fair sex to the total as 51 per cent.

Of a total vote of over 18,000 in February last, only about 13,000 people exercised their franchise. If a larger percentage do not vote on Tuesday it is a slander on the great institution of self government.

PETERBOROUGH MAN NARROWLY MISSED TRAIL

For imbibing too freely of the juice of the grape on respective dates two Peterboro men, members of the Old Topers' Club, paid $10 each in Police Court to-day. Costs in each case amounted to $9.10. It was less than three months since one of the men was before the Magistrate, and he only missed going to jail by a hair's breadth. The other man's conduct for over a year had been quite exemplary but cross-examination to ascertain where he got his liquor revealed that an unknown friend at the C.P.R. station Saturday afternoon was responsible for his downfall. It was a sad tale.

PETERBORO' RANGERS' ANNUAL INSPECTION

ACTIVE SUPPORT OF YOUNG MEN OF CITY HOPED FOR

As the annual inspection of the Peterborough Rangers will take place on Decemebr 15, and with the inspection will cease the recruiting and drill until next April, I would like to take this opportunity to ask the active support of the young men of the town, both those who have enlisted with us and those who have not.

LT.-COL. A. W. McPHERSON, Officer Commanding Peterborough Rangers.

I am asking this for two reasons: First, in order to make such a showing at the general inspection that will be a credit to the regiment and the city as well as a source of encouragement to those who have been working top ut the regiment on a good basis. To secure this, the returned men are specially invited to join up, and for their benefit it may be added that all the officers and N.C.O.'s are returned men and about 50 per cent. of those in the ranks. But the younger men are also specially invited at this time so as to form a strong organization, which will be ready in April to begin active spring work as well as to take advantage during the winter of the club-rooms, the bowling alleys, the shooting gallery, the indoor baseball and the skating rink.

There are but two more nights for joining up — next Thursday night, Dec. 8th, and the following Tuesday night, Dec. 13th. If all who are interested in the regiment will make a special effort there will be no regrets.

A. W. McPherson,
O.C. Peterborough Rangers.

$750 IN O.T.A. FINES AT ONE COURT SITTING.

BEAVERTON, Dec. 5. — Fines totalling $750 were imposed in six cases of breach of the Ontario Temperance Act in the police court here. License Inspector C. A. Mason laid the charges, and Magistrate J. Clarke, of Orillia, presided.

The men fined were Clifford and Roy Corner, Bert Graham and John Emes, each $100, or two months in jail, for drinking in a public place; William Passmore, $100, or two months in jail, for being intoxicated; Arthur Emes, $250, for having liquor in a place other than a private dwelling. Costs were assessed in each case. The prosecutions arose from the drowning on October 19 of Wilmot Corner, father of the two Corner boys fined.

ONTARIO CABINET MEETS TO DISCUSS RELIEF WEDNESDAY

The Provincial Cabinet will meet on Wednesday to discuss the unemployment situation, Ald. G. N. Gordon, ex-M.P., announced to-day. The calling of the meeting is the result of telegrams to Premier Drury and Hon. Walter Rollo, Minister of Labor, urging action sent by Mr. Gordon.

TRAINS COLLIDE; 9 DEAD, 20 HURT

WRECKAGE TAKES FIRE AND SEVERAL BURNED TO DEATH—TRAIN "OVERRAN" ORDERS.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Two trains collided at Bryn Athyn, sixteen miles from here, to-day. The number of dead is placed at fifteen, and the injured at twenty.

The wreckage took fire and it is reported several persons were burned to death. A snowstorm practically cut off communication with the scene of the wreck.

In a statement given out by the railway, the cause of the accident was said to be probably due to a train from Philadelphia "overrunning orders."

The death list is now placed between nine and twelve.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(Canadian Press.) — Shipping shares were in further demand at the opening of to-day's stock market, probably as a result of subsidiy reports from Washington. American International and Mercantile Marine Preferred were among the active and strong features of the initial dealings. International Harvester, Pullman, General Electric, American Woollens, United States Rubber, Allied Chemical, Crucible Steel and Transcontinental Oil also were firm to strong. High-class rails were ignored aside from nominal dealings in Coalers and the usual favorites in Oil and the industrial groups were sluggish. Leather, Tobacco and Mail Order issues eased moderately.

Leaders of the Oil and Food division strengthened at mid-day. General Asphalt, Houston and Mexican Petroleum rose one to 2 1-2 points. Corn Products, National Biscuit, Beet Sugar and Cuba Cane Sugar Preferred one to two points and short covering effected general recoveries among the Tobaccos and other specialties.

MONTREAL, Dec. 5. — (Canadian Press.)— During early trading this morning very few of the leaders made an appearance. Abitibi was unchanged at 30 1-4. Atlantic Sugar was down a half at the same figure. Detroit United Railway, however, advanced from 73 1-4, its closing level, to 74 1-2. Steel of Canada was down a quarter at 62 1-2.

LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, Dec. 5.— (Canadian Press.)—Receipts 4,437, trade good. Quotations: Heavy beef steers, $6 to $6.75; choice butcher steers, $5.75 to $6.25; butcher cows, medium, $3.50 to $4.50; calves, $9.50 to $10.50; lambs, $9.50 to $10.25; hogs, selects, $9.90 to $10.15.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, Dec. 5.— (Canadian Press.)—Trading on the local stock market this morning was mostly in small lots, well scattered over the entire list and price changes, with a few exceptions, were confined within small fractions. War bonds were quiet and unchanged or slightly lower prices. City Dairy continued to show strength, one sale going through at 95, a five point rise from Saturday. General Electric was 5-8 higher at 96 3-8, while a small lot of Detroit United sold at 73, with a fractional share going at 70.

Irish Peace Parleys Have Broken Down, Is Said Authoritatively

STATEMENT ON OUTCOME OF LAST MEETING TO-DAY BY GOVERNMENT WILL SAY THAT REFUSAL OF SINN FEIN TO OWN ALLEGIANCE TO KING RESPONSIBLE—TRUCE REMAINS IN EFFECT—IMMEDIATE WAR NOT LOOKED FOR.

LONDON, December 5. Canadian Press. — The Irish peace negotiations have broken down, according to a responsible statement made today. The statement will say that the refusal of the Sinn Fein to accept allegiance to the King made an agreement impossible.

The truce remains in effect and no immediate resumption of hostilities is looked for. The Sinn Fein, it is said, refused even a conditional promise of allegiance, contiingent upon a settlement, its offer being to "recognize" the King as head of a Commonwealth of Free Nations.

Th Unionists of Southern Ireland, headed by Lord Middleton, are still exerting their influence for a settlement of the Irish problem. They asked the premier to-day to meet them.

The Sinn Fein delegates visited Downing Street this afternoon and conferred with the Government concerning the truce.

The hope was expressed in Government circles that when the terms were made public the weight of Irish opinion might be exerted to influence the Sinn Fein. The most important body of moderate opinion is, said, however, to hold the view that an agreement would have been possible had the Government not, as the Southerners consider, yielded to Ulster.

ELECTION MACHINERY READY FOR THE FRAY.

Twenty Votes Cast at Advance Poll in City.

About 20 votes were taken at the advance poll held by Deputy-Returning Office Fred. Hall in the City Treasurer's Office Friday and Saturday nights, and several more are expected to be taken to-night. The polls are held from 7 to 10 p.m. The Dominion Election Act is specific that this poll is only for commercial travellers, sailors and railway men, whose regular occupation prevents them from voting on Tuesday, but several men whose occupations are not among these, it was stated to-day, swore themselves as belonging to the privileged class in order to vote at all. One man, a lineman, declared himself to be a commercial traveller, and cast his ballot. Otherwise he would not have been able to exercise his franchise, as he will be out of the city on Tuesday.

Everything in the way of election machinery is set for the battle at the polls. Only 11 polls lacked the boxes, ballots and paraphernalia for recording the vote at noon to-day, and the deputy officers were being drummed up to get them. They were all city or bordering on the city polls that were not equipped. The election officers have all been well drilled and the ranks are complete, although a man for an East City poll had to be appointed at the last minute to fill a place vacant through a sudden quarantine put on one officer's home. The polls open at 8 a.m., and close at 6 p.m.

WAR'S FOREMOST HERO TELLING STORIES

And strangely or not, his tales are not of the battlefield. Sergeant Samuel Woodfill, described by General Pershing as "America's foremost hero of the World War," is the guest of the Fifth Division Association in New York and is stopping at the home of the Supreme Court Justice Philip McCook, president of the Association. Here he is telling good old fashioned stories to the three sons of Justice McCook—left to right: Donald B.; Philip B.; and John S.

DRAFT QUADRUPLE ENTENTE AT MEET

WOULD SUCCEED ANGLO-JAPANESE ALLIANCE—EXPLAINS JAPANESE DELAY ON ARMS CUT.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(Canadian Press.—A draft of a quadruple entente which would serve as a substitute of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance, it is learned to-day, is under consideration by the governments of the United States, Britain, Japan and France.

This is said to explain the delay of the Japanese Government in announcing its decision concerning the question of naval ratio because it appears that as the problem of tonnage is a connection of the national policy, the two matters are being discussed together.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(Canadian Press.—With a tentative agreement on the ratio question and its related political problems awaiting a message from Tokio which it is hoped may bring a definite settlement of this difficult point and meetings of the Far Eastern committee temporarily suspended, the Washington conference is just now marking time.

LOSS IN MONAGHAN FIRE IS NEAR $25,000

Further reports of the disastrous fire which destroyed the barns, machinery, grain and stock of Mr. R. J. Waller, North Monaghan farmer, on Saturday last, give the estimated loss at between $20,000 and $25,000 with a little over $5,000 insurance.

Mr. R. J. Waller had been ill in bed for seven weeks, and was just convalescing. His daughter, Mrs. Jewell, of New York, who had been nursing him, intended leaving this week for her home. Mrs. Carlos Waller discovered the fire at 11.15 and, the Peterboro Fire Department and neighbors responded to appeals for help, little could be done to stem the flame, which was fanned to fury by the high wind.

"BULL-DOG DRUMMOND"

BY "SAPPER" (CYRIL McNEILE)

Peterson rose and walked over to the window, where he stood motionless staring out into the darkness. For all his assumed flippancy, Hugh realised that the situation was what in military phraseology might be termed critical. There were in the house probably half a dozen men who, like their master, were absolutely unscrupulous. If it suited Peterson's book to kill him, he would not hesitate to do so for a single second. And Hugh realised, when he put it that way in his own mind, that it was no exaggeration, no facon de parler, but a plain, unvarnished statement of fact. Peterson would no more think twice of killing a man if he wished to, than the normal human being would of crushing a wasp.

For a moment the thought crossed his mind that he would take no chances by remaining in the house; that he would rush Peterson from behind and escape into the darkness of the garden. But it was only momentary—gone almost before it had come, for Hugh Drummond was not that manner of man—gone even before he noticed that Peterson was standing in such a sposition that he could see every detail of the room behind him reflected in the glass through which he stared.

A fixed determination to know what lay in that sinister brain replaced his temporary indecision. Events up to date had moved so quickly that he had hardly had time to get his bearings; even now the last twenty-four hours seemed almost a dream. And as he looked at the broad back and massive head of the man at the window, and from him to the girl idly smoking on the sofa, he smiled a little grimly. He had just remembered the thumbscrew of the preceding evening. Assuredly the demobilised officer who found peace dull was getting his money's worth; and Drummond had a shrewd suspicion that the entertainment was only just beginning.

A sudden sound outside in the garden made him look up quickly. He saw the white gleam of a shirt front, and the next moment a man pushed open the window and came unsteadily into the room. It was Mr. Benton, and quite obviously he had been seeking consolation in the bottle.

"Have you got him?" he demanded thickly, steadying himself with a hand on Peterson's arm.

"I have not," said Peterson shortly, eyeing the swaying figure in front of him contemptuously.

"Where is he?"

"Perhaps if you ask your daughter's friend Captain Drummond, he might tell you. For Heaven's sake sit down, man, before you fall down." He pushed Benton roughly into a chair, and resumed his impressive stare into the darkness.

The girl took not the slightest notice of the new arrival, who gazed stupidly at Drummond across the table.

"We seem to be moving in an atmosphere of cross-purposes, Mr. Benton," said the soldier affably. "Our host will not get rid of the idea that I am a species of bandit. I hope your daughter is quite well."

"Er—quite, thank you," muttered the other.

"Tell her, will you, that I propose to call on her before returning to London to-morrow. That is, if she won't object to my coming early."

With his hands in his pockets, Peterson was regarding Drummond from the window.

"You propose leaving us to-morrow, do you?" he said quietly.

Drummond stood up.

"I ordered my car for ten o'clock," he answered. "I hope that will not upset the household arrangements," he continued, turning to the girl, who was laughing softly and polishing her nails.

"Vraiment! but you grow on one, my Hugh," she smiled. "Are we really losing you so soon?"

"I am quite sure that I shall be more useful to Mr. Peterson at large, than I am cooped up here," said Hugh. "I might even lead him to this hidden treasure which he thinks I've got."

"You will do that all right," remarked Peterson. "But at the moment I was wondering whether a little persuasion now—might not give me all the information I require more quickly and with less trouble."

A fleeting vision of a mangled, pulplike thumb flashed across Hugh's mind; once again he heard that hideous cry, half animal, half human, which had echoed through the darkness the preceding night, and for an instant his breath came a little faster. Then he smiled, and shook his head.

"I think you are rather too good a judge of human nature to try anything so foolish," he said thoughtfully. "You see, unless you kill me, which I don't think would suit your book, you might find exaplnations a little difficult to-morrow."

For a while there was silence in the room, broken at length by a short laugh from Peterson.

"For a young man truly your perspicacity is great," he remarked. "Irma, is the blue room ready? If so, tell Luigi to show Captain Drummond to it."

QUIT MEAT IF YOUR KIDNEYS ACT BADLY

Take Tablespoonful of Salts if the Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well known authority, who warns us to be constantly on The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritatin gacid, but become weak from the overwork—they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a teaspoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. Thsi famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink nad nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

BIBLICAL TIMES.

Men who love to dig into what ordinary mortals accept as facts and wonder at them now say that the ancients of Biblical days reckoned time, not by solstices and equinoxes, or by the sun or the movement of the earth, but by the moon. Thus a year with them was a lunar year, or every time the moon came around they counted it a year.

Roughly speaking there are a little more than 12¼ lunar months of approximately 29 days each in a year. This makes it easier to understand how Adam lived to be 930 years; according to our present reckoning he really lived to be 74.

Later, of course, the equinox was considered, and six moons, or approximately six months, became a "year." Hence Abraham's 175 years becomes about 87 years of our time. Al lof which sounds more plausible about these supposed long-lived patriarchs.

Red Arrow Tires, Ltd. Making Rapid Strides

RAISING PLANT OF RED ARROW

WORK STARTED AND BUILDING WILL BE COMPLETED BY APRIL OF NEXT YEAR.

Excavation for the daylight plant of Red Arrow Tires, Limited, on Water street, north, is completed, and work on the building has started. It will be rushed to completion and under the contract must be completed by early April.

J. E. Hayes and Sons, the contractors, are paying the men employed on the work 30 and 35 cents an hour. "It is not right to offer a man less. We believe in paying a fair wage and we intend to," declared J. E. Hayes. "We had men offering to work for 15 cents an hour, but we wouldn't hire a man at that wage."

The policy of the contractors toward their employes is indicative of the policy the company will inaugurate in its factory. In designing the plant every effort has been made to make working conditions as satisfactory as possible.

The plant will be 203 feet long and vary from 60 to 95 feet in width and will contain approximately 50,000 square feet of floor space. It will have a capacity of 500 tires a day.

In an interview J. J. Turner, president of the company, stated:

"We feel we have made considerable progress in the building up of a new and desirable industry for Peterborough. The plant will be 203 feet long and vary from 60 to 95 feet in width, and will contain approximately 50,000 square feet of floor space. It will be a daylight factory, built of red brick, with white brick pilasters, and will be of fire proof construction. The building for which we have let the contract is our first unit. It will be built on the fore part of our property, allowing ample space between it and the river for an additional unit of like construction. It will have a capacity of 500 tires and tubes a day.

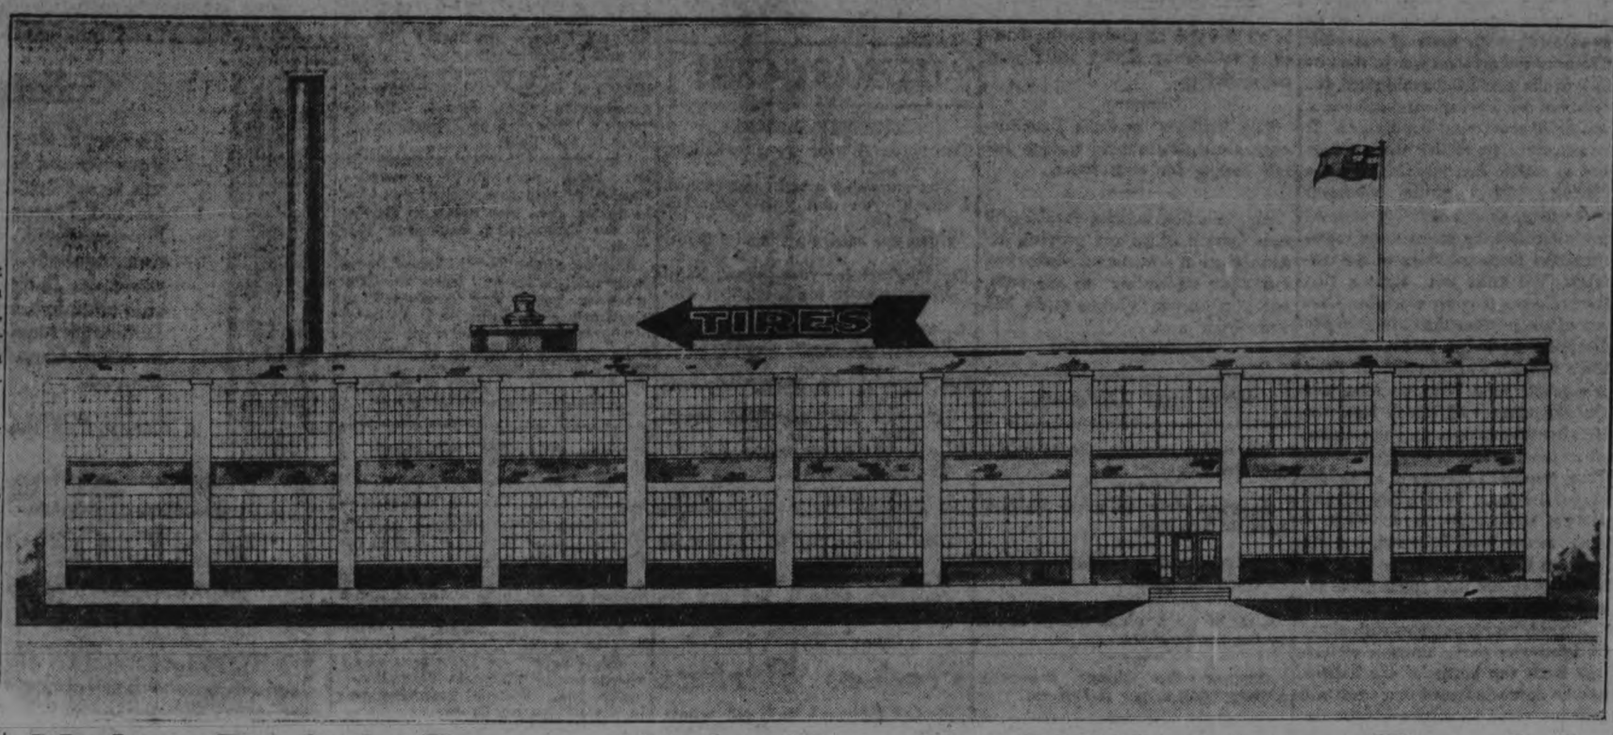
"In designing this plant we have endeavored to have it most modern in every respect and all details which tend to provide the most satisfactory working conditions for our employees have been incorporated. All the most modern sanitary and safety features will be installed.

"The officers and directors of our company are very gratified at the support received thus far from the citizens of Peterborough for our merchandising plan under which the stock of the company is being sold to automobile owners. At the present time we have among our shareholders a great sumber of the prominent business men and merchants of our city, and it is our sincere desire that their support will be repaid through the success of our company. As we will employ 400 to 500 men when the first unit is in full operation it cannot help but react to the benefit of those who have assisted in making their employment possible."

A statement issued from the offices of the company to-day, said:

"It is our intention to be ready to supply the early spring demand for our products and as we know that no time can be lost, we are therefore now preparing to place our contracts for all the necessary machinery and equipment and it will be installed simultaneously with the erection of the buildng.

"All of our machinery and equipment will be of the most modern type, and only the latest and most scientific methods in tire building practice will be employed, thus ensuring to our customers a tire of unusual quality, which under the Red Arrow plan of merchandising, will be sold at a considerable saving to the user."



Modern Daylight Factory which will produce 500 Red Arrow Tires daily and give employment to 400 men. This is the first unit of the plant, room having been left for a second building of similar proportions.

The first unit of the plant of Red Arrow Tires, Limited, will be 203 feet in length, and will vary from 65 to 95 feet in width. It will have approximately 50,000 square feet of floor space. It is daylight plant, built of red brick, with white brick pilasters, and will be of fire-proof construction. It will be built on the fore part of the property on Water Street North, allowing ample space between it and the river for an additional unit of like construction. Its production capacity will be 500 tires a day.

In designing the plant, the company has endeavoured to have it most modern in every respect, and all details which tend to provide the most satisfactory working conditions for employees have been incorporated. All the most modern sanitary and safety features will be installed.

This plant, when in operation next spring, will give employment to between 400 and 500 men.

RED ARROW TIRES IS ALL-CANADIAN

AIMS TO OFFER CANADIAN-MADE BETTER TIRES AT LOWER PRICES THAN PREVAIL.

Under existing conditions prices of tires in Canada are nearly 50 per cent. higher than in the United States, in spite of the facts that both rubber and cotton enter Canada free of duty and that labor cost and overhead expenses are less on this side of the border. In addition a large part of the Canadian tire industry is under the control of United States capital.

It is the aim of Red Arrow Tires, Limited, to offer tires made in Canada by a Canadian company controlled by Canadian citizens at prices much lower than those prevailing. These tires will be sold under the co-operative Red Arrow merchandising plan direct from factory to user.

That the cost of tire manufacture in Canada is no more, if not less, than in the United States, alone enables the company to undersell other manufacturers and make a profit, but the elimination of a large sales force and expensive advertising campaigns by the Red Arrow plan of direct merchandising ensures ample returns on the investment.

Red Arrow is an all-Canadian company. Its directors are well-known Peterborough business men and its stock will be sold only in Canada. It will employ 400 Canadians in its plant here when the first unit is completed in February.

The company will open stores from coast to coast where ever the demand ensures their success and the first store will be established in Peterborough, in the building now occupied by the Red Arrow offices, 309 George street. Here direct factory-to-user service will be given customers, a novel feature of tire retailing.

It is the intention of the company to live up to the slogan for which it paid $500 to Miss Genevive Fowler, "Red Arrow Tires Aim Straight to Mileage".

New Financing Plan Being Largely Used

Many of the largest and most successful companies in the world have thousands of shareholders. Probably one of the best examples is Swift's, the Chicago packers, who have over 45,000 shareholders. They believe that it is a good thing to have the public interested in them. This method of financing is coming into greater use daily.

This is the idea on which Red Arrow Tires, Limited, is founded, but the Red Arrow company claims that it does not want shareholders, but customers, and consequently offers discount privileges on tires to its stockholders. A credit book, usable as cash for 40 per cent. discount on tires to the extent of the investment, is given each shareholder. When this book is used up, the shareholder is given a 20 per cent. discount on tires purchased so long as he remains a stockholder of the company.

Predicts Change In Merchandising Mode

'Merchandising is undergoing a great change, and is bound to undergo a greater one," C. H. Walters, general manager, Red Arrow Tires, Limited, stated in an interview to-day; "the power of the middleman is passing."

Mr. Walters related how the importance of the middleman had decreased in the field of merchandising. Once he had dictated to the manufacturer what class of goods he should turn out to suit the market, and had interrupted intercourse between the manufacturer and retailer. Advertising, however, had changed this condition, and to-day the manufacturer, Mr. Walters said, keeps in touch with his market through advertising, the middleman acting only as a distributor.

Mr. Walters predicted that within a decade or two the middleman would pass out, and the direct merchandising system used by Red Arrow would come into general use.

NEW SALES PLAN EFFECTS SAVING

ENABLES RED ARROW TO UNDERSELL OTHER MAKERS ON TIRES

Middlemen's profits, expensive sales forces and advertising campaigns are eliminated under the Red Arrow plan of direct factory-to-user merchandising. This ensures cheaper tires and better service to the user through the Red Arrow stores which will be established from coast to coast wherever the demand is sufficient.

While Red Arrow stock is being sold in small lots (one share of preferred stock, par value $100, for each car) to automobile owners, the company does not desire stockholders, but customers. Every stock holder is given a credit discount book (value $100) usable as cash for 40 per cent of the list price of any tire or tube manufactured by the company, and when this is exhausted he is allowed a 20 per cent. reduction on tires purchased from the company. In this way the stockholder immediately saves money on tire purchases, and through his discounts gets back the entire amount of his investment while still retaining his stock which pays dividends of 8 per cent.

Perhaps one of the most outstanding features of the merchandising plan is the service on tire adjustments given by the Red Arrow stores to customers.

The co-operative plan will place the control of the Red Arrow company in the hands of the Canadian automobile-owning public and will result in mutual benefits. The price of the stock, $100, places it within the reach of all automobile owners. With each share of preferred stock go 10 shares of common stock of $5 par value each. The price of the preferred stock is to be raised on December 12 from $100 to $110 per share.

SUCCESS COMES IN SIX WEEKS

PREPARATIONS BEING MADE TO MARKET RED ARROW TIRES FROM COAST TO COAST.

Red Arrow Tires, Limited, is on the road to success. With a directorate of Peterborough business men and much of its stock held in this city, the company has made rapid strides and expects to have its plant on Water street north completed by April.

The business abilitly and reputation of the men who evidenced their faith in the project of a co-operative, all-Canadian tire company by becoming directors of Red Arrow, is sufficient endorsation for most—J. J. Turner, president of J. J. Turner and Sons, Ltd., G. A. Gillespie, president of Peterborough Milk Products, Ltd., P. B. Westbye, vice-president and general manager of the William Hamilton Co., Ltd., John R. Macdonald, president of the Macdonald Lumber Co., and Joseph Rath, of Buffalo, N.Y., associated with Durant Motors. But in addition, the Red Arrow directorate has received the personal endorsation of Mayor A. A. McIntyre, of G. N. Gordon, ex-M.P., and of Leon Frazer, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Red Arrow Tires has been in existence only a little more than six weeks, but its plant is already being built and preparations are being made to stretch a chain of Red Arrow stores across the continent.

Here are some important dates in Red Arrow's history which will be red-letter dates in Peterborough's history:

October 12—Red Arrow Tires, Limited, incorporated for $2,000,000.

October 14— Announced that the property on Water street north, south of the Grand Trunk Railway, acquired from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario for plant site.

November 16 —Contract for construction of plant awarded to J. E. Hayes and Son of this city.

November 10—First sod turned for plant by J. J. Turner, president of the company. Ceremonies largely attended.

November 21— Excavation begun on plant site.

November 23—$500 prize awarded to Miss Genevive Fowler, daughter of E. B. Fowler, for best slogan submitted, "Red Arrow Tires Aim Straight to Mileage."

November 29— Stephen D. McLaughlin, of Akron, Ohio, associated with Goodyear and other large rubber companies, signs contract as factory and production engineer.

It is perhaps significant that Red Arrow plant should be erected on historic grounds. Here once was an industrial community, away back in the days when Peterborough was a lumbering centre, and the cabins, a few of which still line the river bank, housed the employees of the lumber mills. Here were located in succession a saw mill, flour mill, woollen mill, the first pumping house of the Peterborough Water Company.

The erection of the Red Arrow plant on this historic ground may mean the creation of an industrial section in the north end of the city. If so, there is ample room for expansion and for homes of the many who may be attracted in addition to the 400 or 500 local men the company will employ.

At the speed at which the work is progressing it is expected that the plant will be completed and the equipment installed by April. Production will then begin immediately and the first unit of the plant will start on a production programme of 500 tires a day, to be marketed through Red Arrow stores throughout Canada.

J. J. Turner, President of Red Arrow Tires, turning the sod for the Plant. In addition to the directors in the picture G. N. Gordon, ex-MP., is near the left and Rev. G. J. Bousfield, who conducted the religious service, near the middle.

How Auto Owners Benefit By The Plan

The Red Arrow co-operative plan in brief means that the stockholder immediately saves money through discounts on tire purchases, eventually getting back the amount of his investment in this way while he still retains his stock, which yields dividends of 8 per cent. The investment is offered on the basis of a saving against owning a car, and an automobile owner can invest only $100 for each car he owns. The tires are secured direct from the factory or through Red Arrow stores, and whenever an adjustment is necessary the owner of Red Arrow tires is assured of direct factory-to-user service.

A CLEAN FIGHT.

At his meeting on Saturday night Mr. Burnham referred to the absence of personalities in the campaign in West Peterborough, declaring that he would not indulge in personal attacks and that Mr. Gordon had similarly refrained. A man's record in public life and his actions and speeches were legitimate objects for attack, but the line should be drawn there. It is to the credit of both candidates that their campaign tactics have been free from personal abuse or muck-raking, and that while the issues as they appeared to them have been vigorously set forth, there has been nothing said by either of them that was a violation of good taste or that will leave an unpleasant memory when the contest is over. And that is as it should be. While an election should not be a love feast there is no necessity for making it a duel in which each candidate vies with the other in vilification and abuse.

THE ELECTION RESULTS.

The Examiner has made arrangements for a complete election service to-morrow evening. There will be a special telegraph wire into the office, making possible a rapid service from all parts of the Dominion, and in addition another telephone line is being installed, giving three trunk lines in and out of the Examiner building. These preparations are being made because of the importance of the occasion and the general interest in the results, and the Examiner hopes to be in a position to give speedy and complete service to the people of the district. In this the assistance of the citizens is requested, and co-operation will be necessary if the desired results are to be obtained. Information as to the election will be cheerfully given over the telephone, but we ask our friends to be reasonable and remember that thousands of people are interested in the returns. It will be impossible then for any one to monopolize the telephone as some well-meaning but unthinking people have endeavoured to do on any occasion. Don't call too often, and have your questions definite and ready when the connection is made. Don't ask how "So-and-so came out?" There are over 600 candidates in the field; we don't know them all and we won't have time to look them up to-morrow night. To facilitate matters ask about the constituency, and not about any particular candidate. Don't expect us to know the results in British Columbia about seven o'clock, and please omit such questions as "What majority did Blank have in West Blank in 1911?" On any other occasion we would be glad to furnish you with the information, but to-morrow night there will be too many inquiries about the present campaign to refer back to previous contests.

In other words, we just want you to help us give the best possible service that can be provided. And if you remember that you are only one of thousands who are seeking information the Examiner is sure you will be reasonable.

We thank you in advance for your co-operation.

TO-MORROW'S DUTY.

The campaign, one of the longest in the history of Canadian politics, is over. The various parties have presented their case to the people in every way in which the electorate could be reached. The leaders have covered Canada from the Atlantic to the Rockies, British Columbia alone having been unvisited by them—and all the arguments that could be adduced in support of their cause have been brought forward. Newspaper advertising space has been freely used and the papers of their own accord have given the contest the full measure of publicity that its importance from a national viewpoint merits. The people have been given a better opportunity than any previous contest has afforded to educate themselves on the questions that are at issue in the campaign, and now the responsibility passes from the shoulders of the various parties to those of the electors of Canada.

To-morrow is their day, a day upon which they have to decide what party shall form the Government of Canada for the next term, what policy shall govern the administration of the country. It is a duty that is not to be lightfully discharged, for the verdict of a Dominion election is a matter of tremendous importance, yet it is a duty that should not be shirked, but rather carried out with a full appreciation of its significance.

Choosing the personnel of a new Parliament under any circumstances is a momentous task. Under the conditions that Canada faces at the present time, with a huge legacy of debt following the war, a most troublesome railway problem to be dealt with, an adverse trade balance to be re-adjusted, with most of the after effects of the greatest war in the history of the world to be mitigated, the selection of Parliament becomes a matter of most vital importance. It is necessary to realize these things and to realize that a period of great difficulty will confront whatever party may, as a result of to-morrow's election, be called upon to assume the responsibilities of government. We must not assume that the problems that are worrying Canada at the present time are going to disappear as if by magic because there has been an election. If there are people who have an idea that the difficulties will vanish into thin air after to-morrow, they are doomed to most grievous disappointment. True, campaign orators of all stripes of politics have been guilty of predicting such a happy outcome if their advice was followed, but allowance must be made for their enthusiasm rather than credit given for their judgment.

There is no rose-strewn path ahead of whichever party emerges victorious from the battle of the ballots, and an appreciation of that truth will perhaps serve to emphasize the desirability of voting to-morrow.

THE ST. LAWRENCE DEEP SEA CHANNEL.

The International Joint High Commission has definitely determined to recommend to Congress that the St. Lawrence Ship Canal be constructed by the United States and Canada. This favorable report of the commission is the result of a long and vigorous campaign conducted by the interests both in the middle western States and in the lake regions of Canada favorable to the opening up of deep-sea transportation to the head of the Great Lakes. Perhaps it is correct to say that the major part of the work has been done by the American interests. The commission has had engineers working on the project, and it is estimated that the cost would be about $250,000,000.

The commission at first intended to make its report public, but at a recent meeting decided to submit the information directly to the Canadian and United States Governments. This means that responsibility for this scheme will be put squarely up to Congress. It is expected that one of the biggest fights of the coming session will centre around the St. Lawrence waterway project. There will be arrayed in support of it all the great interests from Detroit, Chicago and the great middle west. The entire section of the interior which hopes to benefit by cheaper transportation from this waterway is preapred to wage a tremendous battle in its behalf. Against it will be opposed by all big financial interests which centre in Buffalo and New York State clear to the port of New York.

The scheme will be opposed by two other propositions. The first will be the project of an all-American ship canal, and the second will be the proposal advanced by Governor Miller that the New York state barge canal provides everything that an enlarged ship canal would. Thus there will be three factions, with three different schemes, the St. Lawrence project, the all-American ship canal, and the New York state barge canal. The St. Lawrence canal is supported by the powerful western agrarian bloc which usually forces its plans through Congress. It is contended that nothing can beat this scheme but a combination of all the interests throughout the country that would be adversely affected by it. It is one of the mightiest commercial projects bearing upon the transportation interests of Canada, and the Canadian people will view with great concern the progress of the scheme for its joint construction.—Brantford Expositor.

THANKFULNESS.

I'm thankful for your fairness, World!

I thank you that your arm has hurled,
Upon my head, no vengeful lance!

I'm thankful for your mercy, Fate!
You've spared me much that others know.
Although I still for riches wait,
I've had but meagre share of woes.

I'm thankful for your hand-clasp, Friend!

Pray let me feel it to the end

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—I understand that Mr. H. G. Buck, speaking at Indian River on Friday afternoon, on behalf of Mr. Brethen, the Progressive candidate, made the statement regarding myself, that I had voted only once in Canada, and that time I supported a Conservative.

I wish to say that this statement is absolutely untrue.

As a matter of fact, my attitude in past elections was as follows: I was not old enough to vote in 1911. In 1914 Provincial election I supported H. H. Stevens, Liberal candidate, at Niagara Falls. In 1917 I did not vote in France at all as my unit was engaged at Passchendale about that time, and we had no information regarding the issues. In 1919 I did not vote as there was no Liberal candidate in the field.

I understand that a gentleman who has been persistently spreading rumors of this description, intended to injure me, was taken to Apsley by the Progressive candidate this week.

In view of the fact that the Liberal party and, so far as I know the Conservative party, has conducted an absolutely clean fight. It is a matter of regret that Progressive supporters have stooped so low as to resort to tactics of this description.

Indoor Life

Spending more time indoors makes women far more subject to constipation than men.

The liver becomes sluggish and torpid, the bowels constipated and the system poisoned by impurities.

If you would get away from the myriads of ills which result from constipation, it is only necessary to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The benefits from their use are as lasting as they are prompt and certain.

Mrs. John Barry, 18 St. Amable Street, Quebec, Que., writes:

"This is to certify that I was troubled for years with constipation and tried all kinds of medicines without relief. At last my husband suggested that I try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I did so, and must say that they have given me more relief than all the medicine I have taken during the last fifteen years. I may also add that I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for piles with excellent results."

EAST PETERBORO MEETING.

A meeting in the interest of Capt. J. A. Dewart, M.C., was held last night in the Auburn school house.

Mr. M. Walsh took the chair and spoke of the splendid reputation Mr. Dewart had in the county.

An address was given by Mr. E. Deyell, in which he stated that Mr. Dewart was the only candidate representing all classes of the community and that he as a farmer was opposed to a class movement, particularly when it came from the West.

Mr. Joseph Wearing contrasted the claims of the three candidates. All he said were good men from a personal standpoint, but only Capt. Dewart had the qualities which merited the position sought. Mr. Sexsmith had been a mere cypher during his term at Ottawa, taking, no part in the discussions and doing nothing whatever for the constituency. Mr. Brethen's only claim was that he was a successful breeder of Holsteins, and had shown no capacity for public life. Captain Dewart was a successful farmer and business man, who showed remarkable ability on the public platform, and would undoubtedly have a splendid career in parliament if elected. Besides this, he had enlisted as a private during the Great War and had terminated his career as a defender of his country as a captain, and had won the Military Cross. He had also been wounded at Passchendaele. For these reasons he should be supported by all parties.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

DEWART ADDRESSED MEETINGS IN HAVELOCK AND NORWOOD

HARTLEY DEWART AND MRS. J. J. NEEDHAM GAVE ADDRESSES—ELECTION ISSUES.

HAVELOCK, Dec. 5.—A rousing greeting was given to Capt. J. A. Dewart, M.C., the Liberal candidate by a large and enthusiastic crowd which filled the town hall here to-night.

Hartley H. Dewart, K.C., M.P.P., and Mrs. J. J. Needham, supported the candidate, the speakers coming over from Norwood, where a Liberal meeting was going on at the same time. Reeve Curtis was chairman and introduced Capt. Dewart, who, in an eloquent and comprehensive speech, dealt with most of the important election issues. He paid a tribute to the Hon. G. E. Foster, who had spoken the previous night in Havelock, but he reminded his hearers of the charges made by James Murdock, in which he charged Foster with interfering to check profiteering.

Railway Question.

The speaker took up the railway question exhaustively, showing that the railways were purchased by applying the closure act in the House of Commons. He explained the system of management, showing that the members of the board of directors were connected with the big interests.

Mr. Dewart mentioned that the Hon. T. A. Crerar and the Hon. Arthur Meighen were cabinet ministers in the Union government when the railways were purchased, when the management was appointed and when the secret system of accounting was devised. They were together responsible for autocratic acts in connection with the 1917 election, when promises of exemption to farmers' sons were made and broken after the government was returned to power.

He dealt with the Progressive party, showing that it was a western free trade movement, and mentioned that it was strange that they were appealing to Ontario farmers for support, as in Alberta the Hon. Duncan Marshall, a former Minister of Agriculture and a Liberal candidate was opposed by a retired minister as a Progressive and in Saskatchewan the Progressives had placed a doctor in the field against Hon. W. R Motherwell, a former Minister of Agriculture and a Liberal candidate. Both of these candidates were farmers and the Progressives were opposing them with professional men; also the Hon. Clifford Sifton, who had been forced out of the Liberal Cabinet and who had helped to defeat Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1911, was supporting the Progressievs with the "Winnipeg Free Press," and has been on the paltform with Crerar at Massey Hall in Toronto.

A United People.

Mr. Dewart commented on the fact that the campaign in East Peterborough had attracted the attention of "The Farmers' Sun," and read an article in which that paper attacked him. He took it as a compliment that the strength of his campaign had drawn criticism from this organ.

Mr. Dewart closed with an eloquent appeal for the forces of progress to unite behind the Liberal party and join class with class, east with west, province with province into one prosperous, contented and united people.

Mrs. J. J. Needham, in an excellent speech, took up the Liberal platform and tariff policy, showing that it was best suited to bring prosperity to all industry. She evinced ehr confidence in Hon. Mackenzie King, Hon. W. S. Fielding and other experienced Liberal statesmen, and claimed they were the most fitted men to take charge of the business of the country.

Her humorous sallies at the expense of Hon. Mr. Meighen, drew much applause and she appealed to the audience to support a man who had served the country during the great war.

Hartley H. Dewart, M.P.P., was given an ovation and dealt, in detail with Provincial issues, showing the extravagance of the Drury government, their lack of financial genius, and their breaking of election pledges, regarding economy.

He advised against attempting the same kind of government at Ottawa and closed with a strong appeal to support Capt. Dewart.

Judging from the enthusiasm which prevailed, the sentiment in Havelock is strongly behind the Liberal candidate.

NORWOOD MEETING.

NORWOOD, Dec. 5.—The Liberal mass meeting held in the interests of Capt. John Dewart was attended by a crowd of over 600, which filled to overflowing the town hall.

Ex-Warden William T. Buck was chairman and introduced Mrs. J. J. Needham of Toronto, who delivered a splendid address.

She dealt with the main issues of the election and pointed out to the women that it was their duty to support the Liberal cause. She took up the Murdock charges and showed how the government had protected profiteers, thus increasing the high cost of living.

She appealed to the audience to support the soldier candidate.

Capt. Dewart, who received an enthusiastic welcome on arrival from Havelock, where he had addressed a large meeting earlier in the evening, dealt with the main issues of the election.

He deplored the tactics which some Progressive speakers were using in the campaign and said that not being able to meet argument, they seemed to be driven to the point of desperation.

In a concise manner he showed how the Liberals were best fitted to form a representative government with which to restore confidence and prosperity to the country.

He made a strong appeal for support and promised, if elected, to serve the riding, the Dominion and the British Empire, to the best of his abilty.

WORLD'S CHAMPIONS READY FOR NEW SEASON.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Though weather conditions are anything but favorable to hockey, things are humming again in the camp of the Ottawa Hockey Club. Arrangements have been made to have the Ottawas start indoor work at the Y.M.C.A. this afternoon, but it is expected that the weather will soon harden up, and that they will be able to get out on the ice within a few days.

One more player was added to the roster of the world's champions when Captain Eddie Gerard, one of the most valuable all-round players in the National Hockey League, scribbled his signature across the lower section of a contract yesterday. This will be Eddie Gerard's eighth season with the Ottawas.

ANNIVERSARY IN MILLBROOK

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH HELD SPECIAL SERVICES YESTERDAY —REV. STANLEY PICKUP PREACHED.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 5. — Grace Presbyterian church looked very attractive after the recent renovation and re-decorating, when the anniversary services were held yesterday, the auditorium being well filled in the morning, and in the evening taxed to its capacity, the service in the Methodist church being withdrawn on account of the special occasion in a sister church.

Rev. Stanley Pickup, of St. Giles' church, Toronto, whose boyhood was spent in Millbrook, was the preacher for the day, and, as always, delighted the congregations with his eloquent discourses, showing evidence of a well-cultivated mind and, quite plainly, the outcome of much thought and experience.

The lesson in the morning was from the third chapter of Ephesians, and the text the 8th verse of the same chapter: "Able to comprehend, with all saints, what is the breadth, and length, and depth and height."

Starting with the thought that Paul likes to deal with the incomprehensible, to know that which passeth knowledge, that religion to the great apostle meant ever approaching the unapproachable, preaching the unsearchable riches of Christ, telling what cannot be told for "eye hath not seen nor heard, neither hath it entered into the hearts of man to conceive what God hath prepared," the sepaker went on to show that this leader of men plunged his soul every day in the flood-tide of the love of God, and brought forth, for others, things new and old out of a treasure inexhaustible. We may stand upon the shores of humanity, where, from every city, hamlet and country there rise the mists of human need, sorrow, trouble, even rivers of human blood, and we are overwhelmed with the thought of it. But the apostle bids us stand upon the shores of the love of God, and look back beyond the dawn of time, where creation and salvation were lying together in the cradle of God's mind, and then forward to the time when God shall gather together all things in Christ, and we lose our souls in the thought of it. With the vision the apostle adds the prayer that we may "know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge, and be filled with all the fullness of God," a frankly impossible request, and yet only a hint of the kind of demands that God wants us to make upon Him; He encourages a prodigal daring in our appeals to His great love, which found its richest expression in the gift of Jesus Christ.

Length, breadth, depth, height. God's love meets the world foursquare. "God so loved the world," that's the length of it; "that whosoever believth on Him," that's the breadth of it; "might not perish," here we are sounding the depth of it; "but have everlasting life," this gives us a glimpse of the height of it. Let us look at the height of God's love. Just as the purity of the pearl determines its height in the scale of value, so love is high and precious when it is pure, free from the taint of pride, jealousy, envy, selfishness and vulgarity, for these are like a flaw in the heart of the pearl. Human love is full of taints and streaks; we are commanded to love and not to discriminate, and yet we are everlastingly doing that very thing, and hence we have need to be reminded every day that we are all on the same level with God "All we, like sheep, have gone astray. . .. and the Lord hath laid upon Him the iniquity of us all." There is absolutely no limit to the power of a holy love, and this is our guarantee in seeking to win others to Christ.

Looking at the depth of God's love we find that the Pharisees couldn't understand our Lord's being friendly with sinners because their love for sinners had no depth in it. But if we run down the plummet line to the deepest deeps of human tragedy we find that "underneath are the everlasting arms." Some heart may be aching because a loved one is going astray, and there is no end to the distance a man may get away from God because there is no bottom to the bottomless pit, but it is not too deep for the love of God. And this is what the apostles' creed is teaching us when it says, "He descended into hell." The speaker said in his younger days he used to think those words could be left out, but he was glad now they are there because they bring a message of hope to the most hopelessly wrecked life.

Considering the breadth of God's love we find that it has no boundaries, men of every color find a place in the heart of the Father. Human love has its limitations, there are those we think of as absolutely unlovable, and we think God will let him go as easily as we do, forgetting that "the love of God is broader than the measure of man's mind." It will be a great day for the Gospel when the women and girls of America give as much to missions as they now spend on candy; it will multiply the present givings by fifty. Or when the men and boys give as much for the spread of the gospel as they now spend on tobacco; their givings would then be multiplied by forty. When Christians go fifty-fifty in their expenditure on missions and pleasure it will increase the total present subscriptions one hundred fold; and if Britain's budget for missions would go as high as her drink bill it would average $40 per head. What if God's love were as streaked with selfishness as ours is? We have a scant knowledeg yet of the great breadth of the love of God.

And there is no end to the length of it, no distance to which it will not go. "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend"; as long as this? Yes, and longer. "Himself bore our sins in His own body on the tree," as long as this Yes, and longer still. "Goest after that which was lost until He find it?"; is this the limit of it? No, not yet, for it is as long as eternity; "I have loved thee with an everlasting love." Oh, what a gospel is ours. Let us tell it and keep on telling it, to our own souls and to all the world.

Special music was prepared for both services, Miss Richardson presiding at the organ in her usual efficient manner. The anthem in the morning was, "Come Unto Me," and a solo by Mrs. (Rev.) Gervan at the conclusion of the sermon was much enjoyed. Mrs. Gervan also took the solo in one of the anthems at the evening service, and Mr. H. W. Johnston the solo in the other. Rev. S. T. Tucker read the lesson from the 17th Chapter of Matthew's Gospel in the evening, and also led in the opening prayer, Rev. G. I. Gervan, pastor of the church, assisted the choir with their music both morning and evening.

Rev. Mr. Pickup took his text at night from Matthew 17:20, "Nothing shall be impossible," developing his theme under four headings: (a) The Power of Prayer, (b) Bodily Service, (c) A World Revival, (d) The Duty of the Church, his sermon proving equally helpful and inspiring as the one at the morning service. A very beautiful duet, "Nearer My Home," by Mrs. Gervan and Mr. Johnston, carried out appropriately the thought developed by the preacher.

The request of the trustees of the church for a substantial thank-offering was generously responded to.

WAS TROUBLED WITH HER LIVER FOR OVER 4 MONTHS

When the liver becomes slow, sluggish and torpid it is not working properly and does not supply sufficient bile to thoroughly act on the bowels and carry off the waste products of the system, hence the bowels become clogged up, the bile gets into the blood, constipation sets in and liver troubles follow among which are, sick or billious headaches, heartburn, water brash, jaundice, floating specks before the eyes, pain under the right shoulder, coated tongue, bad breath, yellow eyes, etc.

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

quickly remove the secretions, clear away the effete and waste matter by acting directly on the liver, and making the bile pass through the bowels instead of allowing it to get into the blood.

Mrs. Alice Mehill, Napanee, Ont. writes:—"I was very badly run down for over four months. I tried several remedies, but got no relief. One day my husband brought me home a vial of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and before I had used half of it I was much better. I only used two vials and I am a different person today.

I can safely recommend Laxa-Liver Pills to any one troubled with liver trouble."

HELD MEETING IN MILLBROOK

GOVERNMENT CAND DATE MAKES FINAL APPEAL TO THE ELECTORS IN THAT DISTRICT.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 5. — The meeting under the auspices of the Liberal-Conservative Association held on Saturday evening was very well attended the Armouries being comfortably filled, and a large percentage of the audience being ladies.

Mr. A. J. Fallis made an efficient chairman and after a few introductory remarks, introduced the candidate, Mr. Bowen who was greeted with prolonged applause.

Mr. Bowen made a brief address asking for the support of the electors on Tuesday next, stating that he had every faith in the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen who had come out four-square with the people of Canada, advocating the same policy everywhere, one that was for the betterment of Canada and would bring all the provinces together. Although a farmer, and a descendent of farmers, since his family have been on the same farm for 100 years The speaker stated that, if elected, he would not go to Ottawa as a farmer but, primarily, as a Canadian believing that the broader outlook was the correct viewpoint and foremost in people's minds. After a brief reference to the fiscal policy of the present government which he endorsed the candidate closed with an appeal to the ladies for their support as their influence and votes will have a great deal to do in deciding which way the election will go. If they would bring the same energy into political affairs as they had manifested during the war, results highly beneficial to public life in Canada could not fail to follow.

Further applause greeted Mr. Bowen's concluding remarks, and the chairman announced Ex-Alderman, R. M. Yoemans of Toronto, as the next speaker. In opening his address Mr. Yoeman's also expressed pleasure at seeing so many ladies present, this fact indicatng the great interest they are taking in public affairs; and since they form fifty-two per cent. of the voting strength of the country, if they all use their franchise the outcome of the election largly rests in their hands; and, too, as they outnumber the male voters, if we have a poor government the blame rests upon their own shoulders.

Party Leaders

The leaders in the present campaign, the speaker pointed out, should be viewed without rancor, since each stands convicted definitely to certain things: Crerar to an almost absolutely free trade policy, his ultimate aim being to abolish all protection; King to a partial protection, but would put food stuffs on the free list; and Meighen to an adequate protection policy for all callings including agriculture. Mr. Yeomans also insisted that it was not the Premier who raised the question of protection as the main issue in this election, but rather the other two leaders and the farmer had then acquiesced. If the Hon. Mr. Crerar's policy of free trade were followed it would mean the losing of many of our industries in such manufacturing centres as Peterboro, Port Hope, Brockville, Hamilton, Brantford, and other places, because the American manufacturers would then flood this country with their goods and we could not compete successfully with them. Instead of having 600 branches of American factories in Canada as we have at present who are here because they could not sell us their goods from the other side of the line, and thus as a direct result of the government's protective policy, we should lose these industries and all the benefits which accrue to our nation from them. Hundreds would be thrown out of employment and both financially and industrially our loss would be very great. We may offer free trade on our side but the United States is not reciprocating the offer at all but rather building its tariff higher against our goods, not out of spite but simply to protect her own agricultural interests. However, as far as four staple products, eggs, wheat cheese and mea are concerned, the speaker contended that we should not need to purchase these from an American market but provide our own supply, putting a prohibitive duty on gods which our own country produces

The argument advanced by some speakers in this campaign that even if the duty on imported goods were reduced we would not buy much more anyway, the speaker ridiculed stating that the depreciation in the value of our dollar, so humiliating to any true Canadians, is the outcome of the fact that we buy too much from the United States now. We bought $800,000,000 worth of goods of various kinds from our neighbors last year, an average of $100 per head for every person in Canada, but the American purchasers in our country averaged only $4 per head.

Even the U.F.O. are not consistent followers of their leader, Mr. Yeomans said, for when their co-operative store in Toronto, desiring to improve its financial position, was considering the suggestion of manufacturng some of the articles kept for sale, one of the government directors stated: "It might be dangerous to go into manufacturing, particularly if free trade were introduced.

A Different Policy

The speaker also scored the Hon. Mackenzie King for having a different policy in different parts of the country, and making promises which he would be unable to keep in the very unlikely event of his being returned to power. The war had forced Great Britain to put on a protective tariff and to-day it is the highest of any country in the world and more than fifty other nations have, since the war, increased their tariff also; the theory of probabilities is all against prosperity if free trade shoud be adopted. Commercial union with the United States would be the first step toward politcaly union. If an unrestricted immigration policy is unwise, as all parties admit, why should not the unrestricted entry of foreign-made goods be equally disastrous in results?

Not one dollar has been added to the national debt since the Conservative party came into power except what had its origin in the war. Does not that fact disprove the contention that the Meighen government is an extravagant one?

In conclusion the speaker said that the electors would be voting on Tuesday either for or against the principle of free trade or protection, and the ultimate future of Canada would hang on the result.

Several times during Mr. Yeoman's address hearty applause had greeted his remarks and this was repeated at its conclusion. The singing of the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close.

TOO ILL TO GO TO SCHOOL

Mother Tells how Daughter was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cobourg, Ont.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me for my daughter. She had trouble every month which left her in a weak and nervous condition with weak back and pain in her right side. She had these troubles for three years and frequently was unable to attend school. She has become regular and feels much better since she began taking the Vegetable Compound and attends school regularly. She is gaining steadily and I have no hesitancy in recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine."—Mrs. John Tous, Ball St., Cobourg, Ont.

Standing all day, or sitting in cramped positions, young girls contract deranged conditions, and develop headaches, backache, irregularities, nervousness and bearing-down pains, all of which are symptoms of woman's ills. Every mother who has a daughter suffering from such symptoms should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

BRETHEN MEETING ON SATURDAY

CAMPAIGN ISSUES DISCUSSED—REFERRED TO PROFITEERS

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 5.—The last meeting of the campaign took place here on Saturday night in the Memorial Hall, in the interests of Mr. G. A. Brethen, Progressive candidate. The meeting was well attended. Mr. Thompson Braden acted as chairman.

Mr. Brethen opened his speech with a reference to the popularity of the defeated Conservative nominee, Mr. Jack Strickland, and remarked that in Peterborough City, the best citizens, who were tired of the old parties, were supporting the Progressive party. The rumor that the Farmers and Liberals would join forces was without foundation. The big interests were behind the two old parties, while the Farmers owed allegiance to none.

The speaker referred to the enormous profits made by munition manufacturers under the protection of the Government during war time, and the protection afforded the stockholders of the C.P.R., whereas the farmer takes his losses standing. He also spoke of the excellent management of Mr. T. A. Crerar in the conduct of the affairs of the Grain Growers' Association, which made profits of 530 per cent. in New York on grain transactions, and declared that a man who could do this would make a safe manager for the affairs of the Dominion of Canada.

Hon. Manning Doherty.

Hon. Manning Doherty, Minister of Agriculture, followed Mr. Brethen, mentioning the old-time practice of mud slinging at political meetings, which, he declared, had been superseded by more commonsense methods. The need of stability, he said, was recognized on all sides, and agriculture is the basic industry of this country. Unless this industry is stabilized, there can be no prosperity. Fifty per cent. of the population of Canada is engaged in agricultural pursuits. 60 per cent. of our exports are of farm products, and 90 per cent. of the people are engaged in the four industries of agriculture, mining, lumbering and fishing. Those who wonder how a Farmers' Government would run the country, if returned to power, should consider the excellent record of the Farmers' Government in Ontario.

Mr. Doherty replied to the attack which he alleged had been made on Messrs. Drury, Raney and himself the night before by Mr. Hartley Dewart by a very hot counter attack on the private and public life of the late Provincial Liberal leader.

Countering the assertion that the Farmers were a "bunch of Radicals and Bolshevik in principle," he asserted that the farmer is constitutionally unable to "pull up stakes overnight," and is unalterably opposed to the principle of public ownership of property. "Our rights are sacredly guarded, and if it is a class government, it is a first-class government," said the speaker, also alluding to the record of Mr. T. A. Crerar, the head of the second largest corporation in Canada, whose profits are greater than those of any corporation in Canada. English, French and Italian experts sent to this country in war time, investigated the grain companies of New York, Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg, and gave the largest of their contracts to Mr. Crerar's company.

Regarding the alleged issue of this election, "Protection vs. Free Trade," Mr. Doherty asserted that not one of the three leaders desired free trade. All they wanted was a revision of the tariff, and the question is, who is going to revise it?

A musical programme was rendered during the evening by a piano duet by Mr. Clarke and Miss Alice King, community singing directed by Mrs. Hamblin, of Warsaw, selections by the Warsaw chorus, and a vocal solo by Mrs. Ellis, of Peterborough.

POLLS OPEN FROM 8 TO 6 O'CLOCK

HOURS IN URBAN AND RURAL DISTRICTS IDENTICAL

OTTAWA, Dec. 5. — Hours of polling: 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., standard time, governs in all cases.

In all districts—whether rural or urban—the general hours of voting will be identical on election day. In official circles here, emphasis is laid on the fact that there may be no misunderstanding and a number of electors lose their votes in consequence.

In 1920, when the Dominion Elections Act was before Parliament, provision was made for opening city polls at 6 o'clock in the morning and keeping them open for voting till 6 o'clock in the evening. But it was found that the early morning hours brought few voters and that candidates had difficulty in getting representatives to attend the polls. For city and rural polls alike, therefore, the hours of voting were made: 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., the hours which will apply on December 6.

Work in U. S. Vote in Canada.

The only exceptions to this general rule are: (1) a few municipalities near the international boundary, (2) a number of points throughout the Dominion at which advance polls are authorized for sailors, railway employes and commercial travellers. In the first category come a few municipalities in West Lambton, Ont., which are, so far, the only municipalities to take advantage of a special provision in the act. For them, the hours of voting will be from 9 in the morning till 8 in the evening of December 6. The change in hours is permitted under the act to accommodate electors, resident in Canada, but whose occupation renders it necessary for them to be absent from Canada during the ordinary polling hours.

Advance Polls.

Advance polls for sailors, railway employes and commercial travellers are authorized at 352 points in the Dominion, namely: New Brunswick 25; Nova Scotia 25, Prince Edward Island 8, Quebec 61, Ontario 98, Manitoba 22, Saskatchewan 43, Alberta 34, British Columbia 33, Yukon 3. The hours for advance polls are: 7 till 10 in the evening of the three days, exclusive of Sunday, immediately preceding election day.

An incomplete inventory of the Marshal's presents, made before he started for the West, where a motley collection of new souvenirs awaits him, includes Theodora, the wild bobcat; a scorpion embedded in glass; gold flower bowl from the Iron and Steel Institute; White River pearl scarfpin from Arkansas; game rooster from Sedalia, Mo., as an emblem of France; medals by the score, received from practically every city he has visited; Ogala Indian pipe; miniature Boy Scout statue; pot beauty cream from Detroit; three gold swords; Indian war club from Boy Scouts; gold Distinguished Service medal presented by the Legion; box of corncob pipes from Missouri; scores of books of every description, and numerous gifts of flowers which he has turned over to hospitals along his route.

"I treasure each of my gifts," the Marshal is quoted as saying, "not for any value attached, but for the spirit that prompted the giving."

NORTHUMBERLAND LIBERALS CLOSING VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN

C. W. KERR HAS COVERED ALL THE URBAN CENTRES IN THE SHORT TIME AT HIS DISPOSAL —ASSISTED BY R. R. HALL THIS WEEK.

(Special to The Examiner).

COBOURG, Dec. 3.—Mr. Charles W. Kerr, the Liberal candidate, with Mr. R. R. Hall, K.C., ex-M.P., Peterborough, held four successful meetings on Thursday and Friday of this week at Brighton, Colborne, Grafton and Roseneath.

The public questions of the day were thoroughly discussed, and the candidate and Mr. Hall were supported at several of the meetings by the following gentlemen: Messrs. Field, of Cobourg; Semple, vice-president Cobourg Liberal Association; Maher and Dr. George Ferris, secretary of the Liberal Association.

Mr. George Armour, a brother-in-law of the Hon. Mr. Bristol, Conservative candidate in Toronto, and one who attended the National Progressive Convention, when Mr. Slade, the National Progressive candidate, was nominated, and who never attended any of the Liberal conventions, has issued a letter at the last moment pretending to be a Liberal and desirous of the success of the Liberal party. This act of treachery on his part has been denounced by the candidate at Grafton and Roseneath.

The candidate read telegrams and letters from his leader, the Hon. Mackenzie King, and Hon. Charles Murphy, expressing entire confidence in his candidature, and wishing him every success and also congratulating the Liberal party on having such a candidate to represent the Liberal party in Northumberland County.

Crerar Responsible Too.

Mr. Kerr, in his speeches, has pointed out that Mr. Crerar and Mr. Meighen were equally responsible for the pledge given to the farmers in 1917 in connection with the taking of men from the farms and from the factory, and that Mr. Crerar and Mr. Meighen were also equally responsible for the breaking of that promise and insulting the farmers when they attended in Ottawa to protest in the following year.

Mr. Kerr also discussed his position on the tariff, and showed that no legitimate industry would be affected by the readjustment of the tariff after the election by the Hon. Mackenzie King, who would be the next Premier.

The Railway Deficit.

Mr. R. R. Hall, dealt with the taking over of the railways without submitting the provision to the people and showed that Mr. Meighen and Mr. Crerar were acting together when such railways were taken over, and that Mr. Meighen and Mr. Crerar were equally responsible for the taking over of the railways which ran last year at a loss of $70,000,000. He showed that this meant a contribution by a famile of five of $40 a family. He also showed that the directors of the railway were turning in millions of dollars of contracts to their own companies without tender, and pointed out that in the time of Sir John Macdonald there was always a public audit, but that Mr. Meighen, supported by Mr. Crerar, after Mr. Crerar had resigned his position as Cabinet Minister, refused to allow the accounts to be examined or disclosed to members of Parliament, and said that so long as that position was taken one could not expect that the railway could be run at a profit, and there would undoubtedly be too much benefit given to the favored few.

Two of a Kind.

The ringing indictment made against Mr. Meighen and Mr. Crerar was received, first with astonishment by the electors assembled at the several meetings, but before Mr. Hall completed his speeches the audiences almost with one mind, saw that Mr. Meighen and Mr. Crerar were apparently of the same bent of mind, and that it would be just taking one autocratic man instead of the other if support were given to the National Progressive party led by the Hon. Mr. Crerar.

The speeches of both the candidate and of Mr. Hall were welcomed everywhere by the electorate, and there has been a decided turn in the tide in favor of Liberalism in Northumberland County.

Mr. Hall left this morning for Toronto, thoroughly delighted with the campaign in Northumberland for the two days.

The Armour Letter.

The letter from Mr. Armour is headed: "A letter for the consideration of Liberals who by voting for Mr. Slade are certain of defeating the Government."

The telegrams and letters received from Hon. Mackenzie King in reference to the matter are as follows:

Mr. Charles W. Kerr.

Please accept for yourself and convey to the Liberals of Northumberland my hearty congratulations on your nomination as their standard bearer in the present difficulties. I send the best of wishes for every success in the campaign.

W. L. Mackenzie King.

The Hon. Charles Murphy writes to Mr. C. W. Kerr, under date of Nov. 17, 1921, as follows:

"Wishing you all the success in the world and with kindest regards, believe me, yours sincerely,

Charles Murphy.

Mr. Murphy, on Friday last, spoke on behalf of Mr. Kerr as follows:

I purpose in coming to assist in the candidature of Mr. Kerr, who has inherited the family passion for Liberalism and has been a self-sacrificing Liberal all his life. The leader and members of the Liberal party have a soft spot in their hearts for Mr. Kerr and any other gentleman like him who stood up in 1917 and consented to be the standard bearer in that unequal fight. After spending a portion of the day with the leader of the Liberal party, the Hon. Mackenzie King, I am here to say a few words on behalf of Mr. Kerr's candidature and to wish him God-speed in the struggle.

Under date of 28th November, Mr. Murphy writes Mr. Chas. W. Kerr:

If it were possible for me to go to Campbellford I would do so, but my engagements are so numerous and so pressing that it is out of the question for me to go west before Tuesday next.

This I deeply regret as you know how anxious I am to be of assistance in your riding.

In view of the address by Mr. Murphy, the letters and correspondence and the pronouncement by the secretary of the Liberal associations and vice-presidents in the various townships, it shows how far Mr. Armour will go on behalf of his brother-in-law, Mr. Bristol, a member of the Meighen Cabinet, when he issues a circular to Liberals pretending to be still a Liberal. The Liberals are satisfied that Mr. Kerr is running for first place, and that Mr. Slade will be at the foot of the poll.

CANADIAN STOCK MEN LEAVE CHICAGO TO-DAY

CHICAGO, Ills., Dec. 3.—(Canadian Press.)— J. E. Brethour and nephew of Burford, Ont., yesterday captured the bulk of the prizes in the swine awards of the breeding large Yorkshires department, but they encountered much opposition from animals entered by B. T. Davidson, of Iowa, in the championships, and had to be content with winning the junior boar honor, while the senior champion and grand champion boars went to Davidson, as did also the three champions for sows. Brethour entries were an excellent lot and nine first ribbons, five second places, seven third prizes, five fourth positions, a fifth were awarded to the Ontario stockman. J. H. Patrick and Son, of Ilderton, Ont., showed their Romney sheep in the morning and as they were the only exhibitors in this class they received all the awards.

THE COUGH WITH THAT TICKLING SENSATION

A little tickling in the throat; now and then a dry, hacking cough; you think it is not bad enough to bother about, but every hack makes a breach in the system, strains the the lungs and prepares the way for more serious trouble.

How many people have lost a good night's rest by that nasty, tickling irritating sensation in the throat? The dry, harsh cough keeps you awake, and when you get up in the morning you feel as if you had no rest at all.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP is just the remedy you require to stop that irritating, tickling cough on account of its soothing, healing and expectorant properties.

Mrs. P. Johnson, Port Alberni, B. C. writes:—"I have suffered for years, off and on, with a tickling cough. I could not sleep nights and had to sit up in bed to get relief, in fact, I coughed so I used to vomit. I tried different doctors' prescriptions until I heard of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I tried it and found great relief after I had taken the first bottle and have not been troubled since. I shall always keep it in the house."

Be sure and get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it. Price, 35c. and 60c. a bottle; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

ARBUCKLE JURY FAIL TO AGREE; TO RE-TRY CASE

FINAL BALLOT TEN TO TWO FOR ACQUITTAL—ARBUCKLE ISSUES STATEMENT.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 5th.—Canadian Press.—After 41 hours of deliberation the seven men and five women on the jury which tried Roscoe C. Arbuckle on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Virginia Rappe, were discharged yesterday when they were unable to agree upon a verdict.

August Fritze, foreman of the Arbuckle jury, issued a signed statement saying that one of the woman jurors, who was in the minority, refused to consider the evidence from the beginning and declared that "she would cast her ballot and would not change it until Hell froze over."

The jury was brought into court at its own request at noon, reported a disagreement and asked that it be discharged. The foreman announced that the final ballot stood ten to two.

Court officers said that the balloting favored acquittal throughout.

The case was set for re-trial on January 9th.

In a statement following the jury's return, Arbuckle declared one of the five women jurors had prevented his acquittal "because she refused to allow her fellow jurors to discuss the evidence or reason with her and would not give any reason for her attitude." He did not name the juror.

District Attorney Brady said that Arbuckle had been given a "fair and honest trial," and complimented the jurors who held out for conviction as having "courage and determination." He was not in court when the jury reported.

"I had hoped the jury would reach an agreement," he said. "I confidently expected a verdict of guilty upon the evidence presented. In my opinion the disagreement does not vindicate Roscoe Arbuckle. A vindication could come only after a quick unanimous verdict. It was my duty to present the facts to a jury. This I have done, though opposed by wealth, power and influence."

The members of the jury looked haggard and worn when they filed into the little courtroom, over which a deep hush had settled, and took their seats. The foreman, August Fritze, informed the court, "it is physically and morally impossible for us to reach a verdict." At the request of the court, he announced the final ballot division.

Superior Judge Harold Louderback, who tried the case, then told the jury he wanted to determine if further deliberation might result in a decision. "It is not my desire to force any uncertain hardship on you," he said. "But this case has taken three weeks to try and has been conducted at great expense. If you can now come to a verdict conscientiously, I desire you to do so."

He then asked each juror for an opinion on the matter of continued balloting and each answered emphatically that it would be impossible to reach a verdict.

"While this, through the technicalities of the law is not a legal acquittal, morally it is such." Arbuckle said in discussing the jury's inability to agree.

Arbuckle was charged with having inflicted a fatal injury on Miss Rape, a motion picture actress, during a party in his rooms in the Hotel St. Francis, last September.

"The undisputed and uncontradicted testimony established that my only connection with the sad affair was one of merciful service and the fact that ordinary human kindness should have brought upon me this tragedy, has seemed a cruel wrong," Arbuckle said.

His statement continued: "I have sought to bring joy and gladness and merriment into the world, and why this great misfortune should have fallen upon me is a mystery that only God can and will some day reveal."

After stating that he rested his cause in "Divine Justice, and the fairness of the American people," Arbuckle concluded with the statement that "no act of mine ever has, and I prophesy that no act of mine ever shall, cause them to regret their faith in me."

Arbuckle's defence was that he was assisting Miss Rape through a period of illness, caused, according to the defense contention, by an internal disorder, at the time that he is alleged by the prosecution to have injured her. The prosecution held that the injury resulted from an attempt by Arbuckle to attack the actress.

VICAR-GENERAL OF MONTREAL DIES SULDENLY

MONTREAL, Dec. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Monseigneur Francois Xavier De La Durantaye, Vicar-General of the Roman Catholic arch diocese of Montreal, died suddenly at the Hotel D'eu Hospital here yesterday evening.

A friend, Father Lesage, had called on a visit at the prelate's room and receiving no response to his knock at the door, entered and found him lying on the floor. A house physician was called who declared that life had become extinct.

The prelate had suffered an attack of angina pectoris recently and had gone to the Hotel D'eu. His condition was not regarded as critical and it was thought he was merely in need of a rest.

SINN FEIN ORGAN SAYS IRISH OPPOSE WAR.

DUBLIN, Dec. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Commenting on discussions going on in the British press over the possibility of a renewal of warfare in Ireland, the Irish Bulletin, official organ of the Dail Eireann, says: "The people of Ireland don't want war and not likely to be forced into war. If their liberties are attacked they will resist passively, and if passive resistance becomes impossible they will resist actively. But in either case they will not easily be compelled to surrender their right to freedom."

A Fellow Member's Opinion of Burnham

"He (J. H. BURNHAM) stated that he believed the Farmers' party would be thrown into the garbage barrel. Mr. Speaker, I hope when that happens the people will take my hon. friend out of the barrel before they put me in, for I would not like to occupy the same barrel with him."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor, Evening Examiner.

Sir,—Believing this election to be of the most momentous importance in Canada's history, electing the Government which is to carry on in civil life those great ideas that were fought for in the world's war, the infusion of new blood, the breaking up of old-time cliques, is absolutely essential.

A great deal of agitation for a new Government has been carried on all over Canada. The opportunity has arrived to make that change. Are we going to do our part, or are we going to return back to power the same old political bunch that Canada has been clamoring to change?

Mr. G. N. Gordon was elected by a large majority at the by-election. Are we going to give him a fair chance? He got down to business, soon after his arrival at Ottawa, as Parliamentary records show. He also immediately took up Labor's grievances right off the bat. This is perfectly true. I was personally kept in touch with his actions, and co-operated with him in his good work. He was at that time on the Opposition side of the House. I have no reason to think he will not continue (in fact I rest assured he will) to do all in his power for the worker. New blood being needed at Ottawa, men with courage of their convictions and initiative. I believe Mr. G. N. Gordon to be the man, so far as Peterborough is concerned.

Thos. Tooms.

Warsaw, Nov. 30th, 1921.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—I have read with some interest the report in your paper of meetings addressed by the Liberal candidate, Reeve Curtis, of Havelock, and others.

I find that Mr. Curtis, when speaking in the north country, talked provincial politics principally. I would draw his attention to the fact that this is a Dominon election, but if after it is over he wishes to discuss Provincial issues I am willing to meet him wherever he chooses, at any time that be arranged before the session of the Legislature starts.

All I ask is a fair deal and am willing to "trust the people."

Kindly give this letter space in your valuable paper and oblige.

Yours truly,
E. L. McDonald.

Peterborough, Dec. 5, 1921.

Sir,—Allow me a small space in your valuable paper. Electors of West Peterborough, allow me to beg, plead, and ask you to loosen, break, and destroy the chains of misery and hard times and bring a bright and prosperous happy future by all voting for G. N. Gordon to-morrow, Dec. 6th. Send him to Parliament by a big majority, for he is the man who will see that we get justice. He is the man who has no behind-the-door meetings. He is the man who will see that our money is spent correctly. He is the man who will not let the Riordon Company get away with $800,000 taxes, and he is the man who has in four months lifted $400,000 taxes off the working man's shoulders. Mr. G. N. Gordon is a true friend of the toiler, as well as to the returned soldier. Allow me to ask, why vote for J. H. Burnham? He never did anything in Parliament. He ran the Meighen Government to the lowest, and now he receives it in his arms—why, nobody knows. What has he done for the toiler, the hard bread earner—nothing, only let contracts go to outside places while we walk the streets. Is this the man we want? No. Is it G. N. Gordon, the gentleman who has proved himself a man of his word, when he carried out his promises he made last January? By all means, Yes.

Vote for G. N. Gordon and you will destroy the chains of misery and hard times.

John Creighton.

Took "Redmac" The Great Tonic
GAINS 22 POUNDS

A Montreal Man's Amazing Experience

Mr. Tremblay of Montreal, says, since taking Redmac, the Great Herbal Tonic, he has gained 22 pounds. I feel and people say, I look 30 years younger. I had been suffering from a run down condition, nervousness, loss of strength, poor appetite and thinness; to-day I feel hungry, sleep well, nervousness has disappeared and hard work never bothers me. Redmac was a God-send to me. The reason REDMAC brings such wonderful results is because it feeds run down glands, the cause of many run-down conditions, by supplying them with the extracts of certain Herbs and Roots and Tropical plants, the glands are made strong and healthy—just like re-charging a storage battery.

If weak, pale, thin or run-down, try REDMAC, the King of Tonics. This remarkable medicine brings results quickly. It has helped thousands to regain youthful health and strength. Try a bottle, a large generous bottle can be procured from your druggist at a reasonable price. If you have indigestion or stomach touble, if you feel all out of sorts, REDMAC will put you on your feet in a short time.

MR. GORDON'S APPEAL TO ELECTORS

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,

I am asking your support To-morrow, because I believe, in the most critical time in Canadian history, that I will be able to be of material assistance to this Country.

The Meighen Government attempted, for the first time in Canadian history, to tax the daily bread of the toiler, and largely through my efforts, you will remember, I succeeded in having taken off the shoulders of the consuming public $4,000,000 in taxation. For this, one of the leading officials of the Quaker Oats Company congratulated me, and thanked me for my efforts.

This City is entitled to active, vigorous representation, and the Trent Canal should be finished without delay in order that this may be a waterway from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario. The Quaker Oats Company has a privision in its charter allowing it to operate steamboats and barges, and the likelihood is that it will carry its grain from the Upper Lakes to Peterborough in order to save the high transportation cost now charged by the railways. If this will be done, it will make the Otonabee River practically a Lake Port.

I believe live wire representation for this active industial centre, and the rest of the West Riding, will bring results, and I promise to give that the the best of my strength and ability, if you will lend me your support.

I remain,

Yours faithfully,

G. N. GORDON.

CARELESSNESS THE CAUSE

By Albert N. Atkinson.

A well-designed cooling system will give very little trouble unless it is abused. If properly cared for the engine will give best results, but if the cooling system is neglected or crowded too far serious results will follow, of which the loss of power is the least. If the engine is run too long in an overheated condition it may be ruined.

We shall begin by considering troubles due to the ignorance or neglect of the driver, and then those due to the failure of some part of the system. Probably the deatail least understood by the average operator is the proper control of the spark and throttle levers. Keeping the spark well advanced gives a longer power stroke, which means gasoline economy. Most of the gas is burned in the cylinders and there is less flame passing out of the exhaust valves. If the spark is kept in the retarded position more gas has to be fed to restore the loss of power, which means that there is a continual flow of flame through the exhaust valves, causing the engine to overheat.

Another cause which is under control of the driver is running too long on the intermediate or low gear. This gives too many explosions per minute and the engine overheats. Another cause is too rich a mixture from the carburetor. The gas burns slowly and is still burning when it leaves the cylinders, thus overheating the engine, as already explained. Of course lack of water, except when due to a sudden leak, is chargeable to the driver, as he should attend to that de.ail before taking the car out.

Should Feel Hot.

We now come to a short list of troubles due to failure of some part of the system. Failure of the pump is the most important. The drive shaft may break, particularly at the coupling, or the motor inside may become loose. One way to determine this is to remove the cap from the top of the radiator. In some types the water may be seen returning from the water jackets, but this is not always possible. A better way is to hold the hand at the bottom of the radiator; it should be distinctly hot to the touch. If the bottom is cool the water is not circulating. But do not be in too much haste to condemn the pump, as the radiator or one of the pipes may b e clogged. A break in th pump shaft is readily seen, but a loose rotor can only be determined by taking the pump apart. A clogged radiator may be detected by disconnecting the hose at the bottom and pouring water in at the top. If the radiator fills and the water runs out slowly at the bottom the tubes are stopped up and must be cleaned with washing soda. Clogged pipes are detected by disconnecting them at top and bottom and pouring in water. It should run out of the bottom as fast as it enters the top.

Leakage of the radiator may be stopped temporarily by some of the radiator compounds on the market, but it is best to have the holes soldered as they will then give no further trouble. A slipping fan belt is a more serious trouble than may be imagined. If there is insufficient draft through the radiator the heat will not be carried away fast enough. The fan should continue to spin after the engine stops. A good test is to try to move the fan with the engine stopped. The pulley should just slip under the belt. If the fan cannot move there is danger of breaking the blades when the engine starts. If you can spit the fan the belt is too loose. Some fans have an automatic adjustment, but even this may be too loose at times.

Reasons Why West Peterboro Should Re-Elect G. N. GORDON

THE big reason is this—J. H. Burnham Voted for the G. T. R. Purchase Bill by which the people of Canada were bound to pay Millions of Dollars for worthless stock. When Mr. Burnham was fighting the Meighen Government in the bye-election last February, his most scathing attacks charged that the Government was tied up to these powerful and secret, predatory financial influences. But—Mr. Burnham himself voted for that Bill. Men and Women of West Peterboro what more do you need than that to prove that Mr. Burnham is unworthy of your Vote?

Labour

Among the hundreds of voluntary workers for G. N. GORDON are many men who have been prominent all their lives in this Union or that.

Why?

Because they know that G. N. GORDON is one of themselves.

The working men of West Peterborough, farmers, and artisans and labourers, recognise the fact that the fair measure of success G. N. GORDON has won does not disqualify him as a Democrat.

Working men realise that democracy does not mean mediocrity—that a man has to be a third-rater.

If that were true, workers as a class would be hopeless.

Hence, when one of their fellows struggles along to success, they do not ban or shun him on that account.

They know that God gave to them as much brains on the average as to the other classes.

But they have not had the same opportunities.

Why do working men toil to educate their sons and daughters?

Because they want their sons and daughters to have a chance in this life, to be prepared for opportunity to rise to any position they can secure.

This is not "class stuff." It's just plain human nature.

The working men of Peterborough know that G. N. GORDON came from a humble home—and he is not ashamed of it.

They have mingled with him. They have voted for him in Municipal elections.

They have helped G. N. GORDON, because he has been faithful to their interests in every position they conferrd upon him.

Men and Women of West Peterborough, G. N. GORDON deserves your confidence again. Give it to him.

Remember his Municipal record—his constant and unselfish service for his fellow-ciitzens.

This is what the Canadian Milling and Grain Journal said of Mr. Gordon last June, after he succeeded in preventing the proposed tax on flour and cereals in bags or packages under 48 pounds:

> "The millers are greatly indebted to Mr. G. N. Gordon, M.P., Peterborough West, who put the case before the Government in a clear-cut and concise manner. Mr. Gordon has absolutely no connection with any milling concern, but took this matter up and worked for the interests of the millers and the public, as he was broad-minded enough to see what the iniquitous results of such a tax would be."

The Quaker Oats Company, the Canadian Nashua Paper Company, and many of the employees of these Peterborough factories were directly benefited by Mr. Gordon's thorough grasp of the results of such legislation.

Just another reason why you should

VOTE FOR G. N. GORDON.

Returned Soldiers

G. N. GORDON has championed every reasonable request that has been made in Peterborough for the returned men.

From the beginning of the war, right up to the present, the mothers and wives and the children of Peterborough's soldiers have found in G. N. GORDON a faithful and unfailing friend.

Hundreds of them have been helped without the public knowing anything about the assistance he has given.

G. N. GORDON will be a "friend at court" for the returned men, ready to see that their just requests are fairly and fully considered.

Mr. Gordon is well aware of the financial obligations Canada has to meet as a result of the war.

He also knows (what James Murdock has emphasized) that if the money which was gouged out of the people of Canada, including the soldiers' dependents and the returned men, by the profiteers and special interests, who, Mr. Burnham admits, are behind the Government, there would be no "returned soldier problem."

Finally, Mr. Gordon stands behind Mackenzie-King's statement, which Sergt. Rayfield, V.C., Independent candidate in Toronto, said was the most favourable reply from the leaders of three parties, that he is willing to have the soldier question re-opened and re-considered.

It is a singular coincidence that many returned men are Liberal standard-bearers in this campaign.

On the other hand a Government, that boasts of its high regard for the returned men, has not one of its many ridings with a soldier representing the Government.

But there are four soldier candidates in Toronto—all of them with brilliant records, and all of them opposing the Meighen Government.

The Government "machine" exploits the returned men, or tries to, for political advantage, but passes them up when it comes to nominating them.

Most of West Peteborough's returned men have supported G. N. GORDON in the past, and are with him in this fight.

VOTE FOR GORDON!

Citizens Generally

Business men and citizens, knowing the records of J. H. Burnham and G. N. Gordon—which would you select to carry on your own business?

Parliament is Canada's business office. Tomorrow you will choose the representative, or in the other sense the director, from West Peterborough to assist in the administration of the nation's affairs.

That's your duty in a nutshell.

Mr. Burnham has been ten years in Parliament. What has he done to justify his appeal for your-votes.

In this campaign, has he emphasized one accomplishment in those ten years that would warrant his election?

In all fairness to Mr. Burnham, it can be truthfully said that he cannot name one outstanding mark of merit.

On the other hand, Mr. Burnham admits that he voted for the G. T. R. Purchase Bill, which, in his own words, mulcted the people of Canada of millions of dollars.

He has stated that in committee he opposed one clause.

Grant that. But on the third reading, when the Bill was being passed Mr. Burnham voted FOR the Bill,—INCLUDING THAT CLAUSE.

There is no getting away from that, and that act alone has shattered the people's confidence in him.

Is that the way you want Canada's business conducted?

Mr. Burnham is utterly devoid of political courage.

Do you remember the Bill to Abolish Titles, which he introduced?

When Sir Robert Borden threatened to resign if the democratic spirits in Parliament persisted in their support of that Bill, Mr. Burnham quit cold.

But W. F. Nickle, K.C., of Kingston, took it from Mr. Burnham's hands and pushed it to a division.

The party whip cracked, and the Bill was defeated.

But the main point is that Mr. Burnham's courage failed him on that occasion, too. He didn't dare to stand up for his convictions when the real test came.

G. N. GORDON, in his four months, accomplished the withdrawal of a sales tax on flour and cereals that would have amounted to more than $4,000,000.00.

West Peterborough should

ELECT G. N. GORDON!

The career of the Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie-King, Liberal Lealed and next Prime Minister of Canada, is an application of this watchword. First Deputy Minister of Labour in Canada at the age of 26 years, and later Minister of Labour, he has done more than any man in Canada for the advancement of labour and conciliation between capitol and labour.

Women of West Peterboro

G. N. GORDON stands pledged to do his utmost to root out the profiteers who have had full fling too long at Ottawa.

Every housewife remembers when sugar went to 25 cents a pound—after the war was over—and the surplus sugar supplies were dumped into the United States instead of being sold at home to relieve the alleged scarcity.

To-morrow you have your chance to square accounts with the sugar gamblers and extortioners BY VOTING FOR G. N. GORDON.!

James Murdock, who was a member of the Canadian Board of Commerce, and consequently knows the inside history of that hold-up, has publicly declared that the sugar scandal in Canada was the greatest gamble the continent of America has ever witnessed.

Gambling in foodstuffs, the necessities of every family, surely will not be tolerated by the Women of West Peterborough.

You helped elect G. N .GORDON last February. He has proved his worth already.

Your grocery bills would have been increased had the sales tax on flour and cereals gone into effect.

Mr. Gordon opposed it, saving the people of Canada far in excess of $4,000,000 a year.

G. N. GORDON is a representative who is "on the job."

The Women of Peterborough are vitally interested in their husbands' employment.

The following telegram is a further example of how MR. GORDON watches Peterborough's industrial interests.

Ottawa, November 21, 1921.

G. N. Gordon, M.P.,
Peterborough.

"Your wire to Chief Engineer. Tenders will probably be called within next month for certain lock gate fittings for Trent Canal. Wm. Hamilton Co. will have same opportunity as usual to tender in competition with other firms."

G. A. Bell,
"Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals."

The interests of Peterborough's homes will be vigilantly watched if you

ELECT G. N. GORDON!

Mr. Burnham, the local candidate of the profiteers and gougers of the soldiers' pay, has usurped the credit for his Government of raising a $4,000,000 tax burden off the Canadian breakfast table, even as his Government usurped power. Mr. Burnham has conveniently avoided the fact that the tax on package foods was proposed by the Government and fought against so vigorously by G. N. GORDON that it had to be withdrawn. Mr. Burnham's claim in this respect is in a class with his vaudeville performance in Victoria Hall on Saturday night.

ELECTION NEWS

GOUIN ATTACK GOVT. CONTROL OF RAILWAYS

MONTREAL, Dec. 5.— (Canadian).—Speaking at the town hall, Ladhine, before voters of the Jacques Cartier divison, on Saturday afternoon, Sir Lomer Gouin again dealt with the railway question reiterating his view that operating railways under government control had proved a fiasco in this country as much as it had in any other country in the world. He declared that some of the most influential newspapers in Canada which had been supporting the present government were hesitating about approval of Govern ment railways.

In regard to the tariff Sir Lomer said it was essential that a commission should be appointed at once to revise the whole tariff.

He uttered a strong plea for unity between the races of Canada, stating that the prosperity of the Dominion absolutely depended on this.

Hon. Walter Mitchell, ex-Provincial Treasurer, who also addressed the meeting, spoke on similar lines.

Sir Lomer Gouin and Hon. Walter Mitchell also addressed a meeting of electors held at His Majesty's Theatre in this city, on Saturday night.

Sir Lomer declared that "if we want to prevent ruin and disaster we must keep our financial independence. The surest way to do this is to send to Ottawa a strong government with strong men behind it.'

As to the railway problem Sir Lomer said the Dominon could not think of going on with the yearly losses that were being shown and " what we have to do now is to find a system of operation which will end these disastrous annual deficits.'

He repeated that the Liberal tariff would be "a repetition of the Laurier tariff and the Laurier policy."

Hon. Mr. Mitchell said the women owed nothing to the Government for giving them the vote, "because if they were entitled to it, the Government had done wrong."

He denounced the present Government as a mixed group that had brought hard times, higher taxation and increased the per capita debt of the Dominion from $45 to $300, or $1,500 for each family of five persons.

CRERAR OPTIMISTIC.

MINNEDOSA, Man., Dec. 3. — (Canadian Press) —Speaking here last night, Hon. T. A. Crerar decleared that if the Progressives are not strong enough to form a government they will form the strongest group in the next Parliament.

Mr. Ed. Elliott and Mr. C. R. Widdifield returned late Saturday evening from a very successfuu three days' trip through the townships of Harvey, Galway and Cavendish.

In all, six meetings were held, in the interests of G. N. Gordon, and if the popularity of the candidate is to be judged by the large attendance, it is safe to predict a substantial majority for him from the polling divisions in that district.

Mr. Elliott very forcibly dealt with the present day condiitons from the farmers' point of view and pointed out that for their own benefit it was absolutely necessary to have a change of Government and this could only be had by voting for G. N. Gordon, whose policy stood for a direct benefit to each of them.

Mr. C. R. Widdifield spoke about the evasion of cash payments for taxes by wealthy companies in contrast to the government's attitude towards individuals with no influence, and also dealt with the Canadian National Railways and how they are managed. He pointed out very clearly and forcibly that the people of Canada are sustaining a large yearly loss through their operation and management, but notwithstanding this fact the present government declines to give to the people, who are paying the money, any information concerning them.

Mr. Joseeph Duffus spoke at Union Creek and at Mount Irwin, and in a clear-cut speech, pointed out how it is absolutely necessary to have a revision of the tariff, if this country is to keep stride with the present and future conditions. All of the meetings were largely attended and each audience gave a very attentive hearing to the speakers, conclusively showing that they are very much interested in the questions of the present day.

J. H. BURNHAM MEETING.

The old-time Conservative rally in Victoria Hall on Saturday night was a great success. The crowd was large and enthusiastic, the different items on the programme and the speakers being rapturously applauded. Mr. Devey presided at the piano, and Dr. Morrison occupied the chair. The list of performers included Miss Harrison, who sang beautifully; the well-known banjo soloist, Mr. F. Clark; Ted Markham in his inimitable music hall sketches; Frank Pratt, baritone; the popular Scottish caricaturist, W. McKinley, and Mr. B. Jones, tenor.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, who was loudly applauded on coming forward, said that his opponents had acknowledged that his prophecy had come true and that the Conservative party, which, out of gratitude, had included Liberals who had assisted it in the war, was now back where it was before 1914, united both in Canada and in this constituency. He said that he had voted for the final reading of the G.T.R. Bill, which he had voted against on its second reading, because he had been assured that the arbitrators would have all objections laid before them, "and what has been the result," said Mr. Burnham, "was that not true? Have not the arbitrators found that my objections were well taken, and that the G.T.R. must be taken over as a bankrupt and not as a going concern? This is not inconsistency but wisdom, and those who expect to befuddle the public mind over it will get defeat for their pains." He stated also that since Mr. Gordon objected to public ownership of the ocean freight service, his endorsation of a publicly-owned railway service was useless since the railways were useless, unless the ocean service was run in accord with them. The speaker quoted from the Globe of Dec. 1, to show from his own words, that the James Murdock of Board of Commerce fame was the same Jas. Murdock who boasted of having brought over a gang from Chicago to drive out and beat up the workingmen of Canada in 1920 at Winnipeg, "and yet," said the speaker, "this man is a Liberal candidate in Toronto, endorsed by Mr. King."

Other speakers were Messrs. Denne, Strickland, McElderry and Peck, who dealt with issues of the campaign and the splendid organization of the entire party in West Peterborough, prosphesying a sure and certain victory on Tuesday next.

The singing of the National Anthem brought a most enjoyable evening to a close at a late hour.

SAYS U.S. LOST CREDIT

ENTHUSIASTIC ADVOCATE OF PUB. UTILITY UNDERTAKINGS

A. J. NESBITT,
President of Nesbitt, Thomson & Company, Ltd., who have handled some of the largest power undertakings in Canada.

The announcement of the offering of $7,000,000 of bonds of the new Manitoba Power Company draws attention to the activity in the public utility field of the well-known house of Nesbitt, Thomson & Co., Limited. For years past A. J. Nesbitt, President of the Company, has laid down a policy of specializing in this particular field, believing that it would be of tremendous benefit to the country to have all the larger natural resources developed to the fullest extent possible.

Mr. Nesbitt always pointed out that Canada would be the gainer by many new industrial concerns coming into the country in order to avail themselves of the large quantities of power which could be obtained from the development of the water falls of the Dominion. Previous to undertaking the big Manitoba Power financing, Mr. Nesbitt's firm has been prominently identified with large issues in connection with the Winnipeg Electric, Southern Canada Power Co., which has brought so many industries into the Eastern Townships of the Province of Quebec; the Laurentian Power Co., which is supplying a good deal of power to the city of Quebec; the New Brunswick Power Co., and with the issues of the Cedar Rapids Power Co., and Laurentide Power Co.

U. T. S. TOO STRONG FOR LOCAL COLLEGIANS

HAD TOO MUCH WEIGHT, SPEED AND CLEVERNESS IN INTER-SCHOLASTIC SEMI-FINAL GAME AND WON EASILY FROM P.C.I. BY 25 TO 0.

The superior science, speed and bulk of the University of Toronto Schools team enabled them to win an easy victory over the Peterborough Collegiate twelve in the sudden death Interscholastic semi-final game at Riverside Park on Saturday. The visitors won by 25 points to 0, and the result of the game was never in doubt. The local students, outweighed and outgeneralled, and suffering as well from an attack of stage fright, found the rangy Toronto lads a proposition that was impossible for them to solve, and U.T.S. dominated the play for the greater part of the game.

The Toronto crew, who have been coached all season by "Mike" Rodden, showed a repertoire of trick plays, shifts and unusual line formations that kept the homesters guessing and, coupled with these tactics, they had a smooth working interference not only along the line but sometimes in the open field play that not only puzzled the Petes but fooled the officials as well, and gave the ball carrier plenty of chance to gain ground. And on top of their team play and interference they were clever individually, with a fast line of good tacklers and a back division that could catch, run and kick. The stars of the outfit — and all three shone brilliantly on Saturday — were Quarter Back Munro and Campbell and Plaxton of the half line. Munro not only used good judgment in his tactics, but was conspicuous by his own individual cleverness. He did some fine plunging, and contributed some effective running, both from behind his line and in running back punts. Cawkell, a sturdy boy with a nice turn of speed, proved a fine running half, and Plaxton caught and kicked cleverly.

The Peterborough team, it may be said, without detracting in any way from U.T.S.'s clean-cut victory, were not at the top of their form Saturday. Their best would not have won for them, but it might have made the score closer. The youngsters were nervous, and they showed it by their unusually high tackling and by their fumbling. Stage fright asserted itself with disastrous results inside the first minute of the game, for the Petes balled up the very first play they attempted, and before they realized the contest was under way, U.T.S. had uncorked two or three of their puzzling plays, and the ball was over the Peterborough line.

Legon was the most prominent player for the homesters. The visitors looked after the little flying wing closely all afternoon, but in spite of their attention he pulled off several flashy catches of onside kicks for good gains, on one occasion grabbing a punt on the dead run as a baseball outfielder gathers in a fly. Flowers at centre half did some nice kicking, and the rest of the squad tried hard to turn the tide.

The Collegiate team must be given credit for reviving interest in rugby in Peterborough, for 700 people braved the cold breeze to watch the battle. You have to go back a good many years to find the time when as many people turned out to see a rugby game here.

The ground was in remarkably good shape, in view of the weather conditions of the past couple of weeks. The footing was secure enough not to interfere with the runners, and considering it was the first Saturday in December, the weather was better than any one dared hope it would be.

The score by periods:

U.S.T.	.. ..	7	5	11	2—25
Peterborough	.. ..	0	0	0	0— 0

The line ups:

U. T. S. — Flying wing, Irwin; halves, Baker, Plaxton, Cawkell; quarter, Munro; snap, Watson; inside wings, Stollery, Scott; middle wings, Anglin, Louden; outside wings, Gianelli, Hutchinson; subs—Hayhurst, Smythe, Walker, Robinson, Cleghorn, Francis.

Peterboro—Flying wing, Legon; halves, Fanning, Flowers, Grime; quarter, D. Young; snap, Breyfogle; inside wings, Gilchrist, Stacey; middle wings, Eastwood, Brown; outside wings, Ridpath, Rishor; subs—H. Young, Parrington, Hay, Bookhout, Stevenson, Maniece.

Peterborough had a bad break against them at the go-in. U.T.S. kicked off, and the first kick went to the dead line, and the ball had to be kicked off again, Fanning taking it and running it back ten yards. On the first down Stacey knocked the ball forward in taking a pass, and U.T.S. were given possession twenty yards out. They immediately made yards on a couple of trick plays, and then pulled off an onside kick which carried the ball to Peterborough's five-yard line. Munro bucked over for a try, which Plaxton converted from a difficult angle, and the Toronto crew were 6 to 0 in front in the first two minutes.

Cawkell took Breyfogle's kick off and ran the ball back fifteen yards. U.T.S. made their yards twice in succession on line plays, but Peterborough braced and forced them to kick. Peterborough gained on a couple of line plunges, and Legon added fifteen yards more by grabbing an onside kick. Flowers kicked into touch at centre, and on the first down Plaxton boomed a mighty punt that did not stop rolling until it had reached the dead line for a single. U.T.S. 7, Peterborough 0.

Collegiate rallied at this stage, and for the first time drove the play into Toronto territory. A beautiful running catch of an onside kick by Legon gained twenty-five yards, and U.T.S. were for the moment on the defensive. Flowers did some nice punting, and the U.T.S. backs had to do some fine catching and running to avert a score. On one occasion Cawkell just managed to squirm outside. The visitors were equal to the occasion, however, and had the ball on their quarter line when the first period ended.

Play was in midfield for a while in the second period, with both teams kicking often, and it was not until a high punt from Plaxton got away from Legon and U.T.S. recovered the loose ball that either line was threatened. Peterborough braced and held the visitors for three downs, only to lose possession again on a fumble. This time U.T.S. made no mistake, for, on a fast end run, in which Munro passed cleverly to Cawkell on the dead run, the latter romped over for a try which Plaxton failed to convert. U.T.S. 12, Peterborough 0.

The visitors threatened again a few moments later, but lost the ball for interference right on Peterborough's line, when a try seemed certain. Half time was called shortly afterward.

U.T.S. added to their score early in the third period. Getting the ball at centre, they marched straight down the field for a try with a series of trick plays, line plunges and end runs, making rapid and unchecked progress until Munro was close enough to buck over for a touchdown. Plaxton missed the attempt at converting. U.T.S. 17, Peterborough 0.

The visitors continued to press, and although Peterborough fought hard they were unable to carry the play out of their own territory. They held U.T.S. on several line plays until finally Cawkell grabbed a well placed onside kick and ran fifteen yards for a try, which Plaxton neatly converted. U.T.S. 23, Peterborough 0. There was no further scoring in the period.

Although they never seriously threatened to score in the last quarter, Peterborough did their best work in this period. They uncorked a series of line plunges that U.T.S. seemed to have trouble in stopping, and three times in the period they gained yards in this manner, the only occasions during the game on which they were successful. However, U.T.S. got the only two points in the final session, Munro returning one of Flowers' punts to the dead line for a point, and Plaxton shortly after kicking to the boundary for another single.

NEW YORK PAPERS ROAST SMITH, McTIGUE

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(By Canadian Press.)—Afternoon papers yesterday continued the roasting handed out to Mike McTigue and Jeff Smith by the morning sports editors. Their bout in New York Thursday night has added nothing to the laurels of either fighter.

Vincent Treanor, in the Evening World, says:

"If Jeff Smith and Mike McTigue didn't 'fake it' at Madison Square Garden last night, they did the next thing to putting over a 'barney' on Tex Rickard. McTigue won the decision simply because he made more motions with his hands. As a fight it was a sad affair."

Fred Keats, in the Sun, throws more of the blame for the dull entertainment on Smith. He says:

"If Smith would only do a little fighting when he gets into the ring he would have been a champion long ago. He is as tough as hickory, has never been hurt, and yet he won't take a chance. He knows how to fight and he is a good hitter, but he lets the other fellow do it all. McTigue gave him everything he had in stock and tired himself without making any impression."

George B. Underwood, in the Telegram, calls the bout "boresome." He continues, "The style of the two militated against milling anything above the ordinary. Smith has a way of falling in close and tying up his opponent. He doesn't prove very effective against a rival, but he prevents an opponent from doing anything effective to him."

George Washington unconsciously was the juvenile progenitor of advertising—Nothing that he afterwards accomplished has attracted the attention that his childish remark did—"Father—I cannot tell a lie". Was George a supe child, or did he remain true to the high stand ard he thus set himself in youth? I wonder! Poor Bob Bennett rashly promises to tell nothing but the truth for twenty-four hours — He little thought of the enormity of his task. Have you ever thought how difficult it is to tell the absolute truth and nothing else? Everyone resents the implication that he lies or even prevaricates—yet one keen honest upright business cannot be carried on without lying or telling half truths. Another spurns the idea and finds to his sorrow that it is the most difficult thing in the world to give a straight forward reply to every question—Have you ever thought how little you ask a person, if she had a good night's rest, or if she felt better to-day and how seldom one can truthfully say. "Yes, it does make you look younger" when asked about a gown or hat Bob Bennett found his twenty-four hours of truth about the most trying time he ever put in—but no doubt we'll all enjoy watching Rex tonight struggling through his self imposed task. Besides "Twenty-four hours of Truth", there will be two acts of vaudeville.

LAURA.

AT THE GRAND.

"The Three Musketeers" is the attraction at the Grand Opera House for the last three days of this week. The dramatization of Dumas' novel will doubtless prove a drawing card at the Grand. In it is reproduced the France of an earlier day, the France of Richelieu, in which has been achieved a story crammed full of action, of thrills, of red-blooded fighting for country and honor. Much of the action is exaggerated, and no one should take either the beloved Gascon, his exploits, or the other characterizations, too seriously. Dumas admitted that he wrote for the crowd, that the majority of his readers wanted vivid pictures of the monarchy that had passed, of the loves of other days, and the influence of the philosophers demanded the painting of a self-seeking and wordly prelate.

AT THE CAPITOL.

STAR, CAST, STORY OF "SHAM" OF HIGH STANDARD.

Paramount Slogan Fully Lived Up to in Ethel Clayton's New Picture.

That Paramount pictures are living up to their slogan, "clever stars in good stories with perfect supporting casts," is proved by "Sham," an Ethel Clayton stellar vehicle which opens at the Capitol to-day.

"It has been some time," said Manager Abbey, of the playhouse, in discussing the forthcoming feature to-day, "since I have been able to afford my patrons such a remarkable entertainment combination as "Sham." To say that the play written by Elmer Harris and Geraldine Bonner is a good starter as both are famous and successful playwrights. And the star, Ethel Clayton, is again a queen of comediennes as a 'gentle grafter' who 'forgets' to pay her bills and gets in no end of trouble as a consequence.

"Rounding out this excellent film is a really remarkable cast. Walter Hiers is comical as usual as a fat, wealthy — and disappointed lover. Theodore Roberts is a bluff and hearty old millionaire, while Sylvia Ashton and Helen Dunbar who have appeared in countless "mother" roles are splendid as the selfish aunts of the debt-ridden Katherine. Other players of equal merit include Carrie Clark Ward, Arthur Carewe, Clyde Fillmore and Eunice Burnham. From start to finish 'Sham' is well-rounded and complete to the most inconspicuous 'extra.' It is an entertainment of exceptional merit."

The balance of the big picture and vaudeville programme will make a first-class entertainment. Leonard and Wright, the international dancers, make six complete changes of beautiful wardrobe and introduce a number of different styles of clever dancing. Sheik Hassan, Ben Abdiz and Co., the world's greatest cyclone acrobats and iron jaw kings, in Oriental pastimes. No advance in our prices for this big show. Special attention paid to theatre parties. Wicker chairs reserved.

Little four-year-old Olga Wright was the winner in the Jakey Coogan impersonation contest held at the Capitol on Saturday. There were eight or nine contestants, and many good impersonations of the little film star.

BRITISH SOCCER

LONDON, December 5. Canadian Press Cable. — Saturday's old country league soccer football, was varied by the introduction of the fifth qualifying round for the English Association Cup, which produced exciting football, but reduced the programme in the Third Division to three matches in the southern section, while in the northern section no games were played.

Several sensations occured in the First Division, notably the defeat of Sunderland by Cardiff City and the victory of Huddersfield over Burnley, while Manchester City lost its first game for two years at home, going down before Bolton by a score of 3 to 2.

Cardiff, on their home grounds, overwhelmed Sunderland, Clennel scoring the opening goal for the victors in brilliant fashion after thirty minutes play, while Gill netted the second tally. Sunderland missed two good opportunities of equalizing matters in the second half.

Three goals in as many minutes was the outstanding feature of the Manchester City-Bolton Wanderer contest. Jack, for Manchester, registered the first of the series, while Barns and Roberts quickly reversed the situation by netting one each for the Wanderers.

The London clubs had a good day, Arsenal won over Blackburn by 1 to 0, the Rovers giving a disappointing exhibition and never getting going. Tottenham defeated Sheffield at Tottenham by 2 to 1; Johnston beating Jacques with a fine flying shot in the second half for Sheffield at Tottenham by 2 to 1. Johnson beating Jacques with a fine flying shot in the second half for Sheffield's single tally. In the fading light anything might have happened, but the home defence proved too strong for the visitors to even matters.

Chelsea's scoreless draw with Preston was the result of neglected opportunities for both home teams, neither of whom were able to take advantage of several excellent chances to score.

Nottingham is still at the head of the second league through their draw with South Shields. Southampton heads the southern section of the Third Division after their splendid 1 to 0 victory over Millwall.

The English cup ties furnished few surprises and the only home teams to suffer defeat being Lincoln City against Northampton, Metrogas by Norwich City and Mid-Rhonda at the hands of Merthyr.

Wrexham and Swansea Town were the top scorers of this round, but there were no run-away victories and the amateur clubs did particularly well.

"If I stand again, it will be as a Moderate Protectionist, and as one out also to fight the growth of atheism," wrote Mr. Burnham to The Examiner on 9th July, 1920.

Mr. Burnham contradicts his theories badly in that outburst, for in other letters he protested against moral legislation, such as Prohibition.

Mr. Burnham seems to have missed his calling.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

CAMPBELLFORD, December 5th. —Miss Helen Moore, teacher at Dartford, spent the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Moore.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Abernethy are visiting at the home of the former's parents, Mr .and Mrs. S. J. Abernethy.

Rev. S. C. Moore, B.A., B.D., of Bowmanville, occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church most acceptably at both services on Sunday. His evening subject was 'Life's Second Chance, the text being And Jonah had a second chance, and the clay was marred in the hands of the potter so he made it again: another vessel as seemed good to the potter to make it. Jeremiah 18:4. Mr.Moore is an able speaker, and the sermons were much appreciated. Rev. H. B. Kenney was in Bowmanville preaching anniversary services for Mr. Moore.

The Religious Education Convention for Seymour and Campbellford will be held on December 13th, afternoon and evening, in the Baptist church here. Prominent speakers have been secured and a large attendance is expected.

Hydro-Electric Dance.

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, Ranney Falls Development, will hold a dance in the opera house on Friday evening, December 9th. The music will be furnished by the Novelty Sextette of Mosher's Arcadia, Toronto. Mr. Cohn ,the dancing violinist, will entertain during the supper hour. This will be one of the greatest social events of the season and a large crowd is expected.

Valuable Farm Sold.

Mr. S. S. Chapell has disposed of his valuable farm on the 8th concession of Seymour (formerly the T. L. Diamond farm) to Mr. Thomas Watson of Seymour, for the sum of $11,400.

There passed away suddenly on Thursday in Campbellford, Mrs. Ray Martin, aged 25 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orin Tyler. The funeral was held on Saturday, interment taking place in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

NATURE MAKES A "REMBRANDT" OF THE CAPITOL

A view of the Capitol in Washington flooded with lights, especially installed for the duration of the Arms Conference. A light rain aided the photographer in getting a photograph that is as nearly a "Rembrandt" as it is possible to make a photograph.

Church Organ Raises Voice Against The Government

"For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance; but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath."—Matthew 25:29.

This is the policy of the Government, favoring the Riordons, allowing them to give an I.O.U. for $800,000 in business profits taxes, while the tillers of the soil in Smith and Harvey Townships are fined $50 and costs and in default of payment sentenced to be imprisoned in the Peterborough gaol for one month.

THE CHURCH AND MEIGHEN.

The Christian Guardian, official organ of the Methodist Church, does not often turn to politics, although it is to its credit that it is not afraid to do so when a great moral issue is at stake.

The Guardian speaks of the Riordon case in part as follows:

"The public takes it for granted now that in the cases of large concerns or wealthy individuals the Government has exercised what it would term a 'wise discretion' in the collection of the taxes. But what about poor men with large families and heavy expenditures who have been taxed on income? Did the Government exercise 'wise discretion' in such cases? We can scarcely imagine a better way of playing into the hands of their political opponents, and of proving to the average voter that the 'big interests' had a strangle hold upon the Government than this very policy of dealing gently with the big men and compelling the little fellows to pay up promptly. And the fact that Charles Riordon, President, and Carl Riordon, Vice-President, of the Riordon Company, are also President and Vice-President, respectively, of the company which publishes The Mail and Empire, does not make the matter look any better. ..Mr. Drayton may be satisfied with his action, but upon the country at large the facts will make a most disagreeable impression."

GOUGING SOLDIERS' PAY.

The Riordon case is one example of the policy of invisible Government by industrial plutocrats and political autocrats. Another is the handling of the exchange on pay to soldiers and dependents. In spite of the great fall in value of the pound sterling, for every pound paid to soldiers overseas or their dependents the soldiers' accounts were charged with $4.86, the par value of the pound.

G. N. Gordon, Peterborough's opponent of Meighenism—in other words, the rule of the profiteers—has promised that if elected he will take this matter up in the House of Commons with a view to having the searchlight of public opinion turned on this transaction and to have each returned man reimbursed for the loss sustained through this malpractice.

ADDRESS OF JOSEPH STARR IS WANTED

RELATIVE OVERSEES SEEKS ADDRESS OF ENGLISHMAN HERE

Friends in England are anxious to get into touch with a man named Joseph Starr, late of Warminster, Wilts, England, who is thought to be now living either in Peterborough City or County. With this end in view, a relative of Starr's, Fred. Smith, of 43 High Street, Burbage, Wilts, has written Postmaster Corkery for his address, if such is available, at the local Post Office. Should this meet the eye of the Englishman wanted, or any person knowing of his whereabouts, Mr. Smith hopes to be communicated with at the earliest possible date.

The letter from the Old Country in this connection can be seen by any one directly interested on application at the Examiner Office.

NEW ORGANIST COMES WITH A FINE RECORD.

Mr. Martin B. Chenhall, who has accepted the position of organist and choirmaster of St. Paul's Church here, has arrived and taken charge of his duties.

Mr. Chenhall has a very fine record as a voice trainer and choirmaster, and is a distinct acquisition to the musical talent of our city, and St. Paul's Church is to be congratulated on the enterprise displayed in procuring such an outstanding musician.

Only arriving here last Friday, he has not yet decided the location of his studio, but this will be announced in due course.

SPORT GOSSIP

At the annual meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association in Toronto on Saturday, the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association entered teams in the Intermediate and Junior series, and the Holy Name Society entered a team in the Junior series.

The motion to allow a player who has played senior hockey the year previous to play in the nearest place which has a senior team, was overwhelmingly lost.

The new application form for all players adopted by all branches of the C.A.H.A., without which no certificate will be issued, was adopted.

The amendment throwing the onus of the eligibility of all players on the teams to which they belong was withdrawn. This applied especially to the age limit of the juniors. New age certificates, vouched for by the teams, must be filed for all junior players this year, and the new application form was considered as sufficiently handling the matter.

The motion to permit a junior player to play senior with the permission of the O.H.A. Executive, was withdrawn.

Increase Size of Rinks.

The recommendation that all new hockey rinks have an ice surface of 70 to 75 feet by 170 to 175 feet, with the ideal 85 by 185, was passed. It stands as a recomendation, and there is no obligation.

The LeSueur goal net with a curved top 17 inches from goal post to back bar, 22 inches on the ice, was adopted.

The motion to give the goalkeeper a semi-circle of four feet radius, in which no opposing forward can enter, was lost.

No match will continue more than 30 minutes (actual play- overtime.

Goalkeepers will be permitted to wear a mask to protect the face and head.

The motion compelling every senior O.H.A. club to maintain a junior team was carried.

When seeking a lining for heavy portieres(the Japanese and Chinese crepes should not be overlooked. Many heavy portieres are not suitable and silk linings are expensive. These crepes are light, come in beautiful colors and possess splendid wearing qualities.

TURKEYS FOR CHRISTMAS.

A distinct reminder of Christmas was seen by those who were in the market weigh-house early this morning, when Michael Ryan, of Douro, appeared with 560 pounds of live turkey in a waggon ready for the market. There were 35 birds, and they averaged exactly 16 pounds apiece. The owner had not decided how he would dispose of them. Butchers, he said, were offering 34 cents a pound live weight and 39 cents for dressed birds. They were superior fowl, and a good-sized oven will be needed to accommodate them.

TO-DAY'S FASHIONS

CLEVER SUIT OF SIMPLE LINES

The something that makes for style is partly apparent in this coat suit, for one might lay a good deal of its smartness to the long, unbroken line of the back; the flaring sleeves, that are caught in tight wrist cuffs; and the high, choker collar. An interesting shade of red velours de laine is used, with collar and cuffs of carricule.

MISS FRANCES NEWMAN,
Chicago, Ill.

"Only a medicine of truly wonderful merit could have done what Tanlac did for me, and there is nothing half good enough for me to say about it," said Miss Frances Newman, 2639 Hirsch Street, Chicago.

"I don't think anybody ever suffered any more from indigestion than I did, and for over a year I was in wretched health. I had smothering spells, and my heart palpitated so violently I thought I had heart trouble, but I know now it was all caused from my stomach.

"Since taking Tanlac I feel and look like a different person. I have a splendid appetite and my digestion is just perfect. I sleep eight or nine hours every night and get up in the morning feeling fresh and happy. My friends tell me I'm always smiling now, and I certainly ought to be, for I'm enjoying life again."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists everywhere.

WEDDING BELLS

WARNE—HOPWOOD

LINDSAY, Dec. 5.—(Special to the Examiner).—A quiet wedding took place in St. Paul's Church this morning, when Alice Kathleen, youngest daughter of Mrs. Hopwood and the late Mr. John Hopwood and niece of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Sisson, Colborne street, was married to Mr. W. B. Warne of the Warne Drug Company, Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Marsh in the presence of a few friends. The bride was given away by her uncle, Mr. M. H. Sisson and wore a pretty costume of navy blue Canton crepe. Immediately after the ceremony the newly married couple left for a trip to Montreal, Ottawa and other points east. On their return they will reside at 638 George street, Peterborough.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Opening wheat quotations which ranged from 1-8 to 7-8c higher with December 1.13 1-4 to 1.13 1-2 and May 1.17 to 1.17 1-4 were followed by moderate setbacks and then a fresh advance.

Corn had a downward inclination in the absence of any aggressive support. After opening 1-4 cent lower to a shade advance, May 54 5 8 to 54 3-4 the market sagged a little all around. Oats were governed more by wheat than by corn, starting 1 8 to 3-8 cents up, May 38 3-4 to 7-8 and then continuing relatively firm.

Jackson Burnett, the richest Indian in the world and his bride. He is the owner of more than a million dollars in Liberty Loan Bonds and possesses an income of a hundred thousand dollars a year from the oil produced on his land. He was recently married to a little widow from Kansas, who whisked him away in a high powered machine for the purpose, despite the oppositon of his guardian and the Oklahoma authorities. The Indian office admits that Mrs. Burnett is making "the chief" a good wife.

OBITUARY

CHARLES S. BROWNLEE.

Charles S. Brownlee, 62 years of age, a widely known local printer, died at 4 o'clock this morning, following a paralytic stroke at 8 o'clock last night. Mr. Brownlee's death was mourned by the printers of this city to-day, and in many parts of Canada, members of the craft will read with regret of his decease.

For the past few years Mr. Brownlee had operated a print shop on Simcoe Street. Previously he managed the Minden Echo, and for a long period was connected with the printing business in Western United States. He learned his trade in the old Review Office, and was one of the oldest members of the Typographical Union in this city.

He is survived by his wife, resident at 383 Rogers Street.

The arrangements for the funeral, which will be under Masonic auspices, have not yet been announced. Mr. Brownlee was a member of Kilmount Lodge, A.F. and A.M.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday at 2 o'clock p.m., from the family residence to the Little Lake Cemetery.

The deceased was the youngest daughter of the late Rev. Wm. Hayden, who in 1835 was sent out by the London Missionary Society to labour in Canada, where he settled in Cobourg and later in Coldsprings. In 1862 the deceased was married to William Hamilton of Peterborough, and has resided here almost continuously since that time. She was for 20 years President of the Ladies' Aid Society, and since the age of 14 has been a teacher in the Sabbath school. Many young epople in the city who were under her care as teacher in the Primary Department, will sincerely regret to learn of her death, and the friends she has made and her co-workers in the different activties in which she was engaged, will realize the great help she has been and the loss they have now sustained. WEATHER GOOD TODAY ACROSS ALL DOMINION

ABOUT 4,000,000 ENTITLED TO VOTE AND PROSPECTS IN ONTARIO ARE FOR RECORD POLL

ALL PARTIES CONFIDENT

OTTAWA, Dec. 6. — (Canadian Press). — Canada to-day elects her fourteenth Parliament, and from all over the Dominion, with few exceptions, the weather conditions are good. For the first time women vote on the same basis as men. It is estimated that four million voters will be entitled to cast their ballots.

The organizations of the three parties are confident of the outcome. On behalf of the Conservatives, it is claimed there is a decided swing to victory in their favor. The Liberals expect to have the largest group in the House, while the Progressives are equally confident of sweeping the Prairies, winning one-half of the Ontario seats and securing seats in Quebec, the Maritimes and British Columbia.

In Ontario the prospects are for a record vote. City reports showed a large vote when the polls opened this morning.

Both Are Satisfied.

G. N. Gordon voted at Polling Subdivision 11A, Cowling's store, 354 Charlotte street, at 1 p.m. to-day, and Mr. J. H. Burnham voted at Sub-division 22, Mrs. K. Throop's, 580 Rogers street, at 12 noon. Both candidates this afternoon expressed themselves satisfied with the morning's vote. Mr. J. H. Burnham predicted a large vote in this riding. "Mark my word if there won't be a large vote," he said.

"The votes are coming in very well," Mr. Gordon said. "There are a large number of women turning out and their vote is going to count a great deal."

At both committee rooms many of the workers reported a small vote in the morning, but this was by no means considered an indication that the total vote would be small. "Most of the people vote after dinner. Practically all the women do not turn out till then. The morning's vote is always small," Mr. J. H. Burnham declared.

There was not such a scramble for conveyances to-day as on Feb. 7, although all the superior livery cars and rigs were in commission. Liverymen stated, however, that they were not cajoled as they were then and in both headquarters it was stated that many voters refused transportation and walked to the poll. Even if the transportation was not on a scale with the February by-election there were cars and carriages of ancient vintage pressed into service, one-lunged motors and antique victorias conveying people pollward to the best they could until confusion reigned on the main thoroughfares and the struggle became a survival of the fittest.

Only 45 Per Cent. of Farmers Will Vote, Says J. C. Campbell

James C. Campbell, U.F.O. candidate in the West Peterborough by-election in February, in discussing the election to-day, said he did not think the farmer vote would be over 45 per cent. and the city vote over 65 per cent. He said a good many farmers would not support either of the old parties, and he figured hundreds would never leave their firesides to-day.

Mr. Campbell picked Gordon for winner in West Peterborough by a majority of 1,000. This victory, he felt, would be attained on the city vote.

In East Peterborough he would not commit himself on either Dewart's or Brethen's chances, and in Northumberland he said the situation was much the same, although there had been a safe Farmer seat there before Mr. W. C. Kerr took up the Liberal banner. In Victoria County he was confident the U.F.O. candidate, Thurston, would defeat T. H. Stinson, Liberal-Conservative, as he was sure of receiving a big portion of the Liberal vote.

OUTSTANDING EVENT IN LOCAL MASONRY

ROYAL ARTHUR LODGE A.F. & A.M. INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS FOLLOWED BY EXCEPTIONAL BANQUET.

An outstanding event in the history of local Freemasonry was the installation of officers of Royal Arthur Lodge, No. 523, A.F. and A.M., in the Masonic Temple last evening when the installing officers and assistants were credited with having put on their work with a degree of efficiency and irresistible acceptance yet unexcelled in this district. The charge to the newly installed officers by Wor. Bro. C. E. Smith was exceptionally brilliant and interest-holding, and it is doubtful if any previous effort of this nature in Masonry heard in Royal Arthur Lodge has quite measured up to its high standard of Masonic artistry.

The Installing Board for this to be memorable occaston were Wor. Bros. C. E. Smith, S. Taylor, S. T. Medd, assisted by Wor. Bros. W. R. Morris, Geo. McDonald, J. G. M. Wilson, Wm. Hill, F. H. Dawson, A. A. Fowler, H. Rush, W. J. Henry, Rt. Wor. Bro. Duncan Walker, and Wor. Bro. E. B. Fowler.

Officers Installed.

The following are the officers for the current year duly installed last night in the presence of a large gathering of local brethren:

Wor. Bro. George Haley, W.M.
Wor. Bro. W. R. Breyfogle, I.P.M.
Wor. Bro. Cyril Lech, S.W.
Wor. Bro. C. B. Adair, J.W.
R. Wor. Bro. H. R. H. Kenner, Chaplain
R. Wor. Bro. John Crane, Treasurer.
Wo r. Bro. W. A. Logan, Secretary.
Wor. Bro. John G. M. Wilson, Director of Ceremonies.
Bro. Robt. Ross, S.D.
Bro. John Miller, J.D.
R. Wor. Bro. John Crane, Organist.
Bro. A. A. Smith, I.G.
Bro. V. R. Henry, S.S.
Bro. E. J. Vanston, J.S
Bro Carl S. Browne, Tyler.
Bro. Isaac Richardson, Hon. Tyler.
Wor. Bro. W. R. Breyfogle, Trustee.
Bro. Cyril Lech and Bro. C. B. Adair, Auditors.

Dainty Banquet.

The banquet, acceptably served by Bro. Thos. Hooper in the Temple's handsome dining-room, was of an exceedingly appetising nature, the viands composing the tempting menu having been selected with regard to season and quality.

The toast list following offered opportunities for oratory, Masonic information, musical entertainment, and good-natured brotherly badinage—all of which combined in an after-dinner jollity and entertainment par excellence.

Bro. Rev. W. H. Young proved a veritable master of humour in his response to the toast to the visiting brethren, while Wor. Bro. E. B. Fowler's toast to Installing Master Wor. Bro. C. E. Smith, was accompanied by introductory remarks of real oratorical quality.

This portion of the programme was agreebly interspersed with admirably rendered songs by Bros. M. Park, and D. Carlisle, and instrumental numbers by Bro. A. Nichols, together with a humorous story, splendidly told by Bro. Woolrough, of St. Albans Lodge, Brooklyn, N.Y.

The toast, "Happy to meet, sorry to part, happy to meet again," terminated a Masonic function altogether delightfully instructive and entertaining.

HAS ONLY TOE HOLD YET ON PROHIBITION

CAMPAIGN IN CANADA IS JUST STARTING DECLARES BEN SPENCE

LINDSAY, Dec. 6.— Speaking in St. Andrew's and Cambridge street churches here on Sunday, Rev. Ben. H. Spence said:

"If you think that liquor is not being distributed in this Province, you are simpler than I am. Why, the prohibition campaign in Canada is just starting. The O.T.A. has only given us a toe-hold. Our mounting of one mountain has merely assisted us in seeing the mountains ahead of us."

There are leaks, he admitted, in the muzzling of the liquor manufacturing and distributing activities, and we can't make an iron-bound law in these changing and shifting times. Some people think it smart to break the law; but the man who will not observe the laws of his country should not be permitted to vote on them.

To get the liquor traffic permanently on the slide, Mr. Spence contended that the people of Canada must get behind it in a body and push it out. "To this end a campaign of education is needed through the pulpit, platform and press. Canada must be shown that alcohol is deadly poison that will affect our coming generation. They must be made to see its dangers themselves."

WEDDING BELLS

LONG-MacDONALD

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in Clinton street Methodist church, Toronto, on Monday December 5, when Alberta Helen, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. MacDonald, Peterboro, became the bride of Merrill F. Long, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Long, Peterboro.

The young couple were unattended.

The bride was charmingly attired in a brown broadcloth suit, with small hat to match of Panne velvet and metallic trimmings. Her corsage bouquet was of sweetheart roses. They will reside in Peterboro

MONDAY LEGALLY A HOLIDAY

Christmas falling on Sunday, Monday, Dec. 26th will be the public holiday associated with the festival. There is a statute determining that when Christmas Day or New Year's Day happened on a Sunday, the following Monday should be observed as a legal holiday and advantage thereof given to employees. This is the first time since 1910.

MORTON PLEADS GUILTY TO ALL SEVEN CHARGES

REMANDED TILL FRIDAY FOR SENTENCE FOR FORGING AND CASHING WORTHLESS CHEQUES

ALLARD REMANDED ALSO

"I thought this was election day," said Magistrate D. W. Dumble, as he literally hopped onto the bench in juvenile fashion at 10.30 a.m. to-day.

"So it is," answered the Chief of Police.

"Well, what are you doing with a court?" asked the veteran Magistrate with keen humor.

"We have no politics anyway," Chief Newhall told him.

The court consisted of hearing Kenneth Morton's pleas of guilty in seven charges of forgery and attempted forgery. Very dapper from his shining patent leathers to dark shell-rim glasses and black pinstripe suit, Morton pleaded guilty to every charge in a steady voice, and evidently had the same control as when he presented the cheques to local grocers, and got a shave off James Lewis with a worthless cheque.

After the bank was closed in the afternoon of November 29, Morton and Ray Wager, who will be sentenced on Friday, began operations. They succeeded in four cases getting cheques cashed for a total of $84.50 by local grocers and buying groceries only worth a few dollars. The groceries were later recovered by the police. Cheques which they attempted to pass to R. Goheen, Miss Mary J. Barnard, of P. S. White and Co., and Victor Sullivan were refused. The $10 cheque, the only one on the Bank of Montreal, Toronto branch, was accepted by James Lewis for a shave, after supper, but proved to be worthless.

Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton asked for a remand for sentence till Friday, and Harry Allard, alias Ray Wager, will also be sentenced at the same time.

40 PER CENT. VOTE BY TWO O'CLOCK

MOST OF THE POLLS HAD HALF NAMES IN, OTHERS WERE DECIDEDLY LIGHT.

Approximately forty per cent. of the vote was in at fifteen polls visited by the Examiner at two o'clock this afternoon. Some of the scrutineers presented lists that were all mussed up with pencil marks drawn through names that were scored off as having voted. Others were notably white in comparison. In this category were both polling places at T. R. Kennedy's store, corner of Reid and McDonnel streets, and also at a booth on Rogers street, Ashburnham. Most of the others showed a fifty per cent. vote with some slightly above that and other below.

While the election workers were thhanking fate for the sunshine and generally favorable weather, the outside scrutineers were chilled to the marrow by noon and most of them were glad of temporary relief. The inside scrutineers had the "cushy jobs" within the glow of oil stove heat or the homely, friendly warmth of old box stoves burning hardwood. it was stated that the remainder of the afternoon would bring out the bulk of those who had not voted this morning. Most of the women deferred the exercise of their franchise until this afternoon.

HELD A MEETING.

The Peter Robinson Chapter I. O. D. E. held a meeting in the Public Library last evening, when some important business came up for consideration. Arrangements were made for the dance under the auspices of this Chapter which takes place in the G.W.V.A. Hall on December 14th. Special decorations are being planned for this event, to make it one of the most outstanding events of the season.

At this meeting the Chapter voted the sum of $225 towards various charitable organizations, as follows: $100 to the National Sanitarium Fund for the Muskoka Campaign; $60 to the Armenian Relief Fund, which amount will maintain one orphan for one year; $25 to local relief work, and $10 each to the Children's Aid Society, the G.W.V.A., the Salvation Army and the Navy League.

The Chapter decided also to give $50 towards the erection of the dining hall at Jackson Park, in connection with the Summer Camp for children maintained by the Peterboro Health Association.

SINN FEIN AGREE TO OWN ALLEGIANCE TO THE KING AND SIGNS AN AGREEMENT WHICH MEETS BELFAST PRESS APPROVAL

IRISH FREE STATE NEW NAME OF ERIN

LONDON, Dec. 6.—(Canadian Press).—A Provisional Parliament will be set up almost immediately in Southern Ireland. If Ulster decides to withdraw from the agreement she must submit to the Boundary Commission and receive no more powers, financial or otherwise, than she has at present.

Ireland will be known as the "Irish Free State." She will be recognized as an independent State, with a formula on allegiance satisfactory to both sides. She will have freedom regarding customs tariffs. Satisfactory arrangements have been made regarding the control of the Irish ports by the navy.

AGREEMENT PROVIDES FOR A FREE STATE, WITHDRAWAL OF MILITARY, AND SAFEGUARDS FOR PEACE—CONSENT OF ULSTER NOT NECESSARY—TO BE PRESENTED TO DAIL EIREANN AND BRITISH PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, December 6 (Canadian Press). — The British Cabinet to-day approved the Irish agreement, and congratulated the Premier and the Irish delegates on their success.

Th King telegraphed the Royal congratulations.

LONDON, December 6 (Canadian Press). — It is officially an agreement, the terms of which will be submitted for the acceptance of Parliament and the Dail Eireann.

A copy of the agreement has been sent by special messnger announced that the Government and the Sinn Fein have reached on a destroyer which left for Belfast this morning.

A definite promise of allegiance to the Empire by the Sinn Fein is provided for in the Irish peace agreement, which is said to meet with the absolute approval of the King.

The agreement provides for a free state, withdrawal of all military forces, and safeguards for peaceful conditions.

News of agreement was published in late editions of Belfast morning papers. The Northern Whig says that "If at last the Southern Irish are willing to act as loyal citizens of the Empire, Ulster will co-operate within the limits already defined."

The agreement is a formal detailed and conclusive document, and binds both parties to submit it to their respective Parliaments. It also prevents the necessity of further negotiations.

Should the Dail Eireann agree to the document, it will be embodied in a Bill and submitted to the British Parliament, which will call a special session.

In view of the Irish agreement, Premier Lloyd-George hopes to leave on Saturday for Washington.

Commenting on the agreement, the Freeman's Journal of Dublin says: Ireland needs no assurance that the terms are in harmony with the principle for which she stands. Ireland was aware from the first that these principles contained no menace to the real interests of Britain, and this fact appears now clear to the British statesmen.

The consent of Ulster is not necessary to make the agreement effective She is given the option of withdrawing in a month, reverting to the present standing within the territory to be determined by the Boundary Commission.

HOW COLORS ABSORB LIGHT.

When decorating a room it is well to remember that greens are the greatest thieves of light. A dark green will absorb 85 per cent. of the light; a dark brown perhaps 70 per cent.; an orange 30 per cent.; a light green perhaps 70 per cent.; the light blue 25 per cent., while the soft delicate tints will absorb only about 20 per cent. Pure white absorbs only 15 per cent. of the light thrown upon it.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Shippings, Oils and Motor specialties were conspicuously strong at the opening of to-day's Stock Market. Mercantile Marine Preferred, Standard Oil of New Jersey, U.S. Rubber and Goodrich made gains ranging from large fractions to 1¼ points. Steels and Equipments showed no definite trend, but Lima Locomotive fell four points or about one-third of yesterday's gain. Norfolk and Western, American Linseed Preferred, Central Leather, Tobacco Products and Sears Roebuck re-acted to further pressure.

British exchange made no visible response to the reported settlement of the Irish situation, but German marks strengthened decidedly, and the Swiss franc rose to par, their highest quotation in almost two years.

Business slackened at mid-day, traders then devoting their attention to the main points of the President's message as issued by the news tickers. Many miscellaneous issues, especially Chemicals and Utilities, continued to strengthen but Steels, Shippings and Leather showed losses of one to two points.

Selling of Baldwin Locomotive, International Harvester, Ind. Alcohol and Sears Roebuck, the latter at a new low record for years, unsettled the market during the first hour. The price came back later, however, the 4 1-2 per cent. opening rate of call loans and the strength of foreign exchanges prompting short covering. Foreign Oils, Mexican Petroleum excepted, were strong and Willy Overland Preferred ld th Motors, rising almost five points.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6. — (Canadian Press).—Opening wheat quotations, which varied from 1-8c off to ¼c advance, with May 1.15 to 1.15 3-4 and July 1.03⅛ to 1.03 3-4, were followed by slight further gains and then a moderate re-action.

Corn lacked support. After opening unchanged to 5-8 lower, May 53 5-8 to 54, the market continued weak.

Oats sympathized with wheat rather than corn, starting unchanged to a shade higher, May 38¼, and then hardened a little more.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Dec. 6.—(Canadian Press). — Practically no trading transpired on the local Stock Exchange during the early trading this morning, and the only leaders to register any change whatever were National Breweries, which opened a quarter point weaker at 57 3-4, and Steel of Canada which did likewise at 62.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange irregular; demand, Great Britain, 4.05½; Canadian exchange, 7 11-16 per cent. discount.

TORONTO, Dec. 6.— (Canadian Press.)—A five-point advance by City Dairy Common was the only feature that marked the dull session on the local stock exchange this morning. Prices were unchanged or fractionally lower. Government bonds also tended lower with dealings light except in the 1934 issue.

LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, Dec. 6.— (Canadian Press.)—Receipts 1021; trade good. Choice butcher steers, $5.75 to $6.25; butcher cows, medium, $3 to $4; calves, $9.50 to $11; lambs, $9.50 to $10.50; hogs, selects, $9.90 to $10.15.

THE WEATHER

One of the very few bright and sunshiny days that we have had lately greeted election day. The air was crisp and cold and an agreeable change from the murky and overcast weather that we have had such an abundant supply of lately. This morning the temperature was down to 12 degrees, which is about as close to the zero mark we have had this season as yet. The first zero of last winter did sot come until the middle of January. This season to the present time is very similar to that of last year. It looks like another mild and open winter. Unless it gets off to a good start within the next few weeks it is hardly likely to break any records. —W. P.

A Shrapnel Memento

In a letter recently received an ex-soldier enquired of Capt. John Dewart, whose photo and name he had seen in a newspaper, if he were the same John Dewart to whom he gave first aid when wounded at Paschendale. Capt. Dewart lost no time in replying that he was the man, and the ex-soldier a Red Cross man, sent him the piece of shrapnel which had been buried in his thigh at Paschendale. It seems that after Capt. Dewart's wound had been dressed four German prisoners were ordered to carry him on a stretcher to an ambulance. German planes however, were operating overhead and they dropped a bomb on the waiting ambulance, completely shattering it, when the Germans dropped the stretcher and fled. Captain Dewart's wound was reopened by the jar and bled profusely; but the German bearers were brought back and compelled to carry the stretcher and the wounded man in to the dressing station, which was finally reached in safety.

A brief programme followed when addresses were delivered by Mr. Irwin Hatherly, the newly elected Master, Rev. S. T. Tucker, Rev. C. R. INVESTIGATED A BARN FIRE

BARNS AND CONTENTS OF GEORGE HEALEY DESTROYED LAST NOVEMBER AND CLAIM HELD UP.

To determine the cause of a fire that destroyed the barns of Charles Healey, a farmer of North Monaghan, on November 1st last, and contents, claimed by Healey to be worth $2,000, Provincial Fire Marshal E. P. Heaton held an investigation in the County Council Chambers yesterday and satisfied himself that Healey had had no connection with the fire, but concluded that the Mount Royal Insurance Company had placed too high an apraisal on the contents.

The investigation was made at the request of the company who have not paid the insurance claim, and it is likely that the entire matter will be left with the company to adjust as there was no evidence that Healey caused the fire, and the efforts of the Fire Marshal's department extends only that far.

Crown Attorney Hatton represented the Crown, J. O'Brien for Mr. Healey and V. J. McElderry, the insurance Company.

Witnesses called in the investigation were Charles Healey, James Akey from whom Healey rented the place for $250 a year; Geo. Elliott, who apraised the goods, Talmage Smith, a step-son, who first discovered the fire; Mrs. M. Bryan, 92 Dufferin street, from whom some of the goods were bought, and Thomas Ephgrave, who was appointed adjuster for the company.

Story of Fire.

It was brought out that Mr. Healey was last in the barn about 8.45 on October 31st. The fire was discovered about 4 or 4:30 a.m. Nov. 1st, by his step-son Talmage Smith, who was sleeping across the hall from him. Smith swore Healey said "Oh, my God!" or something like that when he hollered at him. They went to the barns together.

"Do you remember telling him not to say anything about the fire?" asked Mr. Hatton.

"It was never mentioned."

"Do you deny you told him not to say anything about the fire?"

"Cetainly, I deny it. It was never mentioned," Healey maintained.

Pressing him on another point, Mr Hatton said—"Didn't you tell, Leo, your nephew, if anybody said anything about the fire, or any person asked them to tell them exactly as you told him?"

"I did not, sir."

Replying to Mr. Hatton, Healey said that he was the last to leave the barn at night. "How do you account for the fire?"

"I can't say, sir?"

"You haven't any idea?"

"I haven't any idea."

The evidence of the accused was of a non-committal nature. Witness said that one barn was not "safe" so all the goods were in one barn. Mr. Healey said he did not smoke in the barn and had had no company at the house the night of the fire. He stated that he had had a fire in East City.

"When was it?" the Crown Attorney asked.

"I would say about two years ago if not three. It is about there anyway."

He said that he had lost his house and furniture, which was covered by insurance "somewhere in the neighborhood of $1000."

"Did you get it all?"

"Well, as near as I can tell."

"Can't you tell?"

"Well, I'm on my oath. I think I did as near as I can tell."

Mr. Healey said that he had had no trouble getting the insurance.

Appraised Goods.

Mr. George Elliott, general insurance agent, testified to apraising the value of the goods, stock and crop, and submitting his memoranda to the office for a policy. He said he based the value not on what they cost but on what they would cost to replace allowing for depreciation through age. His appraisal, practically what Mr. Healey is claiming, he did not think too high.

Thomas Ephgrave, a local contractor, admitted making out the proof of claim for Mr. Healey. He said that he went out after the fire to adjust the loss as he had done in many other cases. Mr. Hatton described Mr. Ephgrave's acting in this capacity in regard to farm implements as a "presumption."

Dr. W. T. Rogers, the veterinary surgeon, investigated the stock he said, while he investigated the loss of the machinery. The remains of everything but the 60 chickens were found, he said.

It was revealed from Mr. Healey's own evidence that if he recovers his claim, recognized by the adjuster from the company, he will make a tidy profit on some of the goods he claims insurance. For a mower, a seeder and a horse rake that cost $80 he asks $170. A market wagon bought of a truck gardener for $32.50, with a collar and set of harness thrown in, is put down at $50. Other notable items are. A runabout buggy that cost $30, claiming $50; a top buggy that cost $12, claiming $50; a farm wagon which he is claiming $40, was bought of George Stevens for $15. Three horses, on

ENTENTE PLAN INTERESTS ALL AT ARMS MEET

SUGGESTION HAS DEVELOPED TO POINT WHERE TENTATIVE TREATY DRAFT IS UNDER CONSIDERATION.

U. S. MAY OBJECT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(Canadian Press.) — The question of a three or four power agreement to replace the Anglo-Japanese Alliance in demanding increased attention among the Arms delegates while they wait for Japan to define her position on the naval ratio.

The latest suggestion contemplating an entente to include Great Britain, the United States, Japan and France, has developed to the point where a tentative treaty draft is under consideration in some quarters, although it has not been formally presented to the Conference.

There are indications that the Japanese delegates, and perhaps the British as well, are consulting their home government on such a proposition at the same time that they are asking for further instructions in regard to the naval ratio.

On the part of the United States' Government there apparently is no disposition to entertain an entente proposal, at least at the present stage of the negotiations. Later such a proposition may receive consideration, provided it includes no requirements counter to public opinion in the United States.

Upon high authority it was said to-day that the naval problem as it was referred to Tokio after the last meeting of the "Big Three," involves no proposal for a political agreement of any character, but is concerned solely with the naval and military aspects of the situation. The United States delegation adheres to its expectation that the naval issue will be settled without conditioning the decision on any sort of a political rearrangement.

Admiral Baron Kato, of the Japanese delegation, said last night, however, that the naval question involved issues which are of far-reaching effect upon the national and international life of Japan and on the policies of great powers for decades to come and perhaps permanently. These issues, he said, should be brought to the full knowledge and consideration of his government before definite action is taken.

The delay in presenting Japan's definite position on ratio, declared the Japanese statesman, is due wholly to the difficulties of cable communication and the desire of the Japanese Government to act circumspectfully in so important a decision. It has been indicated that it may be late in the week before the Japanese are ready to return a reply to the latest naval proposition.

Meantime, the Conference outwardly is concerning itself with questions of collateral significance. The Committee on Draft, headed by Elihu Root, held a meeting yester-

TO GRANT 3 YEARS' DELAY TO GERMANY

PARIS, Dec. 6. — (Canadian Press.)—Germany will probably be granted a three years' delay in her indemnity payments, the Associated Press is informed from the most reliable source. Negotiations are now going on between the Reparations officials of France and Great Britain and the responsible officials of both countries virtually agree that Germany must be given a breathing spell. All that remains to be done is to work out a scheme acceptable to both countries.

DEBATE OPENS IN U. S. HOUSE ON WATERWAYS

PROJECT OF CO-OPERATION WITH CANADA IN DEEPENING ST. LAWRENCE OPPOSED BY NEW YORK MEMBERS.

MIDDLE WEST IN FAVOR

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(Canadian Press.)—Debate was precipitated in the House yesterday upon its re-convening for the regular session on the question of improving the St. Lawrence River as proposed in the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Deep Waterway project, Representatives Chalmers of Ohio, and A. P. Nelson, of Wisconsin, Republicans, favoring the development, while Representatives Griffin, Democrat, and Hicks, Republcan, both of New York, opposed it. The debate was begun over the protest of Representative Montague, Democrat, Virginia, who declared it would be discourteous for the House to enter into a consideration of specific subjects before hearing President Harding's message.

Representaive Chalmers, in favoring the project, said the completion of the deeper waterway would make of the Great Lakes a Baltic of Mediterranean Sea, and bring the Atlantic Ocean within one hundred miles of the centre of population of the United States, while Rep. Nelson declared it would mean much for the Middle and Northwest. The New York State Barge Canal, he added, was inadequate as an outlet from the Great Lakes to the sea.

Rep. Griffin, however, declared that the New York Barge Canal would be adequate as such an outlet for years to come and contended that funds should not be expended on the St. Lawrence project until the New York canal was showed to be inadequate. Opposition also was expressed by Rep. Hicks. Mr. Griffin expressed the hope that necessity for developing the St. Lawrence would eventually arise, but took the position that the expense should be borne by the Canadian Government and by the States in this country that would be benefitted. Development of the New York Barge Canal.

ALL CONFIDENT WHEN DECISION LEFT TO VOTER

THREE MONTHS OF CAMPAIGNING ENDS AND THREE LEADERS OPTIMISTIC AS BALLOTING BEGINS

CAMPAIGN REMARKABLE

OTTAWA, Dec. 6.—(By Canadian Press.) — Campaigning closed last night with all parties confident. Today the electors—except such as have voted in advance polls— resgister their votes and decide the complexion of the next House of Commons. It has been along and hard fought fight. For three months the campaign has been under way, the three leaders battling over almost the entire Dominion. Day after day they and their supporters have been speaking, carrying the struggle right to the eve of election. Both the Prime Minister and Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, concluded their campaigns by speeches in Ontario. They are due to return to Ottawa to-day, where they receive the results of the election. Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the National Progressives, after a couple of fours in Ontario, spent the last two weeks of the campaign in the western provinces. He will receive the returns at the home of his mother, Mrs. Margaret Crerar, Russell, Manitoba.

The campaign has beei remarkable both in the number of candidates and in the wide range of subjects discussed. For the first time there have been three different parties—or four, counting the Canadian Labor Party—in the field; and, throughout the Dominion, the old two party has given away to the three-cornered fight. The campaign opened with the tariff as the dominant issue, but subsequent developments frequently led discussion for far from the purely economic field.

Voting opened at 8 a.m. and continues till 6 p.m., standard time governing in all constituencies. The only exceptions are a few municipalities near the international boundary in which the voting hours will be from 9 a.m. till 8 p.m.

There is every indication that, given good weather, polling will be heavy. Counting will begin immediately after the close of the polls. Owing, however, to the difference in time, the women's vote and to the probability of close running, final results may not be known till late in the evening or even till next day.

PAINT EXPLODED

Mrs. John Boyd of Thurlow Township met with a peculiar and painful accident recently, when a can of aluminum paint she was opening exploded and discharged its contents full in her face.

The unfortunate victim was as speedily as possible taken to the hospital where at first it was feared the eyesight had been destroyed, but fortunately was not the case, and she is doing as well as could be expected.

The Electrical Age

Its Significance to Canada

Canada is dependent, not upon coal, but upon her water powers for the development of her industrial life.

No other country can compare with the Dominion as regards possibilities of electrical development for manufacturing. Ranking first among the countries of the world in this respect, she has today less than ten per cent. of her water powers harnessed for industrial uses.

For every horsepower of energy developed there must be supplied the necessary equipment for the utilization of that power, and the immense amount required for future development places the electrical manufacturing industry in Canada in the front rank.

The successful manufacture and installation of electrical machinery and equipment demands years of experience and research, large scale organization and resources.

The English Electric Company of Canada, Limited, combines in the one organization the manufacturing, engineering and construction experience of both the English Electric Company, Limited (of Great Britain), and the Canadian Crocker-Wheeler Company, Limited.

We unreservedly recommend the 8% Cumulative Preference Stock of the English Electric Company of Canada, Limited, carrying a bonus of 40% Common, as one of the strongest investments ever placed before the Canadian public.

A LAST REMINDER.

Yesterday, in speaking of the election returns, The Examiner asked its friends to co-operate in providing a good service tonight by not monopolizing the telephone in asking for information. We hope that this request has been received in the spirit in which it was written and that as a result The Examiner's telephone service will be of use to hundreds of electors throughout the district. In addition, we also wish to remind our readers that The Examiner has made arrangements to have the complete returns announced at Brock street rink, and the public is cordially invited to be our guests there and hear the election information in comfort. Extras will be issued by The Examiner and there will be as well an adequate telephone service so that the public should have no difficulty in attaining the results from one of these sources or another. The Examiner office itself will not, however, be open to the public, for the experience of other years has proved that to keen open house on election night is to make it almost impossible for the staff to deal with returns and provide that service to which we believe the public is entitled. We would gladly have our friends with us tonight, but for the reason we have stated it will be impossible for us to play host. Our readers will greatly facilitate our election service if they will bear this in mind.

THE PETERBOROUGH RANGERS.

Reading Lieut.-Col. McPherson's appeal for recruits for the Peterborough Rangers Examiner, readers must have been impressed with the fact that by not identifying themselves with the regiment the young men of Peterborough are losing a golden opportunity. There are no clubs in Peterborough that offer such advantages as membership in the Rangers ensures. Here is a magnificent building, well equipped in every respect, which the men of the city are invited to make their club rooms for the winter. There are bowling alleys, shooting galleries, facilities for indoor baseball and other games, a splendid rink when the cold weather comes, splendid comradeship—in fact, a dozen things that should cause a rush to join the regiment. And not only are there no membership fees to be paid, but the members are themselves paid for attendance at drills. The Rangers have a history of which any militia organization in Canada should feel proud, their officers and non-com's are men with a record of overseas service and association with such a unit should be regarded as a privilege. If the young men of Peterborough are wise they will consider Lieut.-Col. McPherson's appeal carefully, and if they do there should be only one answer. The offer is too good to be rejected.

THE MUNICIPAL FIELD.

It is rather adding insult to injury to remind the citizens of Peterborough who are today congratulating themselves that the long political campaign is over that another campaign is in the offing, yet the fact remains nevertheless that the municipal elections are just around the corner. So far the interest in this annual event has been overshadowed by the Federal contest, but that passes into history today, and it is time to take stock municipally and to consider our local government. The entrance of Ald. J. J. Turner into the Mayoralty race has so far been the only event to break the tranquility that exists in the realm of civic politics. It has not so far produced a rival to challenge Mr. Turner's claim to the chief magistrate's chair. There may be other aspirants, but they are biding their time, and Mr. Turner's name is the only one to be brought prominently forward. The Examiner's suggestion that other citizens who have an ambition to preside over the deliberations of the City Council should announce themselves now so that for once there could be a real contest for the Mayoralty, instead of a week's contest with little chance to consider platforms or issues, has not succeeded in drawing anybody from cover. Perhaps, now that the Federal election is over, there will be a better response.

NO NEED TO WORRY.

People are sometimes heard to lament when referring to the present political conditions that there are no intellectual giants in public life in these days, no great thinkers and statesmen such as were to be found a decade or two ago. That is rather a gloomy view of the situation, and while not wishing to convey the impression that some of the heroes of the past look greater in a retrospective survey than they really were, The Examiner ventures to suggest that statesmen will not be found wanting in Canada. There are scores of new candidates in the contest today, and who knows what future Macdonalds or Lauriers may be discovered in the ranks of those elected? The occasion generally produces the man, and there is no reason to believe that great as have been some of our leaders in the past there is no one to take their places. Some of the candidates elected today may in a few years be found high up the political ladder with their names nationally known as men of wisdom and sagacity. There is no need to be pessimistic.

A GREAT MISSION.

Premier Lloyd George is expected to visit Washington at an early date in order to lend his great influence to the task of ensuring the success of the disarmament conference. If he is able to fulfill this intention, it is reasonably certain that the Prime Minister will score another great diplomatic triumph—the greatest of his career. It is said—let us hope with well-founded authority—that the Premier intends to feel out the Americans on various matters other than disarmament, of supreme importance to the future of mankind. Among these is the question of international indebtedness, German reparations and the resuscitation of Russia. Any intention of suggesting a policy to the United States is carefully repudiated; but it may be safely conjectured that the persuasive eloquence of the British Premier will not be barren of results, if he is permitted to advance his pleas and present his views.

However anxious the United States may be to avoid the discussion of these thorny topics, it is certain that, sooner or later, they are bound to be brought under its official consideration. If not now, then later on to another conference, or by the mooted Association of Nations. There is nothing to be gained by postponing such discussion, but very much to lose. The logic of circumstances will compel the nation on which the future prosperity of the world so largely pivots taking a definite attitude towards the situation which prevails in Europe. However reluctant the Government of the United States may be to enter upon the consideration of these complex problems, necessity will sooner or later force its hands.

The main object of Mr. Lloyd George's visit, however, is stated to be to foster the friendly relationship already existing between the two English-speaking nations. That the personal influence of the Premier will count for very much, goes without saying. There are still sinister influences constantly at work to mar the cordial sentiments which happily prevail on both sides of the Atlantic. Those influences are losing strength, it is true: the disarmament conference has done a great deal towards breaking them down. But the visit of the British Premier would do still more. It is, therefore, to be sincerely hoped that nothing will occur between now and next Saturday to prevent his journey. Momentous issues hang upon his presence.—Hamilton Spectator.

Now it can be told.

One thing is certain, there will be more unhappy candidates than happy ones tonight.

Everybody is at least glad that it is over. It has been a long and not too brilliant a campaign.

What Christmas box for Canada will the election returns tonight disclose?

The merchant who is conservative in profits, liberal in his advertising and progressive in his ideas should draw support from all political classes.

"THREE GATES OF GOLD."

Let every thought thy lips would utter pass three gates of gold—
But if through these it fails to pass,
then let it not be told;
And o'er each gate in silver letters written thou will find,
Above he first one, "Is it true?" the second, "Is it kind?"
And "Is it necessary?" o'er the third
one, and the last.
Then guard thy thoughts, let none escape, save those these gates have passed!

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

A NUT FOR THE ELECTORS OF W. PETERBOROUGH TO CRACK.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—A few days ago there appeared in The Examiner under "The Voice of the People" the following acknowledgment, which has awakened the suspicion of some of your readers:

"To the Editor of The Examiner.

"Sir—As various societies are asking me for my views of matters with which they are more especially concerned, it is proper that the acknowledgments of my replies should be published for general information. I have today received the following acknowledgment of my reply to the Dominion Alliance:

"The Dominion Alliance,
"Toronto, Nov. 22, 1921.

"Mr. J. H. Burnham,
"188 Smith street E.,
"Peterborough, Ont.

"Dear Sir,—Your favor of recent date received. Thanks very much for your kindness in stating your position upon this great issue.

"With best wishes, I am,
"Yours sincerely,
"(Sgd.) Ben. H. Spence,
"Secretary.

"J. H. BURNHAM."

The reader is compelled to ask why Mr. Burnham was so careful to publish the "acknowledgment" if his reply to the Dominion Alliance, unaccompanied by his own reply.

The writer was curious enough to personally write Rev. Ben. H. Spence, the Alliance Secretary, and ask for a copy of Mr. Burnham's letter. He secured the following reply:

"Herewith I am sending you the replies received from Messrs. Gordon and Burnham of Peterborough. I do not understand why Mr. Burnham should have published my letter acknowledging his without publishing his own to me."

And what was his reply to Mr. Spence? Here it is:

"West Peterborough,
"188 Smith St. E.

"In reply to yours of recent date, permit me to say that I am a total abstainer and will follow my leader, Mr. Meighen, in whatever temperance legislation he may introduce, looking to the improvement and well being of the country.

"J. H. BURNHAM,
"Liberal-Conservative Candidate,
'West Peterborough."

Did Mr. Burnham intentionally withhold this bit of information from The Examiner readers because there was an election on in West Peterborough in which he was so personally interested? If not, what interest could the mere publishing of the "acknowledgment" serve? Was he not fearful that the electors have good memories and would recall what his actual position is on the question of prohibition as recorded in Hansard of the House of Commons of 1920, where he says as he closes that memorable speech on prohibition:

"The reason I ridicule and fight it is because it is an anti-Christian measure. No man can be a prohibitionist without sneering at the policy of the Most High, which is not prohibition. There is no prohibition of evil in the Christian religion. The prohibitionist cannot be a religious man. He is nothing but a tyrant. It is because I hope I am at heart a Christian and a religious man that I am fighting prohibition and will fight it to the end, because I believe that it does not come from God and cannot be supported by a single quotation from the word of God. I believe it comes from the devil whither it will go."

Hence, according to Mr. Burnham's view, the people in the respective Provinces of Canada and of the United States who have enacted prohibitory temperance legislation are simply instruments of his satanic esty. What a compliment to the intelligence of the electors for a representative of the people to give from his place in Parliament!

And what is Mr. Gordon's position on the temperance question, as embodied in his reply to the Secretary of the Dominion Alliance. Here it is as published in The Pioneer:

"Peterborough, Nov. 16, 1921.

"I beg to acknowledge your circular letter of the 16th inst., addressed to the candidates for Dominion Parliament.

"1—There is at the present time Prohibition in the Provinces which have voted for Prohibition upon a Referendum and administration of that Act depends upon the authorities of those Provinces.

"2—It seems to me that successful administration of legislation of this character depends upon the volume of public opinion friendly to such legislation, and Provincial Prohibition is a matter to be dealt with by each Province, and the electors of that Province. I mean by that that I do not think the Dominion Parliament should enact laws attempting to change the system of Government control, say in British Columbia, where the British Columbia electors have decided, by vote, that they desire a certain system. In other words, my feeling is that the electors of each Province should not be interefered with in the administration of their own affairs.

3—I am prepared to support any legislation which a Referendum of of the people endorses, so long as it does not interfere with the rights of the people of the different Provinces to decide their own manner of dealing with this particular issue.

"Yours faithfully,
"G. N. Gordon."

Will the electors please compare very carefully the respective positions of the two candidates on the question of prohibitory temperance legislation. Mr. Gordon's position is democratic, whilst that of Mr. Burnham would thwart the will of the people because no matter what the view of the people might be, believing as he does that Prohibition "cannot be supported by a single quotation from the Word of God" and "that it comes from the devil, whither it will go," therefore, to be consistent, people or no people, to the lower regions Prohibition must go.

How would electors like to have the House of Commons full of representatives after the same mind as Mr. Burnham?

And this is the nut I have asked the electors of West Peterborough, both men and women, to crack. I am convinced that if the nut is cracked and carefully examined, its contents will be found to contain a vote for G. N. Gordon which, if placed in the ballot box to-morrow, 6th December, will mean that West Peterborough will send to Parliament a representative in the person of Mr. Gordon, of whom no one will feel ashamed, and who will command the respect of the members of the House of Commons of Canada, where he took his place last session with great credit to himself as well as to the constituency of West Peterborough, and during which session he gave such signal service to the people of Canada.—I am, yours truly, follows: Messrs. E. Ryley, S. Kennedy, S. W. Bruce, of Lindsay, W. Daly, H. Sweeney, of Rochester, and B. Killaby, of Sarnia.

J. Middleton.

Before her marriage Mrs. Horner was employed in Mr. J. McBride's store, Millbrook, for three or four years, and won many warm friends during her residence here. Here was a splendid Christian character, finding expression in a cheerful disposition, a faithful attendance at, and service for, her church, and as a devoted wife and mother in her home. She will be sadly missed by a large circle of relatives and friends. Since the return of his sister, Mrs. Offa Williamson, of the 7th Line, Cavan, Mr. Horner has secured the services of a very capable housekeeper, Miss Wicks, of Madoc, who is taking charge of the children and also attending to the needs of the home, as Mr. Horner's duties, as a conductor on the railway, make it necessary for him to be absent from his family during the major portion of his time.

Hutchinson Funeral

The late Mr. John Hutchinson, whose funeral took place from his famliy residence Lot 13, Con. 7, Cavan, on Sunday, December 4th., at 2.30 p.m., was born in Centreville on the 18th of January, 1841, hence was in his 81st year at the time of his death. He was a son of Matthew Hutchinson and one of the oldest residents of Cavan, having lived in this township for fifty-four years, most of that time on the present homestead. He was twice married, his first wife being Elizabeth Sutton, who lived only about one year after her marriage. His second wife was a daughter of the Rev. John Thompson, the first rector of Cavan and she pre-deceased him only about eight weeks ago following a stroke of paralysis. Of their eleven children two died in infancy and the nine who are still living are:—Matthew of Seattle, Bert of Olympia ,Lewis of Winnipeg, Roy and Oscar of Kemptville, Mrs. Earchman of Kemptville, Mrs. Miller of Boston, Mrs. E. Falls of Cavan and Miss Essie at home.

Only one sister Mrs. Gault survives her brother, and there are also five nephews, Sidney and Fred of Cavan, George of Toronto, Percy of Winnipeg and Wesley of Millbrook, besides several neices and grandchildren and these with the immediate members of the family are left to mourn the loss of one who was a highly-respected citizen, and leave the sincere sympathy of the entire community in the shocking accident which resulted in Mr. Hutchinson's death.

Deceased was on has way to Cavan Station for a load of freight when the Toronto-Montreal C.P.R. express, which was half an hour late and so unexpected by Mr. Hutchinson, who was always very careful when approaching a level crossing struck his waggon killing him instantly. Both horse were also killed and the waggon of course, completely wrecked. The funeral, which was very largely attended, was under the auspices of the L.O.L. No. 70. The services at the house and St. John's Church, Ida, were conducted by Rev. Canon Allen, as the deceased was a member of the Anglican communion practically all his lif. In the absence of the Chaplin for the Orange Order, Rev. C. R. Spencer, M. J. T. Byam took charge of their ritual for a deceased brother at the house and also at the grave.

The many beautiful floral tributes bore evidence to the esteem in which the late Mr. Hutchinson was held by his many relatives and friends. The pall-bearers were all members of the Orange Order and included: Messrs. C. Lunn, A. J. Henderson, I. Nattrass, E. Keegan, H. Rody and W. McKnight.

All the children, except the two sons Matthew and Bert, who are in Washington Territory, were home for the funeral; also Colonel Earchman, a son-in-law, and Master Errol Miller, a grandson, who came with his mother from Boston.

Had Mr. Hutchinson and his wife survived until the 18th of February 1922 their married life would have extended over the unusually long period of fifty-four years.

YOUNG GIRL SHOT IN CLASH OF SHIPS' CREWS.

HAVANA, Dec. 6. — (Canadian Press). — A fourteen-year-old girl, Ramon Bestara, was killed by a stray bullet yesterday during a clash between Cuban stevedores and the crew of the United States lumber schooner Parson, of Santiago. A despatch from Santiago reports that the trouble between the stevedores and the seamen resulted from the fact that the captain of the schooner was using his crew instead of Cuban dock workers in unloading the vessel. The Cuban authorities and the United States Consul are investigating the affair.

DEBATE OPENS IN U. S. HOUSE

he pointed out, was undertaken at the expense of New York State.

Propaganda had been widely spread throughout the country, he charged, to prejudice the public against the barge canal which, he added, was "able to compete with any other waterway that can be devised by the ingenuity of man."

Representative Hicks suggested it might prove a mistake to "put our money on a soil and in a project where we could not control the canal itself." United States ships, if they use the St. Lawrence route, he said, would have to go through foreign territory.

Urging development of the St. Lawrence waterway, Rep. Nelson declared that on the grain produced within the territory affected, it would bring a saving of approximately $350,000,000 annually.

"The saving of other commodities will be very great," he continued, "and it may be conservatively estimated that the producers of the United States will be benefitted to the extent of at least five hundred millions, in return for a total expenditure of less than $150,000,000, which will be reimbursed to the Government in full by the revenue derived from water power."

NERVOUS BREAKDOWN
COULDN'T SLEEP NIGHT

To those on the verge of a nervous breakdown the following symptoms present themselves: nervous headaches, a feeling of depression, fitful, disturbed, restless and unrefreshing sleep, often troubled with frightful dreams, avoidance of crowded places, dread of being alone, horror of society, etc.

When the nerves become affected in this way the heart generally becomes affected too, and on the first signs of any weakness of the heart or nerves, flagging energy or physical breakdown do not wait until your case becomes hopeless, but get a remedy that will at once quieten the nerves, strengthen the heart and build up the entire system.

This you will find in

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. M. Damgand, Young's Cove Road, N.B., writes: "I was bothered very much with my heart and nerves; had nervous headaches and dizziness, could not sleep at nights, and my appetite was all gone. I was on a nervous breakdown when a neighbor told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. This I did, and before I had the second box used I was better and would advise anyone who has nerve trouble to take them."

Other items he claimed were two tons of hay at 25 a ton and 350 bushels of oats worth $300. Mr. Ephgrave admitted that it was hard to tell how many oats there had been afer the fire.

ENTENTE PLAN INTERESTS ALL

day and debated the problem of foreign telegraph and radio facilities in China, virtually deciding to bring in a resolution providing that as many of these facilities as exist without treaty sanction shall have only a curtailed use hereafter.

The Shantung conversations, proceeding between the Japanese and Chinese under the eye of United States and British observers, were advanced another step, but developed no important conditions.

The committee of the whole on the Far East is to meet again on Wednesday, bringing the full membership of the Conference together again after a recess of four days. An open session of the conference itself may be held late in the week, but no plans for it have been made.

The United States belief that the naval question can be settled independent of political issues, although borne out thus far by the direction taken by the negotiations, apparently is not readily accepted in all quarters. A British spokesman recently declared that in the British view the naval and Far Eastern problems were bound up in the same sheaf and there have been indications of the same opinion among some Japanese despite the public announcement of Admiral Baron Kato that he was ready to consider a naval agreement without reference to the political consideration involved.

It is considered possible that in the present period of waiting, the two threads of negotiations may become so tangled in the foreign capitals as to give the United States delegation considerable trouble in separating them when the discussions here are resumed. It would not surprise some observers if there should be an attempt to make the final reply of one or more of the government's conditional on a political agreement of one sort or another.

The proposal for a four-power entente, as now advanced, is considered an outgrowth of the suggestion of Mr. Lloyd George, made several weeks ago in Parliament, that the Washington Conference might well consider merging the Anglo-Japanese Alliance into an arrangement to which the United States would be a party. The Japanese have shown an inclination to take up that proposal, and it has been mentioned more than once to the United States delegates during their informal conversations with their foreign associates.

These hints have never brought the subject to the point of a formal exchange of vews, however, nor revealed even to the heads of the foreign delegations just how far the United States might be willing to go in that direction. Neither will the United States representatives discuss the queston publicly, but they are known to regard it as fraught with many complicated possibilities.

In every consideration of a possible treaty or international understanding to replace the alliance the United States delegates have kept in mind the possible temper of the Senate, should it be asked to ratify such an agreement. With two senators sitting as members of the delegation, it is assumed that if a formal treaty were negotiated Senate sentiment first would be carefully canvassed. An "understanding" would not require Senate confirmation, but it is conjectural how binding an agreement of that character President Harding and his plenipotentiaries would care to effect.

With the reassembling of the Senate yesterday for the new term there were indications that senators were watching the trend of the negotiations with growing interest and that a discussion revealing the opinions of some members of the treaty-ratifying body might b precipitated on the Senate floor within a few days.

LLOYD GEORGE UNABLE TO COME TO PARLEYS?

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(Canadian Press.)—The statement that "it was unlikely that Lloyd George will come to the Washington Conference," was made late yesterday by a member of the British delegation to the Armament Conference. While no direct word has been received of Lloyd George's intentions, the British delegate, who declined to be quoted, declared that unofficial advices from the British Foreign Office plainly indicated that the British Premier would not be able to make the trip. The serious turn in the Irish negotiations and other pressing domestic matters which required Lloyd George's attention, he added, would keep him at home.

SUPPORT TARIFF REDUCTION AND WIN

TORONTO, Dec. 6. —(Canadian Press.)— Maintaining that a reduction of the tariff was desirable, the University of Toronto won the inter-University debate with McGill at Convocation Hall last night. "Resolved that a substantial reduction should be made in the Canadian tariff by the incoming Dominion Parliament," was the affirmative which the Varsity debaters, J. Friend Day and G. C. Hern were called upon to prove against J. O. Preston and W. Roy Dillon, McGill representatives, who argued for protection.

DENIES JAPAN PLAYS A BARGAINING GAME

WASHINTON, Dec. 6.— (Canadian Press.)—Emphatic denial that Japan is playing what is called a bargaining game in Washington, was made last night by Admiral Kato, acting head of the Japanese delegation. He attributed the delays to the cable situation, adding that the issues involved could not be decided without the "fullest knowledge and consideration of the Japanese government." He said the conference would be able to agree on an adjustment, "fair to all parties."

Millions Who Are Sick Need This Medicine

Will Be a Revelation to Suffering Humanity—Cleans Liver in a Few Minutes—Symptoms of Liver Trouble are: Sallow Complexion, Bad Taste in Mouth on Rising, Tired, Out of Sorts, Etc.

This new drug is called Tanated Calomel. It acts only on the Liver, which immediately relieves many troubles, as Rheumatism, Constipation, Boils, Kidney Pains, etc. No Salts, Seidlitz, are necessary after taking, because it is self-eliminating. It does not have a nauseating sickening feeling the next day, like so many similar drugs. You, no doubt, have been taking all sorts of laxatives, Salts, castor oil, etc., with only temporary results. The reason is that some of these draw liquid from the blood and tissues, causing a great flush. What you need is something like Tanated Calomel, which causes the Bile to be excreted from the Liver into the Bowel, causing a natural elimination of the waste. You know waste allowed to remain in the system causes a multitude of troubles. I can venture to say that 90 per cent. of all sickness is due directly to this very thing. What is generally the first thing your doctor does when you are sick? He gets your Bowels operating so as to eliminate wastes in your Bowels, which are poisoning your system. Now, in order to be happy, healthy, vigorous, vivacious bright, alert, keen to observe and understand, you must first keep your Liver clean, or you are coaxing all sorts of trouble upon yourself. Doctors recommend that you take a tablet before eating and one at bedtime. Just get some of these, and I feel assured that you will feel as if you had a new lease of life.

These Tanated Calomel Tablets are for sale by F. C. Webber, Charlotte street.

WESTERN LAND CLAIMS ISSUE IN MARITIMES

ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT SECTIONAL ISSUES RAISED

HALIFAX, N.S., Dec. 6.—Of the supplementary and sectional issues which are engaging the attention of Maritime candidates for the Federal Parliament, none perhaps is more important than the question of securing a settlement of the long outstanding claims of the Maritime provnces with respect to the disposition of the lands in the three Prairie Provinces. Ontario and Quebec originally forming part of the Dominion domain. However they may differ on other questions, the Maritime representatives in the next parliament will, if pre-election declarations are adherred to, act as a unit in pressing for settlement of these claims. The question at issue has been a bone of contention for years between the Maritime and Prairie Governments, with the Federal Government occupying a position between the disputants sufficiently difficult and delicate, as the Maritime claim to an equity in the original Dominion domain is repudiated by the Prairie Provinces.

Briefly the Maritime demands based on their claim to proprietary interest in the Dominion lands are,—

(1) That the Dominion Government grant them compensation as an equivalent for lands reserved for school purposes for the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

(2)—That the Dominion Government grant them compensation as an equivalent of cash subsidies, purporting to be in lieu of lands which the Dominion has paid to the three Prairie Provinces.

(3) —That the Dominion Government grant them compensation as an equivalent of lands added to Ontario and Quebec since Confederation

When Confederation was formed the four original provinces retained ownership of lands within their borders, which, in the case of Ontario and Quebec, were then much contracted, compared with their present boundaries. When Prince Edward Island and British Columbia joined ownership the Confederation their provincial governments also reserved ownership of their undeveloped lands. The Dominion included in these Provinces covered about 500,000,000 acres, and outside of them was an area of two billion acres, over which the Dominion eventually extended its authority. The Federal Government presently added 115,696,000 acres to Ontario and 328,699,000 acres to Quebec, but but when the Prairie Provinces were created, it followed an American precedent and retained control of the unoccupied lands, paying the Prairie Provinces subsides in lieu thereof. Again following an American precedent the Dominion by the Land Act of 1872 set aside one-eighteenth of the public domain for school purposes a territory estimated at 100,000,000 acres.

According to calculations made by Maritime Governments, the Dominion government has expended in the purchase of Western Lands and their administrations, and in subsidies to three Prairie Provinces, a sum amounting, after proceeds of land sales are deducted, over $60,000,000, and the Maritime claim that while they have contributed their share of this expenditure they have received nothing in return

In view of the adoption by the Dominion of the old American land policy, the Maritimes hold that American precedent should be followed in the adjustment of their claims. When the United States began to extend towards the west, some of the original thirteen states claimed that their territory extended towards the west some of the original thirteen states claimed that their territory extended to the Pacific coast. The Federal Government to settle the inter-state disputes asserted its authority over the western lands, much of which it had acquired by purchase, and undertook their administration. As the Federal authority sold or distributed the lands, all the States shared on the basis of their representation in Congress, the money or lands being earmarked for educational purposes. In 1862, for instance, the Washington Government granted to all the existing States thirty thousand acres of land for each representative they had in Congress, and States in which there were no public lands, were given land-script secured by lands in undeveloped territories.

The Canadian Government by the Land Act of 1872 set aside 24,213,200 acres of land for school purposes in the Prairie Provinces, and on this land it has set a value of $191,855,400. Up to recently, sales of these lands had brought in $16,997,300 and this sum stands to the credit of the three Western provinces, yielding at five percent an annual revenue of $848,865. Out of this revenue there had been paid to three provinces up to March 31, 1918, the sum of $7,082,987 and it is estimated that when the school lands are all sold, the three Prairie Provinces will have a revenue of nearly $10,000,000 annually.

The Maritimes claim that to establish a balance between the east and the west, the Dominion Government should place to their credit a sum equivalent on the basis of population to the amounts already credited to the three Prairie Provinces as principal from the sale of lands and paid to them as interest and allow the interest on this sum to be used by the three Eastern provinces for Educational purposes. The Maritime governments estimate that under such an arrangement they would be entitled to the following credits and interest payments:

Nova Scotia—Amount at credit of Province, $8,917,878,80; annual interest at 5%, $445,893.90.

New Brunswick—Amount at credit of Province, $6,447,736.20; annual interest at 5%, $322,386.80.

Prince Edward Island—Amount at credit of Province $1,710,623.90; annual interest at 5%, $85,531.90.

The Maritimes contend that their credits on this account should increase in proportion as further credits accrue to the Western provinces from the further sales of school lands.

In the event of the Dominion Government transferring the unsold lands to the Prairie Provinces and continuing to pay them the subsidies on account of lands already sold, the Maritimes demand an equivalent subsidy based on population would, according to the Maritime calculations, be divided as follows:—

Nova Scotia—$562,500 annually.

New Brunswick—$375,000 annually.

Prince Edward Island $150,000 annually.

The Maritime claims are flatly opposed by the Prairie Governments and Ontario and Quebec having enormously increased their girths, show little interest in the dispute.

SUNDAY SERVICES AT MARK STREET CHURCH

LARGE CONGREGATIONS ENJOY BOTH MUSIC AND SERMON

Unusually large congregations greeted the pastor and the choir on Sabbath at both services at Mark street, and the solo by Mr. Ridyard was well received.

"The Expulsive Power of a New Affection" was the subject of the morning sermon, and was an exposition of Rev. XXXI:5, "Behold I make all things new."

From the Book of God, from the volume of nature, and from the record of human experience, God is ever making the announcement, "Behold, I make all things new." "New heaven," "new earth," "new heart," "new name," and "a new and living way," in which a "new spirit" shall walk and talk with his divine author. What a pleasing thought for a discouraged soul, that God makes a new day every twenty-four hours, and a man may cut loose from the dead body of his past sins and blunders, walk with his face to the sun, have all the shadows fall behind him, and stand with head erect at eventide, in the sunset glow of a perfect day.

Society's Challenge.

The mission of the church is a mighty one. She is to introduce a living Christ to a dying world. She is to proclaim a gospel that shall save the whole man, soul and mind and body. The old evangelism touched the soul. The new evangelism touches the whole man. The gospel of the Son of God is as broad and deep as human need and human suffering. This gospel asks, not only, is your soul saved; but it inquires about your work, your wages, the comfort of your wife and children. Oh, yes, the message of God is a message of peace, comfort, good cheer in this life, and eternal rest beyond. But the son of selfishness and greed, whether he be in the pulpit or in the pew, hides his guilty head behind the mask of a false optimism and speaks thus: "Oh, things are getting better. "God's in His heaven and it's well with the world." No, it is not well with the world.

Heart-ache of World.

Did you ever stand on London bridge and look upon the moving mass of humanity Twenty-five thousand vehicles and one hundred pedestrians cross the great artery of the world's metropolis every twenty-four hours. Along the Thames embankment, multitudes of weary, homeless, discouraged, and suffering men lie down to sleep in the wretched arms of hunger and poverty. The question of human poverty, suffering, immorality, disease, and unrest is appalling. It arrests our philosophy of life. It hinders our happiness, and hammers at the door of our soul. Why is the problem of social existence so far from being solved? Why is our science of life still no science at all? Why is it that men are not saner and grander and nearer to divinity? There is onlyone answer.

Christ the Only Hope.

When Christ came the whole world was under the iron heel of the Roman empire. Society was honeycombed with corruption. The whole social order was tottering to its fall. Men writhed in bondage, but dare not speak. Jesus Christ was the healer of the great open sore. "Behold I make all things new," is the message for the masses. He will bring into being a new social order by the "expulsive power of a new affection," the creative power of a new idea. Jesus made all things and, so understands all things. He made Galilee and calmed it; He made the eye, so restored its sight; He made the hand, and so knew how to heal the arm which had withered. A young mountaineer saw a caged eagle in a window for sale. He bought it, set it free 'mid the cheering of the crowd. When asked by the bystanders why he set the bird free, he replied, "I have seen the eagle on the hill and could not bear to see the king of the air in a cage.' Jesus saw humanity on the hills of God before the fall, and could not bear to see men of the skies in the bondage of sin, so He will renovate the social order and set it free.

The Greatest Sin.

The greatest sin in the world is not drunkenness or Sabbath-breaking, or fraud, or idolatery, or murder. The most withering and blighting sin of the age of our nation is the crime of impurity. Impurity is the head of Antichrist. It is the devil fish that lurks in the sea of humanity. There is no sin out of hell so hard to fight. Impurity is a menace to civilization and to religion infinitely bolder and infintely more destructive than infidelity. It is the most contagious disease of the soul. It is the spirit of the age, and it is already so insolent in power and so boastful in its logic that unless it be immediately attacked it will defy destruction.

Against Impurity.

The whole church of God must be endowed with the Holy Ghost. Every individual member must be actuated by the expulsive power of a new affection for humanity. We must exalt women to that sublime status of which Jesus Christ possessed her—a queen of humanity. Impurity must be attacked publicly, politically, and with calm, continuous, intense concentration of every energy of God's church. If the greatest stimulus to evil is an impure suggestion, then we must stimulate purity by wholesome suggestion. Let the rubbish of all excuses for preaching e removed fromo ur pulpits, such as the lantern slides, the essay, the nice little "talk" on biography. Let us stand forth with God's burning message of a full salvation for a weary world of sin. And the people will heed us.

SALVATION ARMY WOMEN CAN'T WEAR SHORT SKIRTS

WINNIPEG, Dec. 6.—(Canadian Press.)—The women officers of the Salvation Army must wear their skirts not more than six inches from the ground, Commissioner William Eadis, of the Salvation Army ruled in an address to officers and cadets on discipline and regulations nuring the congress in session here. He deplored the prevailing fashion of short skirts and said he had not noticed a tendency among women officers to conform to present fashions. On one occasion he said, several of them had presented 'quite a show' because of the curtailment of their garments.

BOUCHARD MAY LOSE HIS AMATEUR CARD

MONTREAL, Dec. 6.—Following affidavits from Raoul Latreille, former backer of the Montreal Hockey League, to the effect that Edouard Bouchard, noted amateur hockey star, had been paid $50 a game for playing with the Hochelaga team last season, Bouchard is in line for loss of his amateur card.

"I cannot suspend Bouchard on the strength of the newspaper reports, but if I see the affidavit, I will certainly do so," said W. R. Granger, President of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association here yesternay.

Bouchard, over the long distance telephone from Three Rivers, denied en bloc the charges and asked why other amateurs were not being charged.

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens So Naturally That Nobody Can Tell.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

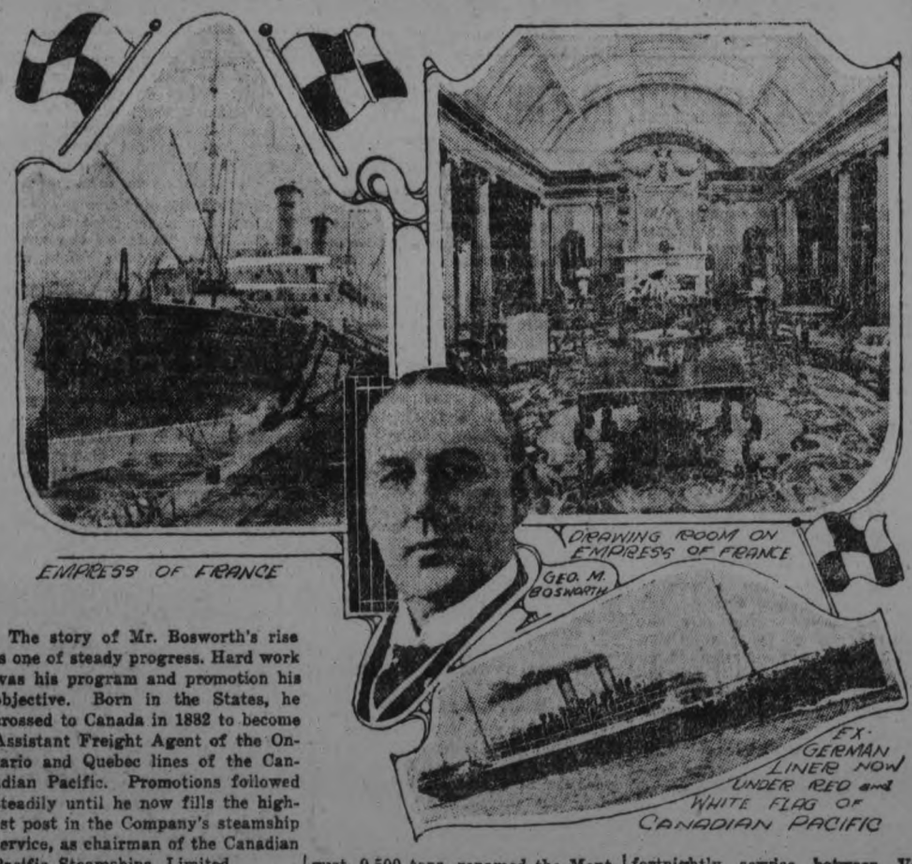
COMMANDS FLEETS ON TWO OCEANS



The story of Mr. Bosworth's rise is one of steady progress. Hard work was his program and promotion his objective. Born in the States, he crossed to Canada in 1882 to become Assistant Freight Agent of the Ontario and Quebec lines of the Canadian Pacific. Promotions followed steadily until he now fills the highest post in the Company's steamship service, as chairman of the Canadian Pacific Steamships, Limited.

Under his administration the Canadian Pacific boats did splendid war service, carrying troops — Anzacs, Americans and Canadians, to say nothing of hordes of Chinese laborers to work behind the lines—and vast stores of munitions and foods. A number were sunk but the Canadian Pacific quickly replaced them and has since augmented its fleet until Mr. Bosworth has to-day thirty-two in operation and two building. Among those recently acquired are four ex-German ships, The Koenig Friedrich August, 9,500 tons, renamed the Montreal, operated in the Mediterranean service; the Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm, 17,500 tons, and the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, 25,000 tons, renamed the Empress of India and the Empress of Scotland, both being operated in the Atlantic service, and the Tirpitz, 19,300, renamed Empress of Australia, now being converted into an oil-burner, which will be placed in the Pacific service together with the Empress of Canada, Empress of Asia and Empress of Russia, which will enable the Canadian Pacific to maintain a fortnightly service between Vancouver and the Orient.

Mr. Bosworth is a great believer in oil-fuel; all of the new ships burn oil and the other large passenger carriers are being converted into oil-burners.

The steady increase in the tonnage of the Canadian Pacific fleets on both Atlantic and Pacific Oceans with the addition of great liners such as the Empress of Scotland, the Empress of Canada and the Empress of Australia draws attention to Mr. George M. Bosworth, Chairman of the Company, which operates this part of the Canadian Pacific system.

ALASKA! EMPIRE IN THE MAKING

(By Hector J. Neil).

When Robert W. Service wrote the following lines, he expressed in a very charming way, the unanimous sentiment of the thousands of red-blooded men who live in, or have lived in, Alaska, and love her, as they never have, and never can, love any other land:

"Oh! There's the land. (Have you seen it?)
It's the cussedest land that I know
From the big, dizzy mountains that screen it,
To the deep, deathlike valleys below.
Some say God was tired when he made it;
Some say it's a fine land to shun;
Maybe: but there's some as would trade it
For no land on earth—and I'm one."

Alaska, in the same latitude as Norway, Sweden and Finland, has an area a third greater than the combined area of those countries, which support a population of eleven million, while Alaska has approximately only fifty thousand, of whom only about twenty-five thousand are white.

Wealth in Fisheries

The Scandinavian countries have little mineral wealth more than iron; no gold; not nearly the area of arable lands or the wealth of fisheries with which Alaska has been so lavishly endowed. Finland, with an area less than one-fourth the size of Alaska, had a population in 1910 of little more than three million. The total value of her products for the year of 1909 is shown to be about $79,468,000, while that of Alaska for the year of 1918, with a population more than sixty times smaller, was $81,161,561.

In Alaska, during the last few years, there has been a development that, although small, has been far reaching in its importance and has demonstrated that the broad valleys of the territory will furnish in great part the food for Alaskans and that agriculture will prove profitable where a local market is secured

When the United States Government railroad, now nearing completion, shall have opened the way to the economical development of Interior Alaska, the commerce and output of all products of the country will expand rapidly. At present, production is limited to the narrow belt of territory along the coast, the Copper River and Northwestern railroad, and the navigable waterways.

Gold and Silver

During the last five years, and while the Government railroad has been under survey and construction, Alaska has exported from the limited area open to construction and industry, products of a value of over $335,000,000 of which gold and silver represent less than $75,000,000. The total commerce of Alaska during this period was over $500,000,000.

Since the purchase of Alaska by the United States from Russia for the sum of $7,200,000 in the year of 1867, the value of the territory's exported products has been in excess of $850,000,000, while the total commerce has exceeded $1,3000,000,000, an output of practically two dollars for every dollar received, a result that challenges comparison with any country.

Town of Nenana

Since returning from Alaska I have been frequently asked to describe an Alaskan town. So I shall endeavor here and now to give a brief, and accurate, description of the town of Nenana. Although Nenana is a new town and is often referred to as the model Government town of the territory, it is really very typical of all of the larger and up to date towns in central and Southern Alaska.

Nenana was founded by the Alaskan Engineering Commission in 1916, as a necessary part of the plan of railroad construction, under special regulations issued by the President of the United States, through the commissioner of the general land office, and is governed jointly by a townsite manager, appointed by the commission and a board of trustees elected by the people. This plan of administration will continue until title to the property has passed from the Government to those who have purchased lots, upon the completion of their payments.

Nenana is situated on the south bank of the Tanana river, at the confluence of that stream with the Nenana river, approximately two hundred miles upstream from the mouth of the Tanana river and about eighty miles downstream from the old mining town of Fairbanks. Here are located divisional headquarters buildings and shops of the Government railroad, now nearing completion, and in the future operation of the railroad Nenana will be the point of transfer from the railroad to river points on the upper and lower anana and the Yukon, and to adjacent mining districts.

The townsite comprises 186.88 acres, the survey of which was started on June 19th, 1916, and completed on August 14th, 1916. The business lots are 25 by 100 feet in size and the residence lots 50 by 140 feet. Adjoining the townsite on the west is the railroad reserve, on which are located the buildings erected by the Alaskan Engineering Commission, including administration and store buildings, warehouses, dormitories, engine-house, machine shops, messhouse, sawmill, hospital, power-plant telephone exchange, barns and employees' cottages, the total number of Government structures being 47.

On the east, the townsite is bounded by St. Mark's mission grounds, on which are located St. Mark's chapel, a school for native children, the homes of the mission workers and those of the natives resident in the village.

Sail Productive

Adjoining the townsite on the south are sections 23 and 24, which have been divided into acre tracts for garden purposes, several of which are now under cultivation, the soil being very productive. Potatoes, turnips, carrots, cabbage, cauliflower, celery, beets, peas, string beans, lettuce, and radishes grow abundantly, as do also oat hay, wheat, oats, and barley, crops of which have been raised successfully, notwithstanding the fact that the soil in the immediate neighborhood of Nenana has not been under cultivation sufficiently long to insure the best results. One potato patch near Nenana has a record of six tons to the acre. The growing season at Nenana is about seven to ten days longer than that of any other section in Central Alaska.

The lots occupied by merchants and residents of Nenana were sold by the Government at public auction the first sale taking place on August the 24th and 25th, 1916. At this and subsequent sales, a total of 428 lots were disposed of, with an aggregate valuation of $139,990.

Over three hundred building permits have been issued since the founding of the town, representing an investment of $256,500, in addition to which there is a personal property valuation of $400,000. Other buildings, not included in the above, are a telegraph office, erected by the United States Department of War, a marshal's office erected by the Department of Justice and also a jail building erected by the same department, a modern public school building, 40 by 74 feet, built by the Alaskan Engineering Commission, at a cost of $13,435.00, and a municipal building and firehall, costing $5,950.00.

Wide Graded Streets

Nenana has 30,000 feet of wide streets, nearly all of them graded, and 8,000 feet of sidewalks, costing $32,290.00. The streets are well lighted by twenty-nine 200-watt electric lamps, and a good water supply is furnished the town through 000 feet of mains. Sewage mains total 2,500 feet, the cost of them along with the water mains totalling over $15,700.00. The town also has an excellent telephone service, with long-distance connections with the construction camps along the Government railroad, north and south of Nenana, and with Fairbanks, distant approximately eighty miles. There are also telegraphic connections with all parts of Alaska and the States, by means of the Alaska military and marine cable

The Nenana waterfront is one the most substantially constructed and extensive in Central Alaska, extending practically the entire length the town. It consists of rip-rap, with gravel surfacing. Steamers of the largest type used on the Interior rivers can dock here, and during the summer months the front is lined with a great variety of craft, operating as passenger and freight carriers between Nenana and other towns along the rivers, from Dawson City, on the upper Yukon, to St. Michael, on the shores of Bering sea. Fast passenger launches maintain a daily service between Nenana and Fairbanks during the open season of navigation.

Nenana's school, the Franklin K. by name, although not as large as some, is one of the best in the territory. The building is new and well appointed and the teachers, of whom there are two, are well adapted for the range of instruction required. The pupils usually number about thirty five to forty, of all grades, including the first two grades of of high school.

Nenana also has a night school, conducted regularly during the winter months and free to all over the age of sixteen. The school is conducted by one teacher, his salary and other expenses in connection with the school being paid from the Territorial school fund. The Nenana night school was the first established in the territory.

There are four churches in Nenana, one of them Grace Presbyterian church, having the distinction of being the only self-supporting Evangelical church in the North. The other churches are St. Mark's Episcopal chapel, Christian Science society, and the Roman Catholic church, the aggregate membership being about two hundred.

Paid Fire Chief

Nenana's fire department is composed of a regularly paid fire chief, and volunteer firemen, consists of two units, manning two chemicals two hose carts, or sleds, according to season, supplemented by 3,000 feet of 2½ inch regulation fire hose and ladders. Good work is being done and has been done by them with the result that there has been no serious fires since the establishment of the town.

Nenana has a Commercial club membership of nearly one hundred, which has a record of achievement second to none in the territory, considering the length of time the organization has been in existence. The secret societies of the town are represented by the Masons, the Loyal Order of Moose, the Pioneers of Alaska, and the Artic Brotherhood, each with a substantial membership. The town has a good skating rink, excellent baseball grounds, and a large dance-hall where some live entertainments are held and where hard and soft refreshments are served by pretty girls galore, for although Alaska is dry in theory it is quite wet, and very open, in practice and reality.

Business Houses

In the line of business enterprises, Nenana has twelve taverns, four general outfitting houses, five tobacco stores, five restaurants (one in connection), three barber shops, two of which are run by women, wo of which are run by women, three ladies' furnishings stores, two clothing and men's furnishing stores, three bakeries, two sheet metal works, one newspaper and commercial job printing establishment, the finest moving picture theatre in Central Alaska, saw-mill and two lumber yards, jewelry store, drug store, photograph studio, warm and cold storage warehouse, two dentists, two tailoring houses, two greenhouses, steam laundry, public bath house, and several sporting establishments where various forms of beverage, dissipation, games of chance and so forth are indulged in.

Nenana, like nearly all Alaskan towns of its size, is practically surrounded by gold-producing districts which have produced many millions of dollars, and which will continue to produce gold and other valuable minerals for an indefinite number of years, under the helpful influence of reduced operating costs, resulting from the use of the new Government railroad.

Note: My next article will appear in this paper in a few days and will deal chiefly with the big government maintained hospital situated at Nenana, which is, I believe, the most popular institution in all Alaska.

(Mr. Hector J. Neil is a Peterboro boy who has lived four years in Alaska.)

ON THIRD FLOOR TO-MORROW AFTERNOON BY MRS. HOYLAND AND MRS. GOODLY.

GLOWING TRIBUTE BY MARSHAL FOCH TO WORK OF Y.M.C.A.

CONTRIBUTED LARGELY TO MAINTENANCE OF MORALE OF FRENCH ARMY DURING WAR'S DARK DAYS.

At Washington, D.C., on November 21st there was given at the New Willard Hotel a dinner in honor of Marshal Foch. Among the more than 200 guests were members of the United States Government and as representative a group of lay officers and secretaries of the Y.M.C.A. as could be gathered together in the limited time.

In responding to the greeting extended by Mr. William Sloane, formerly chairman of the National War Work Council of the Y.M.C.A. who presided, Marshal Foch paid the following remarkable tribute to the contribution made by the Y.M.C.A. to the maintenance of the morale of the French Army during the dark days of the war.

"There is no greater eulogy to be made of your Y.M.C.A. work on behalf of the Allied Armies than to enumerate in figures, the services that were rendered. There are no words that speak better than those figures; I cannot better them. But I must say here, in my capacity as Chief of the French Armies, how greatly we have appreciated the services that you were able to render us. In 1914, led by the great principle of unselfish service, you started to aid, to relieve the prisoners of war; and shortly after we asked you: "Come and help us to uplift our soldiers."

French Steadfast

The French soldier, it is known, is brave, full of initiative; he is full of that spirit which is called the "French fury", but will it last? The world doubts it. Will it hold out? Will he be steadfast? Will he last in a long war? All the world asks that great question.

Well, Yes! To the great astonishment of the whole world this soldier was seen to endure, to hold out during battles lasting more than twenty days, under continuous fire, persistent, without any shelter, having very often for cover, only the bodies of his comrades who had fallen; during four winters he was seen maintaining his trench warfare a war in the flood-land, having for sky but the sky of winter, with its clouds and its rigors, and his only shelter a hole in the ground.

In this effort, all moral supports seemed sure to break under a bombardment which never ceased. What man was there whose nerves were sufficiently strong to endure for entire years? Above all, the loneliness the reaction, the depression, the melancholy, that which was recently and very judiciously called the "blues," invaded the minds and seemed as if they must turn the soldiers away from facing the enemy.

Y's Powerful Help

Well! This morale, we have been able to sustain, thanks to your powerful help, thanks to the Foyer du Soldat Union Franco-American Y.M.C.A., into which the tired soldier came for new strength, and to find a touch of that family life, or at least comfort. This was the means by which resistance was maintained, and when we wished to advance, we found energies much better revitalized and much better prepared because these soldiers who had felt and proved in themselves the contact of this goodwill, placed entirely at their disposal, believed themselves obliged to pay still once more with their life-blood and advance.

"When we definitely launched our final offensive, they were driven forward by the inspiration of the forces behind, and the soldiers marched ahead with resolute step determined and conscience-bound to go to the very limit.

From this direction came that mangnificent blast which, driving our sails and our flags, carried them forward in an irresistible assault to that moment on November 11th, when the enemy cried "Halt! Enough!" Yes! Our flags blending with each other, we forged resolutely ahead, driven by that impulse, not only of soldiers who felt themselves supported by the organization behind them, but above all, by their faith, their religious belief and their absolute self-sacrifice.

Finest Ideals

Then let me, gentlemen, attribute a great part of our success to you, as much in the defensive as in the offensive by that support which you gave us, and because you sheltered all that work in the shadow of the finest ideals, the principle of unselfish service.

I would never conclude, gentlemen, if I attempted to tell you all the sentiments that inspire me in the presence of such results, but I must tender to you the greatest "Thank you!" that I find in the depths of my heart, for all the work you have undertaken and realized."

$102,000 LOST
GOLD IS FOUND

Only $13,000 Yet Missing of "Phantom" Consignment From Sydney.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—The major part of $102,000 of the "phantom" consignment of gold bullion which disappeared from the vaults of the Liner Sonoma en route from Sydney, Australia, to this port has been discovered.

Continued search of the vessel after $27,000 of the $125,000 in currency had been found revealed a small rope from the stern of the ship leading into the bay from where the Sonoma was docked. At the end of the line detectives discovered a large oil can buoy supporting the $75,000 in the original boxes beneath the surface of the water.

Only $13,000 remains to be found.

Frederick S. Samuels, general manager of the Oceanic Steamship Co., declared the $27,000 was found by the ship's engineer stuffed in a rubber hose.

The consignment of gold was stored in the vaults of the Sonoma and was discovered to be missing when the ship docked here.

Search was immediately started in Sydney and in Honolulu, the only port at which the vessel stopped, and by local authorities. It was believed the bullion had been removed after it had been placed in the vault at Sydney. No trace of any of the gold was found in Honolulu, the first being discovered here.

The find by the engineer gives rise to a new thory that the gold might have been carried across the Pacific and taken off here by thieves, who could easily have posed as passengers during the voyage.

On this assumption operatives of the Burns Detective Agency hope to connect the robbery with a man who made three voyages aboard the Sonoma. The arrest of the man is said to be imminent. He is said to be aboard a train for the east. The name of the suspect is not divulged.

VIOLENCE MARKS FIRST DAY OF PACKERS' STRIKE.

ST. PAUL, Minn., December 6 (Canadian Press). — Violence marked the opening day of the strike at the South St. Paul packing plants, several persons being slightly injured, when a group of commission men clashed with strike pickets late yesterday in an unsuccessful attempt to enter the Swife & Company plant.

Earlier in the day a crowd of the strike sympathisers stopped a train carrying three hundred strike-breakers to the packing district, and forced the accupants of the coaches to flee under a fusilade of stones and other missiles.

The City Council of South St. Paul met last night to consider the situation, after Sheriff J. J. Dunn had announced that he would break the picket lines to-day to enable the strike-breakers to enter the plants.

This statement, coupled with reports that many deputies were being sworn in by the Sheriff, brought from J. P. McCoy, a local secretary of the Meat Cuters' and Butcher Workmen's Union, the declaration that the Union will "fight to the finish."

"Strike-breakers positively will not be allowed to pass the picket lines," Mr. McCoy said.

FAMOUS RUNNER DEAD.

NE WYORK, December 6 (Canadian Press). — Charles H. Kilpatrick, a famous amateur middle-distance runner of twenty years ago, died suddenly yesterday on a train bringing him from his home in Fordham to his New York office.

Kilpatrick established the amateur record of 1m. 53 2-5s. for the half-mile run in 1895 during the international track meet in this city between the New York A. C. and the London A. C. The mark stood until 1916, when J. L. Meredith lowered it by 1 1-5 seconds. In 1895, while a student at Union College, he won the intercollegiate half-mile championship. Later he acted as track and field coach at the University of Wisconsin.

NEW FORM OF CUSTOMS

An entirely new form of Customs permits for the use of automobile, motorcycle and bicycle tourists at border ports has been adopted by the Canadian Department of Customs and the new forms are already in general use at the various offices of collectors of custom.

The use of large printed sheets for the purpose has been abolished and the form now consists of a perforated duplicate card. This is a little larger than the card now used by the United States Customs Department and is of very convenient size for tourists. Incidentally, the cards are blue in color with spaces blocked with lines for answers to questions.

The two portions of the card are filled in by the tourist, after which they are signed and separated by the Collector of Customs. The original is kept by the collector and the duplicate is retained by the tourist as his passport for re-entry into Canada at the same point or elsewhere.

DIVING RECORDS

Greatest Depth Stands at 361 Feet Achieved Five Years Ago.

The average depth at which a diver can work is from 150 to 200 feet. Until 1907 it was not possible for divers to work at great depths, but in that year the British Government perfected apparatus which was used 200 feet below the surface, and in 1915, when a torpedo boat sank at Honolulu, divers of the United States Navy reached a depth of 288 feet.

Over a year ago John T. Turner, of Philadelphia went down 360 fee. and reached the bed of the ocean 15 miles east of Graves Light, near Boston, Mass. While this feat was proclaimed a world's record, an investigation of records by the Scientific American disclosed the fact that it was still 1 foot less than a previous record.

In a demonstration in Grand Traverse Bay, Mich., in October, 1916, B. F. Leavitt descended to a depth of 361 feet in a new diving armor of which he is the inventor, and remained under for 45 minutes.

Appetite Good, Gained 20 lbs.

Could Not Feel Better

From a nervous wreck this man was restored to health, strength and happiness.

He tells his own story in this letter.

Mr. Ralph A. Roberts, Loverna, Sask., writes:

"In 1917 I had lost all appetite, failed 25 pounds in weight, become very nervous and shaky and in fact given up all hope of recovery. For some time I had suffered from constipation, which kept getting worse, until I was fast becoming a total wreck. Doctors and their drugs were sending me to my grave at the age of 39.

"Then I read about people being restored by Dr. Chase's Medicines and after three months' use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills I found that my bowels were restored to normal movement each day and the constipation was no more. I had a good appetite, had gained 20 pounds and could not feel better. I shall always be grateful for these benefits."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box; Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, 25c a box, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND
BY "SAPPER"
(CYRIL McNEILE)

"I will show him myself," he answered, rising. "And then I shall go to bed. Mon Dieu! My Hugh, but I find your country tres ennuyeux." She stood in front of him for a moment, and then led the way to the door, glancing at him over her shoulder.

Hugh saw a quick look of annoyance pass over Peterson's face as he turned to follow the girl, and it struck him that that gentleman was not best pleased at the turn of events. It vanished almost as soon as it came, and Peterson waved a friendly hand at him, as if the doings of the night had been the most ordinary thing in the world. Then the door closed, and he followed his guide up the stairs.

The house was beautifully furnished. Hugh was no judge of art, but even his inexperienced eye could see that the prints on the walls were rare and value able. The carpets were thick, and his feet sank into them noiselessly; the furniture was solid and in exquisite taste. And it was as he reached the top of the stairs that a single deep-noted clock rang a wonderful chime and then struck the hour. The time was just three o'clock.

The girl opened the door of a room and switched on the light. Then she faced him smiling, and Hugh looked at her steadily. He had no wish whatever for any conversation, but as she was standing in the centre of the doorway it was impossible for him to get past the without being rude.

"Tell me, you ugly man," she murmured, "why you are such a fool."

Hugh smiled, and, as has been said before, Hugh's smile transformed his face.

"I must remember that opening," he said. "So many people, I feel convinced, would like to say it on first acquaintance, but confine themselves to merely thinking it. It establishes a basis of intimacy at once, doesn't it?"

She swayed a little towards him, and then, before he realised her intention, she put a hand on his shoulder.

"Don't you understand," she whispered fiercely, "that they'll kill you?" She peered past him half fearfully, and then turned to him again. "Go, you idiot, go—while there's time. Oh! if I could only make you understand; if you'd only believe me! Get out of it—go abroad; do anything—but don't fool round here."

In her agitation she was shaking him to and fro.

"It seems a cheerful household," remarked Hugh with a smile. "May I ask why you're all so concerned about me? Your estimable father gave me the same advice yesterday morning."

"Don't ask why," she answered fevershly, "because I can't tell you. Only you must believe that what I say is the truth—you must. It's just possible that if you go now and tell hem where you've hidden the American you'll be all right. But if you don't——" Her hand dropped to her side suddenly. "Breakfast will be at nine, my Hugh: until then, au revoir."

He turned as she left the room, a little puzzled by her change of tone. Standing at the top of the stairs was Peterson watching them both in silence. . . .

II

In the days when Drummond had been a platoon commander, he had done many dangerous things. The ordinary joys of the infantry subaltern's life—such as going over the top, and carrying out raids—had not proved sufficient for his appetite. He had specialised in peculiar stunts of his own: stunts over which he was singularly reticent; stunts over which his men formed their own conclusions, and worshipped him accordingly.

But Drummond was no fool, and he had realised the vital importance of fitting himself for these stunts to the best of his ability. Enormous physical strength is a great asset, but it carries with it certain natural disadvantages. In the first place, its possessor is frequently clumsy: Hugh had practised in France till he could move over ground without a single blade of grass rustling. Van Dyck—a Dutch trapper—had first shown him the trick, by which a man goes forward on his elbows like a snake, and is here one moment and gone the next, with no one the wiser.

Again, its possessor is frequently slow: Hugh had practiced in France till he could kill a man with his bare hands in a second. Olaki—a Japanese—had first taught him two or three of the secrets of his trade, and in the intervals of resting behind the lines he had perfected them until it was even money whether the Jap or he would win in a practice bout.

And there were nights in No Man's Land when his men would hear strange sounds, and knowing that Drummond was abroad on his wanderings, would peer eagerly over the parapet into the desolate torn-up waste in front. But they never saw anything, even when the green ghostly flares went hissing up into the darkness and the shadows danced fantastically. All was silent and still; the sudden shrill whimper was not repeated.

(To be Continued)

A New York mechanical engineer has perfected a clock that is corrected daily by a radio wireless impulse sent from Washington for that purpose. It is self-winding.

FIFTEEN BOILS ON NECK AT ONE TIME

Any one who has suffered from boils can sympathize with poor old Job.

There was no Burdock Blood Bitters in those days, so Job had to suffer in silence. Nowadays no one need endure the misery of boils.

Boils are simply evidences of the bad blood within coming to the surface and just when you get rid of one, another seems ready to take its place and prolong your misery.

All the poulticing and lancing you may do will not stop more coming.

What you have to do is take

and the blood will be cleansed of all its impurities, and then every boil will disappear.

Mr. Roy McSwain, High Bank, P. E. I., writes: "I was troubled with boils for some time, and had as many as fifteen on my neck at once. After taking one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters they commenced to get better, and after I had taken two bottles I was relieved of them and felt much better. I think B. B. B. is a grand blood medicine, and can recommend it highly."

For the past 45 years B. B. B. has been manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

GRAND TRUNK SERVICE.

The Grand Trunk Railway have received the following letter from the Courteen Seed Company, Milwaukee, Wis.:

"While we do not hesitate to severely criticise a railroad company for poor service when we believe we have received such; on the other hand when we do receive what we consider excellent service believe it is no more thn fair to not only let the railroad company know such service is appreciated but also to advise the general shipping public. We had two rush cars for export on which the leeway was only six days. We had cars loaded and billed on October 30th, and advised the Grand Trunk Railway that cars had to be in Montreal by November 5th. We were advised this morning (Nov. 6th) that both cars arrived in Montreal at 5.00 a.m. on Nov. 3rd, running time of about eighty hours from Milwaukee to Montreal. Don't believe any line can beat this. 1d-6

20 YEARS SEARCH

A romantic story of the constant love of a young Greek for an English girl comes from New York, where the parties met after being parted for many years.

In the strange case of Lieut. Marcu Sakarfos, of the Greek Royal Navy, and a little English maiden, Cupid led the officer a wildly zigzag tantalizing chase from tremulous bliss to the depths of despair, then through the perils of the battlefields of Europe, on to happiness again after many years, and landed him at last first in one New York prison cell and then in another.

The details of Sakarfos's adventures are vouched for by Captain Joseph P. Cromwell, who as judge advocate at a court-martial on Governor's Island, headquarters of the Military Department of the East, obtained the Greek ex-naval officer's conviction as a deserter from the United States Army, and now that duty accomplished, is seeking to have the sentence commuted.

It was a score of years ago that Sakarfos just graduated from the Greek Royal Naval Academy, met the English miss, then a schoolgirl, who, with her parents, was visiting Athens. It was a case of love at first sight for both of them, but she was so young that her father and mother would not hear of her engagement, let alone her marriage, to the arduous Athenian, and hurried her home to England.

Mary Lost to Sight.

The youthful lovers kept up a correspondence for some time, but just as Sakarfos had received his commission as a first lieutenant the letters from Mary—that was her name—stopped. He journeyed to England to find out why, and bent on making her his bride. He learnt to his chagrin that she had left for the United States. That was in 1911. Resolved to find her at all costs, he returned to his native land to resign his commission, but was held in the service for the Balkan war.

At last in 1913 he was free to pursue his quest, and did not though he searched all New York, where he had been given to understand his boyhood sweetheart had gone, he could find no trace of her, and in despair he enlisted in the Army as a private, and was sent to the war with the 52nd Railway Artillery, which went through several battles.

In 1919 he was drafted back to New York, and petitioned for his discharge, but was kept with the colors and sent to Fortress Monroe, in Virginia, where he was promoted to be master gunner.

A Chance Meeting.

Then, during a furlough, he came to New York, still obsessed with longing for his first love, and figuratively almost the first person he met was Mary. It was purely a chance meeting, and she had no idea that he was in America. This time he won her, and they married. Nevertheless, he could not obtain his discharge from the Army, so when in due course he learned that Marcus Sakarfos, jun., had come to town he could not resist, failing to obtain a furlough in the regular way, and simply took "French leave."

He did not return to Fortress Monroe, and might have stayed free indefinitely had he not got into trouble with the police for reckless driving of an automobile and been sent to prison for 25 days. As it was, when he emerged from the civil prison the military authorities took charge of him. He gave the guard the slip, but was recaptured, and is now a prisoner on Governor's Island, serving a sentence for double desertion.

Use a small tongue, wash well and place in a casserole or covered baking dish. Add a little water, cover and simmer three hours, turn, add a tablespoon of butter, three of boiling water, a teaspoonful chili sauce, a little dry mustard, and bake until tender.

Coffee Ice Cream With Marshmallow Sauce.

Boil two cup of milk with half a cup of dry coffee. Strain hot into three beaten eggs and half a cup of sugar. Return to the fire and boil thick. Add two cups of cream, the same of milk and freeze. For the sauce boil a cup of sugar with a quarter of a cup of water for ten minutes and then add a quarter of a pound of marshmallows cut in pieces. Cool and pour over the cream.

Banana Sandwiches.

Slice two bananas and pour over the juice of one lemon, three tablespoons of thick cream and one of honey. Sugar may be used in place of honey. Let this stand in a cool place one hour. Spread thin slices of bread with the mixture and pile high on a plate.

BE CAREFUL OF MILK BOTTLES

A bottle of milk should never be opened until the bottle has been thoroughly washed. The same hands that grasp the greasy reins of the milk cart horse handle your morning's delivery of milk. A stray cat, hungry after a night of revelry, may be inclined to give and idle milk bottle "the once over" before slinking to cover in some back alley.

Once the cap is removed of the bottle has been removed, the milk should not be allowed to remain an instant longer than is absolutely necessary. Milk spoils easily, so that it is essential that it be kept as free as possible from all souring influences.

"Clean, cold and covered" should be the housekeeper's motto with regard to her milk supply. There should be a special place in the ice box for the bottles; if actual contact with the ice is possible, so much the better. Ice itself must never be put into the milk for the purpose of cooling it for there is no way of estimating the amount of filth contained in one small piece of ice. The best method of covering a bottle from which the cap has been removed is to insert a tumbler over the neck of the bottle.

If possible only bottled milk should be used. Even with prices as high as they are, milk is a cheap article of food. Where it is often advisable to economize in the household budget, there is no economy in buying cheap grades of milk.

SKIN DISEASE AND CONSTIPATION

What G. Prouton, Gordan street, Ottawa, says:

Gentlemen,—It is a great pleasure for me to recommend Dr. Henderson's Herb Treatment for constipation, having received great benefit from them in that respect, also your Hou-Tan Ointment. Ten months ago my youngest child which was then eight months old, had her head all covered with boils. We purchased a box and in a short time they all disappeared and she now has a beautiful head of hair which convinces me that it is a splendid preparation for the hair, as well as curing the disease. No family should be without out a preparation of that kind in their home.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets and Hou-Tan Ointment are two excellen preparations for all forms of skin diseases. Don't fail to give them a trial, and you like others, would not be without them in your home. They are for sale at Warne's Drug Store, Peterborough. The Herb Tablets are 25c, 50c, and $1 per box. The Hou-Tan Ointment 50c per box. THE HENDERSON HERB CO., TORONTO.

TIRE PRESSURE

Why do the tires on your neighbor's car run farther than yours? Suppose both of you have a heavy car of the same make, with two five-inch cord tires of the same make on the rear wheels of each. If the weight of each car is 5,300 pounds, without passengers, each of these rare tires must carry a weight of 1,415 pounds, with passenger weight added. To make all conditions equal suppose the inflation pressures are exactly the same and that the tires are shifted from one side to the other from time to time. In such a case eliminating accidents, the tires should deliver exactly the same mileage.

If two of these tires are compared with a pair which must carry only 900 pounds, it is readily seen that the last tires carrying the smaller load are doing less work mileage through an equal service Tire service is properly judged not in terms of miles alone, but in miles plus work done.

LURED TO CRIME SOBS BOY THUG

Detroit Youth Who Gave Up $5,000 Loot by Mistake, Says He Was Tool.

DETROIT, Dec. 6. — Declaring himself the unwilling tool of a professional bandit, John Pietkewicz, 17 years old, 1.13 Philadelyhia avenue east, weeps in Central Station as he awaits the arrival of police officers of Boston who are to take him back with them to stand trial for his participation in the robbery of the Walton Shoe Co.'s $28,000 payroll last Saturday.

Pietkewicz gave himself up to two fellow passengers on a Michigan Central train in the belief they were detectives. In the hands of the astonished passengers Michael J. McDonough, 4370 Marlborough avenue, Detroit, and William M. Coney, of Chicago he placed 5,000, his share of the loot. When the train reached Detroit, McDonough and Coney turned Pietkewicz over to the police.

Says He Was Lured Away.

The boy, who left his home here last June to go East, says he was influenced by a man named "William," who took him from Detroit to Boston, promising him a job in a garage there, but instead making him turn bandit. It was his first job, he told detectives, but nerved by his pals, he went through with it.

The $28,000 payroll was en route from the First National Bank of Boston to the paymaster's department of the shoe company, in Chlesea. Five men surrounded the company's auditors. One of the bandits, James Luna, of Oliphant, Pa., was wounded in an exchange of shots with the bank messengers, and captured. John Dubok, of Scranton, Pa., in whose room in Everett the police found nearly $21,000 of the stolen funds, pleaded not guilty in Chelsea court to a charge of robbery while armed. He was held in $25,000 bonds for a hearing Dec. 7.

Two More Are Sought.

Police are now seeking two men known to them only as "William" and "Alec." The former of the two is supposed to be the man named by young Pietkewicz.

A nervous dread that the two passengers on the Michigan Central train were watching him induced Pietkewicz to go to them and say: "I know you two are detectives. I know you are after me for that Boston job. You might as well arrest me now. Here is my share of the stuff." Before the train reached Detroit, however, the boy became suspicious of the two men and demanded back the money. They refused.

The boy's mother visited him at police headquarters.

"John was always a good boy," she sobbed. "He never went with bad companions. About five months ago he left home. He said he wanted to travel."

The boy's father is a machinist.

HINTS TO MOTORISTS

The carelessness of many motorists in disregarding a few simple rules is reflected in their tire bills, for even the best of tires cannot give all the mileage built in them if they are abused.

The three ways in which this carelessness is manifested chiefly are underinflation craping along curb tones and bumping against obstructions of different kinds.

Insufficient inflation costs more than all the other abuses combined, it is asserted. By simply checking up once a week to see that the tires are properly inflated, the car owner will add amazingly to his tire mileage.

And it is to be noted that tires should be pumped to the same pressure in summer as in winter. The expansion of the air in the tires in hot weather is so infinitesimal that it should be entirely disregarded and the pressure brought up to the figure recommended by the tire manufacturers, it is pointed out.

Scraping along a curb is a common form of tire abuse. An evidence of the commonness of this practice may be noticed in the number of tires which are pealed or scraped on the outer side while the inner is still in perfect condition.

Bumping a tire into a curb, particularly when under inflated, is a serious form of mistreatment, is for it causes breaks in the fabric foundation which quickly bring the tire's usefulness to an end.

Answers To Correspondents:

TWENTY-FIVE—I can quite understand that you are worried about your skin becoming so dry, because there is nothing that will kill a good complexion so quickly as the dry atmosphere of Canadian houses during the winter time. And, of course, continuous housework will ruin any hands unless you do something to prevent it. The best thing you can do is to rub CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM well into your face and on your hands after each washing, and especially every night and morning. CAMPANA'S is very efficacious and a very wonderful remedy. You can buy CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM at any Druggist, 40c, a large bottle. MARGARET.

UTTERS DEMAND FOR MORE WOMEN CLERKS

A surplus of male clerks is reported in Illinois by Charles J. Boyd, of the Illinois Free Employment Bureau, who also states that more women clerks are needed.

Commenting upon the situation Boyd says: "Women don't cock their feet on the desk and criticize the boss.

"They don't waste thirty minutes a day scanning the spor. sheet.

"They don't leave the office at intervals to smoke a cigarette.

"Their relatives are never indisposed when the home team is in town.

"They don't swear, they seldom flirt, they don't boas' and they do the work assigned them with efficiency and without question."

Besides indicating time itself, the clock will operate and control any number of secondary clocks. It makes possible, it is believed, for the first time, the synchronizing of timepieces all over the country by wireless.

Another wonderful clock is to be seen at Waterloo station, London. With four faces and no visible works, it is controlled by electricity and operated by a self-wound electrical master clock.

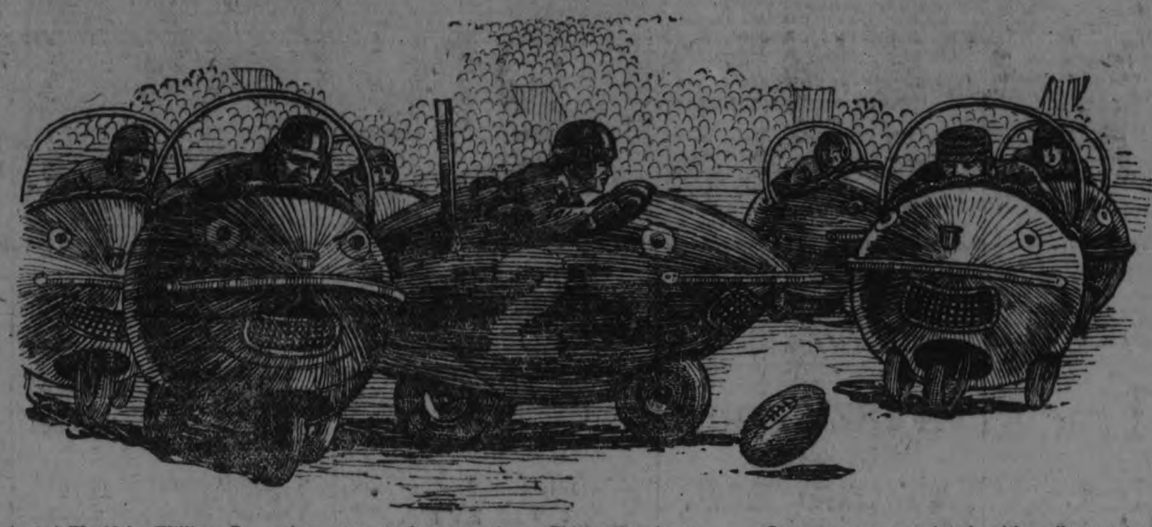
FOOTBALL on WHEELS

A WILDLY enthusiastic crowd of football fans under a mellow November day; eleven crimson monsters aligned against as many green ones; a hush as signals are given: "Eleven, sixteen, forty-two, ninety-nine, hundred-'n'-ten—"

A crashing riot of color as green batters red and red topples green; from this kaleidoscopic confusion a fire-spitting spot of red nimbly shoots through interfering green dots, bowling over some, rooting aside others, madly dashing down the field, while howling thousands applaud a score-tying touchdown. Centre-rushes and forward passes keep the hoarse-voiced crowds straining to their toes as red steadily pushes back the green; an intercepted ball, a long, beautiful run through a scattered field and fortune gives the deciding score to the reds while the final seconds of the last quarter tick past. The game is over and for another season the reds will hold the intercollegiate motor-football pennant.

This scene will be a reality when the new motor-tricycle comes into general use on the gridiron. It will give added thrills to a game that has always called for strenuous, quick-thinking, concerted action during every moment of play.

This new entrant into the field of sports, as described in the Illustrated World by William B. Phelps, is a small pecan-shaped car, low, mounted on three wheels, and propelled by a twin-cylindered motorcycle engine. The two rear wheels are geared to the engine by an easily manipulated clutch which is operated by one of the players' feet through a pedal. His other foot controls the brake. The clutch is so contrived that from neutral it slips through low to high speed with one motion of the foot, accelerating the motor at the same time. This action is secured by cone wheels on the drive shaft that give a simple and reliable control of power.



A Crashing Riot of Color and a Kaleidoscopic Confusion of Fire-Spitting Motor Cars—Such Is the Modernized Game of Football on Wheels.

The car may be steered by one hand or the knees operating a small quadrant lever much after the fashion of the electric car. This quadrant can be quickly set in one position, if necessary, when sudden intricate plays call for the use of both hands.

The motor is placed in the forward end of the car and is separated from the driver's legs by heat-proof asbestos shields. The car itself is well padded inside for bumps. On the outside a semi-circular steel band extending in front breaks the shock of sudden collisions, while injury from being overturned is prevented by a similar band on top and at the driver's back. Operating on only three wheels, the car is very easily handled and may be turned within its own length, permitting the most intricate squad movements.

Aside from the safety feature of this style of football there is the extreme novelty of the sight of two lines of what might be taken for brightly colored beetles threatening each other with the voice of machine guns, roaring into a mix-up, squirming, clashing and darting hither and thither in a startling conflict.

Some cars are painted with college colors while others bear grotesque faces—some grinning, others scowling—that add to the weirdness of the spectacle.

Games with this machine, by reason of its superior speed and flexibility, will call for an entirely new order of football tactics; forward passes, end runs, line plunges and other plays will all have to be revamped to meet the unusual conditions that will come up. Special attachments are being devised to enable the car to "kick" the ball in the approved fashion either from the ground in the "kick-off" or from the driver's hand in long punts down the field.

This machine in future gridiron games will eliminate a good deal of the fatigue that usually slows up the games in the closing quarters; the speed and "pep" resulting will make this kind of football a sport unhampered by short seasons, excessive fatigue and broken collarbones—in short, a year-round game.

The motor tricycle probably will in time cause the evolution of an entirely different kind of "football" that will contain every factor of sport that distinguishes the present game and yet at the same time, new and eminently desirable elements of speed and safety.

Does the MOON AFFECT the MIND?

THE word "lunatic" was first ascribed to epileptics, who seem to be greatly affected by lunar influences. And it has been noticed that many nervous maladies—such as vertigo, hysteria and sleep-walking—are more acute during the periods of the new and full moon.

It is at the period of the moon's change that these symptoms chiefly occur. For instance, in several cases it has been proved that children subject to convulsions usually suffer most at the time of full moon, whereas paralytics are subject to recurring fits at new moon. It has also been noticed that in the case of epileptics who are subject to lunar influence, it is always on the third day after the full moon that the fit ends in intermittent fever.

The moon's influence on vegetable life has long been recognized. Some market gardeners insist that there is a right time in the moon's phases to plant certain crops to secure the best results, while many old-time farmers would not make a fence or cover a roof unless it were done at what they consider the proper time of moon.

With regard to this latter point actual tests have shown that wooden tiles placed on a roof in the light of the moon will curl up and not last half as long as those put on when the sky is dark.

A further remarkable fact about the moon's light is its effect on a broody hen. It requires an average of twenty-one days for eggs to hatch. Occasionally it has been noticed that a hen will bring out chicks a day or two earlier, and this is said to be due to the influence of the moon. The proper time to set a hen is when the moon is new, or very close to that period, so that the moon will be full just about a week before the time for hatching arrives.

It is claimed that more eggs will hatch if set at this time, and that the young chicks will be stronger and more vigorous, and will grow more rapidly. On the other hand, chicks hatched when there is no moon are often more weakly, and do not make such strong and vigorous fowls, nor are they such good egg-layers.

Wine also is said to be subject to this influence, and it is well known that it is not wise to make wine when the moon is waning.

How SHOW WINDOWS Catch the EYE

SOME very interesting experiments have recently been carried out at the Institute of Business Science, connected with the Commercial High School at Mannheim, Germany, concerning the psychology of the appeal made by window exhibits. The experiments were made at a large specialty shop catering to women. This shop had 15 show-windows fronting on two streets located near a main artery of traffic. In some of the windows the articles bore price tags, while in others they did not. In some one color alone was used and in others a variety of shades; again, some windows contained nothing but the articles on sale, while others had picturesque settings and accessories. The results of the observation were quite striking and some were unexpected, according to a writer in Die Umschau, a scientific journal published in Frankfurt, Germany.

Dr. Lysinski of the institute, who conducted the experiments, states that the sales of those displayed articles bearing a price label greatly exceeded that of articles not so marked. Likewise windows in which articles of various colors were shown seemed to have a greater drawing power than those in which a uniform color was used. As a usual thing greater sales were obtained from windows displaying a large variety of articles than from those showing only a few; the results varied, however, in this case. Most remarkable is the fact that those windows having decorative accessories proved to be much less effective than those without decoration. This last observation is well worth the attention of American merchants, since there has been a considerable development in the United States of purely decorative features in window dressing during the last few years.

Selling Real Estate by Airplane

LESSONS learned in aerial photography during the war are showing results in their rapid application to commercial use. There are firms that make a specialty of taking airplane views of factories or of communities. Manufacturers have discovered that a genuine air photograph gives a more comprehensive idea of the plant, the location of the buildings, and the general layout than any number of ordinary views taken on the ground or even on a tower.

One of the most interesting applications of airplane photography, according to a writer in Popular Science Monthly, is its growing use as a selling force in the real estate business.

Real estate is a difficult thing to sell. An automobile, for instance, may be easily viewed as a whole. The prospective purchaser, if he chooses, may look on three sides of it at once, or, by walking around it, obtain an impression of the entire car.

But the real estate man is up against it. When Mr. Smith walks into the office and announces that he is thinking of buying a "home of his own," the salesman starts at a disadvantage. He commences by describing roughly and usually inaccurately the various properties that might interest Mr. Smith. Sometimes he even goes so far as to show Smith some photographs of the houses.

But Smith is a bit wary. He cannot tell from the photographs whether the property is on a respectable street or whether it is hedged in by factories and small shops. So that, after all the salesman's talk, it is necessary to take Mr. Smith to every one of the properties. Too often, when he gets there, one glance is sufficient to tell him that it is not what he wants. His time and that of the salesman have been wasted. Now, had the real estate office been a modern one, with an airplane as the salesman's assistant, Mr. Smith could have been greatly assisted in his search. In fact, it is possible that it would have been unnecessary for him to leave the office until his selection had been narrowed down to one or two available selections.

Harrington Emerson, one of the shrewdest industrial counselors and efficiency engineers in the world, has repeatedly stated that visualization is the greatest salesman in the world. Real estate dealers are commencing to realize the truth of this statement, and in aerial photographs are finding the means to commercialize the fact. With a series of air photographs showing the properties for sale, the customer is able to visualize for himself the land he is thinking of purchasing

Nor does the use of air photographs end there. Real estate dealers are finding it to their interest to have an annual photographic map made of their city, thus showing graphically its growth from year to year.

How MAN Is MAKING New ANIMALS

WHAT a curious thing it is to realize that a St. Bernard, a Pekinese, and a Skye terrier all three come from a common wild stock! Man has been altering domestic animals of every kind for centuries past. He has taken the common pigeon and invented something like sixty distinct varieties, while hundreds of different sorts of fowls have come from the original jungle bird of Ceylon.

Curious experiments have been made in coloring birds by feeding them on certain foods. One experimenter obtained pigeons of a beautiful red by putting in their food a chemical having the jaw-breaking name of "methyltra-bromo fluorescine," and he got others of a rich blue by similar means.

It pays amazingly to breed birds of the perfect color and shape required by fanciers. Seventy-two dragoon pigeons recently sold by auction in London realized $4500, the best bird $1500. As the pigeon did not weigh more than a pound, it might well be described as "worth its weight in gold."

Canaries have beaten this record. In 1903 Mr. James Glasscock of Norwich, England, sold a pair for $350. These birds weighed about an ounce a-piece, so they are very costly morsels.

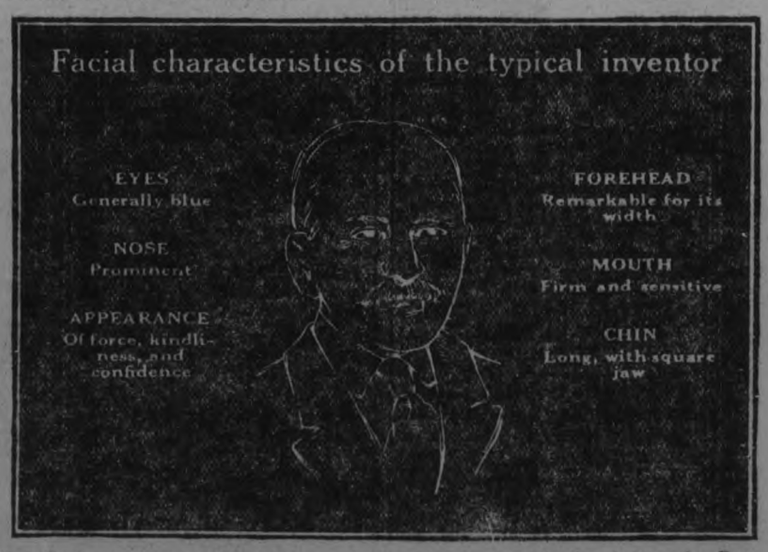
Man is changing not only animals and birds, but also fish and insects. Take bees, for instance. Of course, various species of bees are constantly crossed in order to get kinds that will produce most honey. But the great idea at present is to produce a bee which shall be more useful for fertilizing flowers than any of the present species.

With that object certain breeders are trying to produce a bee with a longer tongue than any possess at present. For flowers like clover such a bee would be invaluable, since the result would be a great increase of fertile flowers, and, consequently, seed.

The latest branch of creation which man is tackling with a view to modifying is fish. The experiments were begun at the University of Chicago, about five years ago. Already herrings have been crossed with whitefish, the result being a fish as well flavored as the herring, but with fewer bones.

What the Typical SCIENTIST Is LIKE

IF your brow is narrow, head broad, eye blue and chin long, you have the typical features of the American scientist. The typical face of the American inventive genius was made by printing in registry on a single piece of sensitized paper the sixteen portraits of the following famous inventors: Thomas A. Edison, Alexander G. Bell, Hudson Maxim, Orville Wright, Simon Lake, John Hays Hammond, Jr.; Elwood G. Haynes, Henry Ford, Charles P. Steinmetz, Michael Pupin, Miller Reese Hutchinson, Lee De Forest, Elmer G. Sperry, Nikola Tesla and Albert A. Michelson. The resultant composite photograph emphasizes the characteristic features of all scientific pathfinders.



Line Portrait of the Typical Scientist, Drawn from a Composite Likeness Made from the Photographs of Fifteen Leading American Inventors.

What these features mean is explained in Popular Science Monthly by Dr. Katherine M. H. Blackford, the noted character expert, to whom the composite photograph was submitted for analysis.

The significant features characterizing the inventive genius are the prominent, well-modeled nose, the strong jaw, and the peculiar shape and breadth of the head (noticeable in the portraits the face is not evident in the photograph. Practically all of these men are blonds. Some of them have dark hair, to be sure, but nearly all have the blue or gray eyes. I should say that investigation would show 95 per cent. of successful inventors to be blue-eyed men."

Notice the narrow brows, and that the head broadens above them until its greatest width comes at a point fully an inch above. Note especially the width of the head above the ears. It is this feature, chiefly, according to Dr. Blackford, which stamps this composite portrait as that of a scientist of the creative type.

How Your SPECTACLES Are MADE

FEW persons who use spectacles give a thought as to how they are produced. They do not realize by what an interesting process the lenses are shaped to meet the order of the oculist.

Before 1914 quartz and crystals, obtained chiefly from Brazil and Madagascar, were used, which explains the term "pebble-lens," but the transport of material became so difficult that ordinary crown glass began to be used more generally.

This glass is cut into various shapes, a few inches in diameter, and is then placed in a small furnace until it is red-hot, when it is lifted into moulds—oval, round, or oblong—and pressed down to take the curve required when moulded, after which the lenses are immersed in hot water.

In another department of the factory is a receptacle full of hot pitch. This is run into master moulds of many shapes and sizes, and is taken out as a thick block or "runner," upon which, while warm, the pieces of glass are pressed by hand—sometimes as many as two hundred and forty pairs on one block. They stick securely to the pitch, which holds them while they are ground with emery.

Afterwards they go to other machines and are polished with rouge (oxide of iron) under thick polishers of felt.

The lenses are removed from the pitch by being plunged into cold water that has been through a refrigerator. Placed in racks, they are next plunged into a boiling solution to clear them, and then they are ready for the final polishing.

Having reached this stage, the lenses are forwarded to the optician, and it is his business to find the right curve to suit the sight and to cut the lens with a diamond to fit the frames for his customers.

Frames are made of gold, rolled gold, steel, and sometimes platinum. Some opticians who have a large connection establish their own small factory, and make their own frames, but it is more usual for a large manufacturer to supply them.

Why Boys Are Boys

BAD boys, good boys, dirty boys, clean boys, in fact every type of boy is amusing and an interesting subject to study. The psychology of a boy—that is to say the study of the mind of a boy—is a subject that yearly draws more recruits to its ranks, in the form of schoolmasters, scoutmasters, leaders of boys' clubs, clergymen and so on.

Why are some boys of a certain age cruel to animals and to one another? Why?—there are lots of "whys." In "The Psychology of the Boy," Mr. F. A. Servante, who is the acting chaplain to the London Diocesan Boy Scouts' Association, gives some answers to lots of those "whys."

Religion and boys do not usually go together, but Mr. Servante points out that the best method of teaching a boy religion is by example, and he says that it is a solemn thought, but nevertheless a true one, that the God that very little boys say their prayers to has a face very like their father's and that the figure of Christ is very much like that of their scoutmaster.

Some boys of a certain age are cruel because they are lacking in sympathy, meaning that they have not the faculty of feeling themselves a measure of another's suffering. The only way to stop such boys from being cruel is to make them feel the pain they are inflicting on others.

When a boy on his own account first starts to wash his neck—according to Mr. Servante—it is usually the sign of his first love affair; it has become an act in a game, the greatest of games. Games—that is the keynote of a boy's mind and should be the basis of his training.

Boys naturally first fall in love with their mother; then they probably develop affection for a sister; at last it dawns on them that girls generally are pretty things and in some way wonderful. And so they fall into their first love affairs. At this time, says Mr. Servante, they should be left alone—but watched so that they go along the path of love seeing cleanly and clearly.

BREEDING BUGS as a BUSINESS

BREEDING bugs as a business is not as crazy as it sounds, that is, when it is carried on as they do it at Alhambra, near Los Angeles. Located in this western town is a very strange industry, in that it consists in the breeding of certain species of bugs, of which it might naturally be supposed there could not be too few in the world. There is, however, an excellent reason why this work should be undertaken. California is a great fruit-growing country, and the ravages of certain insects, especially the mealy bug, on orchards was often so extensive that some method of combating the pests was urgently called for.

As the result of prolonged observation, field experts found that three other species of bug are the natural enemies of the mealy, ever bent on destroying it. But in numbers these were in sad disproportion to the vast and rapidly increasing hordes of the enemy, and accordingly, on the principle of setting a thief to catch a thief, it was decided that steps must be taken to augment the forces of the mealy hunters. To this end the Alhambra bughouse was established, and now scientists are breeding destroyers by millions and sending them out as allies of the fruit-growers in the everlasting fight against an enemy who would soon have sapped the life of a gigantic industry.

The simplest of methods are employed in the bughouse in propagating the doughty little warriors. Nearly the entire lower floor of the building, an ordinary dwelling-house converted for the purpose, is fitted with glass boxes, in each of which a family of beetles carries on its domestic affairs and multiplies beyond the wildest bounds of the ordinary imagination. The mealy bug is their natural provender, and the problem of supplying it had to be solved. It was discovered that next to citrus foliage the mealy bug thrives best on the sprout of the Irish potato, so two rooms of an upper flat were fitted with bins in which are kept potatoes in all stages of the sprouting process. Each sprout is the headquarters for a myriad mealy bugs, and thus the larders of the families on the lower floor are generously supplied. The benefit of the bughouse to the fruit industry is enormous.

How the BLANKET Was INVENTED by a Tramp

BLANKETS for various purposes are so common and so familiar that the average person probably supposes they have "always been" or at least that they have been used as long as men have worn clothes and slept in beds. For ages there have been bed coverings and fabrics for other purposes for which blankets are now used, but prior to the year 1340 there were no blankets and no one had ever heard of such a thing.

In that year an Englishman named Thomas Blanket went to the wall. His property—even the house he lived in—was sold to satisfy creditors. Wandering about, homeless and penniless, he came one cold winter night to a barn. As there was no place else to go he decided to spend the night there. Luckily he found lying in the building a piece of rough unfinished cloth which he spread over himself when he lay down in the straw to sleep. This kept him so warm and comfortable that it occurred to him that making and selling bed coverings of such material would prove a profitable business enterprise. According to the Pathfinder, Blanket acted on this idea by obtaining some loosely woven cloth with a nap, which he cut into oblong pieces and sold as "blankets," named after himself.

For several hundred years blankets were made exclusively of wool, but as cotton became more plentiful and consequently cheaper, it was widely used as a substitute for wool. Woollen blankets are warmer and usually wear better than cotton ones, but many prefer cotton because it is cheaper, more easily washed and is soft and scratchless.

The late czar of Russia possessed a wonderful watch made by a Polish mechanic. Having heard many tales of this man's inventive genius, the czar sent him a parcel containing some copper nails, wood chippings, a piece of broken glass, a cracked china cup, a length of wire, and two or three cribbage pegs With this very mixed lot was a command to make them into a timepiece!

BAZAAR AT THE MARKET HALL

There was something doing every minute last night at the bazaar in the Market Hall in aid of the extension to St. Joseph's Hospital. Crowds of people filled the large central space, and circled about the various booth, where pretty and useful wares were displayed to the very best advantage. Men, women and children were present in large numbers, the elders going off with happy faces, carrying the bags of flour, the sides of pork and lamb, the fowl of all sorts that were auctioned off by Mr. Jack Primeau for the country store, and the youngsters having a great time with candy and ice cream, and the 'little horses' which race in an endless circle at Miss Margaret Lynch's tables and compete on the 'straightaway' under the direction of Miss M. A. O'Connell.

At the door, Mrs. W. C. Donovan and Miss A. Gallegher wait for you in the tent, that you may win for a very small sum, there is a handsome floor lamp in the checking booth, which is done attractively in yellow and white, where the benign countenance of the late lamented Sir John A. Macdonald, with his famous Roman nose and broad tie, beams on the world which is eager to have a chance to capture him; and in the dining room, with its bright orange and white, crowds of people enjoyed two splendid hot meals yesterday.

Christmas Gifts.

The nurses from St. Joseph's Hospita have a pretty corner, embelished in the Red Cross manner, wrere uniformed attendants will sell you all sorts of supplies, with the nicest and best of perfumes, creams and powders, and here you may try your luck for a beautiful ivory manicure set, and a pretty centrepiece. Just next door is the gold and brown nook, with foliage decorations where the business girls hold forth, and offer for sale filmy, dainty handkerchiefs and spotless small aprons. They have an exquisite Madeira tea-cloth here.

Nearby is the clothing booth, arranged in mauve and white, with a pretty wheeled effect, and here is everything in the clothing line, fancy and useful, dainty and serviceable, from work aprons to small fluffy knitted sweaters, and a lovely child's dress of fine linen, worked in forget-me-not blue.

Dolls and Candy.

The doll booth is a very attractive affair, done in the bright Christmas manner with deep red, green and white and a tiny tree in the corner, where the shyest and smallest baby dolls have found a temporary resting place. The display is very pretty. Grave and gay, blonde and brunette, infantile and mature, the little faces look out at the world in all the colors of the rainbow, and no child who yearns for a dolly, should go unsatisfied for they may be had here in the airiest, fairiest concoctions, and the rough and tumble 'teddy,' the Jolly-Jonathan with his tinkling bells and the unbreakable broadly-smiling bisque baby. On a specially reserved table are the two prize beauties, a serene dark mamselle in rose-pink chiffon and careful curls, and the lovely, fluffy-haired Eaton beauty, blonde and brown-eyed, with sweet smile and gown of mauve. Here also you may be the lucky winner of a pair of Taplin pumps, and a perfectly scrumptious bride-cake in three filagree-iced tiers.

The Sodality girls have a long white lunch counter, bright and alluring, backed with a Christmas tree, and topped by an effective arrangement of cool yellow and white-slashed crepe paper. There are all sorts of goodies here; soft drinks, ice cream and home-made candy, with a marvellous candy machine which is a centre of interest at all times. You can't possibly lose on it. A certain young man took the lot at closing time last night and went home to his family with an armful of chocolate bars and an enormous box of sweetmeats.

The lottery booth, in pale blue and yellow festoons, has ornamental and useful articles to suit any desire, dainty table accessories, fancy work, aprons, sweaters, anything and everything to suit the taste of the Christmas buyer, and the fancy work next door is displayed in a very effective manner, where long bright orange streamers and foliage make a pretty setting for the lovely wares; drawn-work, hem-stitching, crocheted pieces, dainty serviettes, knitted goods, and a large centre-piece, beautifully done in embroidered roses and finely wrought edge.

Bags For All.

The little Christmasy looking booth for novelties, with its bright red bells and gay green garnishings, has a supply of the prettiest bags imaginable, in silk and velvet, with beaded designs and hand-painted flowers. Here also are small bits of china and a few lovely pieces of fancy work.

The kiddies had a great time last night around the fish-pond, swarming and jostling for the pretty fancies; dolls and picture books, tiny purses and bags, funny little novelties of all sorts, emerging from the interior of the mysterious, draped corner. The competition was so keen that one small boy wept bitter tears over his companion's receipt of a coveted toy, and started in to try his luck all over again.

There are cigars in the little white house in the corner, and all sorts of comfortable staples at the country store; bags of potatoes and flour, fat geese and turkeys and chickens; eggs and butter, sides of lamb and pork, with some wonderfully warm-looking comforters to go later. To-night is the special fowl night at the country store, when all sorts of lovely birds will be auctioned off.

Anyone attending the bazaar in the Market Hall this evening is assured of an interesting time. The election returns will be announced just as they come in over the wires, there are special attractions at the auctioneer's stand, there will be a piping hot supper of everything good and home-made, and the different booths are preparing for a gala night. Come along and enjoy yourself, like the two prominent gentlemen last evening, who paraded the hall with their recent purchases of knitted pink wool caps and bright neck scarfs replacing their usual sober garb, and patronized every booth in succession.

RIVAL BOXING CLUBS LIABLE TO KILL SPORT IN NEW YORK STATE

By Henry L. Farrell
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

NEW YORK, Dec. 6. — Taking a rap at boxing is becoming the popular pastime in New York.

The battling ranks of Tex Rickard, Jack Curley and the "boxers" union have a new addition now in the National Sporting Club.

This club, which organized two years ago to elevate boxing through the moral support of "the best people in New York," serves notice on the warring elements to quit warring, or they'll have to go to work.

The club says unless conditions are changed, it will go before the government and ask the repeal of the boxing law.

Tips from upstate have it that Governor Miller is just waiting for some responsible organization to close all the fight shops and put the poor abused prize-fighters to work.

The National Sporting Club drew up the Walker boxing bill and was largely responsible for getting it passed under the administration of Governor Al. Smith. The club had plans to rule and control the game in an elaborate club house, which was never built. The organization was about on the rocks until recently, when it was reorganized, with Gutzon Borglum, noted sculptor, as its president.

Tex Rickard was one of the original members of the club, but he withdrew, and some bitter feeling resulted, which still exists.

The "boxers' union" did not take kindly to a "crowd of boiled shirt fronts" trying to tell them how to run the game, and the club had a tough time getting a license, only to lose it after the Lynch-Herman fight, a $100,000 proposition, on which the club lost money.

The club does not like the way boxing affairs are being conducted and through it Borglum says: "We shall be the first to lead a movement to repeal the law and suppress it, because as an enterprise where large purses and reels, rather than rounds, govern the duration of a bout, it can only degenerate to a cock-fight or an occupation of sordid commercialism."

If Tex Rickard thrives on fights as he used to, he ought to be getting fat."

FIVE PIN BOWLING IS AN OBSESSION

OLD BIG BALL SPORT REPLACED BY NEW PASTIME

Five-pin bowling, the latest indoor sport, has driven out of popularity the old big ball game, and to-day is an obsession with thousands of devotees in Canada. Only within the past few years has five-pin bowling secured a hold in the sporting world, says Charlie Good, though ten pins has been played as long back as the oldest inhabitant can remember. There were alleys of sorts in Toronto 40 years ago, but they were generally connected with bars and the sport was limited to the few who liked to mix their amusements. Then some ten years later alleys were built in the various clubs, notably the Atheneum, where the Labor Temple is now located, and the Liederkranz on Richmond Street. Half a dozen drives were also laid down in the Armories, and that was the beginning of bowling on an organized basis. Until this era there had been no regular leagues and the palm ball held the fort. The 16-pound balls with the finger holes gradually superseded the plain article, and it was not long before the game had a large following. The alleys here were not of regulation length, and the local teams which attended the American tournaments were considerably handicapped when they got on the longer drives in use across the border. The extra 10 feet made a considerable difference, and the boys got nothing but experience when they went abroad in quest of prizes as a result.

Clubs Everywhere.

Back in 1906 Thomas F. Ryan installed the first regulation 60-foot alleys in Toronto in the old Ryrie building, and for some years he monopolized all the business. Though the T.B.C. is still in existence that is not the case now. The city is literally honeycombed with clubs, but ten pins is no longer the game played, despite the fact that the Saunders teams of this city captured the world's championship last spring and came within 30 pins of the tournament record. Some of the old guard are still banging away at the heavy timber, but for every handler of the 16-pound mineralite there are 50 and probably more five-pinners, and the percentage is increasing daily.

Revenue Producer.

There's a reason for this state of things apart from the fact that the latter game is a paying proposition for the "house." Ten pins is a little bit too strenuous for the average person, while anybody can play five pins. Not much muscular exertion is required to bowl the small balls, while the physical benefits derived from the exercise are fully as great. It was "Tommy" Reap who was again the pioneer in the introduction of the innovation, and now his alleys which are situated in the Bond Building, are totally given over to the fascinating pastime. His lead has been followed by the majority of the club owners, and it is seldom that the rumble of the 16-pounder is heard in the land. There is a league at Saunders devoted to ten pins and an individual afternoon competition at Karry's new alleys, but otherwise the big-ball game is practically dead. The alleymen do not care how soon it gives up the ghost for good, and here probably we get at the real cause of the sudden popularity of five pins. It is a cheaper and faster game.

Popular With Ladies.

Three games of five pins can be played in the same time that it takes to play two of ten pins, and while the latter sport requires the services of a boy on each alley to set up pins, one pin sticker can look after two five-pin alleys and not overly exert himself. Ladies as well as men can play five pins, while the heavy sphere made ten pins prohibitive as far as the fair sex are concerned. In fact, there are almost as many women playing on the alleys at present as there are men, and some of the big concerns have leagues composed entirely of girls. So great is the demand for acrommodation at the various clubs that it is almost impossible to get an alley from five o'clock onwards in the evening, and five-pin bowling has assumed all the proportions of an epidemic.

It is an open secret that a few days ago an agent of a prominent Chicago sporting man who controls many alleys in the loop was in the city looking for a suitable site upon which to erect a building capable of holding 80 alleys. Toronto, in his opinion, is the greatest bowling centre in the continent. And he is pretty nearly right.

At the GRAND Three Days Commencing Thursday

SPORT GOSSIP

There's a great hockey bill ahead for the fans in Peterborough. Three teams are entered in the Ontario Hockey Association, Intermediate and Junior by the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association, and a junior team by the Athletic Association of the Holy Name Society.

The City Hockey League will respond to the referee's bell again, playing the schedule games on Wednesday nights. The League provided fast hockey last season, and the prospects are for stronger teams for the 1921-2 race. The probabilities are that Walter Smaill will referee all the games.

Mr. Smaill is preparing a campaign for the younger players, and there will be juvenile and midget series. The owners of the rink are giving great assistance to this movement, and they are supporting the Athletic Association in its endeavors to help the youngsters play the winter game, under proper organization and supervision.

Boys and girls of school age will be admitted to the City League games for ten cents. Smaller boys and girls, when accompanied by parents and relatives, will be admitted free.

The young ladies will be encouraged to play hockey this coming season, and if they avail themselves of the services of the Director of Athletics, the young ladies of Campbellford will not win all the honors, as was the case last winter.

Representatives of the P.A.A.A. met the Rink owners last night and reached an agreement under which the Intermediate and Junior O.H.A. teams will practice and play their games at the Rink. The Rink owners will co-operate with the P.A.A.A. by providing the use of the Rink for games in a series for midget players and a series for juvenile players. Players in the two leagues will be recruited from the city schools.

Hockey players will be welcomed to the indoor training class at the Y.M.C.A. Gym. this evening from 7 to 8 o'clock.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

TWENTY-FOUR HOURS OF TRUTH.

"Twenty-four Hours of Truth," which is the Rex Stock Company's offering for the first three days of this week at the Grand, got away to a rousing start last night when this most amusing comedy convulsed a large audience. Rex plays the part of Bob Bennett, the young man who wagers $10,000 that for twenty-four hours he can speak the absolute truth in answer to any question that is asked him. He of course wins the bet, but not before he has caused a whole lot of trouble, insulted his friends, involved his partner in a domestic mix-up and incidentally provided his audience with a laugh every minute. It is one of the best roles Mr. Snelgrove has had here and he makes the most of it. Billy Seymour is capital as Ralston, Bob's irascible partner, and Billy Yule scores heavily as the Bishop. "Twenty-four Hours of Truth" is one of the funniest bills the Grand has had in many a moon and should do capacity business to-night and to-morrow night. As a special feature to-night the election returns will be given to the audience. There should not be a vacant seat in the house.

AT THE CAPITOL.

The patrons at the Capitol last evening were entertained with something unusual in the vaudeville line. Sheik Hassan did some wonderful stunts in an acrobatic and iron-jaw programme. A dark powerfully-muscled performer, in Eastern costume, he held the attention of his audience with his skill. With a slight girl companion, he goes through several difficult feats, holding her aloft with one hand, as she revolves rapidly, balancing her precariously in mid-air, and concluding his performance by supporting a heavy table in the air with his teeth, the girl reclining on the table.

The second act was a merry medley of whirlwind dancing by Leonard and Wright, clever foot-performers, who have some beautiful costumes. They do some distinctly modern steps in old Colonial dress, the man taps out an entire song with his nimble feet, and the girl sings and dances prettily. They end their number with a jazzed rendition of the "Humoresque" and a fly-away rendition of "The Kerry Dances," bright and gay.

Ethel Clayton, in "Sham," is the heroine of a dashing society drama, light and frothy, in which she depicts the "grafting" girl, who uses her charm to obtain gifts from her friends. Her final awakening, with the discovery of the falseness of her cherished pearls, leads to a happy denouement.

The balance of the excellent programme includes an entertaining "educational" film of Samoan customs and peoples, a comedy with "Smiling Bill" Parsons as the bald-headed hero who yearns for a bushy cranium, and a breezy chapter of the new serial, "Hurricane Hutch."

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE CLUB FOR MONTREAL?

MONTREAL, Dec. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Frank Shaughnessy, rugby coach of the McGill University football team, has approached the City League syndicate here with a view to securing the lease on the Atwater Park property in this city for the purpose of placing an International League Baseball Club here.

Shaughnessy, who is playing-manager in the summer months of the Syracuse International League Baseball team, is stated to be associated with Lol. Solman of Toronto, in the above venture.

S E. Lichtenhein, former president of the local Montreal International League Club, was also stated to be interested in Shaughnessy's plan, but denied it. "I am a plucked pigeon as far as baseball is concern od. Never aga n," said Lichtenhein.

It is stated that Shaughnessy has gone to Syracuse to discuss details in connection with the proposed transfer of an International League Club to this city.

THE KLINE SALE OPENS TO-MORROW

It is staed that there is evidently something unusually attractive to the ladies in the bankrupt stock sale announced to begin to-morrow morning at the Kline store, 430 George street. All day to-day it was noticed that ladies have been trying the door to gain admittance, but without success, owing doubtless to the staff inside preparing the stock for the sale which begins to-morrow morning. One thing seems certain, that at the price the stock was sold, 36 1-2 cents on the dollar, bargains await shoppers.

SHERIFF STARS IN CUPID ROLE

Letters Pour in on Omaha Official Who Accommodated One Applicant.

OMAHA, Dec. 6.—All the widows in New York and a lot in other states as well seem to be hunting for Nebraska husbands. And half the widowers in New York and a lot in other states as well seem to be on the lookout for Nebraska wives.

Sheriff Mike Clark of Omaha has a bushel of letters which roll in at the rate of about 50 a day. Not long ago Sheriff Clark found a husband for Widow Dunham of Newark, N.J., who had evolved the theory that all she had to do to get a husband was to write to some Western sheriff. She picked out Omaha. And, sure enough, in about three weeks she was married to Albert Henry Thomas, a railroad man of Omaha.

Her story got into the newspapers—and Sheriff Clark thereby got his foot in it. For every widow around the country who read that story immediately wrote Sheriff Clark for a husband. And every widower and every old bachelor under whose notice the article came wrote the Sheriff to find them wives.

Terseness and Speed.

Mrs. S. Brickley, 7 East Broadway, New York, wrote one of the shortest letters: "I am looking for a husband; can you do anything for me?" she asks.

James George, Box 349, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., also is very laconic in his demands: "I want a wife; put me in touch with one, quick!" he writes.

Charles Olson, 74 Woodhull Street, Brooklyn, is not quite so terse. His letter to the Sheriff says: "I am a former engineer on a Danish ship. I want a home again, but don't know a woman whom I can ask. Please send the names of several who want husbands." Sheriff Clark sent him the names of half a dozen.

Avery G. Wooden, 1228 Lake Ave., Rochester, N.Y., writes the Sheriff he is 27 years old and that he wants a young widow.

Charles Ryan, Clifton Springs, N. Y., told the Sheriff he is a farmer, but that he has taken two years in a medical college and expects to complete his course. He wants a wife.

Peter Gruh, Y.M.C.A., Hoboken, N.J., says in his letter: "I see where you have lots of wives to give away. Give me one."

Thaddeus Stargeski, 209 Waverly Avenue, N.J., is delighted with the prospects: "Just read the joyful news of an unlimited supply of women wanting husbands," he writes Sheriff Clark. "I am a graduate electrician. Send me some letters."

Wants Sensible Widow.

Frank Ryan, 665 Lenox Avenue, New York, wrote to Sheriff Clark: "I want a sensible widow."

Charles F. McDonald, 283 West 147th Street, New York, is searching for an uncle who disappeared 35 years ago. The uncle's name was M. O. Connor. An estate can not be settled until he is found. "Help me find my uncle and I'll marry any woman you want me to marry," he tells Sheriff Clark.

Miss S. Morand, 302 St. Mark's Place, Tompkinsville, N.Y., is just 19 years old and "has hopes," she writes the Sheriff. "I have the very highest ideals of Westerners," she writes.

Miss Rita C. Waleker, 205 West 101st Street, New York, says: "I hear you have a supply of married men on hand. I want to settle down to home life. I am a trained nurse, 40 years old, brown hair, grey eyes."

George Muir, 351 West Thirty-Ninth Street, New York, has a real reason for wanting to get married: "I have nose bleed and the doctor says if I can get married it will cure the trouble," he wrote.

New Jersey "bids" number more than 100. Letters from practically every state in the Union are included in that bushel of letters which stands on the Sheriff's desk.

SMITH'S FALLS BRIGHTER.

The Malleable Castings Company, Smith's Falls, has re-opened a part of their plant. Fifty men will be taken on as a start. The municipal stone quarry will be re-opened within a few days, and stone will be taken out for use in connection with the Smith's Falls section of the Kingston-Ottawa provincial highway.

VOL. XLIX., No. 133 PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1921 PRICE THREE CENTS

LIBERALS HAVE MAJORITY OF 9 OVER ALL PARTIES

GORDON'S MAJORITY NOW OVER 2000 WITH 8 MORE POLLS TO REPORT VOTE

BRETHEN CARRIES EAST PETERBORO' BY 434 WITH SEXSMITH RUNNING SECOND AND DEWART THIRD.

BIG DEMONSTRATION

West Peterboro' returned G. N. Gordon, Liberal, to the House of Commons yesterday by one of the largest majorities ever rolled up by a political candidate in this riding. Practically complete returns give Mr. Gordon a majority of 2065, the figures being, Gordon, 6624, Burnham 4559. Five polls in the north have not reported.

East Peterboro' went into the Progressive column by electing G. A. Brethen by 434. Mr. Brethen obtained 2423, J. A. Sexsmith, ex-M.P., Conservative 1989, and Capt. John A. Dewart, M. C. Liberal, 1362.

After the returns from the first few divisions were received the result in West Peterboro' was never in doubt, practically every poll to report swelling the lead of the Liberal standard-bearer.

In East Peterboro' the contest was a see-saw affair. The first few polls gave Dewart a lead, which was cancelled in favor of Sexsmith, until the results from 11 polls put Brethen ahead. Rural returns increased his majority.

By 7.30 o'clock the election of Mr Gordon was assured and when it was announced to the throng in his committee rooms at 7.40 that he was leading the polls by 1800 the crowd surged to the Royal Theatre Here a huge audience acclaimed the victor and wildly applauded his address. In the meantime another crowd had filled the committee rooms to join the Liberal celebration. It was necessary to turn hundreds away from the doors of both the committee rooms and the theatre.

Mr. Burnham's followers dispersed early in the evening when it was apparent that the only question was the size of the Gordon majority. "How do we stand?", asked Mr. Burnham as he entered the committee rooms. "Six hundred in the hole", replied V. J. McElderry, secretary of the Conservative Association.

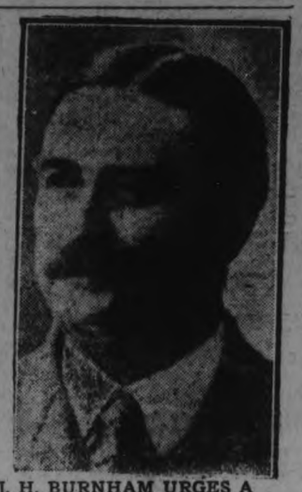
Mr. Burnham in a brief speech congratulated his opponent on his sweeping victory.

Mr. Gordon said to the Examiner this morning that he had never known an election that was conducted so free from personal criticism and so free from election abuse He said, with one exception, all of Mr. Burnham's speakers discussed public issues in a way that could not be criticised by the opposing party.

Mr. Gordon further said that the Meighen Government was cast out by an overwhelming overflow of public opinion, and that Mr. Burnham nor any other candidate could not possibly have withstood public opinion which was so emphatically opposed the Government. No one could criticise the manner in which the West Peterborough election was conducted, according to Mr. Gordon and he said it simply showed just how unpopular the Government had become.

The member-elect expressed himself as most pleased with the splendid organization created by the girls and women who worked untiringly in his behalf for several weeks, and he said that Ald. Frank Whitehouse and his campaign workers had the best organization ever built up in West Peterborough.

Mr. Gordon was sitting in his office behind a stack of telegrams that had come in congratulating him on his splendid success.



J. H. BURNHAM URGES A CONSERVATIVE REVIVAL

In a post-election statement this morning J. H. Burnham, ex-M.P., defeated Conservative candidate in West Peterborough, says:

The defeat of the chief of the National Liberal and Conservative Party and of his party and of those Conservatives who, like myself, supported it, means, in my opinion, that we must have a Dominion-wide convention to get back to the party that won in 1911. Locally, the opposition to the government of last February was more pronounced than we had thought.

A VINDICATION OF HIS POLICY KING DECLARES

LIBERAL LEADER INTERPRETS RESULT AS PROTEST AGAINST AUTOCRACY OF GOVERNMENT

HIS APPEAL NOT CLASS

OTTAWA, Dec. 7.— (Canadian Press.)—The people by their defeat of the Meighen administration, have shown that they agree with the attitude which the Liberals have been taking in the House and in the country during the past couple of years," declared Hon. W. L. Makenzie King, Leader of the Liberal Party, on receipt of the approximately complete returns from the election at an early hour this morning.

"The people of Canada," Mr. King declared, "have shown by their overwhelming defeat of the Meighen administration, that they realized the truth of the charges of autocracy and usurpation which I have been making against the Meighen government since the Right Hon. Mr. Meighen took control of the affairs of this country. When the total Liberals and Progressives elected are considered it must be admitted that the Meighen administration has been ignominiously defeated.

"The people have also shown they are heartily sick of conditions and it is a matter of great satisfaction to me to find that the Liberal party is returned with a clear majority, over both other groups in the House of Commons. It can carry on without any thought of coalition or log rolling with either group. The fact that three provinces, Quebec, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, have voted solidly for the Liberals is in itself evidence that the Liberal policy has appealed not only to one class or group or race, but to all classes."

Gaiety reigned in the offices of Hon. Mackenzie King in the Parliament Buildings when the special telegraph wires carried the news to the Liberal leader of the continuous sweep of Eastern seats to the Liberal columns. The Liberal leader received the election bulletins at his office, surrounded by twenty or thirty of his friends, and during the evening telegrams of congratulations came in from all parts of the Dominion as it became evident that the Liberals wre making almost a clean sweep of the territory east of the Ottawa river.

THE LEADERS OF THE DEFEATED PARTIES.

Hon. T. A. Crerar (left), leader of the Progressives, whose party will form the official Opposition in the next Parliament, and Hon. Arthur Meighen, retiring Premier (right), whose party holds but one-third of the number of seats it had at dissolution. Mr. Meighen was defeated in his own constituency of Portage la Prairie.

LIBERALS SUCCEED BEYOND THEIR MOST SANGUINE EXPECTATIONS AS TIDE TURNS AGAINST GOVERNMENT

CLEAN SWEEP IN EAST AND INROADS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA AND PRAIRIE PROVINCES FEATURE DAY OF SURPRISES—GOVERNMENT HOLDS ONLY THIRD OF SEATS IT HAD AT DISSOLUTION.

OTTAWA, December 7 (Canadian Press). — With the assurance that the Hon. W. L. Mackenzie-King will lead the next administration in Canada, the Liberals have succeeded beyond their most sanguine expectations.

Winning twenty-three seats in Ontario was much above their estimate, and sweeping every seat in Prince Edward Island, Nova Scitia and Quebec and securing three in British Columbia, as well as making inroads into the West, were among the big surprises in a day of surprises.

The National Progressive Party, while it stands second to the Liberals, did not obtain its expected support east of the Great Lakes, and it was just able to hold the seat of Victoria and Carleton, New Brunswick, in the contest in the Maritimes.

Little more than one-third of the seats it held at dissolution were retained by the Government. With the Prime Minister to defeat went eight of his Ministers. Of their number, five had been members of the Cabinet only since September when the ministry was reorganised. Two of the defeated Ministers were beaten by Progressives, the others by Liberals.

The following is the standing of the parties, including the revision necessitated by this morning's returns from all Provinces with the exception of the Yukon, still unheard from:

	Conservatives.	Liberals.	Progressives.	Ind.
Prince Edward	Nil.	4	Nil.	Nil.
Nova Scotia....	Nil.	16	Nil.	Nil.
New Brunswick	5	5	1	Nil.
Quebec	Nil.	65	Nil.	Nil.
Ontario	38	22	23	Nil.
Manitoba	Nil.	2	12	1
Saskatchewan	Nil.	1	15	Nil.
Alberta	1	1	9	1
British Columbia	7	3	3	Nil.
Totals	51	119	64	2

Yukon—No results.

OTTAWA, December 7 (Canadian Press).—Returns show that 65 candidates lost their deposits, and that the treasury is $13,000.00 richer as a result. The Progressives were the greatest sufferers, with nineteen.

Independents came next with eighteen, then the Conservatives with twelve, and Liberals seven.

OTTAWA, December 7 (Canadian Press). — Premier Meighen was at his office early this morning. Quiet pervaded the office following the noise and bustle of the battle last night. He was busy all morning, received Sir Adam Beck, and attended to correspondence, and then went on a visit to the Governor-General.

He had no announcement to make regarding immediate action.

OTTAWA, December 7 (Canadian Press). — The belated returns in the general election add to the overwhelming defeat of the Government and to the Liberal lead. Another member of the Government, Dr. Edwards, joined the ranks of the defeated to-day, and there is every indication that he will be accompanied by the Hon. R. J. Manion. Should they be defeated, a total of eleven Ministers will have failed to secure election.

To-day's returns firmly establish the Progressives as the official Opposition. The standing is important, as the leader receives a salary on the same basis as a Minister of the Crown.

In the whole Dominion Independents and Labour fared badly, securing only two seats. A few Cabinet meetings have yet to be called to clear up business before the Premier places his resignation with the Governor-General.

LIBERAL PARTY SWEEPS ENTIRE EAST; CONSERVATISM AS A POLITICAL FORCE DEAD EAST OF OTTAWA, WEST OF LAKES

EVERY SEAT IN NOVA SCOTIA, PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND AND QUEBEC LIBERAL AND PRAIRIES PROGRESSIVE—GOVERNMENT FAILS TO ELECT SINGLE CANDIDATE IN FIVE PROVINCES AND PREMIER AND EIGHT OF HIS CABINET ARE DEFEATED—LIBERALS TAKE 23 SEATS IN ONTARIO, EXCEEDING ALL EXPECTATIONS.

TORONTO, December 7 (Canadian Press). — The returns in the Dominion election show 121 Liberals, 60 Progressives, 51 Conservatives, and 2 Independents, with no returns from the Yukon.

With a clear majority over the combined strength of the Conservatives and Progressives, the Liberal Party, under the Hon. W. L. Mackenzie-King will form a new Government, while the former administration will be reduced to the position of third party in the House of Commons, the post formerly occupied by the Progressives, who now assume the place of official Opposition.

The strength shown by the Liberals, especially in Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, and New Brunswick, is one of the outstanding features of the fight, while the clean sweep in Quebec constitutes a record even for that traditionally Liberal Province.

THE NEW PREMIER

Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, as a result of the Liberal party's sweeping victory at the polls yesterday and his personal triumph by a majority of 1,100 in North York, will be called upon shortly to form a new Government.

Hon. Mr. King is 47 years of age, having been born in Kitchener, Ontario, in 1874, the grandson of William Lyon Mackenzie, first advocate of responsible government in Ontario, after whom the Liberal leader is named. He is a graduate of the Universities of Toronto and Chicago and of Harvard University, and finished his education in Europe.

Hon. Mr. King is one of the most prominent economists on the continent and his book, "Industry and Humanity," is one of the greatest modern authorities. He was engaged by the Rockefeller Institute as the man best qualified to investigate industrial conditions and settle disputes.

First Deputy Minister of Labor at the age of 26 years, Mr. King rendered valuable service as regards working conditions and conciliation in industrial disputes. Following his resignation from this position he served on a number of Royal Commissions in a similar capacity, and acted as Canada's envoy to Great Britain regarding Imperial problems several times. In 1909 he was appointed Minister of Labor, retiring with the Laurier Government in 1911.

In the spring of 1914 Mr. King was engaged by the Rockefeller Foundation, the greatest philanthropic organization on the continent, to investigate industrial conditions and settle disputes in Canada and the United States. After the outbreak of war Mr. King rendered valuable service to Canada in conciliation of the numerous disputes in the munitions industry. Contrary to statements that have been made, Mr. King did not leave Canada during the war; he resided in Ottawa throughout the conflict, exerting his efforts to maintain the efficiency of the system of supplying the sinews of war and supporting a blind father, invalid mother, tubercular brother, and the family of the brother.

In 1917 he was elected to represent Prince, P.E.I., and in 1919 was chosen leader of the Liberal party to succeed Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

While the first steps have not yet been taken by Mr. King towards forming his Government, speculation is already rife as to the composition of the incoming Cabinet. It is predicted that the Quebec representation will include Sir Lomer Gouin, Hon. Walter G. Mitchell, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Ernest Lapointe and Dr. H. S. Beland. From Nova Scotia the possibilities include Hon. A. K. MacLean, one-time member of the Borden Union Government and Hon. W. S. Fielding, whose elevation to the post of Minister of Finance is considered practically a surety. Hon. D. D. Mackenzie, of Cape Breton North and Victoria will also, it is believed, be numbered among the Eastern representatives, as well as E. M. McDonald, of Pictou. In New Brunswick A. B. Copp, who carried Westmoreland in 1917 and again yesterday, is supposedly sure of a place in the incoming Cabinet. In Ontario Hon. Chas. Murphy is entitled to consideration, as are Hon. George P. Graham and W. C. Kennedy. In Saskatchewan Hon. W. R. Motherwell and Hon. W. E. Knowles are possibilities, while Alberta may be represented by Hon Frank Oliver.

The exact date on which Hon. Mr. Meighen will resign is not yet known, but it is expected that this formality will not be long delayed.

It is thought probable that Hon. Geo. Boivin, Shefford, will have the honor of being appointed Speaker for the fourteenth Parliament. Mr. Boivin has filled the Deputy Speaker's chair acceptably to all parties in the House for some years. According to custom an English-speaking member will probably be named as Deputy Speaker, J. A. Robb, chief Liberal whip for many years, is one of the outstanding Quebec members of Parliament and will probably come in for consideration when appointments are made.

The Premier's defeat was overwhelming, and he says he accepts the verdict of the people. It is expected that he will place his resignation in the hands of the Governor-General at once. The latter will then ask Hon. Mr. King to form a Cabinet.

No greater political revolution has ever taken place as a result of a Canadian general election. The Premier and eight of his colleagues were defeated at the polls.

In Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, Quebec, Manitoba and Saskatchewan no Conservative candidate was elected. East of the Ottawa River and west of the Great Lakes, Conservatives as a political force has ceased to exist, save in the urban centres of British Columbia.

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND
BY "SAPPER"
(CYRIL McNEILE)

Perhaps a patrol coming back would report a German, lying huddled in a shell-hole, with no trace of a wound, but only a broken neck; perhaps the patrol never found anything. But whatever the report, Hugh Drummond only grinned and saw to his men's breakfasts. Which is why there are in England to-day quite a number of civilians who acknowledge only two rulers—the King and Hugh Drummond. And they would willingly die for either.

The result on Drummond was not surprising: as nearly as a man may be he was without fear. And when the idea came to him as he sat on the edge of his bed thoughtfully pulling off his boots, no question of the possible risk entered his mind. To explore the house seemed the most natural thing in the world, and with characteristic brevity he summed up the situation as it struck him.

"They suspect me anyhow: in fact, they know I took Potts. Therefore even if they catch me passage-creeping, I'm no worse off than I am now. And I might find something of interest. Therefore, carry on, brave heart."

The matter was settled; the complete bench of bishops headed by their attendant satellites would not have stopped him, nor the fact that the German front-line trench was a far safer place for a stranger than The Elms at night. But he didn't know that fact, and it would have cut no more ice than the episcopal dignitaries, if he had. . . .

It was dark in the passage outside as he opened the door of his room and crept towards the top of the stairs. The collar of his brown lounge coat was turned up, and his stockinged feet made no sound on the heavy pile carpet. Like a huge shadow he vanished into the blackness, feeling his way forward with the uncanny instinct that comes from much practice. Every now and then he paused and listened intently, but the measured ticking of the clock below and the occasional creak of a board alone broke the stillness.

For a momen his outline showed up against the faint grey light which was coming through a window half-way down the stairs; then he was gone again, swallowed up in the gloom of the hall. To the left lay the room in which he had spent the evening, and Drummond turned to the right. As he had gone up to bed he had noticed a door screened by a heavy curtain which he thought might be the room Phyllis Benton had spoken of—the room where Henry Lakington kept his ill-gotten treasures. He felt his way along the wall, and at length his hand touched the curtain—only to drop it again at once. From close beside him had come a sharp, angry hiss. . . .

He stepped back a pace and stood rigid, staring at the spot from which the sound had seemed to come—but he could see nothing. Then he leaned forward and once more moved the curtain Instantly it came again, sharper and angrier than before.

Hugh passed a hand over his forehead and found it damp. Germans he knew, and things on two legs, but what was this that hissed so viciously in the darkness? At length he determined to risk it, and drew from his pocket a tiny electric torch. Holding it well away from his body, he switched on the light. In the centre of the beam, swaying gracefully to and fro, was a snake. For a moment he watched it fascinated as it spat at the light angrily; he saw the flat hood where the vicious head was set on the upright body; then he switched off the torch and retreated rather faster than he had come.

"A convivial household," he muttered to himself through lips that were a little dry. "A hooded cobra is an unpleasing pet."

He stood leaning against the banisters regaining his self-control. There was no further sound from the cobra; seemingly it only got annoyed when its own particular domain was approached. In fact, Hugh had just determined to reconnoitre the curtained doorway again to see if it was possible to circumvent the snake, when a low chuckle came distinctly to his ears from the landing above.

He flushed angrily in the darkness. There was no doubt whatever as to the human origin of that laugh, and Hugh suddenly realised that he was making the most profound fool of himself. And such a realisation, though possibly salutary to all of us at times, is most unpleasant.

For Hugh Drummond, who, with all his lack of conceit, had a very good idea of Hugh Drummond's capabilities, to be at an absolute disadvantage—to be laughed at by some dirty swine whom he could strangle in half a minute—was impossible! His fists clenched, and he swore softly under his breath. Then as silently as he had come down, he commenced to climb the stairs again. He had a hazy idea that he would like to hit something—hard.

There were nine stairs in the first half of the flight, and it was as he stood on the fifth that he again heard the low chuckle. At the same instant something whizzed past his head so low that it almost touched his hair, and there was a clong on the wall beside him. He ducked instinctively, and regardless of noise raced up the remaining stairs, on all-fours. His jaw was set like a vice, his eyes were blazing; in fact, Hugh Drummond was seeing red.

DO YOUR BOWELS MOVE REGULARLY, OR DO THEY BECOME CONSTIPATED

There is no medium through which disease so often attacks the system as by allowing the bowels to become constipated, and there is no other trouble which flesh is heir to that is more liable to be neglected, because material inconvenience may not be felt at once from irregular action of the bowels. When there is not regular action the retention of the decayed and effete matter, with its poisonous gases, soon poisons the whole system by being absorbed into it, causing violent sick and bilious headaches, internal bleeding or protruding piles, heartburn, jaundice, etc.

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS will regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the bowels, thus making them active and regular, and removing the constipation and all of its allied troubles.

Mr. Samuel Buckler, Tatamagouche, N.S., writes: "For over a year I suffered with constipation. I took several different kinds of medicines, but could only get temporary relief. I was told to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I procured two vials of them, but after I had taken one I found that I was relieved of my trouble. I do not hesitate to recommend Laxa-Liver Pills for any kind of constipation."

Price, 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

West Peterboro Returns Gordon

SUCCESSFUL CANDIDATE OBTAINED A LEAD IN FIRST RETURNS AND RESULT WAS NEVER IN DOUBT---MAJORITY MAY RUN CLOSE TO TWO THOUSAND.

AT G. N. GORDON'S COMMITTEE ROOMS

At 6.05 G. N. Gordon's supporters and admirers are gathering at his committee rooms on George street, where the very atmosphere is punctured with unalloyed optimis m — and tobacco smoke.

In canvassing the crowd here there seems no word in the dictionary which spells "defeat" for Gordon.

A voice here predicted 400 majority for G. N. Gordon in the city.

The first return came in at 6:15, when Announcer Fred Tuggy called out that 5B gave Burnham 59 and Gordon 49.

Voice "Wait till the next," and the next from 15A gave Gordon a majority.

When half a dozen polls gave Gordon leading by 150 already tumultuous cheering arose.

At 6.25 Gordon's majority was announced at 346, and the crowd simply yelled with enthusiasm.

Supreme Confidence.

G. N. Gordon's committee rooms are now seething with a mass of ardent campaign workers with never a hint of defeat either in their mein or voice. The candidate himself is now here, still in vigorous campaign harness, so to speak, and diffusing an atmosphere of supreme confidence both in his own election and that of his party.

The Liberal candidate is here declared to be 600 ahead, and the crowd cheered again and again.

The returns are now coming in thick and fast, with Liberal majorities, although the council chamber gave a tie of 75 for each candidate.

GORDON'S COMMITTEE ROOMS 7.10 P.M.

When O'Reilly School House, Ennismore, at a quarter to seven, gave Gordon 68 and Burnham 11, the crowd, strange to say, failed to see the significance of the returns—the first received from the country—giving the Liberal candidate a majority of 57 ,and did not respond with the customary enthusiasm.

But when Lakehurst gave Gordon 83 and Burnham 20; Buckhorn 107 for Gordon and 59 for the Conservative aspirant, the crowd simply went wild in a spontaneous outburst of approval.

The candidate here appeared from the committee room's sanctum, and was acclaimed again and again before he could announce that his majority had reached just above the 1000 mark.

7.30 p.m.

When at five minutes to seven Tuggey announced a majority of 2 for Mr. Burnham from Claraday, there arose one sympathetic cheer from the Committee Rooms in which men are packed near like sardines, but alive with tumultuous enthusasm on hearing that their candidate's majority in Ennismore is 202.

At this juncture Mr. Gordon in cheerful, joyous voice sent the big crowd of cheering, exultant city male electorate to the Allen Theatre to hear during the remainder of the evening reports from the Dominion in genera.

Mr. G. N. Gordon's majority is now recorded here as 1,480.

CLOSE UP OF CANDIDATES

J. H. Burnham, ex-M.P., Conservative candidate, was elected to the Commons first over the late Hon. J. R. Stratton by 44 votes in 1911. He was re-elected on the Unionist platfor over R. R. Hall in 1917, and re-signed in July, 1920, in protest against what he termed the usurpation of power by the Meighen Government. In the by-election last February he opposed the Government as an Independent Conservative, running third in the field of five candidates. When Premier Meighen announced dissolution last September Mr. Burnham espoused the Government cause, saying that as the Premier was standing only on the Conservative platform of protection he was willing to "let by-gones be by-gones." He secured the Conservative nomination by a small margin over J. F. Strickland. Originally a lawyer, Mr. Burnham has served as editor of The Peterborough Review and has written a novel and a history of French Canada.

G. N. Gordon, Liberal candidate, made a Dominion-wide sensation when he was swept to victory over four other candidates by a majority of about 1285 in the by-election last February. During his one session in the House Mr. Gordon was successful, after a long fight, in securing the repeal of the proposed tax on package foods which saved $4,000,000 to the Canadian consumer and urged action for the completion of the Trent Canal, the establishment of an Income Tax Office here and insertion of fair wage clauses in Government contracts. Mr. Gordon has risen high in his party. He has always been prominent locally, both as a lawyer and citizen. He has served on the Board of Education and is at present a member of the City Council. As chairman of the Manufacturers' committee of the Council he has taken a prominent part in securing industries for the city and his handling of the crisis which arose due to the power shortage in October, 1920, is well remembered.

BOWEN ELECTED.

The result in Durham county, announced as final at 10 p.m., was:

Bowen (Conservative) 3,755
Preston (Liberal) 3,373
Reid (Progressive).. 2,796

AN EMERGENCY FUSE

Vote a Vindication.

Ex-Warden W. A. Anderson of Otonabee was one of the few visitors to The Examiner's inner news offices last night. He said that he regretted the defeat of the Liberal candidate in East Peterborough, but "it shows," he said, "that the country as a whole has followed the Liberal policies and leader. Clearly, the Liberal policy is the policy that has appealed to the majority of the people."

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 7TH, 1921.

THE VERDICT.

As an explanation of the rout of the Government, Mr. Burnham remarked last evening that when times are not good people are likely to be discontented, and to work for a change Undoubtedly such a state oof mind on the part of the electorate was a factor in the overthrow of the Meighen Administration, but there were other more potent factors that entered into the defeat of the Government. The feeling that the Union Government, having fulfilled the mission for which it was elected, should have gone to the people, and that the Meighen Government, which succeeded the Unionist regime, had not a proper mandate to remain in office, was a powerful influence. And there were other causes that need not be enumerated here. The figures of yesterday's election leave no doubt of the dissatisfaction of the people of Canada with the government, for only one-fourth of the Meighen candidates were successful, and in five provinces of the Dominion the Administration was completely wiped out.

MR. GORDON'S SUCCESS.

West Peterborough, which last February selected G. N. Gordon from a field of five to represent this riding at Ottawa, evidently saw no reason why it should not give him another chance to be of service, for in yesterday's general election Mr. Gordon was returned by a majority of around the 2,000 mark. The size of his majority must have been gratifying to Mr. Gordon, and it was a source of delight to the hundreds of his supporters who had thrown themselves willingly in the fight. The member for West Peterborough has the happy faculty of attracting to him zealous workers, and he had an organization yesterday that exerted every effort to bring out the vote and make sure of the election of their standard-bearer. The summary gives an idea of how well they succeeded.

When Mr. Gordon went to Ottawa for the first time last winter he was a member of the Opposition. This time he goes as a member of the Government—perhaps, indeed, as a member of the Cabinet — and his opportunities for service on behalf of the people of West Peterborough will, as a result, be greatly increased. His career at Ottawa will be watched with great interest by his constituents.

His victory yesterday was clean-cut and decisive, and his majorities were not sectional, but distributed over the whole riding. In the City of Peterborough, nominally Conservative, he had a good lead over Mr. Burnham, and he set the pace too in North Monaghan, usually relied upon to give a Conservative majority. Mr. Gordon's campaign only lasted three weeks, but he made every moment count after he had entered the fight.

YESTERDAY'S TURNOVER.

The people of Canada have spoken and as a result the Government lead by Rt. Honorable Arthur Meighen has been served with a notice to vacate the seats of the mighty and make way for a new administration. The rout of the Government is complete. Without a single representative in Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Quebec and Manitoba, with its stronghold of Ontario wrested from it by Liberals and Progressives, with the Prime Minister himself, and many of his ministers, among the fallen, and with only British Columbia of all the provinces showing a Government majority, the defeat of the Meighen Administration is absolute.

The mandate for the carrying on of the government of Canada has been entrusted to the Liberal party, whose success was as striking as the overthrow of the National Liberal and Conseravtive party was complete. While many election prophets declared that Hon MacKenzie King would be supported by the largest group in the new Parliament, there were few that believed that he would win enough seats to give him a clear majority in the House. Yet that is precisely what happened yesterday. East of Ontario the Liberals were conceded 75 per cent. of the seats. The returns show that that estimate was much too low, for they carried every riding in Quebec, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, a total of eighty-five victories, with not a single loss, and New Brunswick gave them five more, a total of ninety seats in Eastern Canada. In Ontario, where in 1917, only eight Liberals were elected, the party led by Hon. MacKenzie King yesterday succeeded in capturing twenty-four seats.

West of Ontario the Liberal cause was not so successful, for the Progressives swept the three prairie provinces,but the almost clean sweep of the Dominion east of the Ottawa River, and the unexpectedly good showing in Ontario, left Mr. King in a position to be independent of the western results.

The Progressives' hope of having the largest group in the House vanished when the Ontario returns were announced. In the West, Hon. Mr. Crerar's forces reached their objective as scheduled by the party manager, but in Ontario the standard-bearers of the Farmers ran much below the form their leaders expected of them In Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, too, the Agrarian party utterly failed to make an impression upon the electorate, but one Progressive candidate being successful in the four Eastern Provinces.

As for the Government the figures show a disaster all along the line. Only in New Brunswick were they able to make a stand east of the Ottawa. Not a single candidate was elected in the eighty-five seats in Quebec, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. Ontario furnishes most of the Conservative members to the new Parliament, yet even in this citadel there were more Liberals and Farmers elected than there were representatives of the Government.Conservative strongholds, such as Toronto and Hamilton remained loyal to Mr. Meighen, but among the losses were Brantford, Welland and the two seats in Ottawa, losses which indicated that the tariff issue was not seriously accepted by the great mass of the people.

MALIGNING THE C.N.R.

That there are interests making it their special object to discredit and, if possible, to ruin the National Railways is well understood. Misrepresentation, scepticism, ridicule have all been employed in turn, and sometimes together, by opponents of the Government's policy and by those averse to public ownership. We have got quite used to such tactics here in Canada; we know, too, that the real truth of the position is only now beginning to be learned in the old country; but it comes somewhat as a shock to find that the anti-C.N.R. propagandists are operating so far afield as New Zealand. In the New Zealand Herald a communication from a Vancouver correspondent was recently published purporting to be an account of the history of the acquisition of the Canadian National lines and their present position; the letter contains so many inaccuracies, however, that the president, Mr. Hanna, has felt constrained to reply, correcting a "number of statements which are absolutely untrue," and giving a brief history of the events which led up to the Government's intervention.

In the first place, Mr. Hanna points out that there is not the "slightest similarity" between the Canadian Government's action and the war measures adopted by the United States. This, of course, is well understood in this country, but one can see why it was sought to convey such an impression in far-away New Zealand. The railway lines in the United States have now been taken out of the hands of politicians and returned to private ownership. Also in the United States, as Mr. Hanna points out, "they are endeavoring to group the railways in larger systems, putting the weak lines with strong, a principle which, of course, Canada first adopted in the creation of the National system."

Secondly, it is not true to say, as this Vancouver correspondent does, that the Canadian Pacific is carrying freight for less than the Canadian National, nor is it fair to assert that the Canadian farmers are "organizing a campaign against continued Government operation of the railways." The statement that the Canadian Pacific handled 70 per cent. of last year's grain crop is likewise disproved by Mr. Hanna, who quotes the Grain Commission's figures for the year ended August 31 last, to this effect: C.N.R., 96,358 cars of grain inspected, or 47.2 per cent.; C.P.R., 108,244 cars, or 52.8 per cent. The National lines moved 52 per cent. of the total tonnage of commercial coal produced in the western prairie provinces in 1920 and have handled 56 per cent. for the first ten months of 1921. In the case of live stock and cattle traffic for the prairie provinces the Winnipeg stock yard reports show that the C.N.R. moved 56 per cent. of the total handled by the two lines, from January to October, 1920, and 51 per cent. in the same period this year. Deficits are not growing, proceeds the president, but are being greatly reduced. "The deficit for 1921, it is estimated, will be reduced by twenty million dollars." The fact that the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Government marine have just made arrangements to strengthen their representation in New Zealand and Australia, by appointing a general traffic agent, with headquarters in Auckland and four offices in different cities of Australasia, makes it very essential that the true position of affairs should be understood in that part of the world. Mr. Hanna does well to fight this anti-government propaganda, and the facts he makes public are worthy of the notice of people nearer home, who are too apt to take a gloomy view while listening to the knockers. — Hamilton Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Evidently Portage La Prairie did not believe those advertisements about Canada's need.

The Farmers fell down in Ontario, and Premier Drury should not miss the significance of that fact.

Returned soldier candidates did not fare up well. General Rennie, General Clark, General Harvey, General Dyer, Col. Currie, Major Streight, Major Rutherford,Col. Hunter, Capt. Dewart, Col. Raikes and Capt. Wilton were among the slain.

"Gordon was the man" in West Peterborough again.

There were many surprises yesterday, and the failure of the Farmers in Ontario was among the greatest of them.

After ten years wandering in the shades of Opposition, the Liberals come back to power at Ottawa, and they not only have the largest group but a majority in the House as well.

Now watch the scramble for seats in the Cabinet.

At least Hon. J. A. Stewart can boast that the Government railways showed a surplus every month of his term as Minister of Railways — the whole three months.

Do you expect any more from a party or a man that did not back us up in 1917?"—Sergt.-Major Joseph MacNamara.

FUR PRICES DROP DOWN IN FRANCE

PARIS, Dec. 7.—(Candian Press)—For the three years 1918, 1919 and 1920 enormous profits were realized in the French fur trade but the rise in prices seems to have passed its highest point this year.

A Hudson Bay otter cloak which cost 12,000 francs in April 1920, can now be bought for 5,000. Rabbit skins which had reached fancy prices have returned to the normal of before the war. Astrakhan and skunks are now only twice their pre-war prices and blue and white fox from three to four times.

Siberian sables and Peruvian chinchillas alone continue to increase in price, both being rare and much in demand. A sable cloak which cost 80,000 francs would cost today 500,000.

GOVERNMENT OVERWHELMED IN GREATEST REVOLUTION IN CANADA POLITICS YET

OTTAWA, Dec. 7.—Canadian Press. The Liberals will have a majority of 11 over all parties in the next Parliament as a result of yesterday's election, which returned the parties as follows:

Liberals - - - - - -	123
Progressives - - - - -	59
Conservatives - - - -	51
Independents - - - - -	2

The election result is considered the greatest political revolution in Canadian history. East of the Ottawa River and west of the Great Lakes Conservatism as a political force has ceased to exist.

It is expected that Hon. Arthur Meighen will resign very soon, following which Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King will be called upon to form a Government.

The Premier and eight of his Cabinet were defeated.

EXTRA

MR. J. H. BURNHAM ON THE RESULT

CONGRATULATED MR. G. N. GORDON ON HIS LARGE MAJORITY — NOTES FROM COMMITTEE ROOMS.

When J. H. Burnham entered his committee rooms tonight he asked "how do we stand" "six hundred in the hole" replied Mr. J. V. McElderry and Mr. Burnham admitted his defeat in this riding by his remark "We will never pick it up." Later on the evening Mr. Burnham addressed the gathering as follows:

"First of all I wish to extend my congratulations to Mr. G. N. Gordon M. P. and then to express my warm thanks to my orginization which with myself worked hard in support of the Government. When times are not good, people are inclined to be discontented and to work for a change."

Mr. Burnham was given three cheers and the company dispersed.

G. N. GORDON ADDRESSED FOLLOWERS AT THEATRE

REITERATES HIS POLICY—RETURNED SOLDIER FOR THE CUSTOMS HOUSE—LARGE CROWD FOLLOWED SUCCESSFUL CANDIDATE TO PLACE OF MEETING.

8 p.m.

The Committee Rooms at 7.40 have emptied once in favour of the Royal Theatre, where Mr. Gordon is anxiously awaited by a large audience, and the rooms have refilled to near capacity once more.

Gordon's majority at this hour is given here as 1,800.

AT THE ALLEN.

The crush getting into the Allen Theatre at 7.30 was simply tremendous, and men struggled for admission like small boys scrambling for pennies—until the police appeared and insisted on some semblance of order. But a few minutes were consumed in comfortably filling the fairly capacious auditorium and gallery. There was a smattering of ladies present, demonstrating their keen interest in the political affairs of their county.

When Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Gordon and party entered the theatre they were acclaimed again and again. The huge audience jumped to their feet, hats were waved in the air, and they split the very atmosphere with their applaudits.

On the platform were seated Mr. I. J. Hartley, President of the local Liberal Association, and the Veterans' Band, which rendered after Mr. Gordon's stirring and enthusing speech of thanks for his election, contributed "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and "The Maple Leaf For Ever."

Mr. J. J. Hartley opened the proceedings with a neat address, in which he characterized Mr. Gordon's majority of over 2,000 as the biggest plurality ever piled up in the West Riding of Peterborough by any victorious candidate for the Dominion House.

Stupendous Ovation.

Mr. Gordon, on rising to extend his appreciation of this riding's endorsation of his candidature, was greeted by a stupendous ovation, covering several tumultuous minutes. He emphasized the contest just finished as a battle by the great masses of the people for emancipation from that aristocratic rule with which they had been afflicted under Meighen administration. And he assured his hearers that his (Mr. Gordon's) first official act would be to advocate and fight for the repayment of that Riordon I.O.U. (Prolonged cheers). Another immediate act would be to see to it that there is a ex-soldier appointed as caretaker of the Customs House. "That is a returned man's job, and a returned man is going to get it." (Renewed applause).

GETTING READY FOR SLUMBERLAND

(By Jessie Leitch.)

"I think you should sleep to-night, dear," said the woman who was caring for her sick mother.

"The bed is smooth, and if you should need an extra blanket you can reach this one and pull it up. I'll spread it over the foot of the bed. You've had your medicine, and your nourishment, and the window is down from the top. There is a bell on the table beside you. Ring if you want anything."

And dropping a dutiful kiss somewhere in the region of her mother's cheek, Mrs. Green went off to bed. She did not believe in "fussing over the sick, and she had done what the doctor had ordered. Moreover, she did not consider that her mother was seriously ill.

Nor was she. But the elderly woman lay silent for some itme after her daughter had closed the door.

She wanted to read her Bible. True, it lay on the table beside her, but her glasses were across the room, on the dresser.

The old lady always washed her face and hands and brushed her teeth before she went to sleep at night. Perhaps her daughter had forgotten. She looked wistfully at the washstand.

Then the door opened gently and Olive, her half-grown granddaughter, entered.

"I thought I might get some wash water for you, dear," said the young girl. "I remember how I loved being prepared for sleep when I was ill in the hospital last year! My nurse used to call it 'putting me to bed,' in spite of the fact that I was already in bed."

Moving swiftly, with soft steps, the girl brought to the bedside a basin of warm water, soap, tooth paste and toth brush, and a hand towel, as well as a bath towel.

She placed a chair at the foot of the bed, drew her patient to the side of the bed and loosened her nightgown at the neck.

Placing a towel under the old lady's chinn, she washed and dried her face, neck and ears.

Then she washed her hands, placing them in the basin.

Next, she put paste on the moistened tooth brush, held a small receiving basin under her grandmother's chin while she herself, manipulated the tooth brush, rinsed and gargled her throat, and lay back refreshed upon the pillow.

Then turning the bedspread and blankets over the foot of the bed and the chair she had placed there, the girl rubbed her grandmother's back with cool, fragrant powder, braided her hair, turned her pillows and remade the bed.

And sleep for the weary patient was very near when, her task completed the little home nurse placed a pair of glasses on the Bible and turned the night lamp low.

TORONTO MAN HAD NO END OF WORRY

LEACH DECLARES HIS TROUBLES OF FIVE YEARS STANDING ARE OVER AT LAST.

"I certainly am glad I stuck to Tanlac and gave it a fair trial, for since taking it I'm eating better, sleeping better and feeling better than I have in years," said Henry Leach, well-known plasterer, residing at 755 Pape Ave., Toronto, Ont.

"Ever since I had a spell of grippe some five years ago, I've been having attacks of indigestion and other troubles that gave me no end of worry. I used to go for days at a time without eating scarcely anything, and even the sight of food just made me want to leave the table. Even what little I did eat seemed to do me no good. Nights I often bloated with gas until my heart acted so queerly I dared not try to lie on my left side. Many times I got so dizzy I just had to get down off the scaffold, for it looked like I would surely fall. I had terrible headaches, and dull pains all through my body. I got scarcely any sleep and always felt tired and dull.

"At last my wife persuaded me to try Tanlac. I took three bottles before it seemed to help me the least bit, but after that I improved wonderfully and now I'm a well man, and I mean to say by that I haven't an ache or pain of any kind. I sleep like a log every night, and am always ready for a hearty breakfast in the morning and a big day's work. There's certainly nothing like this wonderful medicine Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists.

WHY NOT MAKE THE THINGS WITH WHICH TO SHOWER THE BRIDE?

Wedding showers always present a problem to a woman with a slender pocket book. There are many ways to solve it if she is ingenious and energetic in her search for new ideas.

If the shower is specialized, such as a linen, kitchen linen, fancy work or lingerie, then the affair is a bit more complicated, for there is no economizing on well-known staples, though the fancy work allows the greatest liberty of choice. Women's aptitude at appraising the value of gifts makes it inadvisable to attempt imitations of poor substitutes.

There are a number of attractive ways of showering the bride-to-be which remove the sometimes embarrassing situation of receiving so many gifts at once. One way is to assemble the gifts at someone's home and then pack them in a clothes basket tied up with white ribbons. Another way is to pack them in a big paper beehive and send them by a messenger, labelled "Handle with care." Sometimes the hostess places a basket in the hall, and then the gifts may be dropped in as the guests arrive, and after luncheon the basket is brought in and a formal presentation is made.

For the linen shower, embroidered tea sets, table covers, tray cloths, a doyley Welsh rarebit set, centrepieces, Russian tea cloths, Bohemian table-runner sets and embroidered towels are all welcome and will not be as expensive as tablecloth and napkins.

Kitchen linens include the usual dozen of each sort of towel, embroidered or initialed, the bride's taste being ascertained as to the colors to be used. One woman varied the usual offerings by presenting a housemaid's box, fully fitted with every sort of cleaning cloth, brush, powder, polish and other necessities.

The lingerie shower is difficult for most women have so many little personal ideas about these things that what would be "perfectly lovely" for one would not find favor with another. An embroidered hand-made petticoat is always welcome, though the band should not be added until the exact waist measure has been found out.

The girl who paints fairly well has a choice of a number of decorative things to make. One girl recently sent four dozen service plates of paper for use at the first dinner or luncheon parties given by the bride. One set was yellow with a yellow flower painted in the centre of each plate, another was green with white flowers, the third was Dutch blue decorated with little marines and windmills, and the fourth was black with gold and gay-colored butterflies. All were tied with appropriate ribbons and large bows.

Dinner favors and place-cards make pretty gifts. Desk sets and bureau china sets are charming gifts if the artist is an expert in this kind of art work. A girl clever in making Indian baskets is never at a loss to know what to send, and usually makes a wedding basket which may be used for fruit or flowers on the buffet or side table.

White cosmos, if the frost does not nip it early, or yellow and white chrysanthemums make pretty decorations for the fall shower table, not interfering with the china color scheme, whatever it may be. Yellow, white or green candles may be used if the room is lighted, a fad at recent luncheons.

She did much good and was beloved by them.

Next Sunday morning Rev. Mr. Graham will preach to children.

The Methodist Sunday schools are practicing for their Christmas entertainment.

The Presbyterians are this week commencing to practice for their New Years' entertainment, which will be held on New Year's Eve.

DO YOU WEAR RIGHT COLORS TO ACCENTUATE YOUR BEAUTY?

While one may not have the power to alter the slant or the contour of the chin, yet there are many aids to beauty which often are overlooked. Comparatively few women devote serious thought to the study of color in its relations to their complexion. But it is a most important factor, as you will agree if you meditate on the matter for any length of time.

The girl with sallow skin and dark hair never should affect violet, even if it is one of the approved colors of the season, for it will greatly detract from her appearance. It is really a treacherous color even for yellow-haired women.

Of course, certain women may wear it and wear it well, but they are women whose skins are rich in coloring. A violet velvet frock will look magnificent on the girl with violet eyes and cheeks sffused with rosy tints of buoyant health, but the woman whose skin is naturally inclined toward a yellow hue and whose eyes have lost their lustre will do well to avoid this shade.

The very fair woman may wear many of the brighter shades of blue as they are particularly becoming to her. Of course for street wear navy blue is the choice of many a smart-frocked woman. This is admirable for the woman with good color if her eyes are blue.

Sometimes, brunettes affect this color and while it may not be altogether unbecoming to them, yet if they could realize how charming they would look in some of the brown shades, they would quickly discard the blues they now affect. The orange in the bleu really tend to intensify a dark complexion.

Brunettes should make reds, orange and yellows their choice as these colors enrich the warm tones of their skins.

This season there are many lovely shades for the brunette, as fashion has signified her approval, especially of red.

However, in choosing colors to emphasize the tones of your complexion or the lustre of your eyes and hair, you never should sacrifice your color for any that may be proclaimed "the fashion." Consider first your own appearance and then select the color that truly may be termed "yours."

Of course each season one finds that there is a tendency towards the over emphasis of certain shades. Sometimes they are suited to many women, although again they are really colors for few. Women who study fashion very closely are sometimes apt to forget that they should give first thought to themselves and their distinctive type of beauty and if they would enhance their loveliness this is what they should always do.

The woman with fair hair may wear many colors. Baby blues and pink only enchance her loveliness, while light green which naturally increases the warmth of a ruddy complexion will impart a delightful rosiness of the pale blonde.

The girl with auburn tresses will find that certain shades of green and brown are specially adapted to her type of beauty, while the woman who may have suffered much humiliation in her school days because her hair resembled carrots on its tinting, will look admirable in some of the blue-green as well as the rich copper otnes which are so magnificent when developed in equisite velvets.

If you would enhance your loveliness without the aid of paints or powders, just try the effect of different colors when you chose your next frock.

RUSSIAN OFFICER COMING INTO OWN

RESTORED TO HIS FORMER AUTHORITY

RIGA, Latvia, Dec. 7.—(Canadian Press)—The Russian army officer, stripped of most of his autohrity by Premier Kerensky at the very start of his regime in 1917, and persecuted in the early days of the Bolshevik rule as the personification of all that was to be despised in a "bourgeois" or aristocrat, is about to be restored to practically the same position he held before the revolution.

The authority of an army officer in the field has been recognized by the Bolshevik during the past three years, and nowhere has discipline, at least on paper, been stricter than in the Red army, but as a rule officers did not find their work attractive. Their pay was not very much higher than that of the men, nor was there any great difference in their rations, while the responsibility was heavy.

If they came from the old officer class, they were constantly under suspicion and surveillance by the Communist commissars, one of whom was attached to each separate military unit.

Now the Soviet government has come out with an admission that officers and men cannot be treated alike and that in order to secure sufficient officers, they must be provided for on a much hgher scale than the soldiers, and "it should be realized that the principle of equality is not acceptable."

From the very beginning of the Bolshevik regime, many officers of the army of the late Emperor Nicholas have served the Reds. Some were compelled to do so, others were attracted by the promise of food at the time civilians were starving, while others, liberal-minded politically, volunteered, considering the Red Army, after all, Russian to the core. Their numbers have been constantly increasing during the past year, due to Trotsky's insistence that the Russian army be as efficient as any other in the world and also to the gradual progress made toward bettering their lot.

To supply the Red army with well trained junior officers, the Bolshevik have opened scores of training schools. The "Kursants" as these young officer aspirants are termed, are spick and span and as well set up as American West Point cadets. In addition to school training, they are given actual battle practice at every opportunity, being sent into the field as "shock troops" against counter-revolutionary or "bandit" bands in Ukraine. They greatly distinguished themselves in the revolt at Kronstadt last March.

CUBA IMPATIENT AT DELAY REGARDING LOAN

HAVANA Cuba, Dec. 7.—(Canadian Press)—Cuban business interests vitally affected by the prevailing financial and economic crisis are becoming impatient because of the delay in negotiations for a $50,000,000 exterior loan to help normalize the country. Their vehement inquiries have just elicited information from official quarters to the effect that congressional approval of loan legislation cannot be expected until the legislative committees in charge of framing tariff and tax reforms have finished their arduous task.

Conferences between administration officials and congressional leaders, however, are being held daily and it is hoped that a program that Congress will approve will be settled upon as soon as the administration has finished reducing the budget and the tariff and tax committees have made their recommendations. Assurances that the government's income would be so adjusted as to meet the additional interest and sinking fund loan charges were the prime requisites demanded by the American bankers.

The Young Mother

Youth with its vitality makes for the young mother's health and happiness. But later maternal experiences bring a different result. The care of a family, multiplied household duties, and very often the weakness caused by womanly disease, tend to prolong the suffering and to make convalescence a slow and weary process. Many women — perhaps your own neighbors — have had beneficial experience with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription which prepares the prospective mother. It promotes the appetite, ends nervousness and sleeplessness, and gives a consciousness of buoyant health. It is unexcelled as a strength-giving tonic for mothers during the period of convalescence. This Favorite Prescription was used by Dr. Pierce with great success over 50 years ago. It's still good today. Ask your neighbor!

HAMILTON, ONT.—"I was advised by a practical nurse to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as a tonic during expectancy, and I have every reason to be grateful for her advice, because it kept me in perfect health and I had practically no suffering. The 'Prescription' not only benefits the mother, but I am positive the child is benefited, too. I would not hesitate to recommend this 'Prescription' to every expectant mother."—MRS. C. SPIKE, 46 Hess Street, N.

TOUR OF PRINCE INCLUDES BRISK WEEK IN DELHI

LONDON, Dec. 7. — (Canadian Press).—The tour of the Prince of Wales in India, in its final phases, in February and the first half of March, 1922, includes a busy week in Delhi, the seat of the Supreme Government under the British Crown, and from there he will proceed to the premier State of the Punjab, Patiala, in the latter part of February. In connection with the visit of the Heir apparent to Patiala, it is of interest to note that on the day he embarked on the battle cruiser Renown for his Indian tour the ruler of Patiala unveiled at Brighton, England, the memorial gateway given to that town by Indian subscribers in recognition of the care some thousands of Indian wounded soldiers had received in the hospital there. In the Great War some 28,000 subjects of the Maharaja of Patiala enlisted in the British forces, and the Patiala Imperial Service troops fought with great distinction on many battle fronts, doing particularly good service in Palestine and Mesopotamia.

On his way to Lahore, which will be reached on February 25th, the Prince will stop at Jullunder to see the pensioners and ex-soldiers of the districts round that town, and to lay the foundation stone of the Indian military school for the sons of soldiers. In the Punjab capital the Prince will receive an address of welcome from the members of the Punjab Legislature. A great feature of his sojourn in Lahore will be a review of pensioned Indian officers at the Minto Park, to be followed by sports and illuminations.

Stopping en route at Sialkot to see the garrison there, His Royal Highness, on March 2nd, will reach Jammu, the winter headquarters of the Maharaja of Kashmir and Jammu. From this State went forth many thousands of its subjects to fight for the Allies in the war, and the State maintained at full strength on various fronts an admirably efficient force of Imperial Service troops. At Jammu the Prince will come the nearest in his tour to the civilizations under Northern Buddhism, and will see interesting spectacles such as no other centre of his journeyings can offer. These will include an exhibition of the game of Baltistan polo, a parade of the different races and communities of the State in their national dress, a dance of Lamas, and an exhibition of the crafts at Kashmir.

On his way to the North-West Frontier the Prince will stop at Jhelu, where he will lay the foundation stone of King George's Royal Indian Military School, and will inspect a large number of war pensioners belonging to the Western Punjab.

The last fortnight of the visit of the Prince of Wales in India will, in some respects, be the most interesting part of his tour, as it will provide an opportunity for the soldier Prince to see the Northern Army and the conditions under which the work of defending India from external aggression through the frontier passes is carried on. At Peshawar, which is to be reached from Jhelum on March 4th, he will receive the leading khans of maliks of the North-West Frontier Province. He will go up the historic Khyber Pass, and will see the extreme outposts of the main north-western gate of the Indian Empire.

Arriving at Rawalpindi on March 8th, the Prince will visit the far-spreading remains of axila, famous in the time of Buddha as the great university town of India, and, later as the headquarters of Alexander the Great. Here the Prince will be shown the important excavations carried on by Sir John Marshall, the Director-General of the Archaeological Survey of India.

Then the Prince will proceed by motor to the camp of Lord Rawlinson, the Commander-in-Chief in India, at Hati, to see the manoeuvres of the Northern Army. On March 9th there will be a cavalry battle at Bushan; on March 10th an infantry battle round Hati, and on March 11th field firing and artillery display near the same place. The manoeuvres will be under the direct charge of General Sir William Birdwood G.O.C. the Northern Army.

It is a far cry from the extreme north of the Punjab to Dehra Dun in the United Provinces, on the foothills of the Himalayas, and the journey will be broken about midway to enable the Prince to visit Kapurthala, one of the cis-Sutlej States, the purpose of the visit being almost entirely military. The Prince will open the Royal Indian Military College there, which is to prepare Indian boys selected for cadet ships at Sandhurst. He will also present colors to the Lawrence Military School for Anglo-Indian boys, which was founded by Sir John Lawrence. A party of boys from Sanawar, in the Simla Hills, will attend this function.

The Prince will spend a few days in recreation near the end of his progress through India, so full of social and ceremonial functions, and will be the guest of Sir Harcourt Butler at the Kadir Cup Camp at Gairaula, in the Meerut district.

The word "Kadir" simply means a river-bed. The Meerut Kadir is about 100 miles long, and through this distance the Ganges has hollowed out a bed twenty or thirty feet below the level of the surrounding country, and varying in width from three to eight miles. It is a land of far horizons and of grass and swamp, and casts a charm on all who go there to see the keen contest for "the blue ribbon of Indian pig-sticking." After witnessing the final stages of the pig-sticking competition, the Prince will proceed to Karachi.

The farewell ceremonies in connection with the Prince's tour in India will take place at Karachi, and His Royal Highness will embark on the battle cruiser Renown on March 17th. The Renown, after four months in India, will then leave for Colombo, en route for Japan.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

FISH SMOTHERED.

Mr. Widgeon, of Rice Lake, he says that he have noticed a good deal in The Examiner about a game Protection—and so have I—but it seem that those game protection Club do not know exactly how to protect the fish from slaughtering (the Club should see the Department of Railways and Canals of Dominion Government at Ottawa, to see if they could get them to keep the water level with the ice all winter) I Don't call a slaughter by catching fish by trolling or with a rod and line but by smothering for wanting water—million upon millions of small fish of all kinds killed every winter by the lockmaster lifting up the stop logs. But of course you can not blame the lockmasters; they have to obey orders—the stop logs are lifted when all the Lakes, Bays and marshes are frozen, about 5 or 6 inches of ice and than of course when the water falls down the ice has to go down with the water down on to the mud and that means a smother to everything what is under this ice—fish and muskrats. I am a traper I see the small fish killed in this way every spring and that not only where I trap, but all over, any traper could tell you the same story—that they could pick up shovel full of small fish on the mud in any bay, and what is the use of restocking our Lakes with small fry, only to smother them with the rest—I have been pretty busy writing to parties that I thought would take the matter up before the Department of Railways and Canals, to try and get them to keep the water level with the ice all winter if they want to save the fish—the first letter I wrote was to D. McDonald Esq., Deputy Minister, Toronto, and the other to Capt. John Fleming, Ottawa, both parties reply this Department has no control over these waters—you will kindly take this matter up with the Department of Railways and Canals, if I am not mistaken I think those Parties that I wrote to it is their duty to see that the waters be keept up all through the winter—I saw a special notice in the game and fisheries act and that was my reason to write as it says—Sportsmen and others Desirous of aiding in the work of enforcing the game and fisheries laws in Ontario are urgently requested to send Particulars of such case of violation of the laws as may come under their notice to the Department.

CORROBORATE THEORY THAT AFRICA CRADLE OF THE HUMAN RACE

LONDON, Dec. 7. — (Canadian Press).—Scientists say the Darwinian theory that Africa may have been the original home of the human race received partial corroboration from the discovery just made in northern Rhodesia of a fossilized skull which gives a new orientation to early history of primitive man.

The skull, which is complete save for the lower jaw, resembles that of th ape man (pithcanthropus erectus) discovered in Java in 1892, which as been regarded as the most primitive human skull known until now. The Java skull, however, lacked a face. In this respect the Rhodesian fossil reveals a type curiously similar to what is known as the Gibraltar skull.
